Two of the party of three who set out on a forlorn hope expedition to relieve the refugees in the scattered mountain villages were Canadians. With Dr. Kennedy was Major de Lormier. The third member was the district administrator for the fund, Mr. H. H. Sams, a New Zealander.

It was between the two towns of Kozan and Veria that the holdup took place. Several wagons could be seen forming a blockade across the road as the car swung around the corner. "I suddenly realized that a man was pointing a rifle at us from a distance of 15 feet," Dr. Kennedy says in his report.

"The chauffeur was ordered to get out of the car, and after some conversation with the chief of the brigands he told us that we were to be shot. One of the other bandits had a rifle, and he covered us from a position on the slope about 10 feet above us, and a third, with two pistols, covered us from behind.

"Finally, the chief came up to our car and demanded all our money. We gave him all the Greek money we had, amounting to 11,000 drachmas. They made no attempt to search us. So Sams and de Lormier were able to retain a considerable amount in sterling which they were carrying.

"The end of the matter was that we were allowed to proceed, but back the way we had come, and, in turning the car on the narrow road, the chauffeur was so bewildered that he nearly crashed over the precipice. Only one stone saved us. It turned out that in his excitement the driver had forgotten that the car was in reverse gear."

Dr. Kennedy is a graduate from Queen's University. He was a medical missionary for some years in the Near East, and conducted a hospital at Constantinople. He served in the R. A. M. C. in France till early in 1916, when he was released to organize relief for the Armenian refugees in Russian Armenia.

GOOD REPORT ORANGE ORDER

Grand Master in His Annual Report Appeals for Unity of Interests.

Condemnation of all movements that tend to weaken the bonds of the empire and an appeal for the binding together of Orangemen and Protestants throughout the Dominion in defence o the ancient rights of British peoples were voiced in no uncertain terms by C. A. Lount, Grand Master, in his annual report to the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East at its sixty-fifth annual communication which opened in Victoria Hall yesterday forenoon, and is continuing today. His report was enthusiastic and optimistic throughout, indicating a healthy progress in all branches of the order, numerically and financially, and sounding a more cheerful note than in any year since the Great War took so many members of the Orange Order overseas in 1914.

The Grand Master, in his address, extended congratulations to the Orange county of the City of Ottawa, upon the splendid success of the Grand Orange Reunion held in that city on July 8 to 14, and special mention was made of the excellent work of the Ottawa degree team upon that occasion.

The Grand Master also gave a glowing report of the progress of the Orange association throughout the world as shown by the reports submitted at the Imperial Grand Orange Council of the World which was held at Winnipeg last July.

Special reference was made to the Centennial Fund Campaign and he paid a splendid tribute to Dr. J. W. Edwards, D.G.M., who is in charge of this campaign. The campaign is proving to be a most successful one from every point of view, and a large amount was subscribed by the delegates attending Grand Lodge.

Right Worshipful Bro. Lount dwelt upon the importance to the order of the insurance branch of the association, and he also impressed upon the members of the association the great work being accomplished by The Orange Sentinel and urged all members to become subscribers to the paper. He also paid a tribute to the splendid work being done by the True Blue and Orange Orphanage, and invited the members of the association to give all possible support to this worthy institution.

The Grand Master emphatically condemned the several movements, the nims of which are to weaken the bonds of the Empire.

The reports of the Grand Secretary, Right Wor. Bro. F. M. Clark, of Belleville, and the Grand Treasurer, Right Wor. Bro. W. C. Reid, of Belleville, showed the Order of this jurisdiction of Eastern Ontario to be in a flourishing condition, he said.

During the afternoon session the principal business transacted was the receiving of deputations, the first being His Worship Mayor J. J. Turner and Alderman R. N. Jones, who extended a civic welcome to the members of the Grand Lodge. Right Wor. Bro. W. McFaul, Grand Director of Ceremonies, and Right Wor. Bro. Don. Sutherland, Dept. Grand Secretary, delivered suitable replies on behalf of the Grand Lodge.

The next deputation was from the County of West Peterborough. The County Master, Wor. Bro. E. F. Reid, on behalf of the Orange Association of West Peterborough, delivered an address of welcome which was replied to on behalf of Grand Lodge by Wor. Bro. H. B. Potterley, of Dundas County.

During the afternoon session stirring addresses were delivered by Most Wor. Bro. Hon. W. D. McPherson, K.C., Grand Master of the Orange Grand Lodge of British America; Most Wor. Bro. Hon. Dr. J. W. Edwards, of Kingston, Dept. Grand Master of the Grand Orange Lodge of British America; Right Wor. Bro. Lawrence, Dept. Grand Master of the Grand Orange Lodge of Western Ontario, and Most Wor. Bro. Lieut.-Col. Thos. A. Duff, of Toronto.

DETROIT RAILWAY MADE LARGE SUM DURING LAST YEAR

The Net Earnings in the Company's Annual Report Were $863,646.

DETROIT, Mich., Mar. 21. — (By Canadian Press).—Net earnings of the Detroit Railways for 1923 were shown as $863,646 in the company's annual report. This was presented at the annual meeting held here yesterday, but was not made public until late this afternoon. An unofficial report yesterday had placed the net income of the company at 2289,500. The net earnings applicable to the payment of dividends shown in the official report represent the balance after deducting total interest charges from the net operation profits plus income from other sources, including interest payments received in the deal whereby the city of Detroit purchased the company's city properties.

The company's financial showing is considered satisfactory by Elliott G. Stevenson, the president. In his annual report to the shareholders, which was also made public this afternoon ,Mr. Stevenson said, that despite sharp increases in operating expenses and an exceptionally heavy outlay by reason of the falling due of several obligations resulting from the sale of the "city system" the company has had a successful year.

"Great White Way" Got Clerk's Stolen Money.

REGINA, Sask., March 21.—The Regina police have no warrant out for the arrest of Leonard Stanley, who was arrested at his own request by New York police yesterdy, it was stated yesterday, and they expect the man, who says he stole $600 from a local insurance office and spent it on the "Great White Way," to be dealt with in New York as a vagrant.

At the offices of the insurance company it was stated they had no interest in Stanley, who had been bonded. It was up to the bonding company to take any further action. He left here on March 4.

Resolution Church Union By Presbytery of Maitland

The following resolution re Church Union was passed by the Presbytery of Maitland at its recent meeting:

"Whereas, the Presbyterian Church Association has declared its intention to bring pressure to bear upon the Federal Parliament, as well as the Provincial Legislature, if possible, to hinder the passing of the United Church of Canada Act, agreed to by the General Assembly; and

"Whereas, such a procedure imperils the spiritual independence of all Protestant denominations, but particularly Presbyterians; and

"Whereas, such procedure is contrary to the teaching and example of the Lord Jesus, the only King and Head of the Church; and

"Whereas, such a procedure is making the Presbyterian Church an object of ridicule to the unbelievers, and has jeopardized the message of the Christian minister;

"Therefore, be it resolved that this Presbytery of Maitland, with no desire to condemn or to commend the Union movement, express its disapproval of the declared intention of the Presbyterian Church Association. And we further declare it to be our conviction that non-resistance will ultimately be for the glory of God.

REPORT FINDS AGAINST FORMER PRIME MINISTER

Commissioner Accuses Sir Richard Squires of Receiving Large Sums of Money.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., March 21. — (Canadian Press). — In his report handed in to the Governor-in-Council under date of March 15, H. Hollis Walker, K.C., of London, England, Royal Commissioner, who spent the last ten weeks here investigating the allegations of wrong doings which led to the downfall of Squires' Government last summer, finds, definitely and absolutely, against Sir Richard Squires, former Prime Minister of Newfoundland.

The Commissioner reports he holds it as proved that Sir Richard accepted presents of large amounts of money from the Dominion Iron and Steel Company at the time when that concern was conducting negotiations with the Government of which Sir Richard was leader.

He judges it proved that amounts of money totalling over $40,000 were paid from the treasury of the company to Sir Richard Squires with the knowledge, consent and approbation of high officials of the company. He concludes that such payments could be made only because the company hoped they would thereby influence Sir Richard as Prime Minister in favor of its interests.

Cheap Railway Fare Bill to Committee.

OTTAWA, March 21.—(Canadian Press).—Second reading was given in the house yesterday afternoon to a bill amending the railway act, which was introduced yesterday by T. L. Church (Conservative, North Toronto). The object of the bill is to restore to public cheap tickets for week-end holidays, excursions, fall fairs, conventions and sporting events, as before the war. Hon. George P. Graham, minister of railways, agreed to second reading if Mr. Church intended that the bill go to th, railway committee. He thought that all interested parties had a right to be heard before the bill was passed. The railways of the world wer, not having any too easy a time just now.

The bill was sent to the railway committee.

WELLINGTON KOO TO SUCCEED AS MINISTER

(By Ray Marshall, United Press Staff Correspondent).

PEKING, March 21. — (United Press).—The President to-day empowered Dr. Wellington Koo, former Ambassador to Washington, to succeed Foreign Minister Wang as head of the Chinese delegation negotiating with Russia for a treaty to grant diplomatic recognition to that Power.

It is reliably reported Russia will consider any plan China may formulate, for the resumption of the negotiations, considering neither party to blame for the breakdown.

In official circles here it is noted that the high-handed tactics of M. Karakhan, head of the Russian delegation, have been abandoned, presumably on advice from Moscow.

First Comes Safety

Two forms of investment you can safely buy "on faith,"—they are Government Bonds and Life Insurance.

Every dollar invested by a life insurance company must be reported to the Government at Ottawa. In every public library or life insurance office you may see the Government Report which gives a list of the securities owned by each company. Government inspection, plus good management, makes an investment in life insurance safe.

Life insurance should be the foundation of every Estate, and if you have not enough you should at once consult a life insurance man.

CROP REPORTS

High-lying fall wheat fields have been rendered more or less bare by the steady thawing weather of the last week or two. The trying time is now upon the crop, but so far it has come along in generally promising condition.

Applications for farm laborers are pouring into representatives. Middlesex placed forty last week most of them being immigrants from Ireland, England, Denmark, Holland and Sweden. The German workers recently arrived in Bruce are giving satisfaction as a rule.

Large quantities of hay are being baled and sold for shipping out, much of it to the United States. Prices range from $9 to $10 to the farmer. Straw sells at about half that price. Loose hay in the market places sells at from $12 to $14 a ton.

Kenora.—Sunflower silage has lasted well, and farmers from all over the district are well satisfied with this form for roughage.

Grey.—A large number of apples are still held in storage. Spies are selling at $6.50 to $7 per barrel. One fruit specialist has ordered 400 boxes to pack the remainder of his stock.

Prescott and Russell.—Large quantities of clover and timothy are being thrashed for seed purposes. Nine cloved hullers have been in operation this winter. In some townships as high as 20,000 and 25,000 lbs. of clover and timothy seeds have been thrashed.

Brant.—At the recent sale of pure-bred Holsteins the highest priced cow was $205. The prices generally were somewhat lower than expected, the average being around $170. Good grade cows are selling as high as $80 to $90. Good horses are selling very well for this time of year, $150 to $175 being a common price, but blemished or poor quality horses sell very cheap.

Durham.—Young bulls have been selling more readily than for several years past.

Halton.—There has been a marked movement of pure-bred bulls registered males throughout the county. Many of the breeders have sold their young animals to farmers to head grade herds.

Grey.—Hogs are going in a steady stream. Grading is improving, but a large amount of work must be done yet. Two carloads of lambs from Thornbury weighing about 85 lbs. were sold for $15.25 apiece. The feeder of these bought 2,000 lambs from the West, and is realizing well on his venture. Quite a number of horses are being taken, but by horse buyers. Prices are not large. They go from $100 to $150.

South Simcoe.—The number of good quality finished steers being disposed of at the present time is quite limited. Seven dollars per cwt. was the top price paid for steers at local shipping points, with the average running between $5.25 and $6. Many sows well advanced to the farrowing period and just weaned pigs are being offered for sale.

Halton.—Due to the numerous pig clubs formed in the county, there has been a marked increase of Yorkshire pigs kept on the farm, and most farmers report that it has been a profitable enterprize. There is also a tendency towards many farmers purchasing a pure-bred York sow for foundation stock.

Of 27,000 hogs shipped from Bruce County to Toronto on graded basis since October 15, to February 28, there were 33⅓ graded selects, 48⅓ thick smooths, 5⅓ heavies, 7⅓ shops, and the balance lights and roughs.

Carleton.—The Canadian Packing Co. of Hull have commenced buying on grade in the country. One load of hogs from a point in this county graded 80⅓ selects.

Middlesex.—Horses are selling for about $140 apiece for those weighing about 1400 lbs.

York.—A sale of Western horses held at Newmarket recently averaged around $150. The horses averaged around 1400 lbs. and of fair quality. Sale prices run between $100 to $160 for good farm horses. Grade milch cows are selling between $45 and $80, while pure-bred Holsteins are averaging around $140. Grade Oxford sheep at recent sale brought $17.50.

Dufferin.—Good horses brought up to $250 each at the fair last week. Grade cows at auction sales have been selling up to $100 and over.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Earton

"And now," said the Beanstalk king kindly to the Twins, "how can we reward you for finding our lost treasure? We had only enough money left to keep us for 99 days, but now we will live in peace and comfort all the rest of our lives."

"I know what I should like, thank you," said Nick quickly. "I'd like to see the house where Jack's giant lived."

"So should I," cried Nancy. "And his wife, and the oxen where she hid Jack, and the chair the giant sat in, and the table he pounded on, and the door he came through when he said 'Fe, fi, fo, fum!'"

"Your wish shall be granted," declared the Beanstalk king. "The cat shall take you there. Come, Dandy, and remember, no drains this time, or you shall do without your herring for a week!"

Dandy promised to be good, and lay down while the Twins crawled up on his silky soft back; then calling goodby to their friends, the three started down the road to the giant's house.

Mrs. Giant was ou; weeding her garden when she beheld the Twins riding in at the gate.

"Lands save us!" cried she. "There are two more of those children! Exactly the size of the little boy who came to Beanstalk Land and stole my husband's harp and magic hen, and then cut down the beanstalk! How do you do?" she said politely as the Twins came up.

"Very well, thank you!" cried Nancy and Nick, sliding down off Dandy's back. "Are you the giant's wife?"

Mrs. Giant laughed. "Which giant?" she asked. "Beanstalk Land is nothing but giants and most of them have wives."

"We mean the giant who said that he smelled the blood of an Englishman," explained Nick.

"Yes, I am the person," said Mrs. Giant. "What can I do for you?"

"We came to see you," said Nancy. "We have to go home soon, and we thought we would stop for a few minutes before we left.

"That was very kind," said Mrs. Giant. "Do come in and I'll show you around. And as for you, Mister Cat, you'll find a bed of catnip in the garden. Help yourself."

With that she picked up a Twin in each hand and started into the house.

"This is the very door that Jack knocked on when he arrived in Beanstalk Land," she said. "And there is the oven I hid him in." And with that she showed them everything in the famous house.

"And now I'll show you the chicken-coop where we kept the hen that laid the golden eggs, also the place where the top of the beanstalk was."

But when they got there, the giant's wife cried out, "Why, here is the very beanstalk again! I thought that Jack had cut it down."

But the Twins explained that it was their very own beanstalk and not Jack's at all.

"We must be going now," said Nancy. "Thank you for being so kind. And say goodby to Dandy, please!"

"Goodby," said Mrs. Giant, setting them gently on the ground.

Dreaded Meal Time Says Peterboro Man

"Everything I Ate Was Like Poison to Me and My Suffering Nearly Set Me Wild," Says Lucas—Tanlac Changed This.

"Well, sir, buying Tanlac was the best investment I ever made for it built up my health and strength to where I haven't a complaint in the world," is the characteristic statement of Thomas Lucas, 325 Aylmer St., Peterborough, Ont.

"Before I took Tanlac a year ago, I was always in trouble with my stomach. My appetite was poor but eating was almost like taking poison anyway for my suffering nearly set me wild. I was so nervous I heard the clock strike every hour some nights and I got up mornings weak and worn-out.

"Tanlac not only knocked out my troubles completely but increased my weight twelve pounds and I haven't needed a dose of medicine since. My nerves are steady, I sleep fine and I'm always hungry—why, a year ago I wouldn't eat a meal for a hundred dollars. I will always speak out for Tanlac."

LABOR TO HOLD A BIG CONVENTION.

By HENRY WOOD.

GENEVA, March 21 (United Press)—The International Labor Bureau has begun extensive preparations for rendering the Sixth International Labor Conference, which will meet this year at Geneva, in June, an epoch-making one.

Three new factors are being counted on to give greater importance to the conference than to any of the preceding ones.

The first is the definite assurance both from the American Federation of Labor and the American Chamber of Commerce that delegations will be present at the conference for the first time since the first conference was held in Washington in 1919. The second new element is the advent of the labor government in England. While England has always been one of the strongest supporters of the International Labor Bureau and Conference, an entirely new impetus to the latter is expected from the English labor government.

In the third place, the conference this year will mark the definite change in date, from October to June. From now on, with the Labor Conference being held in June before the League assembly, it is expected that the former will take the same importance as an international event as the latter.

Besides a formal programme, a number of important discussions will come up, of which probably the greatest will be the fight on the eight-hour labor convention, which was launched at the first labor convention in Washington in 1919.

The workman, having gained the eight-hour day, opponents of the measure demanded a world-wide investigation of what use the laboring man is making of his increased spare time, in an effort to demonstrate that probably more good would be done to the world by increasing the working hours rather than by decreasing them. The workmen wil put up a hard fight for increased facilities for the utilization of leisure that will more than justify the maintenance of the eight-hour day.

According to representatives of the American Federation of Labor and the American Chamber of Commerce, the American viewpoint will be embodied in the idea that everything which is done for increasing the social and economic conditions of workmen the world over and bringing them up to the same standard of living as exists in the United States for workmen, tends to decrease to the United States the world-wide competition of cheap labor.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Bert Traymore—a fascinating philanderer, whom a chance meeting meeting brings into her quiet life.

Janet Mercer—Prudence's dearest friend, an older woman, plain but clever, is masseuse to the delicate child of

Mrs. Vansittart—a pleasure - loving woman-of-the-world, owner of Winston Towers, a beautiful summer home. She invites Prudence to a ball at the Towers. Prudence accepts, and finds herself a wall-flower, neglected by Traymore, who has professed to love her, slips away into the darkness.

Virginia Dale—Mrs. Vansittart's ward is a blase beauty, who counts Traymore among her many swains. She is the belle of the ball, but she is disappointed not to find among her many admirers

Peter Armstrong—a brilliant young inventor, clever and ambitious. He meets Prudence in her head-long flight from the ballroom, and after confessing that his love has proved false—from this Prudence deduces that he is in love with Virginia—he persuades the girl to return to the dance with him.

Prudence's popularity is greater even than Virginia's and Traymore is once again the ardent lover.

Virginia has called on Prudence to ascertain just how far things have gone between Peter and the young "dairymaid."

CHAPTER XXIV.

Virginia's visit was an absolute fiasco, where Prudence and her mother were concerned.

Prudence had seldom known such utter discomfort as she underwent in having to sit opposite her lover and her rival, and—herself feeling miserably 'out of things'—listen to talk in which she had no share.

Worse still, when Miss Virginia, with the baiting instinct given full play, deliberately showed up the girl's lack of knowledge of the world, her lack of travel, and her dearth of those accomplishments essential to a debutante.

"So you didn't go to a fashionable school, my dear! But what a pity!" Virginia's eyes widened with an assumed concern. Then turning to the girl's mother: "But it isn't too late yet——"

"We couldn't afford it. Besides it would only unsettle Prudence," came the honest answer.

"Unsettle? Why it would be the other way around!" Here the tormenter smiled archly. "She'd settle herself much better in life if she met the right class of girl. It would give her the entree, as it were——" up the Hudson," Virginia rambled on, with apparent artlessness. "Had the time of my young life——"

"That must have been many years ago," cut in Mrs. Page, feeling rather as a tigress does whose cub is being attacked. "It's different with Prudence. She's only nineteen, and has lots of time to finish her education in the way we'd like it to be completed. Judging by what the finishing-schools and ladies' seminaries turn out though, it wouldn't be there we'd send her."

"One for you, Jinny!" Bert Traymore roared with laughter.

Virginia could have clawed him. She could have clawed everyone in the room at that moment. Reference to the passing years was something that her vanity could not endure.

Besides, she scarcely looked much older than the Page chit. And she was twice as pretty, and ten times better dressed.

But, of course, this woman was trying to grab Bert Traymore for her silly little daughter! And she resented Virginia's presence as a rival to that scheme.

(She would have been considerably surprised had she known that Mrs. Page already was praying in her heart that Prudence's love might be deflected from this man!)

Jinny unsheathed her claws again, and with a dazzling smile remarked: "I suppose if you did send her away from home, it would be to one of those business colleges where girls go who have to earn their living—typing and shorthand and book-keeping, and that sort of thing——"

Bert Traymore intervened with a request to be allowed to smoke. Jinny was playing it a bit too low down, he thought; but, of course, she did show up the poverty of the land. And Prudence's mother was really rather 'bourgeois' in that odd gown, and that plain-spoken manner. Gad! he couldn't quite see himself in the role of son-in-law—though Prudence was a darling.

Such an ominous silence had fallen on the little party that he felt it behooved him to say something.

"Are you interested in motoring?" He turned politely to his hostess. "I was looking at new cars to-day, and trying to make up my mind which make I'd purchase."

Virginia giggled, gibingly.

"You'd better settle your bridge debt first with Mrs. Vansittart." Then she, too, turned to Prudence's mother. "This boy has the worst luck at cards, but he simply won't leave them alone! It's in the blood, I s'pose. How much did you lose at poker day before yesterday, Bert? Fifty—a hundred dollars?"

Prudence's heart contracted painfully. Virginia was deliberately damning her lover in her mother's eyes. The girl knew that high standards that loving heart set up for any suitcr who might approach. Mother never would forgive Bert if he gambled!

But he'd deny it, wouldn't he? hearty:

"Here's one man who appreciates anything Miss Prudence might be induced to do for him!" And Peter Armstrong walked into the room!

INSURANCE AT COST

Mutual Service Measured in Millions

THE steady growth and increasing usefulness of this company may be illustrated in no more striking way than by the figures showing the annual payments to policyholders. For example, this table comparing figures for every tenth year since 1873:

1893	212,828
1903	493,721
1913	1,396,445
1923	5,369,743

The total disbursements of the Mutual Life to policyholders or their beneficiaries up to the end of 1923 amount to the immense sum of $47,108,707.62.

Policyholders of today will appreciate the present position of the Company when they understand that at the present moment we hold in reserve for future payments no less than $59,383,426.66. This means a total either paid to policyholders, or held in reserve for them exclusively, of $106,492,134.28.

The Mutual Life of Canada is one of the strongest insurance companies in the world. Let us send our literature explaining the principles of true Mutuality.

FEMINISTS MUST RESTORE EUROPE.

German Women Say Men Have Complicated Politics and Tangled Up International Relations.

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS

NEW YORK, March 21.—"If order is to be restored in chaotic Europe, the women must bring it about."

So said Fraulien Lida Gustava Heymann, who with Dr. Anita Augspurg has just arrived from Germany to attend the fourth conference of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom at Washington.

These two short-haired feminists declare that a new day is dawning for women in the fatherland and that they are taking a more vital interest in politics than the women of any other country.

Up to Women.

"Politics are hard and complicated," said Fraulein Heymann, "and international relations all tangled up because men have made them so. Instead of simplifying politics they have made it mysterious and involved. Now it is up to the women."

Dr. Augspurg reports that there are 36 women in the reichstag, a higher percentage of women participating in the government than any other country can boast.

"At the last election 80 per cent of the women of Germany voted. They are not politically trained, but so much the better. They have less to unlearn than men have, and they have more humanity and idealism."

Fraulein Heymann and Dr. Augspurg were leaders in the fight for suffrage in Germany. Dr. Augspurg was the first doctor of [illegible] in Germany.

Government Anxious

At present they admit they are causing the German government anxiety because they are [illegible]gs in the women's party which now has branches in 55 cities.

"The government knows it will hear from the women if it puts any stumbling blocks in the way of attaining international peace," said Fraulein Heymann.

"We have been improving conditions in the Ruhr and establishing friendly relations with the French in the cause of common humanity.

"We got together a band of German youths to offer their services to repair damages in the devastated country and in return the French women took 500 starving German babies to feed."

BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and excited to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps remove the body's poisonous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. The famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

KEEPING BUTTER.

Butter absorbs odors very quickly and should be kept in a covered jar away from strongly flavored food.

OMEMEE CLUB DEBATES ART

OMEMEE, March 21.—The U.F.O. clubroom was well filled on Tuesday evening to listen to another of their splendid programmes which are continually attracting larger numbers of both young and old.

Mr. F. G. Sandy, in a very capable manner, gave an interesting talk on grants to schools, explaining the basis of same and how they are given.

Rev. J. A. Black also spoke a few words. Then followed the debate, the subject for discussion being: "Resolved, that good music is preferable in the home to good books." The affirmative was in charge of Messrs. Harold Lang and Cecil Kennedy, while the negative was upheld by Messrs. Vincent Fee and Harry Burgess.

It is surprising the enthusiasm which has been created through these debates, and the arguments which are brought out when thought is given to these subjec's. The community is also interested in noting the different characteristics which are coming before us in a public way. Some always take the serious turn of mind, while others see the amusing things.

The debaters are to be congratulated on their efforts, each of whom showed careful preparation on the subject; so much so, the judges, who were Messrs. D. Weir, D. H. Dick, and Percy Windrim, took an unusual length of time before giving their decision in favor of the affirmative.

Miss E. Race was the pianist for the evening.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday evening, April 1st, when an interesting programme and debate will be given. The subject, not yet chosen, will be discussed by Messrs. Percy Windrim and Roy Windrim and the winners of this debate.

Roads Become Bare.

The roads in this section are gradually showing many bare places, and although there are still roads through the fields, the public highway will soon have to be broken, as the cutters and sleighs are scratching on ploughed ground.

Messrs. Walter Mitchell and J. Magee have already had their trucks in operation around the village, and buggies and waggons have made their appearance.

Maple Syrup Sold.

The first maple syrup of the season was offered for sale in town this week and received a ready market.

Personal Mention.

The many friends of Mr. Harold Laidley will be pleased to know he is gradually improving after a critical operation performed in Peterboro.

Mrs. Melville Earle entertained a number of her friends to an Irish Tea on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. William Earle, Mrs. Robert M'Connell, and others attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Irvine in Lindsay on Friday.

Mr. Leith Laidley visited his daughter, Mrs. W. Montgomery, of Peterborough, for the past ten days.

Mrs. William Magee entertained a number of ladies at a quilting bee on Thursday afternoon.

REINDEER MEAT TO BE MARKETED IN U.S., SOON

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, March 21.—(United Press).—Under Sam will soon be a rival to the beef packers of the United States and in a competitive market to sell heavy tonnage of meat.

Reindeer roast and steak will be as common as other meats on the public market.

Like the cattle of the United States, the new beef will be shipped by railroad to packing houses on the coast to central Alaska, butchered and transported either by the Biological Survey steamer Boxer or private transportation.

At the rate the Eskimo herds of reindeer are increasing it will soon be necessary to butcher a large number that the owners may have revenue from their industry.

The slaughter and shipment of meat will begin shortly after the immense herds of the Seward Peninsular and Point Barrow country are moved down to regions abutting the Alaska Railroad, which will permit of proper reparation of the venison for shipment to the States.

Heretofore the big private reindeer herds have been slaughtered and shipped with skin on, a system that has proved unsatisfactory, because it is hard to freeze the animals properly with hide on and, in addition, the odor of the skin is transmitted to the meat.

This year, Superintendent Lopp of the Alasak division of the Biological Survey, prepared meat wrapped in cheese cloth and found a ready sale in the Pacific northwest.

"It is only a few years when we will have domesticated the millions of native caribou of Alaska and begin herding them as we do the reindeer at present," said Superintendent Lopp.

"The caribou is only a wild reindeer, and sufficient evidence has been gathered to show that he may be domesticated, the same as the deer.

"Possibly no animal of the herbivorous or ruminant species is a more rapid breeder than the reindeer. The fawn of spring will fawn the next spring, and it is nothing unusual to see an old doe with a yearling following, and this being followed by a younger yearling, which in turn has a fawn following, while the mother has her sucking fawn at her side. These families mate with other families and thus there is no deterioration in the stock."

THE AMERICAN'S STYLE IN PARIS.

The French Women Will Determine What Is to Be Worn, Says Yvonne Routon.

By MARIAN HALE.

NEW YORK, March 21.—Hereafter American women will have an American fashion representative in Paris.

She is Miss Yvonne Routon, a thoroughly American, titian-haired young woman, despite her French name, who has been a successful designer in New York. She is going to Paris to create styles for Americans, using American materials and with the American woman always in mind.

The reason for deciding on Paris for her American designs, according to Miss Routon, is Paris remains the style centre of the world.

"French women will determine what is to be worn," she comments, "until the women of this country give the time and thought of their clothes that the Parisienne does to hers.

French Original.

"We must depend on Paris for ideas because the French have the originality and the skill about clothes which we have never cultivated—which we have always depended on France to supply for us.

"But the personality of the American woman is quite different from that of the French, and it should be interpreted in her clothes.

"To say we cannot have American styles for American women is ridiculous. But to expect to learn in a few years what France has studied for generations and has inbred in her people is equally so."

Materials Differ.

One reason Miss Routon finds why French models cannot always be successfully reproduced in this country is because of the difference in materials.

"During the past few years American materials have improved marvelously," she says. "Our silks, velvets and cottons, though different in some respects from the foreign product, are capable of many original and interesting treatments which they do not receive because the French work naturally with their own manufacturers and design for them.

"I am going to concentrate my efforts on American materials and American women," she concluded, "because I believe they may become an unbeatable combination."

WILL NOT "BLOW" THIS MILLION, SAY HEIRS

RUTLAND, Vt., March 20.—(United Press).—If you had been working hard for a living all your days and overnight found yourself in the millionaire class, what would you decide to do?

Would you have visions of fine clothes, a palatial home, luxurious automobiles, Palm Beach in the winter and expensive mountain resorts in the summer?

Very likely, if your'e an ordinary human being.

But those are not the things that Tyler G. Hart, milk peddler of Rutland, and his sister, Mrs. Edward Leonard of Chippenhook, thought of when they received definite word the other day that they are to receive more than $1,000,000, as heirs of an aunt who emigrated to California in '49.

Hart, made a millionaire overnight, determined to do just one thing that would make the routine of his life different than it has been for many years.

He determined to sell his milk route and take a rest—not as a millionaire, but as plain "Ty" Hart. There will be no "foolishness," he explained. "I'm too old for that," he added. He will take a trip to California and go over the property, "just to see what it's like."

And Mrs. Leonard, who lives on a farm at Chippenhook, did she think of luxuries and geegaws when told of her good fortune? Not much. She determined on one big idea Her husband, who has been struggling hard to try and make his farm pay, working out in the fields every day in the summer will now "hire help" and take things easy for the rest of his day, "bossing" the farm job, instead of doing the work himself.

Mrs. Leonard also said she would use some of her money to help a son who has just taken over the operation of a farm nearby that of the parents. But there will be no "splurging."

The Hart family is descended from Catain Josaih Hart, one of the Green Mountain boys of Revolutionary War days.

THE WAIL OF THE MALE

By "THE STROLLER."

NEW YORK, March 21.—(United Press).—A week or so ago Miss Hedda Hoyt, United Press Fashion Editor, attempted to make her feminine followers happy by indicating how half a hundred dollars, judiciously expended, could be made to cover a multitude of articles of female wearing apparel. Miss Hoyt described how milady could be accoutered from head to foot in a new Spring outfit for $50.

That's the kind of stuff that makes for bolshevism in the ranks of the male men. Gosh, and we thought the women's frills and fripperies were so expensive! If they can be purchased so cheaply, wonder what the better half does with the change? However, that doesn't concern the "The Stroller."

Fifty dollars, "judiciously expended" would buy us a new Spring topcoat. Then we'd have to take the rest of the bankroll, if any, to buy the rest of the things needed to make Easter morning a complete pictorial achievement. Methinks this year is as good as any to have a little dry cleaning practiced on the old wardrobe, and dry cleaning it will be.

But the chap who needs a complete Spring outfit is going to find little nourishment in what his sister can do with a $50 banknote. It is true that men's clothes as a general rule are worn longer (no pun intended) than are women's. Few men have regard for the changing seasons, although in the Spring new vesture is generally the accepted thing.

Male Clothes Economy.

Spring topcoats are fine things to have, but they are by no means an absolute necessity. If you have a medium weight Winter overcoat it will serve the purpose nicely on cool Spring evenings. Many men solve the problem by wearing a sweater-vest—the kind with the sleeves. But unless the coat of your suit is roomy the sweater-vest will not add favorably to your appearance. So far as topcoats go, they are much as they were in early fall, three and four button and loose fitting, with and without the vent. Colors there are in infinite variety; browns, greys, light tans. There are some dark shades, but the light colors predominate. A hat that matches or provides a pleasing contrast to the color of the topcoat should be chosen.

Then, too, care should be exercised in the choice of neckwear to be worn at the same time the topcoat is worn. There should be no clash offensive to good taste. With a tan overcoat vivid-hued neckties should not be worn. More gentle hues should be affected in topcoat season than at any other time, for very often a tie which perfectly synchronizes with a suit will be hideously inharmonious when displayed in conjunction with a light-colored topcoat. It is well to consult with the women folk of the household; that it, if their judgment can be relied upon.

CLEANING FAUCETS.

Clean brass faucets with flannel, dipped in vinegar or lemon juice, and rub thoroughly with rottenstone and oil; then polish with a dry cloth.

Kansas finally has been stopped. With 34 consecutive basketball victories to its credit, the University of Kansas finally went down to defeat before Oklahoma.

The defeat at the hands of Oklahoma was rather unexpected, since Kansas had previously beaten that team.

Starting on a winning streak early in the 1922 season, Kansas finished the year with a run of ten victories. Not a defeat was suffered in 1923. This year eight straight victories were registered before the team lost a game.

Missouri beat Kansas early in the 1922 campaign but was defeated in a return engagement. That year these two teams finished in a tie for the Missouri Valley conference title.

Last season an unbroken record of 16 straight wins captured the championship for Kansas.

This year Kansas has again won the Missouri Valley championship, losing but one game.

Captain Charles Black of Alton, Ill., is the only member of the present squad who has played in all 34 victories.

Kansas lost three regulars of last year's championship five by graduation and was not expected to do much this year. Coach Allen, however, seems to have the winning system as he has whipped the available material into a strong aggregation.

It is a rather interest fact that Dr. James Naismith, inventor of the game of basketball, is director of physical education at Kansas.

DEMPSEY BACKS GIBBONS' FIGHT

Assisting Floyd Fitzsimmons in Staging Carpentier—Gibbons Bout on July 4—Kearns Has Big Offer.

CHICAGO, March 20. — Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, has become the financial backer of Floyd Fitzsimmons, owner of boxing arenas in Michigan City, Ind., and Benton Harbor, Mich., to assist Fitzsimmons in staging a ten-round bout between Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul and Georges Carpentier of France, on July 4.

Fitzsimmons confirmed reports tonight that he was negotiating for a match between Gibbons and the Frenchman either at Benton Harbor or Michigan City, and that he hoped to close it next Tuesday, when Jack Curley, representing Carpentier, is scheduled to sign for the Frenchman. Eddie Kane, manager of Gibbons, has tentatively accepted the terms.

Mystery Offer

NEW YORK, March 20.— The pugilistic atmosphere which has been thick with syndicates and half million dollar fight offers for several months had another "mystery" tossed into it yesterday by Jack Kearns, manager of the heavyweight champion, Jack Dempsey.

Kearns announced he was considering an offer for the champion's services from California interests, but except to describe it as "the biggest proposition ever put to him," he declined to disclose any details. Pressed further, he refused to say whether the offer referred to a motion picture contract he has had in view, or a new bid for a title match, possibly with Harry Wills.

"I expect to leave next Sunday or Monday for Los Angeles," said Kearns. "Upon my arrival there I will have a final conference with promoters and make a definite announcement of our entire program for this year."

By No Means Allow Your Bowels To Get Constipated.

If you allow your bowels to become constipated you will have bilious attacks, sick headaches, coated tongue, foul breath, sallow complexion, specks floating before the eyes, whites of the eyes dull and yellow, heartburn, water brash, etc.

Keep your bowels regular by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, as by doing so you will be able to keep well and have no more trouble with your liver.

Mrs. I. Rubin, Halbrite, Sask., writes:—"I was very badly troubled with constipation, often had bad headaches my tongue was coated, and I felt anything but well.

After taking Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills I have felt much better as they certainly did me a lot of good."

JOHN D 'S PAR THREE

Ormond Beach, Fla., March 20.—John D. Rockefeller sank a twenty one foot putt on the fifth hole on the Ormond Beach golf links to-day for a pair three while playing despite a heavy rain and a clicking motion picture camera.

Mr. Rockefeller was elated over the putt, and went on to finish his regular eight holes in 42, just nine above par, and the lowest score he has made on the course.

Famous

JIMMY SLATTERY

Fame came to Jimmy Slattery overnight as a ring celebrity. Matched with the much press-agented "Young" Stribling, Slattery was regarded as a mere setup for the Georgia schoolboy. After holding Stribling even for three rounds, taking his best punches without suffering the slightest inconvenience, Slattery waded in and won the decision.

CANADIENS WON ON STICKEY ICE

Flooded Rink Failed to Freeze—The Vancouver Maroons Had Low End of 2 to 1 Score.

MONTREAL, March 21.—(Canadian Press.)— Montreal Canadiens, winners of the National Hockey League, earned the right to meet Calgary Tigers in the finals of the Stanley Cup when they inflicted a second defeat on the Vancouver maroons at the Mount Royal Arena here last night. The score was 2-1 and this put Canadiens two games up on the series. It was not until the third period, after forty-five minutes of desperate struggle, that carried the puck alternately from one end of the ice to the other, that Billy Boucher at last beat the almost impregnable "eagle eye" Lehman, with a rebound off the latter's pads from a shot by Morenz. Nine minutes after this the same player put the N.H.L. title-holders further ahead, but Vancouver, through P. Boucher, tallied a minute later.

Six thousand five hundred fans crammed the arena and witnessed the game that was practically in a pool of water. The playing surface had been flooded at noon and had failed to freeze with the result that thegame was contested on sticky ice.

Playing conditions precluded any attempt at combtnation by either side and the game was featured by a number of individual rushes.

"Eagle Eye" Lehman gave a number of his characteristic displays when time after time he dashed out from his nets to turn aside attacks, at one time being drawn clear out to the obards by Billy Boucher. Every kind of trick was tried out and long shots were popular in which Mackay and Billy Boucher excelled.

Play see-sawed from one end of the ice to the other, advantage being, if anything, with the Canadiens. The maroon goalie had to save shot after shot in swift succession and put up the most spectacuaur exhibition of the night and even of the series so far.

Hess and W. H. Chapman, former president and secretary respectively of the Hastings Athletic Association to recover $100 for the expenses of the lacrosse team's trip to Toronto, Judge Huycke finding against him."

BELL TELEPHONE PROTEST GAME TO BE SETTLED SATURDAY

The Bell Telephone protest game against the Western Clock will be dealt with Saturday evening. If the Bell Telephone win their protest they win the second half of the Mercantile League. If they lose they are tied with the Nashua Paper. It is doubtful that they will lose. At a meeting of the teams, at which practically every team was represented, it was decided that the team which started the game must finish, otherwise take a dummy score. In their game against the Bell Telephone the Western Clock paid no respect to this ruling, and substituted men during the game. These new men were instrumental in the defeat of the Bell Telephone crew and they protested the game on the grounds that the Western Clock paid no respect to the rules.

The protest will be dealt with at a meeting of all the teams in the league called for Saturday night. Every team is asked to send their representative to the meeting which is called for eight o'clock.

The standing of the league will be published tomorrow.

BLIND SCORE SELECTED

The Blind score for the prize in the Mercantile League has been selected and is 150. Every member of a Mercantile team who has bowled one game or more is entitled to roll for this prize. The rolling stars Monday night at 7 o'clock and one game will be rolled and the nearest to the score wins.

TEN PIN LEAGUE MEETING.

A meeting of the representatives of the new Ten Pin League will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at Solomon's Alleys. Every team is asked to have a representative on hand. The Belmont Club is the latest entry.

Worry

WHITEY WITT

Whitney Witt, snapped at the ball park at New Orleans as he signed his contract, is only member of the New York Yankees in danger of losing his job as a regular. Babe Ruth will positively play right and Bob Meusel left field for Mr. Miller Huggins.

Earl Combs, star outfielder of the American Association last year, now a Yank, is certain to crowd Witt to the limit to hold his job.

RUTH LOSES $1,000 BILL.

Misses Part of $4,000 Roll at New Orleans Training Camp

NEW ORLEANS, March 20.—Babe Ruth can lose other things beside baseball. Yesterday he went in to a local bank to buy a draft to send to New York. Babe left the Bieneville Hotel with currency amounting to $4,000, including three $1,000 bills, which he intended to send back home. After asking for the draft he began fishing the money out of his trousers pocket, only to discover that one of the $1,000 bills was missing.

He went through all his other pockets in vain and then returned to the hotel and spent a half hour searching his room, with the same result. The bill was gone. The Babe has decided for the Yankees as it has been reported to be.

RUTH'S FIRST HOMER

NEW ORLEANS, March 20.—Babe Ruth tallied his first circuit drive of the Spring exhibition series in a game to-day between the New York Americans and the New Orleans Southern Association team, which the Yankees won, 14 to 4. Witt was on base when Ruth smashed the ball over the right field fence.

RAIN HALTS PRACTICE

CINCINNATI, O., March 20. — Rain further set back the training of the Cincinnati Reds to-day at Orlando, Fla. Both the regulars' game with Stetson University at Deland and the Colts' scheduled affray with the Columbus American Association team were cancelled.

FIVE DAY LIMIT BETWEEN BOUTS

New Jersey Extends Rest Period After Berlenbach's Defeat With Second Engagement Three Days Later.

TRENTON, N.J., March 20.—Boxers appearing in the final bout of a show will not be permitted to engage in more than one exhibition within a period of five days, or 120 hours, instead of three days, as provided in the past. This amendment to the rules and regulations of the State Athletic Commission was announced by Commissioner Newton A. K. Bugbee to-day and will apply equally to boxers from other States coming into New Jersey to engage in contests.

Mr. Bugbee said the amendment is made necessary because of the situation growing out of the Paul Berlenbach-Jack Delaney bout in Madison Square Garden on March 14, when Delaney knocked out Berlenbach in the fourth round. Berlenback had signed a contract to box at the Broad A.C. in Newark with Jackie Clark on March 17, and prior to the latter date he also signed an agreement to box at the Madison Square Garden on March 14. Because Berlenbach was knocked out the Broad Club felt this condition would interfere with the number of admissions and substituted Delaney for Berlenbach to fight Clark.

BROOKES IN GOOD FORM

CANNES, France, March 20.—Norman Brookes, of Australia, who is rapidly regaining his pre-war form Lacoste of France, Aeschlimann, of Switzerland, and Gordon Lowe, of England, survived the fourth round of the International Lawn Tennis Tournament here. Indications point to a meeting between Brookes and Lacoste in the finals.

It's the Cut of Clothes That Counts

THE Cressman Men's Shop is notable for Smartly Tailored Clothes for young men and men who stay young. The smart cut is the loose styles. Men are going to like the new season's suits. They are distinctly different from those of last year, and becoming to every type of figure. The English cut vented coat is the thing, easy-fitting and unbelted. Such suits bearing a label of "Society brand" or "Leishman" tell the world in a conservative way that the man is well dressed.

Saturday Is Really the First Day of Spring

—and the thoughts of men will be turning to new haberdashery. Our stocks are always complete, and whether it be a Suit, Coat or the Furnishings to complete the ensemble you will find them here.

Boulevard Poole and Master Models

We have them in the season's most desirable fabrics, in blues, greys and neat stripes. A great variety is on hand for your approval at $25.00 to $40.00.

Our Men's Shoe Dept.

—shows the right way to the latest footwear, combining style, comfort and quality with prices to suit everyone. The secret of the good-looking Shoe is in the fit. We fit you—if we cannot, we tell you.

Some Young Men

—prefer and look their best in a Suit that slightly suggests the lines of the body. Because this style is so popular the cut is all the more important. If you would avoid the ordinary we have them in a wealth of fine woollens specially chosen for this model at $25.00 to $45.00.

Conservative Taste

—calls for this range of smooth-finished fabrics in plain grey and striped worsteds. Roomy Suits, allowing plenty of freedom at the armholes and waist, but by no means lacking in neatness, at $25.00 to $45.00.

These Snappy Top-Coats Know They Are Smart

—made with care and freedom and cut to suit the most careful dresser. Regular set-in shoulders, with patch pockets with or without flaps. The rougher fabric is particularly good in this style, at $25.00 to $37.00.

Hats that Particular Men Will Be Proud to Wear

The well-dressed man knows that other men notice his Hat more, perhaps, than any other part of his apparel. Its correctness of cut, fit and color is of the utmost importance. The right Hat for any suit and occasion is here. The new Derbies, and the Homburg of lightweight, light-colored felt, with single-creased crown, are particularly pleasing.

The Christy Hat

ROBBER GANG ARE WORKING IN CITY

Police Are on the Look Out For These Night Prowlers Who Are at Work Every Night.

During the past week several residences in the city have been systematically entered by key during the temporary absence of the tenants and sums of money taken, varying from $15 to $32, after the houses have been thoroughly ramsacked.

The police are at their wits' ends, Chief Newhall said, to get a clue to the guilty party. Some of the districts to suffer are Aylmer, Water and Stewart Streets and Boswell Avenue.

Co-operating with the police, at their request, The Examiner refrained from publishing the particulars of these burglaries, in order to afford every facility for the clean-up of the gang.

Gordon, K.C., M.P., in answer to a communication from the Local Council, requesting Mr. Gordon to use his influence with regard to the questions of permitting the manufacture and importation of oleomargarine in Canada. Mr. Gordon expressed himself as being definitely and positively opposed to such manufacture or importation. With regard to the question of examination of quilt stock, he promised consideration.

Mrs. Mann was "thankful that Mr. Gordon hasn't played politics, and said he would consider the question of oleomargarine," but was of the opinion that his attitude was not the right one. Mrs. W. R. Morris thought that Mr. Gordon was right in voting as he saw fit, and thought that as long as the Progressive vote was valuable to either side of the House, consideration would be given it in such questions. Mrs. Morris regarded this as a vindication of her own expressed opinion that "women should steer clear of party politics." Mrs. Morris also recounted the experience of the Canadian Conservation Committee in war time, when a desire to conserve supplies of butter and cream for the soldiers led Government experts to make strong statements in favor of oleomargarine and its use.

Mrs. Mowat considered that the letter forwarded to Mr. Gordon by the Council put the members in the position if seeming to urge the use of margarine as a substitute for butter, whereas their only desire was to allow those who wished, to use it for a "spread on" when butter was not available or was too high priced.

Mrs. Mann spoke of the efforts of the dairy interests to push the use of "renovated" butter, particularly for cooking, these being particularly noticeable since the ban had been placed on oleo.

Address by Dr. McNair

Dr. A. Y. McNair was present at yesterday afternoon's meeting, and addressed the ladies in concise, interesting fashion on the work of his department of Board of Health activities, which he said had increased tremendously during the past thirty years. Ontario had the first Public Health Laboratory in the world, when the late Professor J. J. McKenzie of Toronto University acted as first bacteriologist in a small office on the corner of Queen and Yonge streets, Toronto. Dr. McNair expressed himself as being particularly interested in preventive medicine, regarding the prevention of disease as possibly more important than the treatment of maladies. In the province of Ontario, there were twelve or thirteen laboratories, expensively equipped and manned, but an instance of their life-saving activities was given in the case of one of the first calls made on the office here, shortly after its opening in December of 1921, when a child suffering with cerebro-spinal meningitis had its disease diagnosed within twenty minutes. The child, who would have been dead within the severty-two hours that it would otherwise have taken to refer to Toronto for diagnosis, was alive and well to-day.

Last year, 9,000 specimens, chiefly in connection with prevention of disease, were examined, with the long attention and absolute accuracy which was demanded for proper investigation. In the fall of 1921, when a diptheria epidemic was rife here, 2,000 throat swabs wer examined, first being planted and grown like seeds in specially prepared soil, then stained with dyes and finally examined under a microscope. Last year, diptheria swabs in Peterboro had decreased to about 550. Tubercular specimens examined last year amounted to almost 900, about 15% showing the presence of the germs. Samples of 1600 specimens of drinking water were analyzed. Typhoid was one of the chief diseases spread by water, receiving the germs from contagious soil, improperly drained privies and typhoid carriers, those persons who might retain the germs of typhoid in their intestines during a lifetime. In connection with venereal disease, about 1,600 specimens were examined last year. Monthly milk examinations were also made, the doctor saying: "you wouldn't believe the difference we have made in the city milk supply. I don't take any kudos for this myself, because it usually follows on any close inspection of a milk system. We have encouraged the milkmen to take out the dirt that people can see." A strainer of canton flannel was recommended by the speaker as being better than the two or three-ply cheese cloth strainer. He expressed himself as being a great believer in the value of pasteurized milk, and thought that the only difference in taste, as complained of by some people, was caused by "taking the actual taste of cow out of the milk by pasteurization." He said that the absence of cream on the top of the pasteurized bottle was due to the fact that it was evenly distributed throughout the entire holder, instead of collecting at the top.

Diseases from Milk

A number of diseases had been directly traced to milk, including diptheria, typhois, septic sore throat, infectious diarrhoea of babids in summer time, acute infectious tonsilities, and types of streptococci.

At the laboratories, a fresh supply in a large stock of vaccines, serums and anti-toxins is kept constantly on hand, for immediate distribution, free of charge, to physicians in any part of the Province. These are prepared under ideal conditions and close supervision by the Provincial Board of Health and at the Connaught Laboratories of the Provincial University in Toronto. Last year, many thousands of units of diphtheria anti-toxin, of whooping cough and typhoid and smallpox vaccine were distributed, also a large number of units of lockjaw vaccine, for the prevention and treatment of a disease that had to be treated immediately. In the last four months, twenty-five to thirty thousand units of insulin were distributed free of charge. In Peterboro also, work in blood chemistry was carried on, with scientific accuracy.

Regarding the social hygiene problem, the Board of Health had the services of a social service nurse, who carried on splendid work in the community. Free treatment was given to men and women, and done in absolute confidence. Eighteen of these clinics had been established in Ontario, outside of the city of Toronto. Speaking of the social hygiene exhibit, the doctor recommended it in warm terms to the attention of the members and all citizens of the city, as containing invaluable instruction and being a boon to any centre where it was shown.

Re Meat Inspection.

An enquiry as to the work of the Department in the inspection of meat brought the answer that samples of meat were sometimes brought in for examination for tubercle or cancer, but the doctor was of the opinion that this work was in the department of the medical officer of health and the sanitary inspector. He expressed himself as being unable to define with any accuracy the symptoms of disease in fowl exposed for sale undressed on the market. If dressed, an examination of the heart, gizzard and liver was desirable, the liver, if tubercular, containing yellowish areas. It was impossible for a farmer's wife to ascertain by the condition of the undressed fowl whether it was diseased or not, except by the presence of neck lumps.

Queried as to the percentage of risk in eating diseased fowl, the doctor considered it about one per cent., as the long cooking of the bird at a high temperature made it almost impossible for germs to survive.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended the doctor for his informative address.

Mrs. M. A. Morrison reported that the recent tea held by the W. C.T.U. had netted the society on that occasion 1500 soap wrapers, with a further increase to about 3,000, as well as cash collection.

Objectionable Literature.

Miss A. Walton, convenor of the Objectionable Films and Literature committee, reported on two books that should be banned in Peterborough, "Flaming Youth" and "Simon Called Peter." People who were desirous of having magazines entitled "True Romance" and "True Stories" circulated in Canada, were circulating a petition against a ban being placed on these periodicals. The Toronto Saturday Night had recently remarked that it was unlikely that the Postmaster General or Customs officials would pay any attention to such a petition.

Regarding protests against certain vaudeville acts at a local theatre, an explanation had been made by the manager that he was unable to control the placing of such acts in his house, except by exercising a certain amount of supervision over the jokes used. Mrs. Morris also explained, in this connection, the action of the Council's representatives, as not being desirous of enlisting the aid of the Police Commission, but of merely working quietly through its own committee.

Miss Walton suggested a committee, composed of Mrs. A. Stevenson, Mrs. A. Mowat, Mrs. W. R. Morris, Mrs. F. Hodgson and herself to look over a list of undesirable books, and also moved a resolution, which was seconded by Mrs. Morris, and carried, asking the Government to pay no attention to the petition of those who wishes the two aforementioned magazines allowed in Canada.

Mrs. W. R. Morris explained a communication which had been received, asking the support of the Local Council in a Save the Children Campaign, designed to assist, until the harvest time, the refugee children of Asia Minor, composed of Greek children mainly, with ten per cent. of Armenian birth. Toronto and the district was trying to raise $30,000 for the fund. The sum of $12 would keep a child for a year, in food ,giving it one good meal a month. The question was finally moved to be referred to the Ministerial Association of the city for consideration.

Plebiscite on O.T.A.

The question of the proposed plebiscite by the Government of the Province on the O.T.A. was brought up. Mrs. Mowat thought that the protests of the Conservatives, when they were in Opposition to the recent Government, had been directed with such intensity toward the manner of administration of this Act by the Drurvites that they should give some account of their own manner of stewardship in the matter before they brought about a change. The fact that the Premier was asking for half a million dollars to put through this plebiscite was regarded as unwarranted, and should be postponed until the present Government had demonstrated effectively that it was unable to carry out legislation for whose inception it had been mainly responsible.

A resolution along these lines will be worded by Mrs. Stevenson and Mrs. Mowat and forwarded to the Provincial Government.

C. A. LOUNT IS GRAND MASTER ONTARIO EAST

Grand Orange Lodge of Eastern Ontario, Re-Elect Majority of Officers at Closing Session —Successful Convention Ends.

J. H. SPENCE ELECTED

C. A. Lount, of Ottawa, was re-elected Worshipful Grand Master of the Provincial Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East at last night's session of the sixty-fifth annual communication in Victoria Hall.

The session, which was one of the busiest of the convention, concluded with a dance under the auspices of the Ladies' Lodges at three o'clock this morning.

Included in the evening programme was the exemplification of degrees by Peterborough L.O.L. 1175 and L.O.L. 50, and by the Grand Lodge.

Several new lodges which were opened during the year were favourably reported on, and all are in a flourishing condition.

Representatives of Peterborough city lodges at Grand Lodge were W. H. Howard, W.M. of 1175, H. Sunman of 80, and C. Armstrong of 2440.

The election of officers, conducted by Judge McLean, resulted as follows: H. A. Graham, re-elected D. G.M.; T. Ashmore Kidd, re-elected J.G.M.; Rev. R. M. Patterson, re-elected G. Chaplain; D. J. Sutherland, re-elected G. Secretary; C. H. Wood, G. Treasurer; F. E. Blackburn, re-elected G. Lecturer; J. H. Spence, Peterborough, G. Director of Ceremonies; H. Armstrong and G. Birch, G. Auditors; and S. Scott, of Lindsay, D.G. Secretary; M.W. P. G.M. Judge Scott of Perth conducted the installation of officers.

Ottawa was selected as the next place of meeting.

The L.O.B.A.

The officers elected by the Ladies' Lodge were:

Mrs. L. A. Proudman, P.G.M., of Ottawa; Miss Linda Clark, of Cornwall, D.G.M.; Mrs. M. Beaven, Ottawa, J.D.G.M.; Mrs. J. Manley, Peterboro, G. Chaplain; Miss Jennie Mills, Smith's Falls, G. Secretary; Mrs. E. Cook, Ottawa, G. Treasurer; Mrs. A. Wright, Peterboro, Director of Ceremonies; Mrs. E. Hussey, of Kingston, First Lecturer; Miss A. Kenny, Pembroke, Deputy Lecturer; Miss B. Hatterty, Tamworth, Deputy Secretary; Miss Rose Sexsmith, Peterboro, D. Treasurer; Mrs. E. Gillespie, Perth, and Mrs. E. Henley, Lindsay, Auditors.

The lodge put on an initiation last night and exemplified the First and Second degrees in the pleasing manner common to the ceremonies of the L.O.B.A.

Reports presented to-day indicated a growth of ten lodges since the last annual meeting, all growing and progressing as are the older lodges in the jurisdiction of Ontario East.

The local ladies raffled off a cushion again in the men's lodge. As a result $108 will be sent to the True Blue Home at Richmond Hill, Toronto. A grant from the ladies of $200 toward the building fund of the home was also made.

Two pleasing events were the presentations to Mrs. Proudman and Mrs. P. Fetherston of baskets of roses in recognition of their services.

AT THE CAPITOL

An exceptionally long and well-balanced programme is at the Capitol Theatre the last three days of this week, with Jackie Coogan in "Circus Days" as the feature. A Pathe review showing the usual interesting views of unusual spots in the world opens the programme. Felix, the cat, in a new cartoon comedy, brought plenty of laughter in his adventures with radio. The Spat family are shown in a two-reel comedy, in which they try to live in the forest for two weeks in an effort to win a bet. Tewksbury Spat, as usual, made the audience roar. A sketchograph reel, showing sketches of Parisian scenes which, through clever photography came to life, was interesting, while a two-reel Mack Sennett comedy completed one of the best programmes of short subjects seen here in a long time.

In "Circus Days" Jackie Coogan has a role ideally suited for him. As the little waif, who after various ups-and-downs, joins a circus, and travels with it, being initiated into the mysteries of circus life, Jackie Coogan endeared himself to a good-sized audience. The fat man, the bearded lady, the thin man, the elephants, monkeys, bare-back riders, acrobats and the rest of the motley throng that go to make up a circus, all become Jackie's pals and we see them "as they are" which is somewhat different from what the public see when they pay their dime in the midway outside the big tent. Woven through the picture is a happy little story of Jackie's childish love affair with a little circus maid. It is good entertainment, and because of its subject possesses a distinct interest aside from the story of the little boy, for not many people are able to see the inside life with a circus. Jackie Coogan is the Jackie Coogan that the public like in this picture, getting laughs from his audience and sometimes nearly getting a few tears. "Circus Days" is a picturization of James Otis' well-known story, "Toby Tyler." The Capitol management announce a special matinee on Saturday afternoon for children. The entire programme at the Capitol has been carefully selected and with its two comedies and Felix the Cat, is an ideal afternoon's entertainment for children. On Saturday afternoon Ruth Roland in "The Haunted Valley" will be shown, as well as the regular long programme.

BIG SPECIAL CHILDREN'S MATINEE AT THE CAPITOL SATURDAY

A big special children's matinee will be held at the Capitol Theatre on Saturday afternoon, at 2.30 for Jackie Coogan in his big circus picture, "Circus Days." This picture is considered the best of the many Coogan pictures and because of its novel story of a young lad who runs away to join a circus, it is of special interest to children. "Circus Days" is adapted from James Otis' story, "Toby Tyler."

AT THE ROYAL

Featured in "The Stranger," He Explains Reason for Long-Distance Order

Because English-made clothes differ in many respects from the product of American tailors, Richard Dix recently ordered a small but complete wardrobe of British-tailored clothes sent to him all the way from London in order that he might be correctly clothed in the role of a young Englishman.

"British tailors favor a certain looseness of line that American tailors never seen to be able to achieve," Mr. Dix pointed out in explaining the long distance order. "American men prefer to wear clothes which fit a little more snugly and have a little more distinction tailors in the United States have been creating this type of clothing so long that they have difficulty in making the loose often baggy suits of Englishmen. For personal use I prefer the American tailor, but when it is necessary to dress as a citizen of Great Britain there is only one way to do it right—have my clothes made by a British tailor."

The clothes were ordered for Dix role in the Joseph Henabery production, "The Stranger," coming to the Royal Theatre next Monday in which he is featured player with Betty Compson, Lewis Stone and Tully Marshall.

Edfrid Bingham wrote the screen play from John Galsworthy's "The First and the Last," which has as it background London and its suburbs.

It's a story of love and British criminal justice — the conviction for murder of an innocent man and the regeneration of the lives of three others throw together by circumstance.

"LOST AND FOUND," FINE ADVENTURE STORY, AT THE ROYAL.

"Lovers of adventure and romance should be more than pleased with "Lost and Found," the current picture attraction at the Royal. It has three popular stars and an exciting story in its favor. House Peters is "The Blackbird" captain of a private schooner; Antony Moreno, as a castaway, and Pauline Stark as a white girl brought up among the natives, all have roles that they make the most of. Thousands of native wariors take part in the thrilling fight scenes. The tropical scenery is a delight to the eye. If you are looking for entertainment out of the ordinary "Lost and Found" is just that.

VAUDEVILLE AT THE ROYAL.

The two acts presented last night were well received by the audience. Span, Parsons & Co. have a refined singing and acrobatic novelty. The outstanding features are the costumes and a very clever doll impersonation by one of the lady members. Her voice is also of exceptional quality. Al. Kemble, with his songs and patter also found favor. Somewhat handicapped by a cold he sang three new songs, while his talk is witty and up to the moment. Al. also has looks and personality.

AT THE REGENT

ROACH REALIZES AMBITION TO FILM "THE CALL OF THE WILD".

The long awaited picturization of Jack London's famous novel "The Call of the Wild," comes to the Regent theatre to-day. The hero of the story is a dog whose father was a St. Bernard and whose mother was a St. Bernard and whose mother was a Scotch shepherd dog. The dog is called Buck and, from puppyhood, is raised in the luxury of civilization. Then he is stolen away to the Klondike, where he experiences a strange climate, meets strange men and adapts himself to strange habits and labors. He is a bewildered dog—until the strain of his forefathers begins to assert itself— until he feels the call of the wild.

As Jack London wrote "The Call of the Wild" around the life of a dog so has the picture been filmed. It is Buck's joys and sorrows and career that are dominant and the human beings in the picture are there only in their relation to Buck's story. And Buck proves himself an actor. Not only does he faithfully follow the directions of his trainer, but his intelligent face seems to express emotions Certainly, in dogdom, Buck is not a moron.

Buck is the personal property of Hal Roach, who produced "The Call of the Wild" for Pathe. The dog has been trained since puppyhood for this role, for Jack London is Roach's favrite author and it has long been his desire to film "The Call of the Wild." When, two years ago, he was offered the sale of a Saint Bernard puppy, remembering his desire and the type of dog necessary for 'The Call of the Wild," he bought the dog because Saint Bernards are so scarce.

He was promptly christened Buck, in anticipation of the role he was to play, and placed under the care of Lou Treesh, a special trainer of dogs on the Roach lot, and when he was two years old he was considered sufficiently "rehearsed" for his screen role.

Fred Jackson was entrusted with the adaptation and direction of "The Call of the Wold." The carefully selected cast includes Jack Muhall, Walter Long, Laura Roessing, Frank Butler and Sydney D'Albrok.

THE SALES TAX MAY BE REDUCED

Delegation of Manufacturers Wait on Premier To-day.

OTTAWA, March 21. — Premier King gave a broad hint to-day of reduction in the sales tax. He was speaking to a delegation of manufacturers of agricultural implements from Brantford, Paris, Galt, Tilsonburg and Smith's Falls, who had come to urge that there should be no reduction in the present Customs tariff on agricultural implements. The Prime Minister declared he could not see why, from statements in the speech from the Throne, it should be assumed that the tariff on agricultural implements was to be singled out. Reference in the speech was to instruments of production in basic industries. "You have assumed," he went on, "that reference means tariff elimination on agricultural implements. I take it that if we said we are reducing the sales tax we should have every manufacturer holding up his hands for us to do it."

BUSINESS AGAIN ON THE UPGRADE.

Business Moves in Broad Curves Rather Than In Jumps and Jerks.

By GEORGE H. BRITT.

CHICAGO, March 20.—Now that 1924 has got well started around the track, what sort of year for business is it proving to be?

The question was put up to the heads of transcontinental railroads, who should know, if anyone does, just what and where and how much the people of the nation are buying and selling and carrying on trade.

'Business moves in broad curves rather than by jumps and jerks; and now it is on the upward slope," answers President William H. Finley of the Chicago & Northwestern.

Business Booms.

"The year 1923 established a new record for the railroads, and it does not now seem that this record should be regarded as extraordinary or unlikely to be matched," says President W. B. Storey of the Santa Fe.

And the eastern roads, reporting to the Middle Atlantic States Regional Advisory Board, estimate that shipments of most commodities in their territory this year will exceed those of 1923 by more than 10 per cent.

That figure is given for such commodities as lumber, petroleum, cement, automobiles, shoes, silk, cotton and copper. For confectionery and chocolate the increase is predicted to be 25 per cent. Shipments, of course, mean work for factories, money flowing through the banks and enjoyment by the consumers.

Farmer Worries.

Prosperity and good times have come to tarry a while.

"I am much more optimistic than I was last fall," declares President Finley. "I believe business will be better than it has been since the railroads were returned to private control.

"The one fly in the ointment is the predicament of the farmer. I do not see any great relief for him immediately. Artificial remedies such as price fixing by law will not solve the problem.

"If you ask me what is the greatest danger to the country, I'd say it is in people living beyond their incomes. That means dishonest living. But in spite of adverse factors, in spite of the retarding effect of a presidential election, I expect business to continue good."

Just as a matter of figures, to support what the officials are saying, the car service division of the American Railway Association reports that for the first seven weeks this year, the loading of revenue freight was 6,133,670, while for the same period last year it was 5,905,377. In 1922 it was a million cars less.

TOMB'S SILENCE FROM JAPANESE UNDERSEA BOAT

Signals From the Interior Have Ceased and Rescue Workers Fear Imprisoned Crew Have Succumbed to Suffocation.

RAMMED BY WARSHIP

TOKIO, March 22. — Award of rescue work was continued, fear grew yesterday that the eighteen survivors imprisoned in the after compartment of the Japanese navy submarine "43" which has lain in the ocean bottom off Sasebo since Wednesday, have succumbed to suffocation. Signals from the interior have ceased.

Graphic descriptions of the emotions of facing a slow death from suffocation had been received by underwater telephone from members of the trapped crew.

Through the underwater telephone it was determined that twenty-four men and two officers, one of them Commander Juwasima, perished when the forward compartment was flooded by the shattering of the conning tower in a collision yesterday with the warship Tatsuta.

Two engineer officers and sixteen men were still alive, and by means of the telephone vivid stories of their sufferings were heard by rescue workers on warships standing by.

Posthumous Awards.

TOKIO, March 20. — Award of posthumous decorations for the five airmen who died when a naval dirigible caught fire and crashed yesterday in northeast Japan, was announced yesterday.

The possibility that radio waves from the Funabashi wireless station interfered with control of the airship was advanced.

UNFINISHED TOWER AT OTTAWA WOULD REMIND DOMINION OF ECONOMY

Item of $600,000 In the Federal Estimates Held Up By Prevailing Spirit of Retrenchment--Opponents Suggested Work Could Be Suspended For Five Years — Hon. Dr. King Said Delay Would Increase the Ultimate Cost of Tower, Planned As War Memorial.

ITEM HELD OVER.

OTTAWA, March 22.—(Canadian Press).—An appropriation of $600,000 in the estimates for completion of the main tower of the Parliament Buildings met with such determined opposition in the House of Commons Friday that the Government finally allowed the item to stand over. Opposition to the note came from Progressives, Conservatives and Labor members. G. A. Brethen, Progressive member for East Peterborough moved that the item be struck out, but withdrew his motion when the Government allowed it to stand. A. R. McMaster, Independent Liberal member for Brome, suggested that the tower be left unfinished as a constant reminder to the country of the need for economy.

Hon. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works, pointed out that the contractors had their machinery on the spot and were ready to proceed. It would cost more to resume the work hereafter than to finish it now.

Hon. H. H. Stevens, Conservative, Vancouver Centre, said the present Parliament Buildings had been eight years under construction and might well stand over for four or five years without further work being done on them. If it was decided to go ahead with the tower, it should not be completed in all details, such as elevators, lights and grille work.

Dr. King said that the wiring, elevators and other details could be more economically put in while the tower was under construction.

A War Memorial.

There was considerable discussion pro and con the completion of the tower. Right Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King pointed out that the tower was to be a memorial to the war dead, that European countries had sent stone to be incorporated in the tower.

Most of the Progressives except T. G. McBride opposed the expenditure, and finally G. A. Brethen (Progressive, East Peterborough) moved the item of $600,000 be struck out.

H. B. McGiverin (Liberal, Ottawa) declared that it would be false economy to leave the tower in its present incomplete condition. By doing so Parliament practically said that it had not confidence in the country. Visitors to the Canadian capitol came to the Parliament Buildings and expressed appreciation of the beauty, but continually remarked on the incomplete appearance of the tower. The work had been delayed now for a couple of years and it was time it was completed.

Vets Content To Wait.

General J. A. Clark (Conservative, Burrard) referred to the Prime Minister's statement that the tower was a memorial to the war dead. He would be pleased to see the tower completed, but in view of the necessity for retrenchment he thought there might be a temporary delay in its completion. He was of the view that returned men in Canada would be quite content to wait for a while for the completion of the memorial.

He was anxious, said General Clark, to see what the Progressive leader (Robert Forke) would do in regard to this vote. Was he going to support the Government or would he vote for the amendment?

Mr. Forke: "You'll find out soon enough."

T. W. Caldwell (Progressive, Victoria-Carleton, N.B.) criticized the policy of constructing the Parliament Buildings on the cost plus principle. The criticized also the failure to use the old walls which had been reported sound by engineers and which had been valued at two million dollars. These two features, he charged, had cost the country millions.

Mr. Meighen's Retort.

Mr. Caldwell's criticisms brought a keen retort from Mr. Meighen, who referred to the progressive critics of the construction of the Parliament Buildings as "those ultra grits to my left." The decision not to use the old walls, he maintained, had been arrived at almost unanimously by the Parliamentary Committee which was representative of both Houses and both parties. There had not been a breath of aspersion heretofore cast upon the decision of Parliament for the carrying out of the plans.

Mr. Caldwell asked if two competent engineers had not expressed the view that part of the old walls

Tragedy Caused By Rise of Franc

PARIS, March 22.—The sudden rise of the franc caused a man to kill his wife and daughter and commit suicide, yesterday. The victims are Michael Fourrier, chief clerk of a large firm, his wife and his twelve-year-old daughter.

Fourrier, a man in comfortable circumstance and greatly attached to his family, with the recent fall of the franc, conceived the fear that his fortune would be wiped out and that his wife and daughter would be left in poverty.

According to reports which his friends made to the police after the tragedy, Fourrier attempted to save his money by converting it into foreign currency. The step was fatal; the fortunes of the franc immediately changed, and within a few days quotations went up 25 per cent.

The blow was too heavy for Fourrier, and this morning he shot his wife and daughter while they were sleeping and then turned his revolver on himself.

EXPERTS REST OVER WEEK-END

Indication of Agreement On Essential Principles In Report Which Will Not Be Read Before April 2.

PARIS, March 22.— The reparations experts have got far enough toward final conclusions to take matters somewhat easier, and have decided to adjourn until Tuesday, leaving only some detailed work to be done by the individual members in the meantime. The British, Italian and Belgian delegates are improving the opportunity to take a flying trip home.

Owen D. Young is continuing his work on the text of the report. The only rest the head of the drafting committee has had since the experts first met was when he was slightly ailing for a few days; even then he kept in touch with what was going on.

The sub-committee on finances yesterday at the request of the German Minister of Finance, heard Herr Popitz, Assistant Minister of Finance; Doctor Fischer, head of the German War Burdens Commission, and one of the German experts with reference to the probable spread of Germany's recovery, and how rapidly the Reich may be able to increase payments from the initial minimum.

The departure of a considerable number of the experts for the week end is taken as an indication of agreement on essential principles in the report. A great mass of detail work is still to be done, however; the experts themselves have only just begun to realize what an extent of ground they have gone over, The amount of paper required to get the results clearly on record. The majority of opinion now is that the report will not be read before April 2.

THE WEATHER.

Yesterday a gentleman of an observant disposition, and who takes great interest in weather conditions, remarked to me that the past winter and fall were ideal, and that the spring, up to the present time, was following suit. And this is true. Last fall was one of the finest that could be wished for,. The farmers were enabled to plow their land until a very late date, and in the city baseball, football and golf were in evidence until Christmas Day. When winter arrived it came to stay, without a break, for its alloted time. But little severe cold weather was experienced, and on the other side no "January thaw," or any other kind. The ground has been very little frozen, and the melting snow these days is largely soaking into the ground. I have been told that wells that have been dry for several years are now full. This is a matter of vital importance to the agriculturist.—W. P.

HIKING HARVESTERS SPEND TWO NIGHTS IN BELLEVILLE ON LONG TRAMP TO CAPITAL

Stranded Old Countrymen Seeking Relief From the Government Slept In Armouries and Left To-Day For Napanee—Expect to Reach Ottawa By Next Friday, Ending Trudge From Toronto.—Belleville Supplied Wayfarers With Food.

BELLEVILLE, March 22.—(Canadian Press).—Two Government officials were in the city Friday in close touch with the movement of the harvester hikers. Robert McCheyne, Immigration Agent at Toronto, and E. L. Braithwaite of the Soldiers' Settlement Board, are watching the "hike" on behalf of the departments they represent.

Yesterday morning Ald. Greenleaf, local Labor Chairman, told the "hikers" that the municipality thought it had done its share of hospitality by providing shelter and food for the trekking party, but the members of the group said that as they had the Armouries offered them for another night's rest they would like to stay. This step they carried out by remaining here. They left this morning. It is hoped to make Napanee in the first stop and Kingston in the second. Ottawa was expected to be reached next Friday.

Deporting Two.

Two hikers will be deported to the Old Country on the 28th of this month, it was stated at the office of the Provincial Police.

These men were interviewed by the police and immigration officials at the office of the Provincial Police, and it was learned that they had passed a board at Toronto for deportation. The reason for this action on the part of the Department of Immigration is not that there is anything against the men's characters, but that they fall within the deportable class by being medically unfit.

BRICKS REPLACED VAST STORES OF WHISKEY IN WASHINGTON SCANDAL

Amazing Tale of Corruption Related to Investigators By Confederate of Attorney-General Daugherty's Friend—Paid $200,000 For Permits to Withdraw Liquor From Government Warehouses — This Sum Was For Permits Not For Liquor, Which Was Sold to Bootleggers — Permits Obtained Through Influence at Washington.

JUST ONE MORE SENSATION

WASHINGTON, March 22.—(Canadian Press).—A $200,000 whiskey deal—the biggest yet—was uncorked yesterday by the Daugherty Investigating Committee.

John Goroni, Vice-President of the Alps Drug Company, told a story of how he, the late Jess W. Smith, "bumper and friend" of Attorney-General Daugherty, and Howard H. Mannington, one of the occupants of the "little green house on K. street," had, he said, shared in the "split," which accompanied the withdrawal of whiskey from Federal warehouses for sale to bootleggers.

As with previous testimony of the sort, it was brought no nearer to Attorney-General Daugherty himself than these two friends.

Goroni told the committee some of the things which, he said, did not come out when he was tried and acquitted of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law in New York. Attorney-General Daugherty, in his nightly comment on the day's testimony, pointed out that he himself was in no way "embarrassed or implicated."

Obstructing Committee.

Goroni's whisky "deal" story splashed from the witness stand in a hectic day marked by passing of "the lie" to Mr. Daugherty's counsel by Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, managing the inquiry.

The latter charged that there was continual 'besmirching" of committee witnesses, and that the committee was being denied evidence from the Ohio bank of which Mr. Daugherty's brother, "Mal," is president, while Senator Stewart, Democrat, Montana, and Howard Mannington mentioned in Goroni's story and now reported in Paris, had been "spirited" away.

More $1,000 bills figured in Goroni's story of the whisky transaction. He testified that he had paid $50,000 in bills of that denomination to W. A. Orr, of New York, previously connected with the Dempsey-Carpentier fight film 'deal,' and also $150,000 to Owen B. Murphy, another New York politician. The payments, Goroni said, were at the rate of $15.00 a case for permits obtained to get whisky into the bootleggers' hands. About 50,000 or 60,000 cases "went through." Goroni said, although he told of paying only $200,000.

Orr told him, Goroni said, that Mannington received a fee of $2.00 a case, some of which went to Jess Smith "whom he said he was introduced by Orr as a 'friend of Mr. Daugherty's." Mannigton had paid about $40,000 or $50,000, Goroni said he was told, for failing to procure liquor withdrawals contracted for.

How Fee Divided.

The division of the whisky fee of $15.00 a case, according to Goroni, "was $2.00 to Mannington, $1.00 to the druggist, $1.00 to myself, $4.00 to the Prohibition director, 50 cents to a lawyer named L'Esperance, and the balance divided between Orr and Murphy."

Prohibition Director.

Harold L. Hart was identified as the Prohibition director for New York then in office, in 1921, and he was one of the defendants subsequently acquitted with Goroni in conspiracy prosecutions.

L'Esperance was identified as a friend of United States District Attorney Hayward, and now a special assistant to Attorney-General Daugherty in New York.

Goroni said that he was told Mannington had to divide his $2.00 portion of the fee "three ways," with one portion going to Smith.

In the conspiracy trial, Goroni said and his lawyer, George B. Hayes, of New York, later on the stand, confirmed, that he was not allowed to testify. Hayes said this was because he thought the Government had not made out a case.

Influence for Permits.

Goroni said he entered the whisky withdrawal affair when approached by Orr after he, Goroni, had a permit application turned down by former Director Hart. Orr told him, he said, that Mannigton and Jess Smith belonged to the "Columbus crowd,' and had influence at Washington to "get through" the permits.

Asked how much of the $200,000 he said he had paid was for liquor, Goroni said:

"No liquor at all; that was just for the permits."

Goroni testified he acted for four or five drug companies and obtained signatures to their applications for withdrawal permits, which could be used afterward by anyone to procure whisky from warehouses.

Paid for Immunity.

Thomas B. Felder, New York, and Georgia, attorney, who now is under indictment with Gaston B. Means, former Department of Justice agent, an dnow assisting; Senator Wheeler, also was brought into the case.

Goroni said he had paid Felder $5,000 under a promise that he, Gor-

QUESTION OF SEPARATE SCHOOL GRANTS TO BE SUBMITTED TO COURTS

Premier Ferguson Announced Agreement to Obtain Decision From Privy Council As Permanent Settlement of Controversy Over Division of Moneys For Education--New Regulations Will Be Put Into Effect In Appropriation of All School Grants.

Important Legislation.

Premier Ferguson as Minister of Education, secured the second reading for a bill amending the education act. The bill bulks all the changes the Minister of Education desires at present to have made in educational grants and regulations. The bill was described by Hon. W. E. Raney as the most important legislation before the House in years, and the main discussion on it will take place in committee when each clause will be the cause of debate. The Liberals objected to go through with such an important measure as the new insurance act on a Friday afternoon and it was left over until next week. It contains 274 clauses and covers every insurance activity within the jurisdiction of provincial legislaton.

Separate School Grants.

Premer Ferguson announced during the debate on education that at a conference between the government and officials representing Separate schools, it was agreed that the matter of grants to Separate schools should be taken to the courts, and ultimately to the Privy Council of the Empire for what he hoped would be disposition for all time. Both parties agreed that this should be done, so that a difficulty which had caused controversy for years should be cleared up permanently.

The Premier reviewing briefly the history of the difficulty explained that under the constitution, the British North America Act, the division of moneys in grants to separate and public schools was laid down. Regulations were later formed by the Legislature whereby the grants were given on the merits of the schools. As a result of this the Public schools earned more than their grants under the B.N.A. clauses, while the Separate schools did not earn as much as the original grants amounted to.

Test Case Made.

All the moneys of the original grants not earned under this merit system by the Separate schools were put back in the consolidated funds of the province for general governmental use. In 1919 the law officers of the government gave it as their opinion that the statute giving out the money on the merit system was not constitutional. Hon. W. E. Raney, then the Attorney-General, paid the $100,000 involved into court, and the government of the day decided to have a test case.

The premier explained that when he came into power he thought that the statute could not be over-ridden by any legal opinion expressed, and that therefore he reverted for the time to the system of paying the grants by merit.

The surplus not earned by the Separate schools again went to consolidated fund and was not paid into court.

"We have had friendly conferences with Separate school representatives and decided to have a law action taken which will be decided by the Privy Council of the Empire," said the Premier. "We do not think a stated case would have the desired result. The action is being taken with the approval of both sides."

Hon. W. E. Raney agreed that an action at law would be better than a test case and stated that he had said so when the previous government decided to have a test case.

New Regulations.

The Prime Minister explained that there was a grant of $125,000 to the schools which were fixed. For other grants above this sum he proposed new regulations as contained in the new bill. He said that the distribution of school grants now was not equitable. The new basis would be grants ranging in amount as the school sections themselves expanded.

"We will put a premium on local interest in education," he said. "We will figure the ability of the local section to pay by the assessment."

There will also be a basis of the school population.

The qualifications of the teachers would not be overlooked. Another important amendment he spoke about was that by which high school districts shall not be assessed for the support of pupils who leave that district to attend the high school of another district near.

Teachers Paid $16,000,000.

Mr. Ferguson gave some interesting figures on Ontario's educational costs and investments. He said that $80,000,000 was invested in buildings and equipment for primary education It costs $32,000,000 a year to operate these schools and one half of that amount is paid in teachers' salaries. The cost to the department is about $5,000,000. Invested in secondary schools and equipment is $20,000,000, and the annual expenditure is $9,500,000, of which $4,000,000 is for teachers' salaries. He intended he said to get similar figures on the universities to give the house.

Second reading was also given a bill changing the superannuation act. Hereafter the superannuation affairs will be handled by a board of three instead of seven as at present. One of the three will be a representative of the civil servants.

Compensate Farmers.

The bill providing a fund to be contributed to by the nickel companies for the payment of an arbitrator as between them and the farmers whose crops are injured by fumes from nickel refineries passed through committees.

An amendment to the land transfer act simply gives the registrar or deputy registrar the right to swear out affidavits.

Another bill passed the second reading enables the government to borrow $40,000,000. Of this amount 26,000,000 is for the buying in of short term loans, etc., and the remainder for ordinary purposes, such as roads.

A bill was introduced by Russell Nesbitt, providing for a special audit of the affairs of the Consumers' Gas Company, of Toronto.

The House adjourned at 5 o'clock.

Seven Volumes of Delorme Evidence

MONTREAL, March 22.—(Canadian Press)—Seven large volumes, containing 2,549 pages of evidence, as taken by court stenographers are the total of the documents of the last trial of Rev. Father Delorme, charged with the murder of his half brother Raoul Delorme, according to John J. Lomax, senior court stenographer.

These seven volumes contain 637,250 words, but this does not include the preliminary speech of R. L. Calder, K.C., Crown Prosecutor nor does it include the hours occupied by the Crown and defence in delivering their addresses to the Jury. Mr. Lomax estimates these at a further 100,000 words. ....

There were 150 exhibits at the trial, but many of these were subdivided, such as the bullets and the quilts. It is estimated that the cost of the two King's Bench trials is between $50,000 and $75,000 of which the greater part is attributable to the first trial.

ATTEMPT FALLS IN RUBBER BALL

Bobby Leach of Niagara Fame Negotiating With Rubber Company — Would Recline In Hammock If Plans Are Realized.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., March 22.—Bobby Leach, who went over the Horseshoe Falls in a steel barrel on July 25, 1911, announced yesterday that he is negotiating with a rubber company for the manufacture of a rubber ball in which he plans to make a trip over the Falls early next June. Prior to the Falls trip Leach says he will make three parachute leaps from the upper steel arch bridge on successive Sundays.

The ball will be of the thickness of an ordinary large automobile tire, and will have a hammock in which he will recline, Leach said. He plans to have the ball with himself as a passenger placed in the water a few hundred feet above the Falls on the Canadian side. He believes that the ball will clear the great plunge of water and will land safely in the river below.

Leach has attracted attention by daring feats about the Falls for several years. In addition to going over the Falls in a barrel, he made a parachute leap from the upper bridge on April 21, 1921 and went through the lower rapids and whirlpool in a barrel on June 28, 1911.

SECOND DAUGHTER

EIGHT MILLIONS FINAL PAYMENT OF NORTHLAND

Britain Squares Her War Account With Canada—Settlement Next Week Upon Receipt of Sum From British Treasury--Returns Bonds.

HELD A COLLATERAL.

LONDON, March 22.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—Canada will receive from the British treasury next week the sum of $8,000,000 in final settlement of war accounts between the two governments. The British treasury is returning to Canada at the same time the $67,000,000 of Canadian bonds which were received in the early days of the war as a loan but were never marketed, the securities being used merely as collateral. The British government at first asked Canada to credit her to the extent of the face value of the bonds, $67,000,000 but Canada pointed out that as they bear interest at only 3 1-2 and four per cent. they could not be marketed among post-war investors here only at a big discount. It would therefore be much cheaper to let the bonds remain in England until the date of maturity, 1945.

After negotiations between Chancellor Philip Snowden and Canada's representative, P. C. Larkin, the British treasury agreed to accept a rate of 87.48 for the bonds. Providing the bonds are cancelled Canada's war debt will be reduced by between $8,000,000 and $9,000,000 by this adjustment.

Farmer Sentenced In Judge's Worst Case.

LINDSAY, March 22.— In sentencing John James Bacon, of Snowden township, Haliburton county, yesterday afternoon, on two charges of incest, to ten years on each conviction, the sentences to run concurrently, Judge Swazey commented that it was the "worst case I ever presided over."

Bacon is a farmer with a wife and 11 children, two of whom are married, and lives six miles north of Kinmount in Somerville township. He is 50 years of age. It is understood that Provincial Officers Storey and Boyd who handled the case, have a more serious charge, concealment of birth and murder, ready to present against the accused.

It was the original intention of the Crown to drop the charge of murder, but owing to statements received from the daughter of the accused and others, the charge will be preferred against him. It cannot, however, be tried at the session of the Supreme Court, which opens here on Tuesday next, but will be transferred to another court.

A few hours afterwards Mrs. Sangster passed away, death also being due to paralysis. The double funeral took place on March 18 to Bexley Cemetery.

THE WORLD MISSION CONFERENCE OPENED IN PETERBORO WITH TWO ADDRESSES ON MISSIONARY WORK

Desire of Home Boards to Face Deficits By Retrenching Characterized As a Failure to Live Up to the Duty Imposed Upon Them.

CONDITIONS FAVOR ADVANCE IN CHINA

The World Missions' Conference opened last evening in St. Paul's C urch with between four and five hundred people in attendance. Rev. Dr. C. W. Rose acted as chairman and the purposes of the conference, "to have our horizons lifted and a wider conception given us of world missions," were explained by Rev. H. C. Priest, Secretary of the Missionary Education Movement for Canada. Owing to the indisposition of Rev. Dr. Endicott, one of the scheduled speakers of the evening, the addresses of the session were given by Presbyterian ministers, Rev. J. D. MacRae, Dean of the School of Theology of Shantung Christian University, China, and Rev. A. E. Armstrong, Secretary of the Presbyterian Foreign Mission Board. Both addresses bore references to the duty of the home churches to support the work of the missionaries in foreign fields.

Challenge of East.

Rev. Dean McRae spoke on "The Challenge of the East to us in Canada To-day." "Do we realize," he said, "that one of the great problems of the day in China is how to make industry more Christian than in the West?" In China, and Japan, and India, the idea of democracy is gaining a hold upon the people. "How shall we Christianize this democratic spirit? Unless it is a Christian democracy, it will be unsafe for the world." There was also an unusual intellectual awakening in China. The literary language had been changed to a language in the vernacular of the people, with results comparable only to the translation of the Bible into the ancient English or into the High German by Martin Luther. One of the indirect influences of the penetration of Christianity had been the changes it had wrought in the home life of the people. "What will be the result if the old home life is broken up, and we are unable to Christianize the new family?" asked the speaker, who said that Christianity had introduced some disturbing influences into the life of the people of China. "Having introduced Christianity into China, is the Christian church ready to take the responsibility for the disturbing influences that have been introduced also? The demand for the message of Christ from the point of view of citizenship is certainly insistent in China to-day."

A Real Movement.

Students and thinkers of China were everywhere to-day enquiring about the Christian religion, said Dean MacRae, "it is a deep and real movement in China, this tendency to welcome and investigate the Christian religion." Were the home churches failing, because of their desire to retrench and retreat and their talk of deficits, to take advantage of this movement, and to supply the fields with workers and money?

In the absence of Dr. Endicott through illness, his place was taken by Rev. A. E. Armstrong, who gave a brief outline of the situation of the missionary movement in many foreign lands, and exhorted the home churches to more interest and encouragement of the work.

"Our adversaries are not so much in the superstition and idolatry and ignorance of the people among whom we labor. Our adversaries are you, members of the Christian church at home, who are ignorant and indifferent and disloyal to Jesus Christ, Him whom we profess to serve," said the speaker, who declared that the Presbyterian church in Canada, and the presbytery of Peterborough, the church in which he stood, as well as others, had failed to raise its quota of missionary funds last year.

Rev. Mr. Armstrong spoke of the 'open doors 'in many foreign fields. Of India, where formerly the name of Christ would not be tolerated, today it was the great inspiration of many classes, including the Mahommedans and the Hindus, who, followers of Mahomet, the founder of the Moslem faith, and of Krishna, the god of the Hindu, still declared, when they wished to exalt their leader Ghandi, that he was second only to Jesus Christ. All through India, the influence of the Christian religion could be measured.

In China, with its quarter of the world's population, and its potentialities for greatness in its peoples' possession of the qualities of thrift, industry and patience, the missionaries were no longer looked on as "foreign devils" but as friends, particularly since the help that has been afforded the sufferers in the Northern China famine of 1921.

In Japan, the spirit and influence of Christianity had penetrated the empire. In 1859, the first Christian missionary entered the country, and as late as 1872, edicts forbidding the embrace of Christianity on pain of death were in existence. Now, the Christian church in Japan had 135,000 members and upwards of a million adherents.

Korea represented another open door about which the speaker waxed very enthusiastic, praising the outstanding Christianity of the Koreans, and prophesying that, with double the helpers in the field, and with enough money to employ sufficient native workers, Korea could be entirely Christianized by 1950.

Rev. Mr. Mackinnon, secretary of the local committee, made several announcements, with regard to the programme of the Conference, and spoke of the lantern slide views to be shown to-day and on Monday between two and three o'clock by Dr. F. C. Stephenson, secretary of the Forward Movement for Missions in the Methodist church in Canada.

A very interesting portion of the Conference, and worth a visit from those interested, is the exhibit in charge of Dr. F. C. Stephenson, which contains much of value to the missionary worker. The collection of curios on view is exceptionally attractive and arranged in a novel manner. Displayed in the church itself and in the side room where most of the exhibit is lodged, are the large and gorgeous examples of wonderful Oriental needle-work, done by men, in floss stitch of infinitesimal fineness. Against crimson and Chinese blue backgrounds, they depict, in colored silks, the Eastern conception of the heavens and the air and the sea, whose waves roll at the foot of the monstrous dragons and wonderfully-feathered phoenixes. Dragons blow the winds in which men fly. A favorite device is the eternal triangle, showing one man and two women or two women and one man.

Missionary mottoes are displayed, with posters depicting the people of many lands ,and pictures from life of the medical and dental native workers trained by skilled missionaries to carry on remedial work among their own people. Large maps, showing Christianized countries, are on view, there are portraits of missionaries from the district, and one of the most attractive sections is the literature table, with books dealing with every angle of the missionary problem, in every land, suited to old and young alike. A collection of small curios includes some beautiful silk garments, shoes and such things as a round "head scratcher," a piece of hard elephant hide, a miniature black and red coffin, a tiger bone for medicinal purposes, and some of the fibrous paper 'cash' of China.

Mere Intelligence Can Never Rescue Semi-Pagan World

Dr. Charles Ellwood, Professor of Sociology in the University of Missouri, writes: "Mere intelligence can never save our world. There is just one way in which the transition can be effected from our semi-pagan civilization to a true Christian civilization, and that is for members of the Christian church, one here and one there at first and then the many following, to consecrate themselves without any limitation or reservation whatsoever, to the forwarding of the Christian cause."

Only One Way for Our Civilization to Avoid Revolution

"The Road Away From Revolution," by Woodrow Wilson, the Atlantic Monthly Press: "The sum of the whole matter is this, that our civilization cannot survive materially unless it is redeemed spiritually. It can be saved only by becoming permeated with the spirit of Christ and being made free and happy by the practices which spring out of that spirit. Only thus can discontent be driven out and all the shadows lifted from the road ahead."

ST. JOHN'S SERVICES.

Rev. Dr. Gould, General Secretary of M.S.C.C., will preach in the morning. The vicar will give his fifth in a series of sermons on the Ten Commandments. This is a sermon specially for th eyoung people of the parish.

R. J. LOVELL MURRAY,

Director of the Canadian School of Missions, formerly Secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement of North America, author of a number of well-known missionary books and for some years a missionary in India. He will give the closing address at the World Missions' Conference here on Monday evening.

MISSION WORK OF THE CHURCH

CONGREGATIONAL MISSION WORK.

In the lands overseas, while many have gone to work in China and India under theoLndon Missionary Society, and especially in Asia Minor under the American board, the special work of the Congregationalists is in Angola, West Central Africa. The first missionary was Dr. Walter Currie, of Toronto, who went out in 1886, when the journey inland was a matter of three weeks' travel by caravan on foot. Now there are several stations and a fine central training institute to which the most promising young men and women from all the stations are sent for training as leaders of their people. The journey inland is made by railway in 24 hours.

Kanjundu's Sacrifice.

The people among whom the missions are at work are the Ovimbundu, a fine, stalwart and capable people, a branch of the Zulu race. Their development in these few years has been in every way remarkable. They have already their Christian heroes. One fine chief, Kanjundu by name, on becoming a Christian, set free all his hundred slaves and returned to their homes, with provision for their support, all his wives save one. His choice between the last two of his wives, one his first wife and the other his last wife, a young woman with a little baby, was very difficult, and he settled it by saying he would keep the one who learned to read first—the older wife won out.

Already, too, there are Christian villages with schools and churches, built at their own expense, by the natives, and there is the fascination spectacle of the leap in one generation from complete paganism and primitive savagery to Christian faith and modern civilization.

MISSIONARY WORK OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The home mission work of the Canadian Presbyterian Church is large and varied. The last published report shows 521 augmented charges and 475 home mission fields. Included in the many activities of this board is that of evangelism, the department of the stranger through which a welcome is extended to newcomers to our land and the effort made to bring them within the influence of church life in Canada, work among the many non-Anglo-Saxons in our Dominion, support of the great moral movements in our national life, the carrying on of seven redemptive homes in different centers across Canada, one of which is conducted cooperatively by four of the denominations and in the maintenance of three of which the Methodist Church shares equally, and the maintaining of social settlements in Vancouver, Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal and Sydney.

In the year 1867, Rev. John Morton began work in the beautiful Island of Trinidad, in the West Indies, amongst the East Indian coolies labouring on the plantations. Five years later George Leslie MacKay, the first missionary sent by the western section of the Church, started work in Formosa. Thus the first three missions of the church were begun on what are admittedly amongst the most beautiful Islands in the world.

In 1876 the mission in Central India was opened, and in 1888 what has come to be the largest mission of the church was founded in Honan, China. It was started in the midst of a famine that swept away 8,000,000 lives. Rev. Jonathan Goforth and Rev. J. Fraser Smith, M.D., went with a relief fund in hands, but they found the Chinese so prejudical that they preferred death to relief at the hands of the foreigners. How splendidly things have changed since then. Now China is open and has a sympathetic attitude towards Christian work.

In British Guiana, as in Trinidad, there are many East Indian coolies working on the plantations. Accordingly, in 1896, a mission was started there, Rev. J. B. Cropper, D.D., being the first missionary.

The mission in Korea came to the church as an inheritance. Rev. W. J. Mackenzie, a consecrated soul, went to Korea of his own accord when the board could not send him. He landed in 1893 and finished his work in 1895 but he left a the Canadian church of enthusiasm which could not be refused. The mission there has been in flood-tide almost from the beginning.

In 1898, Dr. Donald MacGillivray, a linguistic genius on the Honan staff, was devoted to the production of literature for the Chinese church, to serve in connection with the Christian Literature Society in Shanghai. In 1902 the South China mission was opened to utilize the product of the work amongst Chinese in Canada, some of whom were returning and carrying the gospel message with them. Rev. W. R. M'Kay was the first missionary. In 1904, the Gwalior mission, Central India, was started by Rev. J. Wilkie, D.D., who had been one of the pioneer missionaries in Central India twenty-five years before.

Harvest Ripe.

In these ten mission fields there are 333 missionaries, and in every case opportunities are being lost because the staff is too small to meet the need. It is the harvest time. As stated in the 1922 report there were 17 hospitals, in which 101,070 patients were treated; 347 day schools, with 131,577 pupils; 709 churches and other places of worship; 723 native helpers, working full time among their own people.

The first missionary in the Canadian field supported by the society was Miss Brown, who began work on the Blackfoot reserve in 1887. The first foreign missionary was Miss Sherlock, who went to Japan in 1890. There are now 30 missionaries in the overseas fields, and 31 missionaries and 36 workers in the Canadian field. In addition to this, 35 Bible women and 156 children are supported overseas.

THE MOST PREVALENT "ISM"

THE MOST PREVALENT "ISMS"

The religion of Christ has to-day, as ever, its bold and avowed enemies. Yet is it doubtless true that in most of our communities there are comparatively few, even among the non-religious, who are actually hostile to Christianity. It is generally conceded that the religion of Christ does the world no harm. Except a very few among the most depraved, no one would crush out Christianity even if he could. Even infidels are not unwilling for their children to be Christians. The dying Ethan Allen told his daughter to accept her mother's religious beliefs, not his. Many unbelievers are glad to have their children out of the room when they talk their blasphemies.

Neither is hostility to the church the attitude of any great majority of those who refuse to accept the Saviour and unite with his people. It would be an equally great mistake o imagine any very large proportion of outsiders to be essential doctrines of Christianity. We sometimes hear them say, "We are waiting to be convinced," but this is usually only an excuse. They are convinced already. Not at enmity to the church, not infidels, not skeptics, not actually opposing religion, what word can we use to express the religious condition of this very large class of people outside the churches to-day? What better word can we use than this, and say they are indifferent. Like Gallio in the time of Paul, they simply "care for none of these things." They take almost no interest at all in religion either one way or the other. They are simply and entirely indifferent to the whole question. Let us know that the most widespread and prevalent "ism" in Christendom to-day outside the church is not Skepticism, not Spiritualism, not Agnosticism, but "Indifferentism."

And of all the conditions of irreligion indifference is the most difficult to contend against. We read in history that Napoleon in war with his heavy artillery found little difficulty in demolishing forts or brick or stone or logs. His heavy cannon balls would crash through and beat down the strongest walls. But somewhere in Egypt he encountered a mud fort. It had just lately been constructed and the mud was not yet dry. Against the soft, yielding clay his cannon balls were quite ineffective. The resistance offered was comparatively so slight that the missiles would simply strike the soft mud with a dull thud and remain imbedded in the embankment only making it the stronger instead of weaker. So when any one is an avowed enemy of Christ, is in open hostility to the church, or is an honest infidel, standing up honestly for his beliefs, there is some chance for gospel appeals to be effective. But as for those people who, verily, are too indifferent to offer any real resistance to the truth! Simply noncommittal, pliably, yieldingly indifferent Soft mud forts they are, and every appeal of the gospel only leaves them the more strongly fortified against the truth. Really to be opposed to these things, to misunderstand these things, even to doubt these things, does not render a soul's salvation half so hopeless as to "care for none of these things." The former condition may be bad enough, but the latter is almost fatal.

MADE-IN-PETERBOROUGH.

The Executive Council of the Chamber of Commerce has decided that it is inadvisable to place an exhibit of made-in-Peterborough products at the Canadian National Exhibition.

The possibilities of such an exhibit should not, however, be lost sight of even if action is deferred for another year.

Several cities have had splendid results from a united showing of their manufactured products at the Toronto Exhibition, and it is notable that Stratford, the pioneer in the movement, will have an exhibit this year.

The variety and extent of the goods manufactured in Peterborough would enable a very impressive showing to be made.

The average visitor to this city is amazed by the large number of manufacturing concerns, and there seems little doubt that an exhibit of the articles turned out by local firms would bring before thousands of people the important place in the industrial world occupied by Peterborough, and incidentally bring considerable business to the concerns co-operating in making the display.

The plan should not be permanently abandoned—for it offers too many possibilities.

THE McBRIEN BILL.

The McBrien bill proposing to increase the exemption on municipal income tax assessment for householders from $2,000 to $2,500 and for non-householders from $1,000 to $1,250, has been sent for consideration by the Special Committee of the Legislature which is to revise the Assessment Act during the recess.

There is much to be said both for and against the proposal.

It would deprive them of a considerable share of revenue, and their representatives who opposed the bill before the Municipal Committee of the Legislature pointed out that this would necessitate making up the loss by heavier taxes on property, thus hitting the workingman who owned his own home.

The possibility that the exemption might be given without increasing the propery tax if rigid economy in every department of the civic administration were exercised, does not seem to have been considered.

The increased exemption was proposed as an effort to lessen the load of taxation carried by large numbers of citizens who not only have to pay an income tax to the municipality but also are levied upon by the Dominion Goyernment.

In view of the opposition of the urban centres, it is not likely that the Special Committee will recommend the bill when it is brought up again.

MAKE THEM PERMANENT.

The question has been asked in the Federal House, and is being continually asked when returned soldiers get together, as to whether it is the intention of the Government to add the amount of the bonus now being paid to the present pension of former members of the C.E.F. or their widows and dependents, thus making the permanent pension equal to the present pension plus the bonus.

This is a matter that might well be settled without delay.

At present the recipients of pensions are worried over the fact that the bonus may at any time be cut off.

The present pension, even when augmented by the bonus, is none too large, nor is the cost of living ever likely to drop far enough to make it too large in view of the services rendered by the recipient.

The bonus should be abolished and the permanent pension increased accordingly so that the widows of the men who gave up their lives for Canada and the men who are permanently incapacited because of their war service will know just where they stand and what they can count on in respect to their income for the future.

Anxious as are the people of Canada for a reduction in expenditures, they do not desire to see the returned soldiers and their dependents selected as the first victims of the pruning knife.

An announcemet from the Premier would reassure many who are worrying about the outcome of it all.

HELPING THE FARMERS.

There is not likely to be any serious complaint from urban Ontario over the decision of the Ontario Government, concurred in by all parties in the Legislature, to assist the farmers of the Province by the appointment of a special committee to make a careful research into the agricultural problems in Ontario.

It is recognized that conditions among the farmers at the present time are far from being rosy, and city merchants and manufacturers also realize that their interests suffer when the buying power of the farmer is reduced.

The visit of Hon. J. S. Martin to England and Denmark, which is part of the policy of assistance to the agricultural interests, will also be endorsed.

The Minister of Agriculture while here this week impressed Peterborough people as a sound, practical, wide-awake Minister, closely in touch with agricultural conditions and genuinely anxious to make his term of office mean something to rural Ontario.

Vast strides have been made in agriculture in Denmark, and particularly has education along educational lines been developed.

Undoubtedly Ontario can learn much from Danish methods, and Mr. Martin seems to be the type of man to obtain the most from his visit, which should mark the beginning of new conditions for agriculture in this Province.

It is his contention that Ontario is far from having reached the acme of productive efficiency in agriculture.

In almost every department of farming there is need for better management, more scintific methods and a less haphazard and indifferent system.

Hon. Mr. Martin hopes to introduce new methods and a new angle on farming, and he should have general support in his campaign.

THE TIED HAS TURNED.

So much is heard in Ontario of the exodus to the United States that there is an inclination to think that the main drift has been from this Province to the industrial centres across the line.

As a matter of fact, the movement across the border has not been confined to Ontario, for from the Western Provinces there has been a considerable migration to California, while the Maritime Provinces have seen thousands of their people move into the New England States.

Fortunately, however, in the West, at least, the tide has turned, according to the well-informed Saskatoon Progressive, which says:

"Less than a year ago an alarming exodus of Canadian citizens to the United States was at its height. The thing was not a matter of statistics and figures; it was a matter of common everyday, personal interest, for almost every day some friend or acquaintance said "goodbye" and took the train for the south. The Progressive has not at hand the current statistics on the subject, but there is no indication at the present time of any large emigration from this part of Canada to the United States. The drain has practically ceased. There are two reasons for this. One is that the California boom has reached its peak many months ago and the condition which existed there of everyone being able to locate a job at the moment of arrival has come to an end. The other reason is that in some mysterious way ,slowly, but surely, a change for the better is becoming noticeable in the general economic condition of the Canadian West. The money received for the crop on the prairies last fall was a grievous disappointment and it is hard to prove by actual figures that people can be any better off now than they were this time last year. Nevertheless all signs point to the fact that such is the case. There is an improvement in the Canadian West. In a speech made in the Legislature at Regina some weeks ago the Premier declared that there was a possibility that Saskatchewan might be on the verge of an influx of population comparable to the great immigration years in the early part of the present century. He did not give any tangible reasons for his hopes; did not attempt to analyze the situation but he had become imbued with the idea that the tide of immigration had turned and that instead of seeing our population moving out and away we would presently see it augmented by large additions from other parts of the world. Was he right? He probably was. Europe is turning its eyes to Canada. The restrictions upon immigration to Canada is having a cumulative effect."

CHURCHILL AND WHY.

No one will deny that the House of Commons would have been the brighter for the return of Mr. Churchill. An able debater, a skilled strategist, possessing the ingenuous and disarming manner of perennial youth, he counts his admirers by the score on both sides of the House, regardless of political affiliation. Although he has been thrice defeated in the last eighteen months, no one regards him as a back number. He may be rash and mystifying, erratic and ambiguous, but he is essentially forward. A single turn in the whirligig of politics and Churchill might be acclaimed tomorrow as Prime Minister of England. It would be far safer to prophesy that he will yet hold high office in Britain than to name the party whose destinies he will control.

In a poll of over 25,000 voters a majority of 33 is disappointing and exasperating to the defeated candidate. Yet Mr. Churchill can point with no small conceit to the showing he made. He came into the riding without any organization and after the three recognized political parties had chosen their candidates and started the machinery of their respective organizations No by-election in which Mr. Churchill was engaged could be a dull one and cable reports indicate that he has introduced some attractive and entertaining features into the contest. If he lost by a head at the winning post, he has at least had the satisfaction of bringing down the Conservative majority from nearly 11,000 to 33, and he has beaten the Labor candidate by almost two thousand votes.

The Conservatives may regard themselves as fortunate in just managing to win out. Although Mr. Nicholson was the official candidate, he was obviously not the choice of all sections of the pary. Lord Balfour sent a letter of commendation to Mr. Churchill a few days before the polling which must have had a telling effect on some of the waverers who hesitated between party loyalty and personal preference. Labor has increased in supporters since the last contested election in November, 1922, when their candidate polled only 2,444 votes out of approximately 18,000 ballots cast.

Lessons will be drawn from the contest by the British newspapers and conclusions set forth which are based upon their political complexions. One lesson to be learned is the growing strength of Labor in the stronghold of hidebound Toryism, the city of London, and the other the weakness displayed by Liberalism. This may be a protest on the part of the two older parties against the apathetic and spineless leadership. The guidance of Mr. Asquith seems to be actuated more by an impotent irritation than by statesmanship. His speech at the National Liberal Club and his ludicrous impalement on the horns of the dilemma he fabricated for Labor over the Poplar question have made Liberalism cut a wretchedly poor figure, while the sham attack of both parties on Arthur Henderson's speech at Burnley must have brought them into ridicule rather than repute.

If Mr. Asquith put Labor into power so as to allow them enough rope with which to hang themselves, he must be exceedingly disappointed with the results of the Westminster contest. If the Conservatives think that mediocrity and indolence can ever be a substitute for leadership, they have discovered that the electors think otherwise.

The true function of the Conservative Party in England has been and will continue to be much the same as that of the family counsellor, to whom all members resort when in difficulty and perplexity. It is not their function to vie with Socialism in bidding for social reform.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

A Clear-Cut Statement of Automobile Manufacturing and Selling Policies

by the New Management of Gray-Dort Motors Limited

THE men now in control of Gray-Dort Motors Limited have established as the basis of their operation of the business those fundamentals without which no business can enjoy lasting success.

Every new automobile bearing the Gray-Dort name must give the utmost dollar-for-dollar value which honest, efficient manufacturing makes possible.

Every part used in the building of a Gray-Dort car must pass the most rigid inspection for quality and fine workmanship.

Careless work and careless inspection will not be tolerated for one moment.

Every Gray-Dort must be a rugged, smooth-working automobile, ready for long, satisfactory service when it leaves the plant.

Every Gray-Dort dealer must have the full co-operation of Gray-Dort Motors Limited in making his business successful.

Every Gray-Dort owner must be able to look to us as long as he is driving a Gray-Dort car for anything necessary to make the operation of his car completely satisfactory to him.

The Gray-Dort of today is a real quality automobile. Correct in engineering design. The motors in both four and six-cylinder models take second place to none in their classes. The chassis is strong, honest and carefully built. The bodies have a European touch of beauty found only in cars much higher in price.

Recent improvements include a new and efficient disc clutch and a new type rear axle.

The new axle has withstood the most severe tests and has been proven to have a margin of excess strength sufficient to positively insure against rear axle trouble of any kind.

And because the Gray-Dort is practically produced entirely in Canada, the prices are the lowest at which automobiles of such quality have ever been sold.

Automobile Dealers

We will be glad to hear from automobile dealers in territories where the Gray-Dort franchise is open, who believe with us that a sincere effort to give heaping value in the car and in service will insure a big volume of sales this year and in the future.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, March 21.—The market opened on Monday with a good active demand all round. The export buyers were in the market for a good number of export cattle, but found supplies rather smaller than expected. This resulted in spreading their purchasing more generally over the subsequent markets and giving a steadiness to prices that might not have obtained had the buying been crowded into the earlier markets. Rogers and Maybee took during the week over a thousand head of cattle for export prices ranging steadily from $7.50 to $8 for fat steers, $5 to $5.25 for heavy fat cows, and $6.50 to $7.25 for heifers. The export demand will not be quite so heavy next week, as there is only one boat scheduled for sailing, but at that about 650 cattle will be required.

In the butcher section there has been a good keen demand for choice well finished steers and heifers. A few choice heavy killing steers were taken by the local packers at top prices, competing with the export buyers for this class of cattle. Prices [illegible] ranged as high as $8 to $8.40 and for one extra choice load of 18 steers, topping the market at $8.25 bought by George Rowntree for the Harris Abattoir Co. and sold by Dunn and Levack. For the general run of good to choice butcher steers and heifers prices held practically steady all through the week, holding an initial advance in Monday's market of 15c to 25c over the previous week.

Fat cows have been in good demand, stimulated both by an export outlet and by an extra demand for kosher cows for the coming Jewish festival season. Goot fat cows held steady from $4.50 to $5.25, with a few special extras for kosher purposes at from $6 to $6.50.

Choice bulls in rather slow demand, but a few choice heavies going for export.

There is little or no demand just now for milkers and springers.

Calves strong in the early market, but struck a snag in the middle of the week, the market goig off a dollar to a dollar and a half.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, March 22 (Canadian Press). — There was very little activity and no new developments in the wheat market yesterday, and after a fractionally lower opening, prices worked down to low of 99 1-4 for May, and then reacted about 1-2, remaining quiet and steady between 99 1-2 and 99 3-4.

The local trade appeared to be watching Chicago and this market worked along in sympathy.

At the close both May and July recorded a loss of 1-8c, while October improved 3-8c.

The seaboard reported that export business was again very light and that this morning's cables were out of line and showing no interest.

New York advices indicate that seaboard stocks of Manitobas are being cleaned up and an improved demand is anticipated in the near future.

UNFINISHED TOWER

could have been used.

Accommodating Experts.

"You can usually get an engineer, just as you can get a member of Parliament if you choose carefully, to say anything you want," retorted Mr. Meighen. "Nothing but the most extreme party fanaticism," he continued, "could cast a slur on either of the parties in connection with the reconstruction of the Parliament Buildings."

The Opposition leader added that he would like to vote for the item placed on the estimates by the Government, but he had not been convinced by the Minister that the cost of delay would be serious. He suggested that a reduction in the estimates might be made.

Contract Made.

When the House re-assembled after dinner recess, Hon. Dr. J. H. King appealed to the House to consider the situation which would be created by the failure to vote the estimate for completion of the Parliament Buildings. The Government had settled claims from the contractors and held the architects down to a five and a half per cent. fee, on the supposition that Parliament would vote the necessary expenses of completing the buildings. Parliament had signified for two years past its desire to have the buildings completed. In five years the architect's fee would be higher, shops and machinery would have deteriorated and the cost of resuming the work would be high. Besides this, the sheds and stores of material scattered all around the buildings must remain an eye-sore for five years.

W. A. Boys (Conservative, Simcoe South) was in favor of having the tower completed if the Government was under contract to do so. The Prime Minister said he had had a recent interview with Mr. Pearson, the architect who was most anxious to proceed with the work at once if possible. The stones from overseas to be used in the completion of the memorial chamber were already in the city. The memorial chamber could be eliminated, he said, if the House wished it.

Example in Economy.

General J. A. Clark said that the Prime Minister was trying to test the House on the wrong issues. He was sure that no member would want to do away with the memorial chamber, but suggested that the tower be completed and the chamber fitted out in the future when the country could better afford it. Mr. Stevens thought the item could be reduced as a means of demonstrating to the country sincerity in economical administration.

J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg Centre) said that while the completion of the tower might give employment to a few in Ottawa, the money could be better used otherwise. He could not see the justification for passing the item.

Dr. King said he was prepared to let the matter stand over for a time if Mr. Brethen would withdraw his motion to strike it out. Mr. Brethen withdrew the motion, and the item was held over.

PETERBORO MEN ATTEND PRIVATE BILLS COMMITTEE

Exemption on Income Tax In Peterboro Would Mean a Loss in Revenue of $15,570.

Mr. Wm. Henry, City Assessor, and Mr. Joseph Wearing, City Solicitor, attended before the Private Bills Committee at Toronto to voice the opposition of the City Council to a further exemption on income tax, which would provide for single men being exempted up to $1,250 and married men up to $2,500. Mr. Wearing, who addressed the committee, pointed out that in Peterborough the added exemption would mean a loss in revenue of $15,570, which would increase the tax rate by eight-tenths of a mill, and that the burden would be borne to a great extent by workmen owning small homes. Representatives were also heard from Owen Sound, Brantford, Kitchener, Belleville, London, Windsor, St. Thomas and Toronto, the only city in favor of the change being St. Thomas. Mr. W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., introduced the Peterborough representatives to the committee.

MRS. PANKHURST GAVE ADDRESS AT Y. M. C. A.

Instructive and Inspiring Address at Weekly Supper

Last evening a special treat was provided at the weekly supper in the Y.M.C.A., when Mrs. E. Pankhurst kindly consented to address the meeting. Mrs. Pankhurst was accompanied by Miss Moore who is in charge of the "Gift of Life" film that is being shown at the Social Hygiene exhibit in the Public Library. Mr. Joseph Wearing presided in the unadvoidable absence of Mr. J. F. H. Wallace, the popular chairman of the class. The meeting opened with a sing-song during which Mr. Wearing was prevailed upon to render "O Canada" in French.

Mrs. Pankhurst opened her address with a reference to the good work accomplished by the Y.M.C.A. which is international in scope. Mrs. Pankhurst recalled the work of the institution in her native city of Manchester, England and the boon it proved to be to the young men of the community. Turning to the question of the present generation the speaker said that the young men and women of today are confronted by many more hazards than earlier generations. They have more money to spend and more diversions some of which are apt to lead to disaster. Parental control and discipline is lacking in the present age and young people in many cases were less considerate of the responsibilities of good citizenship. Mrs. Pankhurst stressed the importance of clean living and a proper appreciation of the better and more enduring things of life. Like the popular song "It is a long, long trail to the land of my dreams" but Mrs. Pankhurst hoped that at least the young generation would reach that goal towards which the christian world is striving.

COMMISSION HEAR THE REQUEST OF VETERANS

Decide Against Reinstatement of Constable Harry Young on Police Force.

Constable Harry Young's case was before the Board of Police Commissioners yesterday when a deputation from the G.W.V.A. was heard, the Commissioners deciding nothing could now be done towards re-instating him. Constable Young was given notice of dismissal, with Constable Welch, when the police commission estimates were cut by the city council, and a petition from the Ladies' Auxiliary of the G.W.V.A. requested consideration of his case.

Dr. N. H. Sutton, President of the G.W.V.A. and S. Whatley, secretary, formed the deputation. Prior to their admission a copy of a report on the conduct of Constable Young was given each commissioner by Chief Newhall.

Dr. Sutton opened his representations by saying the G.W.V.A. has the interests of the returned men at heart, and when it was informed that a returned man with seniority over other members of the police force had been dismissed it was natural under the circumstances that a protest be made. "We don't wish to enter into any controversy" he said, "until we know our ground, and we don't wish to interfere with the efficiency of the force. We would like to be able to inform our comrades of the state of affairs which led up to the man's dismissal. With the information at our disposal it seemed to be a case in which an unwarranted discrimination was shown against an overseas man. We do not wish to make the matter public. It will be sufficient to show there were just reason for his dismissal."

His Honor Judge Huycke said in expressing his views he spoke only for himself and without authority from the other members of the board. He knew there were some black marks against Constable Young in the time of Chief Thompson and at least one in Chief Newhall's time. "They were not serious," he continued, "and I had hoped he had had time to live them down. At the meeting when this came up for discussion I expressed myself strongly in favor of retaining the returned soldier, and pointed out that these things were a long time past, and I was willing to overlook them and dismiss someone else. However, I received no backing and I let the matter drop. Since then several matters occurred and others have been brought to my attention which change my views considerably. I have been very strongly in favor of giving returned soldiers the preference first last and all the time, providing they can be given it without impairing the efficiency of the force.

Unfortunately, as I say, since that meeting events have taken place that changed my views. He acted, in a way that makes it practically impossible to consider his being taken back. There must be a certain amount of discipline in the police force, just as in the army."

The report drawn up by Chief Newhall on Constable Young's record in the police force was given to Dr. Sutton and Mr. Whatley for their perusal and they retired to give it consideration. On their return Magistrate Langley and Mayor Turner expressed accord with the state of the case presented previously by Judge Huycke.

Asks For Other Side.

Dr. Sutton said that before seeing this report G.W.V.A. had no definite information, and now, having one side of the question suggested that the other side be looked into. Speaking from his experience as an army office, Dr. Sutton said it is always necessary that the accuracy of reports such as this be checked up. In the army, he said, such a report would have to be checked in every particular before he would give judgment.

Chief Newhall said the rules and regulations of the police force had been violated by the giving of the report to the deputation, containing the name of an informant who was given the chief's pledge that his name would not be divulged.

Dr. Sutton: "There was a comparing of records and there must have been a lot of close and conscientious work on your part to decide on this matter. I wondered if on making that decision and looking into the character of the men it was only done from the chief's report on things past or your own impression of their work, or things past or by whether any other thing entered into your thoughts. I wondered if before notice was given this man, all things in his favor were given the weight they should have been given; if whether the sins here named have been atoned for by his actions of the past year?"

Judge Huycke demurred at the "catechizing" given by Dr. Sutton, and said as far as he was concerned he had acted on the reports of the different chiefs and on his own knowledge. Personally he had been willing to forego Young's dismissal for that time, but the other two members of the commission did not agree with him.

Judge Huycke: "If half of what has been reported about Constable Young is correct he has no chance to get back."

No "Getting Square."

Dr. Sutton: "We want to be able to tell our comrades that there was no stone left unturned so that a man deserving of consideration was not "got," or as I believe it is in police circles, "framed." We will take your assurance that all things were done that could be done. We know that in all police annals there is the tendency in starting on a case to make things stick. It has not been unknown that all the truth has not been brought out in all cases and in some cases more than the truth has been brought out. That is the experience in police circles all over the world, isn't it?"

Chief Newhall: "No it is not. It's not done here."

Dr. Sutton: "I think our attitude in the matter has been perfectly square and just."

Judge Huycke: "What effect did you think your going to the city council would have on us?"

Dr. Sutton: "I was not aware that we had done so."

Mr. Whatley: "There was a letter sent at the wish of the meeting, not in the sense that the city council could do anything in the way of forcing the commissions' hand, but merely a request that the case be given consideration."

Judge Huycke: "But you were there?"

"Yes."

"Well, you suggest that we make mistakes; I suggest that you make a great many more."

Chief Newhall: "I haven't had the pleasure of knowing Dr. Sutton very long, but I have worked with Mr. Whatley in connection with the G. W.V.A. and he knows my attitude toward the returned soldiers. It wouldn't have done them any trouble to walk down to my office and they could have had the opportunity of seeing this quietly. But like all the rest of them they rush into print and send this stuff flying all over the city. As for framing, it is unknown on the Peterborough Police Force, and if I know any man to do any framing he will leave quickly. The returned men should have the preference providing they are equal or anywhere near equal.

Judge Huycke remarked that if the city council is taking an interest in the matter it is a very newly found solicitude on the part of the council for the returned soldiers.

The hearing of Constable Young after the deputation had left, being a disciplinary affair was held behind closed doors in accordance with the rules and regulations of the police force pointed out by Chief Newhall.

Worry is only Fear

Fear of Self—Fear of Others—Fear of the Future

AND what is the cause of worry? Lack of nerve force, energy, vigor. The man or woman who has good health and is living a full, successful life does not worry.

It is when the nervous system gets run down that worry comes to sap vitality from your body and to torment your mind.

There is not much use in advising one not to worry unless you can also offer some means of restoring the depleted nervous system.

The most rational and most successful treatment available to all is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

It is popular because it does not merely afford temporary relief but gradually and certainly restores vitality to the run-down nervous system.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food can make a better human being of you, mentally, physically—everyway.

The benefits felt will be in the way of new energy, new vigor and confidence.

The futility of worry will dawn on you and you will be able to see the bright and hopeful side of the future.

You will realize that you have the reserve force necessary to withstand the strain of life's work and ward off disease and discouragement.

But do not expect this change in a day. Some perseverance is necessary on your part.

The reconstructive process is slow but certain. The depleted nerve cells must be nourished back to health.

You will soon notice signs of improvement which will encourage you to keep up this treatment until the desired results are obtained. The important part is to get the building-up process started now—to-day.

You will notice that while the price of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has been increased to 60c. the box now contains 60 pills instead of 50 as formerly.

How Electric Light Speeds Plant Growth

Maturing Time of Flowers and Vegetables Is Cut Down by One-Half.

SCIENCE is setting such a fast pace for Mother Nature that she is rapidly losing all her secrets. The hen has been coaxed to do overtime through the means of artificial daylight and the incubator has been substituted for her in the hatching of her eggs. What can be done with animal life can also be done with plant life. Man has learned some of nature's tricks and beaten her to it.

In a series of recently completed experiments conducted by electrical engineers and horticulturists the value of electric light for accelerating the growth of plants was conclusively proved. Many of the specimens subjected to electric light grew during the test upwards of twice the size of similar plants receiving daylight only, and were considered by experts to be from fourteen to twenty-seven days in advance of normal growth. Of the plants selected for testing, flowers and vegetables having large leaf surfaces, such as lettuce and endive, responded most readily to the stimulating effect of the light. The tests indicate that electric light will be useful to florists and gardeners in forcing flowers for definite dates, such as Christmas and Easter, and in reducing the time required for seedlings to grow large enough to permit transplanting.

During the experiments of forcing flowers to grow faster by substituting electric light for daylight tulips, daffodils, hyacinths and other bulb plants were used. Altogether about 1,000 plants were used throughout the experiments. One lot was supplied with artificial lighting from eight at night until one o'clock in the morning, and then given a necessary rest between that early hour and dawn; whereupon nature played her part during the day. The other batch was left entirely in the hands of nature, with nothing but the ordinary sunlight to bask in, though, of course, the gardener gave them the usual attention. This made it possible to make equitable comparisons.

The result was that the average growth of the average flower under normal conditions had been shortened in time from one month to two and one-half weeks. The necessary span of growth for single and double tulips was lessened as much as one-third, and hyacinths that ordinarily take at least a month to bloom in fullness were grown artificially in seventeen days.

But the most remarkable results were obtained with the finest golf green grass plots. The seeds lay only four days before germination, and in fourteen days a growth of two inches had been reached. The grass required a month to reach this stage under the more natural process.

In the Jersey City greenhouses, where the experiments took place, eight 500-watt electric lamps were hung over a bank of plants. A similar bed was placed near by, curtained from the electric light, but receiving daylight. The lamps burned five hours every night.

Twelve varieties of vegetables and twelve of flowers were sown in small (3-inch) boxes, or flats, as gardeners term them. The soil used was an ordinary light, sandy soil such as is generally used for starting seedlings. Two sets of flats were sown, one set for growing under electric light and one for growing by sunlight.

The experimenters reported that tulips bloomed in fourteen to eighteen days instead of three to three and one-half weeks; hyacinths in seventeen days instead of three and one-half to four weeks, and daffodils in two weeks instead of three.

The current cost was $1.80 a day. The space lighted was 91 square feet, enough to light 110 plants, worth about $165.

It was also found that X-rays could be used for treating seeds in stamping out plant diseases.

"What further steps can be taken along this line is a matter of speculation," says Samuel G. Hibben, national secretary of the Illuminating Engineering Society and manager of the Illumination Bureau of the Westinghouse Lamp Company, under whose direction these recent investigations were conducted. "It is a study that means as much to humanity, perhaps, as the study of medicine.

"At a cost of two or three cents a pot per day we may almost double the development of a flower that to the florist represents two or three dollars. By using the electric light alone faster and better growth was obtained than with daylight.

"We may see in the future a greenhouse built in a basement or entirely walled in and lighted by artificial illumination only, just as we now find art galleries so treated.

"What we can do when we know more about the effects of colors on plants, and so forth, is only a guess. If our test results can be duplicated commercially on a large scale, we can safely say that we are on the threshold of one of the greatest steps in horticulture that has been taken in modern times.

"In a general way we have known that artificial light influences the growth and flowering of certain plants, but no well organized research work has been done until recently to prove whether the application of electric light was commercially feasible as a means of supplementing daylight. We now know that this stimulation of growth does not necessarily require the same intensity of light as daylight, nor does it seem necessary to reproduce exactly the color qualities of daylight. We know furthermore that plants must rest, and that the application of artificial light is advisable over only carefully chosen hours when daylight is inadequate.

"What this development means to the agriculturist is hard to predict. It seems, however, to promise a means of doubling the speed of development of many species, and bids fair to enable the horticulturist to bring his flowers into bloom at the time when their market is at its best. This has all been made possible by the perfection of flexible and cheap sources of light, and in it are contained advantages that seem as tremendous in their benefits to humanity and as far reaching in their scope as anything which has happened since Luther Burbank developed the Shasta daisy or spineless cactus."

How Sun Spots Are Robbing Sea of Its Gold

AS most people are aware, gold is held in solution in sea water. Many attempts have been made to extract this valuable metal from the ocean but so far the operations have cost more than the ultimate product is worth. It is estimated that a barrel of salt water contains only a few cents worth of gold. If the cost of salvaging gold in this way can be brought down to a cost of 10 cents per barrel, then the business will be a paying one.

There are many more or less "wild" schemes for extracting gold from the sea water but none are commercially practical. An ingenious process invented by a Belgian is described in the Path Finder as follows: A ton of sea water is treated with about five cubic centimeters of concentrated aqueous stannous chloride. This converts the gold into purple of Cassius and, with the addition of a pound of slaked lime, precipitates it together with magnesium hydrate and excess tin. From this the gold is extracted with dilute potassium cyanide solution and isolated by any of the methods commonly used in the cyanide process.

Certain English chemists assert that the quantity of gold in sea water has been reduced in late years by the action of the sun spots from one grain to one-thousandth part of a grain per ton of water. The radio-activity accompanying sun-spot periods is blamed. A report on the subject concludes: "Though gold has been actually recovered from sea water at considerable cost, its extraction is now still less a paying commercial proposition."

How CHINESE Built Up Great INDUSTRY in HAIR NETS

PERHAPS no Chinese infant industry has had a more phenomenal growth than that of making hairnets, which now gives employment to thousands who are providing these articles for millions of women in America and Europe.

Although the industry was introduced in China by the Germans only 15 years ago, in 1920 more than 140,000,000 hairnets were shipped to America from a single Chinese city, and the total annual exports of this product are valued at more than $10,000,000.

How the nets are made by hand, for which the workers receive about one cent each for making them, is described in National Geographic Magazine by H. W. Robinson. The average person can hardly make ten a day.

There are three important factors that have made the hairnet industry almost exclusive to North China: first, a large supply of hair is found there; second, cheap labor is plentiful, and third, the industry requires no machinery and can be carried on in the home.

Probably no other land has a more distinctive national peculiarity than the Chinese pigtail, and, like so many other social customs, it persists long after the cause for which it stood. The revolutionists of 1911 tried to do away with it and ordered that all queues be cut off. Those who objected were in danger of losing head as well as pigtail, and the queues provided a handy means of suspending the heads along the city streets as an effective suggestion that the revolutionists meant business. In most places of North China, however, the raising of hair continues, and no other region can well compete with this in providing raw material for hairnets. It is claimed that Chinese hair is especially suited for hairnets because it is stronger than the fine hair of European women, and therefore stands bleaching and dyeing much better.

Chinese women do not patronize the barbers, but comb their own hair at home. Nothing is wasted, however; the combings are saved from day to day and, when a sufficient quantity is collected, it is sold or exchanged for small household articles. In some places vendors travel from house to house, calling out, "Needles, thread, and matches exchanged for hair combings."

This raw hair is sold very cheaply, and, when girls are learning to make nets, is used for practice purposes.

Enough hair can be purchased for 50 cents to last a class of 60 or 75 girls a month, while they are learning to make nets. As soon as they are able to make salable nets, they use prepared hair, which costs as much as several dollars a pound, depending on length and other qualities. A pound of hair will make over 2,000 nets, for a whole gross of hairnets weigh only about one ounce.

The processes of bleaching and dyeing the hair are the most difficult parts of the hairnet industry. All the raw hair was formerly shipped from China to Europe or America, where it was bleached and dyed by experts, and then sent back to China for manufacture. But as the industry has developed, the preparation of the hair has also been transferred in great part to China. Probably nine-tenths of the hairnets exported from China at present are made from hair that has been prepared in that country. Chinese firms are undertaking this work, but as they have not yet mastered the scientific processes, their product is somewhat impaired by crude methods and careless treatment. At least one American firm has already completed arrangements to prepare its own hair in China under the supervision of expert American chemists.

A single net requires the tying of a thousand knots or more, but if a girl is clever she can make as high as twenty coppers a day; and, as she can live on much less than that, she often not only supports herself, but helps other members of the family as well.

The girls work in their own homes, where they have always been secluded. The only tools needed are a small brass shuttle and a bamboo splint. On a nail driven into a table or chair the first loop of the net is fastened. The hair is wound into the shuttle, like thread into a bobbin, and as each new loop is tied it is slipped onto the bamboo splint like a stitch on a knitting needle. Thus, with shuttle in one hand and bamboo splint in the other, the maker adds knot to knot and loop to loop until the net is completed.

Then the nets are tied together in bunches of one gross each. For this a piece of board, into which nails have been driven, is provided, and the loops on the edge of the net are slipped over the nails until a pile of 144 nets is made. They are then tied with thread and are ready for the agent when he comes to collect, pay for making and to leave more hair.

Wearing the "Porcupine's Pajamas" to Make War on Wolves

CONVERTING himself into a human cactus by wearing the "porcupine's pajamas," which consist of a suit of cowhide studded with steel spikes one inch long, Stanley Carlson, of St. Paul, Minn., better known as the "Canadian Cactus," has gone to the Canadian north woods to engage in mortal combat with hungry timber wolves.

The specially made suit Carlson wears is of cowhide an eighth of an inch thick. It is studded with 1200 one-inch steel spikes, riveted to the suit and sharpened at the ends. The sleeves end in spiked gloves and his shoes are protected by spiked spats. A spiked helmet and a baseball mask are locked onto a steel collar. Thus arrayed he presents the formidable appearance of a giant cactus or a bristling porcupine.

North of Port Arthur, Carlson says, the wolves are "bold and bad." They usually travel in packs of from 10 to 30, and if one pack lands a victim the howls and smell of blood may increase the pack to 100 before daybreak. They are black on their backs, gray on the sides and have long, glittering white fangs with which they tear away the flesh of their victims. Some of them are four feet high and six feet from nose to tail-tip.

From the bounty paid by Canada and sale of the pelt, Carlson says he can make $32 on each wolf he kills. He will not use a gun as he says the noise drives the wolves away, but he will hurl himself into the snarling pack and cut them down with knife and ax, as they attempt to make a meal of him by biting through his bristling suit.

Human Traits in Animals

ANIMALS are very much like man, who half admits it when he describes himself in terms that come from animals. A man is said to have "horse sense," he is a "fox," or he betrays "dog devotion."

The busybodies of the animal world are the goats, according to M. Derieux in his book, "Animal Personalities." He tells of three who lived in the neighborhood of a new factory. Every morning they were on the spot long before the workmen, poking their heads inside the doors and windows.

Horses are man's noblest of animal conquests, but they have lost their intelligence, for their association with man has destroyed their initiative.

Analyzing a Stomach 52,000 Years Old

Scientists say that the beast died in August because they found in its stomach several partly masticated flowers that bloom only at that time. "The Beresovka mammoth" is one of the few unspoiled specimens of prehistoric animal life.

SURROUNDED by so many larger objects which attract the eye, a small test tube and panel on exhibition in the National Museum at Washington do not command as much attention from visitors as they should. Though insignificant in size and appearance, these small objects constitute one of the most wonderful exhibits of the age. They contain some of the hair, muscular tissue, fat, blood, and stomach contents of a giant mammoth which died 50,000 years before the birth of Christ.

A Test Tube and Panel Containing the Hair, Muscular Tissue, Fat, Blood and Stomach of a Prehistoric Mammoth That Died 52,000 Years Ago.

A few years ago a party of Russian explorers dug into an ice bank on the Beresovka river in Siberia and there unearthed the remains of an extinct animal in a remarkable state of preservation. The skin was so perfect that it was easily removed. Some of the hair measured 30 inches. The stubby tail was intact. Analysis of the stomach contents showed grass and flowers of the same types that grow in northeastern Siberia to-day.

Locating the Internal Organs of the Body

THE average man has little idea of just where in his interior such organs as the stomach, liver and intenstines are located. Indeed, physicians themselves, although quite definite regarding the location o fthese organs as observed in bodies after death and as determined by methods of scientific observation, such as are applied in the diagnosis of disease, had not available any series of studies on a large number of normal, healthy persons.

Such a study has now been provided by Drs. R. O. Moody, R. S. Van Nys and W. E. Chamberlain on 600 healthy students in the University of California. In these studies, the X-ray and other accurate methods of observations were used. The California investigators claim that the normal position of the stomach is lower than has been generally believed to be the case. They found, according to Hygeia, that in 80 per cent of healthy persons the stomach is long and reaches from one to three inches below a line which might be drawn around the body over the tops of the bones of the hips. When the stomach lies in this position, which is apparently low, the patient seldom or ever suffers from any stomach or intestinal disturbance. In the same way, the investigators determined the position of the liver and intestines, and as a result are convinced that it is impossible to change the positions of these organs by any system of diet, rest or exercise.

The Modern Mania for Ancient Glass

There is an industrial distance of five thousand years between that gourd and the modern drinking glass.

The modern mania for old glass is based on a splendid romance of industry. The blow-pipe used in the making of glass was devised in Egypt five thousand years ago. Pliny tells how sea sand and carbonate of soda and blow-pipe heat gave us glass.

More glass is broken in a day now than the ancient Phoenicians made in a century. The Romans and the Greeks ran to pottery wares. So did the people of Gaul. The Saxons and the Angles used pottery, plates and cups made of wood or stone or metal. The Italian Renaissance gave northern Europe, a little later, its wonderful sets of silver and gold plate.

Until the Revolution, most glassware was imported from northern Europe. That was the heyday of glassmaking. The Georgian glasses, the wine and oil decanters of Hanover and Bohemia and Venice, the quaint salt cellars, pepper boxes, and sugar basins, that now bring such extravagant prices were the product of a painstaking period.

Glassware is now made in vast quantities. According to the National Foreign Trade Council, there are some ten thousand establishments in this billion dollar industry, and some dozen million dollars' worth of glass containers, bottles, tableware, lamp chimneys, window and other glass are now exported.

CANADA ACCEPTS BRITAIN'S PACT ON RUM RUNNING

Treaty With United States On Extension of Three-Mile Limit to Twelve Concerns Whole Empire And Was Signed By the British Ambassador On Behalf of All.

RATIFIED BY KING

Ottawa, March 22. — Canadian Press. — The House of Commons on Friday afternoon passed a resolution moved by Premier King, approving of the rum-running treaty concluded between the United States and Great Britain.

Premier King asked parliament to approve the treaty on the ground of morality, international good will and commercial benefit. The Canadian government, said the Premier, had approved the treaty subject to approval by the Canadian parliament, and had asked that where a board was appointed to consider the question of compensation to a Canadian vessel, the representatives of the Empire on the board should be nominated by Canada. To this the British Government had agreed.

George Black, Conservative member for the Yukon, characterized as "unfriendly" the refusal of the United States to permit shipment of liquor in bond across United States territory via Skayway to the Yukon. He suggested that approval of the treaty be delayed till the situation was cleared up.

Premier King replied that the Yukon situation was being carefully considered and the House passed the motion approving the treaty.

Affects Empire.

The Premier said that the practice followed in regard to the signature of the present treaty was in accord with that set out in the agreement reached at the Imperial conference. It differed from that followed in regard to the halibut treaty, because the halibut treaty concerned Canada alone and was for that reason signed by a representative of Canada alone. In this case the treaty concerned other parts of the Empire and was therfore signed by the British ambassador on behalf of all parts of the empire. The same procedure had been followed by Australia, New Zealand and the Irish Free State. Ratification was the act of the Sovereign and did not necessarily imply act by parliament, but it had been thought well by the Canadian and by the British governments that the approval of parliament should be secured.

International Good Will.

The Premier asked Parliament to approve the treaty on the grounds of morality, of international good-will, and of commercial benefit.

Right. Hon. Arthur Meighen, the leader of the opposition, asked if the treaty would fail of its effects if one of the parliaments of the empire failed to approve it.

Premier King replied that he assumed if such a situation arose, the British government would re-consider the phraseology of the treaty and relieve the country, which had failed to approve the agreement, of responsibility under its terms. He thought however that such a case was not likely to arise.

Who Made Decision.

Mr. Meighen then put two further questions. In the first place, he asked, how was it determined whether a given treaty was the concern of one part of the empire alone or of several parts? In the second place upon whose recommendation did his Majesty act in authorizing the signature of the treaty which concerned one or more parts of the Empire?

The premier replied to the first of Mr. Meighen's questions by saying that the question would naturally be settled in the course of negotiations and in conferences between the different governments of the empire. No hard and fast line could be laid down but common sense would govern.

To the second question Mr. King replied that the responsibility for the recommendation rested with the Dominoin government concerned. The British government merely acted as a channel through which advice was transmitted to His Majesty.

HOME TREATMENT SAFE AND EFFICIENT

Ailing People Made Strong By Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do one thing, and do it well. They build up the blood, increasing the number of red corpuscles. As this is done the blood becomes a richer red and is able to carry more oxygen, the great supporter of human life. As the blood improves in quality the tissues of the body are better nourished and the functions of the body are better performed. This is the reason Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been so successful in the treatment of diseases due to poor, thin blood, and it is also the reason why they are so successful in building up strength after fevers and acute diseases. Among those who have used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with great advantage is Mrs. Helena B. Taylor, Hanover, Ont., who says: "Not long ago I was critically ill. The trouble started with anaemia and a run-down system, and ended with pleurisy. I was confined to my bed for three months and three doctors were in attendance at different times. My life was despaired of, and I was practically living on doctors' medicine, because I could not eat. My friends did not expect me to recover. During my girlhood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had brought me through a severe attack of anaemia, and my mother urged that I should try them again. The doctor could not understand why we wanted to try these pills, but we decided to do so. After taking six boxes a decided change was taking place. I was actually getting hungry and anxious to live. After using twelve boxes a miracle was worked. I could walk and felt my strength coming back, and people on all sides were asking what was helping me, and we were not slow in telling them it was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. With my health fully restored through the use of these pills I am a striking example of what this wonderful medicine can do, and now I never see a pale or sickly-looking girl or woman that I do not feel like going up to her and asking why she does not take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

REBELS ATTACKED BRITISH SOLDIERS

Turned Machine Gun on Troops, Killing One and Wounding More Than a Score of Others.

DUBLIN, March 22.—(United Press).—Relentless search was under way throughout Ireland today for the four men who attacked a party of British soldiers on a pier at Queenstown, killing one and wounding more than a score of them.

The attackers, driving a fast motor car, used a machine gun which mowed through the closely packed British troops with a devastating effect.

Although the assassins were dressed in the uniforms of officer of the Irish Free State army, it is denied that they were members of the government's military establishment.

The Free State military headquarters in Cork have issued a statement declaring the assassins undoubtedly were irregulars, who had resumed their guerrilla tactics following the mutiny of many army officers and troops, because of the governments military reorganization program. Free State police, military and secret agents are searching Queenstown, Cork and surrounding territory for the assassins, but early this afternoon no trace of them had been found and no arrests had been made.

The attack has aroused intense excitement throughout the Nation and the Press is unanimous in urging the government to leave no stone unturned to capture the marauders.

Under the heading "The Queenstown disgrace," the Freeman's Journal describes the attack as a "diabolical outrage," urging the whole nation to support the Government in whatever drastic measures may be deemed necessary

CARMANIA GROUNDED BUT WAS SAFELY REFLOATED TO-DAY

LIVERPOOL, March 22.—(United Press).—The Cunard liner Carmania has gone aground on Askew Spit at the entrance to the River Mersey, and has sent a wireless call for help.

Six tugs are doing their utmost to refloat the big ship. The Cunard Line says the vessel has no passengers aboard, as she was returning from Glasgow, where she had been reconditioned.

The Carmania was refloated at noon.

SLEIGH DRIVE SEASON ENDING

JANETVILLE, Mar. 22.—On Friday evening the Tuxis department of the Y. P. S., of Janetville, made their last sleighing trip to Valentia, which lies on the west side of Scugog Lake. The party consisted of the Dramatic Club and others, and the object was to give a demonstration of Tuxis boys' work in the Valentia League, and also render a popular play. The youngsters spent a most enjoyable evening, and it is reported that their visit to Valentia was of great value to the young folks across the lake as well as an equal pleasure to themselves.

St. Patrick's Concert

On Monday evening the Ladies' Aid of Janetville put on a concert and box social in the Foresters' Hall, which proved very successful. The night was ideal and the roads were excellent. The following is part of the programme, which delighted the audience: Rev. G. E. Ross occupied the chair, and the first number called for was a male chorus, rendered by the Messrs. Stinson, Kaywood and Thornton; the number received a hearty encore. A solo by little Miss Hannah then followed, after which Rev. M. Ross gave a brief historical sketch of St. Patrick, which was very complimentary to the Presbyterian Church. The address was followed by a most interesting reading rendered by Mrs. John Bradburn in her popular style. A dialogue was next, entitled, "Why Mrs. Gaskell Did Not Hire a Cook." The duet by Messrs. Thornton and Stinson was well received. Mr. Kawood, our esteemed school teacher from the fourteenth, rendered a solo with great acceptance. Rev. Mr. Walker spoke briefly and said some very kind words of a complimentary character. Another dialogue entitled, "Keep on the Right Side" was acted by Miss Bone, teacher of the Continuation School, Miss Richardson, teacher of Janetville North, and Miss Gray, of Millbrook, teacher of South Janetville Public School. Rev. and Mrs. Ross then sang, "River Shannon Moon," and as an encore, "The Shamrock of Ireland," in real Irish brogue. The programme was followed by a box social, a uniform price being placed on all baskets.

Mission Band Entertainment

One of the finest entertainments held during the year took place in the Sunday school room of the church. Miss Howe had charge of the literary part of the programme, while Mrs. Rev. Ross superintended the musical department. The chair was occupied by the pastor, and the programme which he called was a most interesting and enjoyable one.

After the programme a pie social was held, which was very much appreciated by all.

Personals

Mr. Ben. Magill, who has been visiting friends here for six months, has returned to the city of Peterboro.

Mr. John Magee and Mr. E. Hannah have installed a radio at each of their homes, but that will not keep them from attending church services.

Mr. W. W. Stinson, Mrs. T. Stinson, Mrs. J. W. Irvin and Mrs. E. Bradburn are all confined to the house with illness.

Mrs. (Rev.) Ross is preparing to go to Saskatchewan, where she will spend the summer with her daughter, Mrs. Dr. Mollard.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.
To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get 16 ounces—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.
Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.
To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

ESCAPED BANDIT AGAIN IN TOILS

Camilleri Shot His Way to Freedom a Month Ago.

MARSEILLES, France, March 22.—(United Press).—Love of a woman lead to the re-arrest of Paul Camilleri, member of the gang which carried out the famous Shattack jewel robbery in New York in 1922.

Detectives who had been shadowing the man's sweetheart for weeks, pounced on the international bandit here last night, just as he was meeting her.

Camilleri fought savagely but was overpowered. "It is always women," he said, as police led him to the station. "I could have escaped easily if I had not waited to see the girl," he said. "My plans were all made to go to South America, but I wanted to see her just once again. I love her and I couldn't leave without seeing her."

Camilleri and a fellow prisoner shot their way to freedom from the jail here last month, firing over the heads of the guards and dashing out an entrance.

Papering now costs less
YOU know that time means money in paper-hanging — that time, in fact, is the most expensive part of the job.
But do you know that the cost of papering has now been considerably reduced by the production of Staunton Semi-Trimmed Wallpaper—that this new paper simplifies the job throughout.
It eliminates all trimming! Its selvage is cut in course of manufacture. All you have to do is rap the ends of the roll on table or floor and the selvage falls off. You can realize what a big saving in time that means.
But Staunton Semi-Trimmed Wallpaper is also quicker to hang. Being perfectly trimmed, it is easily matched. Being 22 inches in width, it takes less rolls of this paper to cover your walls and consequently less time to hang. "Semi-Trimmed" saves you money — it saves all the muss and disorder too.
SAVES TIME
A STAUNTON IMPROVEMENT

APPEAL TO FIRPO TO RECONSIDER

Told That He Belongs to the Argentine People — Deluged With Letters and Telegrams.

BUENOS AIRES, March 22. — (Canadian Press).—Forty Argentine doctors at a banquet in honor of Luis Angel Firpo appealed to him to reconsider his decision to retire from the ring. Two of the speakers told him he no longer belonged to himself, but to the Argentine people who demanded that he fulfill their wishes, go to the United States and wrest the championship of the world from Jack Dempsey.

Firpo did not reply formally, but after the banquet the doctors gathered around him, insisting that he say when he would leave for New York. Firpo seemed to have lost the power of speech. Finally he gave a negative shake of the head, and then, pointing to Hugh Hartland, his United States representative, said:

"He is sailing April 10, but I am not going with him; I am going to Europe."

The banquet was held at the Sanatorium at which Firpo's left arm was recently put under the X-ray. The fighter continues to be deluged with scores of letters and telegrams daily from all parts of South America, as well as cable messages from the United States, pleading with him to reconsider his retirement decision.

BRICKS REPLACED

oni, would not be indicted. Felder was recommended to him, Goroni, by William J. Flynn, former head of the Secret Service.

"Medicinal Purposes."

Seven thousand one hundred cases of Scotch whisky imported at Goroni's order "legitimate medicinal purposes," he said, comprised another wet spot in the story divulged to the committee. Goroni said he was offered and refused $250,000 to release his claim so that bootleggers might get the whisky. It was labelled by the Government, he said, but later released for exportation by Federal Judge Hand, under instructions from Washington.

Neither Goroni nor his lawyer, Hayes, could tell whether the directions came from the Treasury or the Justice Departments.

Goroni said he had heard and believed that despite the deportation order the whisky had been replaced by bricks and finally gotten into the bootleg channels.

The latter transaction, Goroni said, has resulted in a loss to him of $30,000 to $35,000.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, March 21.—A meeting of an outstanding character was St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here last evening. It was arranged by the session of St. Andrew's in order that the members and adherents of the church might hear both sides of the church union question discussed by outstanding speakers. It was decided that no vote was to be taken and no resolutions adopted. The pastor of the church, Rev. W. A. Bremner, presided, and there was a large attendance, the many members and adherents present showing how keen was the interest taken.

Rev. A. H. Denoon, D.D., pastor of Avenue Road Presbyterian Church, Toronto, and who has also occupied pastorals in the Canadian West, and Rev. H. P. Pritchard, of North Toronto, spoke ably in favor of church union. Their arguments, however, were emphatically refuted by Rev. J. W. MacNamara, secretary of the Presbyterian Church Association, and Rev. T. Crawford Brown, formerlypastor of new St. Andrew's, Toronto, who spoke against church union. Each speaker was allowed thirty minutes to present his side of the question and Rev. Mr. Pritchard was allowed ten minutes at the last to reply. The arguments were ably presented by both sides, and the meeting was an outstanding one in point of interest.

British Hikers

Yesterday morning about 10 a.m. the British harvesters, who had then made seventy miles of their long trek to Ottawa, were sped on their way from Cobourg eastward after partaking of a good hot breakfast supplied by the town. They were given supper upon their arrival here the evening before, and Mayor Boggs, upon having received the necessary permission from Ottawa, had them lodged at the armouries. A cash-box was presented at some stores and business places this morning and citizens responded to the invitation to contribute.

Did Not Want Work

One man, who, however, may not have represented the feelings of the company, received a suggestion that farmers were looking for man to help with the spring work on the farms, with disdain. It was evident that this did not appeal to him at least. The men all seemed to be in very good spirits as they set off upon their long hike.

Late Miss Isabella Ross

The funeral took place at Grafton on Tuesday of one of the old residents of Haldimand Township, Miss Isabella Ross, who died on Saturday in her 85th year. She was the last of her family, parents, brothers and sisters having predeceased her. Several nephews and neices survive. Rev. Mr. Moyer conducted the funeral and the interment was in St. Andrew's Presbyterian cemetery at Grafton.

NOTHING MUCH IN BEING A SENATOR

BY HARRY B. HUNT

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The log of one day's Senate oil investigation. Just a typical day in the long-drawn inquiry.

9 a.m.—Doors to the committee room unlocked. Group of early arrivals, mostly women who dote on sensations, hurry in and get front seats in the public section. Buzz of conversations, reviewing past sessions, begins.

9.30 a.m.—Room filling up. Attendants carry in more chairs. The big room, 40 by 80 feet, with high vaulted ceiling extending through two stories, takes on appearance of society ball-room in use for fashionable lecture on "Personality—How to Get It."

9.45—Dick Collins of the Senate press gallery comes in with an armful of yellow "copy" paper, which he distributes to press tables. Newspaper men begin arriving. Ed Smithers, White House telegrapher, who worked the Washington end of Ned McLean's private wire of evenings, takes a seat on a big leather couch behind the committee table.

With him is "Pat" McKenna, stocky, round-faced door-keeper at the White House, who wired McLean Secretary Slemp was leaving for Palm Beach. Room now crowded. Standing room only.

9.57—Senator Ladd, rotund acting chairman, enters from private anteroom, seats self at table. Walsh comes briskly in, followed by Dill of Washington. Portentous pause as committeemen arrange their papers and the hands of the clock approach 10 a.m.—the hour set for the hearing.

10 o'clock—Senator Walsh announces that inasmuch as the members wish to read over some telegrams not previously studied, the committee will go into executive session. The room must therefore be cleared.

10 to 10.10—Indignant but private-voiced protests among the early arrivals at having to give up their choice seats. Wonder if they will be able to get back in. Try to leave wraps on chairs so as to hold them for their return, but policemen insist all wraps and belongings must accompany owners outside.

10.10 to 10.15—Crowd blocking corridors outside wonders why it wouldn't have been simpler for the three members of the committee to have withdrawn to private office rather than drive 200 spectators from committee room. Decide maybe committee couldnt' legally hold a committee meeting except in a committee room. Decide senatorial dignity required the procedure followed. Curse senatorial dignity.

10.30—Senator Smoot enter committee room.

10.35—Senator Smoot leaves committee room.

11.20—Doors opened again. Frantic rush inside. Late comers get good seats, early arrivals crowded to rear or find standing room only. Senator Walsh puts on nose glasses. Senator Ladd raps for order. John Major, "confidential" man for Ned McLean called to stand.

Major tells about telegrams he sent McLean and telegrams McLean sent him. He indentifies code messages. Says he never used Department of Justice code. Had one of his own which he worked up, supplying McLean with duplicate. No. Didn't have it now. Had destroyed it. Destroyed McLean's copy, too. Had made another code which was effective until March 15. Wouldn't be good much longer—would have to make up another one.

"How many codes did McLean use?" Walsh asks.

"That makes me laugh," answers Major. "The 'menagerie' code hasn't come out here. That indentified individuals as 'The Lion,' 'The Bear,' 'The Walrus,' etc."

"And there was the one about 'Apples,' 'Peaches,' 'Cherries' and 'Prunes,' suggested Walsh.

"Session adjourned till 10 o'clock tomorrow," says Senator Ladd, speaking for the first time.

MEXICO'S TRAINS ARE NOW GUARDED.

Rebels Have Threatened to Dynamite Passenger Trains.

BY BOB DORMAN

MEXICO CITY, March 22.—Passenger trains run in Mexico—but they run, guarded by troop trains.

When I came here from Vera Cruz, I secured permission to ride the "tren explorador" (explorer train), as it is called.

The rebels have been burning freight trains. They threaten to dynamite the passenger trains.

The gondolas have had their sides built higher and another box-like structure placed inside. Between the walls they are filled with sand, making a bullet-proof fort. The sides are loop-holed for rifles.

Two hundred men are on guard.

Guards Sang On

We left the station, followed quickly by the passenger, to the rear of which was also attached another gondola fort with 50 soldiers.

The captain in charge of the train guard invited me to ride on the caboose with him, whence we could have a good view of the county.

I couldn't help wondering just how many rebels were concealed in that brush, waiting to open fire.

But the cptain didn't worry. Nor did his soldiers, for from the depths of the moving fortress there rose the notes of the latest song—"Yes, We Have No Bananas."

A kilometer is supposed to be maintained between the explorer train and the passenger. But evidently the engineer of the passenger was a little nervous. For he kept the nose of his engine about 200 feet back of the first train.

Blown Up Next Day

Our engineer seemed to have no fear. At a good speed he swung around curves and dashed into the many tunnels that are found between Vera Cruz and Mexico.

A small band of mounted men appear in the distance. Our captain shouts an order. His men leap to their loopholes. But it is only a patrol of federal soldiers.

The top of that caboose has less appeal than ever to me, but I have to stay there with that captain. What a fine target we are.

Three freight trains are passed, their fire-scarred wreckage all that remains to show the fate that comes to the train that ventures into this territory without armed protection. The rebels first dynamited them, then looted and burned them.

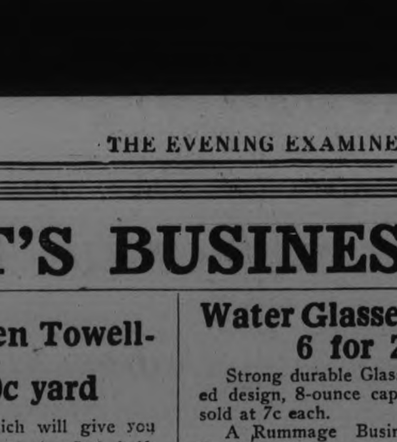
The passenger trains still run in Mexico—but at a terrific expense to a government that is already deeply in debt, and plunging ever deeper.

Word has just reached me that the train that left Vera Cruz just 24 hours after our pulled out has been dynamited. The soldiers on the escort train were killed. And all the passengers were robbed.

I'm thanking my lucky stars I didn't stay in Vera Cruz another day.

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.



The New York Stock Exchange has two outstanding rules which protect the average investor. The bucket shops, on the other, break both of them..

Any member of the stock exchange who permits a client to carry a narrow margin is likely to be suspended for one year. Even though a broad margin is advantageous to the customer, the uninitiated investor will usually balk at it. The bucket shop realizes this and always offers an alluring narrow margin which is sure to involve the customer in a total loss sooner or later.

Secondly, the exchange censors its advertising so much that it has been criticized as being conservative so as to be unattractive. Compare this with the extravagant promises of the get-rich-quick artist.

The advertising and margin requirements of brokers are pretty good tests to determine whether or not they are bucketing

BELL TELEPHONE BANQUET

The annual banquet of the local plant council of the Bell Telephone Company, held last evening in the Empress Hotel, was a great success. The chair was occupied by Mr. C. Thornton, president of the plant council. He described briefly the plant council, and said that it formed a connecting link between the employers and the employees and it has proved very successful. Since it had been formed the employees have taken more interest in their work and in the company than before. The public have also benefited by it.

Mr. A. A. Smith of the local branch, in proposing a toast to the guests, hoped that they would be present at next year's banquet. He was glad to note that every department of the plant was represented, and said he wanted the guests to look on this banquet as their own, and to use it as their own.

J. W. Fraser, president of the Chamber of Commerce, replying to the toast, congratulated the employers and the employees on getting together, and having such a splendid banquet. He said that 50 years ago electricity was only a dream, and that when it was first discovered people looked upon it as a mystery. Of the many electrical wonders the telephone is one of the most important.

F. Francis, of the Toronto branch of the Bell Telephone Company, in a short address of congratulation to the Peterboro branch, said that he considered it a great pleasure to be present at the Peterboro banquet, and that he hoped he would be one of the guests next year.

A. L. Dyke, supervisor of Equipment, Montreal, gave a very striking address on the good that resulted from such a gathering. He said he was glad to be present, and was very glad to see so many others present.

In a short talk on some of the conditions of the local branch in the past and at present, W. Stocker said that in 1884 the Bell Telephone Company here was managed by H. Kent, who had for his staff two operators, and an office boy. Since then the company has expanded, and it now employs about 80 persons. He said to-day the staff gave the best of service, and that he had greatly benefited by the Bell Telephone in his business.

Chairman C. Thornton then read letters from L. B. McFarlane, president of the company, Dr. A. W. McPherson, O. A. Stanton and Leon Fraser, who could not attend the banquet but who wished the Peterboro branch the best of success, and a pleasant evening.

G. O. Cameron, editor of the Blue Bell, and former manager of the Peterboro branch of the Belle Telephone Company, gave the toast to the King. He said that he was an old resident of Peterboro, and he was proud of it. He said he had been in Montreal for three years, but he has not yet got through telling the people about Peterboro, and he wished he was back here again. He said the progress of a city depends on its public service, and he knew of no city with as good a public service as Peterboro. This city should be proud of its public service.

Mr. Cameron said he was proud to say that practically every man in the room who drew a salary from the Bell Telephone Company was a shareholder in that company, and the result of this is a better all round service for the public.

Mayor J. J. Turner replying to the toast said he was pleased to see so many present. He said the citizens of Peterboro enjoyed the public telephone service very much and no one knew how valuable the telephone is until it is cut off. His worship said the city was something to be proud of. The Mayor thanked the Bell Telephone Company for inviting him to their banquet and said he hoped the employees would all put their heart and soul in the work they are doing, no matter if it is the lowest paid job in the company, as there is always an opening at the top of the ladder for the worthy and ambitious employee.

A toast to "Our Patrons" was proposed by J. McHardy, manager of the local branch of the Bell Telephone Company. He said that in the past it was customary for the patrons to call up with a chip on their shoulder and if the least mishap took place he was ready to put in his complaint but to-day the complaints are very few. The people so-day co-operate with them as they know the telephone is one of the main factors in their business and they have found out that the Bell Telephone Company is as much their's as anybody else's.

W. A. Richardson, representing the Peterborough branch of the Manufacturers' Association, replied to the toast to the patrons and said that in his opinion the plant council was a very splendid idea and that it helped the men to take a greater interest in the plant. Co-operation between the employer and the employee will furnish both with more enjoyment and better results.

The toast to "Our Company" was proposed by Mr. G. J. Jackson. He said that perhaps there was no company so generally known as the Bell Telephone and that the employees in no other company were given the privileges that the men working for this concern get. He said he was proud of the company and he hoped it would still continue to prosper in the future as in the past.

A. T. Smith Division Manager, in his reply to the toast said that in 1880 when the company was first formed there were less than 1,000 telephones and that the receipts were about $25,000, while in 1923 the receipts went over $20,000,000. The speaker said the future of the company is dependent upon the young men of the business and that they should look forward to the time when they will hold a high position in the concern. Mr. Smith said he was a Peterborough Old Boy and that he had a great respect for Peterborough and he would like to be back here again..

W. H. Winter, General Plant Manager said if the Company was not the best it was one of the best. In 1880 the plant investment was $180,000 while to-day it is close to $80,000,000, and in the last seven years it has doubled its stations. He said that within three weeks the Bell Company of Canada will have reached the half million mark and that in 5 years' time he expected to see the total number of phones in Canada in the neighborhood of three-quarter of a million. The Company engages over 13,000 persons and this means that at least 25,000 people in Ontario and Quebec depend on this Company for their living. He said the watchword of the Company was economy and that the success of each individual depends on himself.

The toast to "Our Division," was proposed by E. W. Watson and replied to by J. H. Martin, Division Plant Manager, Mr. Watson stated that it is the one great ambition of this division to make it the best and that through co-operation, team play and criticism from the elders they hope to make it so.

J. H. Martin in his reply congratulated the division on the good showing they had made in the past and hoped that they would have the best of success in the future. He said in the Central Division there were 612 employees and out of these 442 were shareholders in the company. He said that a cable between Toronto and Hamilton was now being laid which is 42 miles long, 31 miles aerial and 11 underground. The coast of this when it is finished will be about $800,000.

A. G. Watson, Division Traffic Superintendent, said he feels that they are delivering the goods and by co-operation and hard work, good results are being obtained.

A toast to the ladies of the operating staff was proposed by H. Cooke. Mr. Cooke said a telephone girl must be very quick and obliging and this was the kind of girls that were employed in Peterborough. He said the work they have done in the past has been of the highest standard and that they deserved a great deal of credit for it.

J. W. Feighen, District Traffic Superintendent, also expressed his opinion of the girls of the local staff. He said they were of the highest type obtainable and gave excellent service. The local operators have and will do everything possible to meet the demands of the public Vocal solos were given by H. M. Niven, E. W. Watson, V. Morphet, D. M. Melton and J. W. Feighen.

DEATH TOLL GROWS IN IRISH SHOOTING

Wounded Soldier Died and Others Despaired of -- Tobin Denounces Crime,

LONDON, March 22.—(Canadian Press).—Latest reports to the war office from Queenstown received shortly after noon to-day give the casualties in yesterday's shooting as follows:

One officer seriously wounded; one private dead of wounds; eight dengerously wounded and six others seriously wounded; three privates slightly wounded and five civilians, including two women, wounded

Dispatches from Queenstown this morning stated that one of the other wounded men had died, making two dead and that another of the wounded had to have his leg amputated.

The condition of this victim and of several others is so bad it is feared they will die. Al newspapers characterize the affair as a disgrace to the Irish name but no suggestion is made as to the faction to which perpetrators belong. The fact that the men who did the firing wore the uniform of Free State Army officers is not considered to prove anything as it has been a frequent practice for wrong doers to wear a stolen uniform. The Free State Government will compensate all wounded and the relatives of the dead.

Tobin Denounces Crime

General Tobin to-day sent a letter to the newspapers denouncing the Queenstown crime and reported connection of his name with it. The letter read: 'I hasten to disclaim any responsibility for the cowardly act reported from Queenstown. (Signed) Liam Tobin, Major General."

REWARD OFFERED

A reward of ten thousand pounds has been offered by the Free State Government for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons concerned in the shooting of British soldiers at Queenstown yesterday.

Searches are in progress throughout the county of Cork to apprehend those responsible.

General Liam Tobin leader of the mutinous army officers, this afternoon issued a statement on behalf of the mutineers, saying: 'We disclaim any responsibility for the cowardly act in Queenstown." The reason for the attack is still not clear. There has been great unrest, however, since the decision of the Government a week ago to reduce the army from 50,000 to 18,000 and to demobilize nearly 1,000 officers. Scores of officers headed by General Tobin and Colonel Dalton, mutineered and many soldiers deserted their barracks.

WOMAN PENETRATED TO SENUSSI WILDS

TORONTO, March 22.—(Canadian Press). — "A feminist country, this land of Senussi certainly is not," said Rosita Forbes, in her absorbing recital here last evening. "When man strikes his brother he is fined about $2.50. Let the wife maltreat her husband and she will be slowly strangled."

An amazing picture of this perilous and almost unbelievable journey from Jedabia, in Northern Africa, to Kufara Oases, in Southern Sahara, was given in Mrs. Forbes' fascinating and inimitable style. A valuable and interesting collection of her own snapshots were thrown on the screen.

Speaking of Senussi, she stressed the fact that theirs was a life without pleasure. The daily round was sleeping, eating and fighting, but mostly praying. In their colleges this stern doctrine was instilled into young boys who went away flaming with missionary zeal to spread it abroad.

Through many weeks of their perilous journey southward they were regarded with grave suspicion by practically all tribes which they met. In order to be able to undertake the trip Mrs. Forbes had to adopt the complete disguise of a Bedouin widow travelling with a band of Moslems. In the matter of this disguise mere costume was only one consideration. To successfully play the part she had to sleep, eat and almost think like an Arabian woman.

FINANCIERS SHOULD NOT BE ALLOWED TO CONTROL EDUCATION

J. S. Woodsworth, Labor Member, Says Financial Monopoly Has Strangle Hold on the Country.

OTTAWA, March 22.—(Canadian Press).—Demanding that Labor organize for independent political action and alleging that the financial monopoly has "a strangle hold on the social, religious and educational life of the country," J. S. Woodsworth, Labor member of Parliament for Centre Winnipeg, in a speech to the Trades and Labor Council last night, asserted that financial men have the power of reducing the dollar to ten cents. It was a serious thing that Principals of the Canadian universities should also be bank directors, he said, referring to the charge that the financial powers controlled the educational life of Canada. Canada's greatest educational systems were dominated by the same people of Canada who control the industrial and financial life of the country, Mr. Woodsworth asserted.

PLAN PROPOSED TO REDUCE HIGH FARES FOR TAXI HIRE IN DUBLIN

DUBLIN, March 22 (Associated Press).—Dublin has no taxi cabs plying for hire in its streets. The combination of jarveys has always succeeded in preventing the competition of taxis which can only be hired by private contract. The taxi owners can thus fix their own fares, and they have fixed a minimum of five shillings, however short the distance. It is now proposed to register the taxis as hackney cars and have the commissioner of police fix the fares.

The rate suggested is one shilling and sixpence for the first mile in the day time and three pence for each additional one-fifth of a mile. The night charge to be fifty percent higher.

FRANCE EXPORTS 28,261 AUTOS

PARIS, March 22 (Associated Press).—During 1923 there were exported from France 28,261 motor cars valued at 730,337,000 francs, and there were imported 8,400 cars for which French buyers had to pay 577,775,000 francs.

The higher value relatively of the imported over the exported automobiles was due to the value of the franc as compared to the dollar and sterling. Most of the imported cars came from the United States and England.

LON CHANEY STAR OF "HUNCHBACK" HAD HARD STRUGGLE FOR SUCCESS

Now Famous Player Had Long, Hard Time Before He Made His Name—Plays Greatest Role in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

When the average writer receives an assignment from his editor to go forth and interview he pats himself on the back and knows that the task is going to be easy because who ever heard of an actor that did not relish publicity and was not willing to talk for hours for the edification of the reporter. But the writer recently received a shock when he sallied forth to talk to Lon Chaney.

"In the first place it took me days and days of phoning and tearing around to corner Lon Chaney. Accustomed to all kinds of cooperation from actors Chaney's disinclination to be interviewed only served to intrigue me all the more. I finally, after spending four mornings hanging around the set where he was making 'The Shock' wheedled from him bit by bit the story of his life.

"Chaney's rise to stardom has been a dominant struggle against tremendous handicaps, the kind of a story that has grit and stamina in every line of it. Chaney contends that there is nothing extraordinary in his life, that it's simply been a hard life. He will talk of mens' things, of prize fights, races, business men's and fellows artists' success, but of Lon Chaney's early struggles he shows the voracity of a clam. Therefore, it was with a feeling of victory that I finally elicited the following facts.

"I've fought—fought—fought—for everything that is mine', said Chaney. 'I starved, I labored and I hungered for the glad hand, for the companionship, that speeds so many fellows on their way to success. I've often wondered when things seemed blackest, why I kept on, why I shouldn't give up and drift like I saw many others doing. But there was something in me that wouldn't let me stop.'

"Chaney spoke with the utmost sincerity. Not handsome, of a somewhat sombre nature, his face is stern even in repose, and his words carry conviction because of the utter lack of affectation. He continued his story.

"My parents were deaf-mutes, but perfectly normal in every other way and possessed a perfectly splendid mind. So, as a child, I learned to express every wish with my facial muscles. I could talk with my fingers before I could speak, but as I grew older, I found that it was unnecessary, as we could converse with our faces, with our eyes. Those early years of pantomine are responsible for whatever skill I have at present.

"When I was eighteen I landed a job as stage hand in a Colorado Springs theatre. Later I was a combination stage hand, chorus man and wardrobe mistress, yes, mistress, all for the stupendous sum of $14 a week. I was forced to suport my parents and brother and sister.

"I played in comic opera when I wanted to do tragic opera. I danced in "The Time, the place and the Girl," "The Royal Chef" and other operas. Nine years ago I went into pictures. My first part was the heavy in "Hell Morgan's Girl." I had no one to teach me to make up. I had to teach myself by observing characters on the street and seeking to copy them.

"'After five years with Universal I decided to free lance. My wife stood back of me. I was determined to play only roles that I believed offered me real opportunity. My big chance came in "The Miracle Man." Then I went back to Universal to do the part of Blissard in "The Penalty."

"However, now I am through with cripple roles. I am too stove up through years of dancing. Though I have played practically every nationality, I prefer Orientals. The Latin races are too expressive; they talk with their hands, with gestures, but portraying the Oriental is to my mind, an infinite art. He is passive, reserved, by thought alone have I put over my three Oriental characters.' "The most prized possession of this man of a thousand faces is the make-up-box really, it is better described as a small size steamer trunk—and contains the most amazing collection of appliances for character make-up I have ever seen. False teeth which are slipped over his own, eye-brows and beards of all descriptions, tiny glass tubes to distend his nostrils, and tape, used to draw his face in all kinds of queer grimaces."

"Chaney's portrayal of Quasimodo, the "Hunchback of Notre Dame" in Hugo's masterpiece at the Capitol Theatre next Thursday, Friday and Saturday is bound to be listed in the Hall of fame of stars."

JAPAN GOVERNMENT SUPPORTS CANADIAN

Welfare Work in Stricken Capital Finds Strong Friends — Substantial Money Grants to be Administered by Missionary.

TORONTO, Mar. 21.—Following his election as the first general secretary of the Social Department of the Japan Methodist Church, Rev. P. G. Price, B.A., was asked to send to his friends and supporters in Canada an account of developments in his East Tokyo field since the earthquake. Mr. Price replies by recounting for the first time to Canadians the unexampled generosity of the governmental and municipal authorities to his relief and social projects in the capital.

"Never have we received contributions such as these," he writes in a letter which accompanied the following article.

In the East Tokyo field not only have we not lost by the earthquake but we have considerably strengthened our position. I refer particularly to the work established in four industrial areas of East Tokyo by the Japan Church and the Canadian Mission. Our four groups of buildings were, of course, destroyed by the fire.

Within a week of the disaster we received from the Imperial Household a gift of 800 yen with the request to continue our work. That was but the beginning.

A few weeks after that the Tokyo Social Department, the Community Service authority for the metropolitan county of Tokyo, promised three temporary barracks for the Negishi area. These barracks were put on the ground by November and we were using them Christmas. They cover a larger space than the buildings which were burned.

Of late, we are lodging in one of these barracks thirteen families and in the other two are our kindergarten, relief department, night school, church and Sunday school. Thus we are reaching the community there far more effectively now than before the earthquake.

At Nippori, Tokyo, where our social settlement was located, we rebuilt our own school building which the earthquake had thrown down. This greatly encouraged our friend, Mr. Kobayashi, who had up to this time provided all the money for buildings there. The Tokyo social officials were also heartened to see us take hold and carry on even after the earthquake. Our new building is splendid for the time being.

Another recent development is the gift by the Home Department of the Imperial Government of 30,000 yen, or about $15,000, for the building of a workmen's lodging house at Ukeji. They have also offered us 4,000 yen to equip a day nursery at Negishi.

These two contributions from the Government have opened up a new day for our Mission in Japan.

The site at Ukeji was under water, but has been filled in with debris since the disaster. This location has become far more valuable because of the new city plan. We are going ahead with the work. The Government has offered us, in addition to the cash contribution, enough lumber to put up the building, which ought to be self-supporting when in operation.

We have the services of some splendid young Japanese men who will be of great usefulness for the future.

We are very grateful for the efforts of the Canadian people in sending us funds toward the emergency. Through their help we hope to build up a much stronger and more vigorous Japanese Church than we had on September 1, 1923.

At the recent General Conference I was made responsible for the newly-created Social Department. This is an even greater opportunity than my East Tokyo field. I will have foundations to lay.

The work of the temporary relief committee of the Japan Methodist Church has almost finished. Considerable relief was given to the families and individuals who were burned out. Our Mission's relief at Negishi and Nippori still goes on. From sources outside the Church and mission we have received about 1,000 yen for these places. One Saturday recently we distributed goods to 700 persons at Negishi, but before another September this stage of work should have passed. Evangelistic work at Negishi shows great promise.

Before I return to Canada in 1926 for furlough, East Tokyo and the Social Department will be in regular working order and new undertakings under development. Japan is resilient and her Christianity vigorous. We shall miss the lovely ancestral garden that Mr. Kobaysahi gave us—so obliterated by the fury of earthquake and flames—but the work persists and the workers are carrying on where the need is doubly greater than before.

WHAT SHE ORDERED.

"Now, children," said the teacher, "write down all you have learned about King Alfred, but don't say anything about the burning of the cakes; I want to find out what else you know."

"King Alfred visited a lady at a cottage, but the less said about it the better."—Tit-Bits (London).

Dear Sir,—Canada produces the best, most wholesome, and nourishing wheat in the world.

For its superiority, the U.S. people demand from 20,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels annually, irrespective of price.

The U.S. Government seized on this fact to levy a duty or tax of 30c per bushel, and on the 7th inst. added another 12c, effective 30 days hence, collecting from $6,000,000 to $30,000,000 tax annually, without noticeably decreasing the consumption.

With Canada supplying the fertile soil and improved seed, the farmers tilling and harvesting, and Providence supplying the sunshine and rain, who has a better right to this tax than Canada, especially as we need the money for improved railway transportation in the West.

If there is any good reason why Canada should not put on a 30c export duty I should like to hear it, otherwise should we not urge the Government to try it anyway.

It might be said this would interfere with shipping our wheat through the United States to foreign markets. Well, if it made shipping through the U.S. prohibitive, wouldn't it be the best thing that could happen.

Our wheat should go to foreign markets in our own bottoms—pure, and without any chance of being degraded with the inferior quality of any other country, so the consumers will be sure of getting the most wholesome and nourishing bread food produced, for which they are quite willing to pay a reasonable premium if definitely sure of getting value in extra healthfulness and nourishment.

Ten thousand United States farmers have already enquired for Canadian wheat land this season, and no doubt a hundred thousand more will enquire in the near future, resulting in, say, fifty thousand experienced U.S. farmers cutting from their necks the millstone of $100 to $200 an acre land, expensive operation, declining acreage production, and constantly reduced food quality, and trek to our Canadian North-West for land at from $5 to $25 per acre, easier and cheaper worked, with 20 per cent more quantity production and 50 per cent better quality production.—Yours truly,

W. O. SEALEY.

The Editor, "Peterboro Examiner," Peterboro, Ont.

Dear Sir: In explanation of the enclosed resolution, I may say that practically all of the larger cities in Canada, recognizing the danger of tubercular infection from the use of raw milk from diseased cows, have taken steps either by pasteurization or the use of milk solely from inspected herds, to safeguard the health of its people from this dread disease. Many of the smaller towns and cities, however, whose size will not permit of the installation of extensive pasteurization plants, are still of necessity dependent upon unpasteurized or raw milk from infested cows for their supply.

As most of the herds supplying milk to these centres are composed of grade cattle, and their owners therefore incligible as the regulations now stand to receive any compensation from the Government for the loss sustained from cows slaughtered as reactors, it is the purpose of this resolution to amend the regulations now applying only to grade cattle supplying milk to those smaller centres where pasteurization is financially impossible.

We believe this question is a very important one from the viewpoint of the sfaeguarding of the public health, particularly that of the children, and in order to present the situation fairly before the House, I would be pleased to have any information you care to offer regarding the milk supply in your particular municipality.

Very truly yours,
G. A. BRETHEN.

March 10. — Mr. Brethen — Proposed Resolution—Whereas tuberculosis in human being is increasing in Canada, and whereas it has been established that there is a direct relation between such result and the use of raw milk from tubercular affected cows, and that the people living in the smaller centres of population are peculiarly menaced by grave danger from this source, because of the unavoidable lack of adequate pasteurization and the failure of the present regulations of the Health of Animals Branch under the Accredited Herd System of the Government inspection.

Resolved that we, the members of this House, recommend to the Government that the said regulations be amended at this session of Parliament so as to more adequately protect the people of Canada from the inroads of this most dreaded disease.

Francs Up 11 Points to New High For 1924.

NEW YORK, March 22.—(Canadian Press).—The French franc yesterday established a new high rate for 1924 at 5¼ cents after a fresh spurt of buying had carried it up 11 points from Thursday night's closing quotation. The new top figure represented attainment of the objective at which French interests sought to stabilize the currency, and a recovery of more than 50 per cent. from the extreme low record for the year.

The retreat of short interests was responsible for yesterday's advance.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

THE LITTLE GREEN MAN

"Hello!" he nodded pleasantly. "Can't you come in a minute?"

Down the beanstalk came the Twins from Beanstalk Land. Not like Jack had done the time the giant chased him, but slowly and carefully, reaching down with their toes to find safe places to put their feet.

"Hello!" he nodded pleasantly. "Can't you come in a minute?"

And then the Twins saw that the big green bean-pod was really a little house, windows, door and all.

"Do you live here?" asked Nancy. "We didn't see your house when we were going up. Were you here all the time?"

"Yes," said the little man. "But it was not intended that you should see me then. I'm the Beanstalk Fairy and I can make myself invisible whenever I wish. The Fairy Queen told me you were going to Beanstalk Land, and asked me to go with you to see that you were not in any danger."

"But where were you?" asked Nick. "Where did you keep yourself?"

"Come in and I'll tell you all about it," invited the green man.

So the Twins went into the queer little house and sat down.

"I was right beside you on all your adventures in Beanstalk Land" said their host. "When you fell out of the Dutch giant's pocket, it was I who guided you so that you fell safely onto Snap's back.

"And when Snap chased the rabbit, I caused you to fall on the sunbonnet of the giant farmer's wife. When you fell into the milk pail, I made her think you were flies and fish you out. I told the ant to come along and carry you away, and when you climbed the rose bush, I helped you up. When you fell off the dinner table later, I caused you to drop into the giant womans' thimble, and then into the 7-league boots. I led you to the corn field and helped to discover the king's treasure, and rescued you from drowning in the drain when the king's cat left you there!"

"Oh, I'm sure we are ever and ever and ever so much obliged!" said Nancy. "We often wondered why nothing ever happend to us, but we thought it was our magic green shoes."

"They helped, too!" said the little man, "but one cannot be too safe in a country where everything is so big and you are so little. Have you had a nice time?"

"Splendid," said Nick. "Were you with us when the fiddler fooled the people at the fair and pretended that his fiddle was bewitched?"

"Yes," nodded the little man, "and as it wasn't the truth he was telling exactly, it was I who made him give all the money away to the poor on his way home.

"Besides that, it was I who made you go to the palace and tell the king and queen to mend their ways. Beanstalk Land is a much better place since you visited it. Here is a letter for the Fairy Queen telling her all about it. Give my love to Silver Wings and Nimble Toes and Twinkle Pen and the Fairy Queen herself."

"Goodby!" cried the Twins, taking the letter and starting down the beanstalk.

"Goodby!" called the little man.

SHUNTING TRAIN KILLED TWO MEN.

Toronto Level Crossing Was Scene of Fatality Last Night — Were In Automobile.

TORONTO, March 22.—(Canadian Press).—John street crossing of the Canadian Pacific Railway was the scene of a tragedy last evening when a touring car was struck by a shunting train and William D. Wilson, aged 35, and Roy G. Paterson aged 40, were instantly killed, their bodies being badly mangled. The remains of the victims were removed to the morgue where identification was established by means of license cards found in their pockets.

Albert Cunningham, sales manager of the Dan forth branch of Toronto Durant Motor Co., where two men were employed as salesmen, also indentified the bodies. The accident occurred shortly before 8 o'clock, a busy shunting hour, when cars loaded at the C.P.R. freight sheds are being pulled out and replaced by empties. The two men and the wrecked auto were pinned beneath a fright car so firmly that the police experienced considerable difficulty in extricating the remains.

Disabled Freighter Calls For Assistance.

NEW YORK, March 22.—(Canadian Press).—A distress call was received by the Naval Radio Station yesterday from the British freighter Dunclutha, 25 miles north-east of Barnegat, N.J. The freighter's circulating pumps had broken down, and immediate assistance was required, the message explained. The Dunclutha was on her way from New York to Norfolk, Va., in ballast. The owners are the Scottish Navigation Company, Ltd., according to Lloyd's register.

YOUR HEALTH

DR. CLIFFORD ROBINSON

SOME DIET RESULTS.

It is really remarkable what a change slow eating, accompanied by thorough chewing of food, will do for the betterment of your bodily health.

In hasty eating, one does not really get the true taste or flavor of food. Careful tasting by retaining the food in the mouth until all the goodness of taste has been obtained is a great satisfier.

The real value of this process is that one is satisfied with a less amount of food and overeating is thereby avoided.

The real help of a reducing diet is not only a loss of the non-working fat, but in overcoming many other bodily diseases. It is well known, in cases of obesity, that the heart, lungs, liver and kidneys are frequently the sufferers. The relief experienced in the working of these organs from a satisfactory reducing diet is worth all the time one may give to it.

In thirty-one cases out of forty, where investigation was carried out in a large city hospital, it was found that dieting, besides reducing the weight, also reduced the blood pressure.

The improvement in respiration was another distinct gain through this dieting program. Shortwindedness and wheezing were stopped. Excessive sweats were also corrected.

In sixteen cases out of forty, serious foot trouble had developed, through overweight and lack of proper exercise. The reducing diet corrected every one.

An Old Friend's Anniversary

Anything you have used in your home a great many years, because of its fine quality, you value highly.

You wouldn't want to do without it.

It is like an old friend—that has never failed you.

So we may be forgiven, if after 30 years in such a number of homes, we should feel a pardonable pride in being an old friend to so many people. In fact an inquiry from one who has used RED ROSE TEA since we began business prompted us to make this mention of our 30th Anniversary.

RED ROSE TEA "is good tea" — for thirty years the same good tea—and if you'd like to taste how good, how fresh and fragrant—ring up your grocer and have him send a package. T8

Derby Coming Back

By "THE STROLLER."

NEW YORK, March 22 (United Press).—That first puff of spring that Mother Nature wafted across the continent not so very long ago brought with it show-windows full of spring hats for mankind.

As had been predicted, the headgear of the male species will be light of color and flat of brim. Ninety per cent of the hats now displayed in hat shops on Fifth avenue and in the business districts have flat brims. And—now, don't be alarmed—ninety per cent of the same ninety per cent have a section of the brim turned down. It looks as though the hat dealers are strongly inclined toward a more swagger effect in the man's use of his hat.

Despite the fact that light shades are the vogue, there are a good many darker browns on display, and it appears that the dark brown will be a staple color, together with the light tans and greys.

Quite a few derbies are grading the stock shelves of the haberdasheries about town, and a recrudescence of the "iron boiler" may be looked for. Col. T. L. Huston, former part-owner of the New York Yankees, you may recall, loyally clung to his "iron hat" through the heat of many summers until his team won the world's championship. Huston's inspiring faith in the ability of his old hat to bring the Yankees the highest baseball honor may be responsible for the rejuvenation of the derby. We have nothing to say for publication, however. But don't purchase a brown derby, unless you wish to be presented with one. The brown derby is very much "de trop," not to speak of "hic jacet."

A prominent manufacturer of semi-soft collars is featuring advertisements to the effect that the semi-soft collar is the thing for wear with the Tuxedo. Don't let them delude you. A semi-soft collar is perfectly all right in its place, which is around the neck during daylight hours. But, for evening wear, even with the more or less informality of the Tuxedo, a semi-soft collar should be religiously shunned. So should the turn-down collar.

The wing, or "butterfly," collar should be worn with the Tux, even as it is with the full-dress. If any attempt at formality is made, as is evidenced by the wearing of the Tuxedo, it is folly not to carry it through to the bitter end. And yet, the bane of many men, the wing collar, is not so trying as is imagined. Wing collars of the present generation are far from tortures. Collar manufacturers are human beings, and they occasionally wear own product, we hope.

Women Have "He-Harems" On the South Sea Isles

PORTLAND, Ore., March 22 (United Press).—Ho! for the islands of the South Seas, where big, brown women marry men by the half dozen.

But right there is the trouble; the girls not only take all the husbands their hearts desire, but they boss them and rule the fireside and the jungles.

Such is the state of affairs on some of the many Marquese Islands, according to Captain C. R. Campbell, master of the barkentine Alicia Haviside, in port for a lumber cargo.

Captain Campbell is vey familiar with the South Sea Islands. He has sailed windjammers among them for years.

On the Marquese Islands a most peculiar matrimonial state of affairs exists. The women are all very large and strong, and although the men are of big stature, they don't compare with the women in strength and physique.

Whether this is the reason for the girls commanding so many husbands, or whether in times long past there arose an over-abundance of men, would take scientific investigation. But the cause of the "he-harems" is of no importance to the natives. They take things as they are.

According to Captain Campbell this plan of having half a dozen husbands has its merits. It prevents bloodshed in case of triangular love affairs. If the missus finds hubby too inattentive and if she falls in love with some more desirable dusky she doesn't have to resort to poisoned tea to enjoy the warmth of her new suitor's affections.

She merely takes her bamboo rolling pin, or whatever weapons the women use there, and chases the new man into her "he-harem."

Another happy feature of this novel scheme is that the missus doesn't have to worry if one of her mates deserts, dies, or is "canned." There are others to bring home the cocoanuts.

On many of the Marquese group the women's clothing consists of scanty woven grass garments. They don't worry about Paris fashion changes—for a new dress they go out and pull a bunch of grass.

In these islands one's life is fairly secure, while on others a faithless husband may be turned into stew at any time.

Captain Campbell states he finds these conditions where steamships do not visit and tourists do not come in contact with the natives. To know the real situation one has to get away from the beaten track.

In spite of the barbarism of some of the islanders, they are surprisingly advanced. For instance, Captain Campbell said, they have a written language and have a religion that has many merits.

The islanders, however, have no moral conception, he declared. This is particularly true where the contact with other people has left no traces. In other parts where the white man has left his imprint, the islanders have acquired all his vices, but none of his virtues.

RED FLAG MEANS WE PAY NO RENT.

Ten Thousand Families Pay No Rent in the City of Vera Cruz.

By BOB DORMAN.

Ten thousand landlords find themselves unable to collect the rental of their property, and equally unable to dispossess their tenants.

The law cannot or will not help them.

The red flag waves from each house so held.

He came to Vera Cruz in February, 1922, where he found a situation ripe for his radical activities.

The close of the World War had brought great prosperity to Vera Cruz. Salaries went sky high. But rents went the salaries one better.

Houses that formerly rented for 15 pesos a month were raised in some cases to as high as 125 pesos.

Naturally there was much bitterness against the landlords.

Proal saw his chance and took it.

He began making speeches on the street corners. He advocated the taking over of the houses—the refusal to pay rent.

At first he was jeered—even stoned.

But gradually he built up a following.

To-day he claims a following in the city of Vera Cruz of 45,000 and in the State of 300,000.

The 45,000 in the city comprise 10,000 families who do not pay rent.

Proal has his headquarters near the magnificent custom house built by Porfirio Diaz, the former president of Mexico, who, 30 years ago, put down a similar rent agitation in Vera Cruz, by shooting the leaders in the plaza.

As he talks he works himself into blind fury.

I asked him to tell me something of his movement.

"We are not Bolsheviks," he almost shouted. (I hadn't said anything about Bolsheviks). "All you Americans claim that I and my people are Reds. We are not. We merely want a square deal for the people.

"Our movement is an economic one—not political, as is communism.

"It makes no difference to us who is president—or what form the government takes. All of them have oppressed the workers.

"Freedom. We have it in name only. The Spaniards still rules us. He owns all the land, the big businesses, the banks, the factories.

"We are still his slaves—as in the time of Cortez.

"We want our economic freedom. The right to enjoy the products of our labor. To live in sanitary houses whose rent is within our means.

"What does it matter to us who is president?

"They fight—not because of the honor that it is to be president—but for what they can get out of it.

"They steal their millions from the people, and then go to foreign lands to enjoy them.

"And the people pay.

"But the time is coming when the people will rule—when the worker then there will be peace and plenty for all."

Proal explained that the $5,000 he received each month from his followers in Vera Cruz that pay no rent, goes into the furthering of the cause.

That out of it he maintains himself and his fellow workers who devote their whole time to the work.

That he is feeding 27 of his followers who are in jail, and maintaining their families.

That he has erected a model tenement house, such as he believes the workers should live in. (The tenants of which pay rent to the cause.)

But—Proal rides in a big auto.

THAW PLANS BUSINESS ACTIVITY IN PITTBURG

Hopes to Be Free Next Month and Engage in "Community Betterment."

PITTSBURGH, March 22.—Harry K. Thaw expects to return to Pittsburgh next month and establish his permanent home here with his mother, Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw. He has plans to enter business life and take part in the financial and civic life of the city.

Thaw, in high spirits, spoke of his new hopes in life as he departed for Philadelphia from the East Liberty station on a Pennsylvania train this afternoon, after having spent a fortnight with his mother at her home in Beechwood Boulevard.

"My trial comes up in the Common Pleas Court of Philadelphia County on April 10," he told newspaper men, "and I have no doubt in the world but that the jury will grant my freedom. This will not be one of those long-drawn-out trials, but a speedy verdict in less than a week.

"I will come straight back to Pittsburgh and remain with my mother, whose advanced years are bearing rather heavily upon her. It is my object to repay in a slight way her wonderful devotion to me. I will not be idle. I have many interests to keep me busy. In all these years I have been a close student, and I think it is every man's duty to be identified with the business and civic life of his community.

"Pittsburgh has grown amazingly, and the people here are having difficulty in keeping pace with their city's development. Surely there is a lot for Pittsburgh to do in community betterment, and upon my return I shall find great pleasure in observing the tradition of my family in this respect. I am gratified with the realization of the opportunity to enter this busy sphere of life."

GAME GOOD FOR TRADE

WASHINGTON (United Press). — America's adoption of mah jong, as one of her favorite indoor pastimes, placed a new million and one-half dollars' item in China's list of exports last year.

Of all of China's exports to the United States last year mah jong sets occupied sixth position in value, according to an advice today from Consul General E. S. Cunningham, of Shanghai, China. The total value of sets sent to this country from China was $1,505,000, and this item was exceeded only by exports of silks, laces, skins, eggs and tea.

China's exports to the United States last year increased about 29 per cent. and were valued at $59,237,595.

Chinese Styles Are All The Rage In U.S.

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, March 22 (United Press).—Last year the opening of the catacomb of King "Tut" brought about a demand for styles that were Egyptian. This year the popular Chinese game, Mah-Jong, which means, "to win or to woo," has won and wooed the fashion world and scattered things Egyptian to the Four Winds.

To-day we have the Chinese influence reflected in silhouette, materials, embroideries, millinery, perfumes and jewels. Many of the spring suits and gowns use Chinese embroidery as the medium to express the Oriental note; others use the silhouette of the Chinese jacquette, which, when laid out straight, forms the shape of the letter "T." Sleeves are not shaped at the shoulders, but are cut on the straight fold of the material, similar to the middy blouse. The side fastening is used and the neckline fits snugly around the neck. Again color is used to suggest the Oriental note —lacquer red, Chinese yellows, and blues.

Mandarin coats, worn with plaited short skirts, are sponsored at the winter resorts by the sleek-haired debbies. One particularly fastidious young lady appeared at Pinehurst one morning augmenting her Oriental effect by yellow face-powder and orange-toned lips. Her black hair was drawn tightly back from her forehead and held at the nape of her neck with two carved jade rings.

One wonders how long it will be before some fair exponent of things Chinese lets her finger-nails grow a la Chinese. There's a theory that the Chinese let their finger-nails grow long so that they can pick up money easily. This might be a good hunch for the American Mah-Jong hounds who play for stakes.

Chinese Accessories.

Several shops are selling necklaces with pendants of ivory Mah-Jong tiles, attached to colored cords. These open at one end and either contain dice or small bottles of Oriental perfume. Oriental perfumery, by the way, is quite the vogue, and one can buy sets consisting of four small bottles shaped and ornamented like Mah-Jong tiles, filled with perfumes of Jasmine, China Lily, Sandlewood and Oriental mixtures.

Hatpins made of carved jade and carnelian hoops are used on some of the smart new turbans. Other millinery ornaments combine jade, acquanese settings.

Necklaces, alternating amber and carved sandelwood beads, are worn by the smartly-gowned women of Palm Beach. Carnelian chains with crystal rondels are also popular.

NATIONAL PARK IN AFRICA

WASHINGTON (United Press). — Professor Carl Akeley of the American Museum of National History, at the request of Baron de Cartier, the Belgian ambassador to the United States, is making a study of this country's national park service, it was learned at the Interior Department today. The data gathered by Akeley will be used in connection with the establishment of a great national park and gorilla sanctuary to be projected by the government of Belgium in the Belgian Congo, South Africa.

FOREIGNERS CROWDING OUT THE AMERICANS IN HOLLYWOOD'S STUDIOS

As Usual the European Talent Works For Less Than the American and Thus Obtains the Job.

By H. E. SWISHER.

HOLLYWOOD, March 22 (United Press).—Hollywood has been hit by a foreign invasion, growing rapidly.

Taking advantage of a periodic popularity for the exotic and bizarre actors and actresses with foreign accents and European birth, together with directors who speak in broken tongues, are flocking to the world's film centre in increasing numbers and securing employment.

Dramatic folk who talk plain "United States" are just naturally "out of luck," and they are beginning to admit it.

This situation does not apply much to the "leads." America is still quite faithful to its native-born heroes and heroines of the silver screen, despite the large following R. Valentino, Pola Negri, and a few others of the lustrous orbs and olive skin may have attached.

Americans Crowded Out.

But the "atmosphere" players, the "extras," some of them Hollywood's most respected and responsible citizens, are finding meeting the bills a difficult proposition, and stand good chances of having "to go to Work." The "foreign element" is crowding them out.

Foreign directors are largely responsible for this situation, a review of the companies now working reveals.

Megaphone wielders who received their dramatic training abroad, after their birth there, are stepping into the forefront in photoplay direction.

Ernst Lubitsch, Dimitri Buchowetski, and other European film-makers, induced to Hollywood by the lure of fatter pay-checks, may possibly be excused for surrounding themselves with as much of the home-country "atmosphere" as possible. Anyway, with as much of the home-country

In one studio there is a new director from abroad who speaks no English. He conveys his directions by dramatic gestures, and through interpreters that is, the directions necessary for the few Americans in his company. But this director has surrounded himself with a staff of foreign assistants and refuses to cast talent, excepting the leads, unless it is of the "foreign type."

At least a half dozen of these European fimsters are holding positions as feature production directors in Hollywood to-day.

Work for Smaller Pay.

As usual, the European talent works for less than the American. So U.S.A. "extras" who formerly received $12.50 to $15 a day now have difficulty in getting work at $10. Those who used to get $10 now take $7.50—when they can get it—and the $7.50 "troopers" grab at $5 jobs—with the grabbing poor.

One recently released film gives eighteen players screen credit, and of this number two-thirds have French or Italian names, intermixed with German or Russian cognomens.

Perhaps it is just a flurry, this replacing of American picture folk by the foreigners. With the usual optimism of the stage, the Hollywood regulars predict that it is. They do not believe the foreign-directed films will prove very popular, and anticipate a return to American-branded entertainment within the near future.

They are upholding this belief by the recent failure of Lubitsch's "The Marriage Circle" to last longer than two weeks after its New York premiere. Although it has, for the most part, American players known to all picture fans, they are given German names in the film, and the direction and atmosphere has a foreign touch which, while branding the picture as a "big step forward in modernizing picture-plays," failed to get it over in Gotham.

Preparation of the sets is now underway for filming the romantic life of Theodore Roosevelt by United Producers and Distributors. The film will include the high lights in the former President's exciting life, with battle scenes from his Spanish-American War days, together with some of his adventures in Africa.

John Griffith Wray, Thomas H. Ince director, whose latest success is a picturization of Eugene O'Neill's dramatic success, "Anna Christie," is now in New York in search of a new story vehicle.

Carey Wilson, associate editor of the Goldwyn studios, is adapting "—ary the Third," Rachel Crothers' successful stage play, for King Vidor to direct for that company.

AMERICANS FIND THE POPE IN GOOD HEALTH

ROME, Mar. 22 (United Press).—All Americans in Rome are to be received by Pope Pius in his public audience in the throne room of the Vatican after the consistory at which Archbishops Hayes and Mundelein are to be elevated to the cardinalate.

Archbishop Hayes made this announcement following a conference with the pontiff in the private library last night.

"I found his Holiness in excellent health and with a most alert mind," Hayes said. "Reports that his health is bad is sheer nonsense. I came away with the most extraordinary impression of my life. I had been hearing of His Holiness' magnetic personality from others, but tonight I received full confirmation of the fact from this extraordinarily gifted man of God.

"It is not often that men in high places bear with them such a mixture of emphatic qualities of mind and heart as win favor with the learned and the humble alike."

BATTALION OF WORKERS

Representatives of the Canadian Methodist Missionary Society at home and abroad number 1,111, the same as last year, one having died and another having returned to the field since last year. Of these 477 are in China, 544 in Canada and 90 in Japan. In addition, the Women's Board employs 242 workers, or 1,353 in all.

RADIO BROADCASTS HINTS TO HELP HOUSEKEEPERS

HAMBURG, March 22 (Associated Press).—The radio and the movie film have been enlisted in efforts of Hamburg housekeepers to make frozen meat again popular among Germans. This commodity became distasteful during the war, when the quality left much to be desired, and it is this feeling the local housekeepers would overcome.

Frozen meats from Brazil, Argentina, and the United States are selling to-day in Germany at prices 20 to 30 percent under fresh meat. The women of Hamburg have learned to like and appreciate the imported article, and they want to tell others of its advantages.

Medical authorities say a good word for frozen beef over the radio, from time to time, and the pictures set forth practical ways of serving the meat, if consumers will only forget their dislikes of the past.

GERMANY TURNS BACK TO OLD TIME CASTLES

COBURG, Bavaria, March 22 (Associated Press).—One of the famous old castles of Germany, that of the Saxe-Coburg ducal falmly, has been restored inside and out to the design which prevailed in 1836, and the owners believe that they have measurably added to the value and picturesqueness of the building.

The idea has been to restore the original condition and appearance of this medieval castle, and the work has been going on for some 15 years. At one time it was considered desirable to modernize all chateaux, thus in part taking away their picture-like adornment of the landscape, but the younger generation has evidenced a reaction from this procedure, and today the popular thing in Germany is the resotration of the historic dwelling to its old-time beauty.

GIVES COURSE IN COMMUNITY WOKR

URBANA, Ill., March 22 (Associated Press).—A course designed to train men and women as chamber of commerce or trade organization secretaries, has just been introduced in the college of commerce of the University of Illinois. It is an innovation, and believed to be the first tried in a large university.

Dean Charles M. Thompson has taken personal charge of the class, which is studying a course he prepared following his observations of the actual workings of commercial clubs and chambers of commerce.

JANITORS FAVOR HIGHER RENTS

BERLIN, March 22 (Associated Press).—There are 10,000 apartment houses in Berlin without porters, according to the Porters' Union, which contends that the former caretakers quit their jobs because the houseowners were not able to pay for their services.

Berlin has 50,000 apartment houses, by the porters, who have come out strongly in favor of the government permitting an increase in rents. The government has promised relief.

NEW YORK, Mar. 22.—A jury in Justice Black's part of the Supreme Court yesterday returned a verdict for $15,000 in favor of Mrs. Bertha Goodman, of No. 152 Boerum street, Brooklyn, and another for $1,000 in favor of her husband Hyman.

Mrs. Goodman suffered a fall in 1920, when her landlord, Harris Beckelman, called out to her—"Hello sweetheart—" when he saw her in the dim light of a stairway in their home.

Mrs. Goodman was so badly frightened at hearing a man's voice addressing her in that manner she fell down the flight of stairs and broke her leg.

Find out what the world's largest quality car producer has to offer before deciding on any fine car

WE seek the favor of a comparison—ask that you look at a Studebaker before buying a rival car. We'll rest our case on what you find.

* * *

We use the finest materials that money can buy. Our labor is the cream of the industry. We work in $50,000,000 plants—75% built since the war—which house the finest precision machinery the world affords.

By producing in great quantity, we cut manufacturing costs. Under ordinary manufacturing conditions Studebakers could not be sold within 25% more to twice their price.

* * *

All Studebaker models are Timken-equipped. Our Light-Six has more Timken bearings than any other car selling within $1,500 of its price.

We are one of the very few builders, either in Europe or America, using crankshafts machined on all surfaces. It costs us $600,000 a year to give you this. But it results in that smoothness of operation, that lack of vibration which characterizes only the most expensive cars.

We pay 15% more for many alloys to insure better than "commercial run" used in many cars at twice the price of Studebaker.

We subject Studebaker cars to 30,000 inspections. That requires 1,200 men.

World's finest coachmaking

We build Studebaker bodies in the internationally famous Studebaker body building plants—for 72 years known all over the world as builders of the superlative in fine vehicles.

Simple arithmetic

We've cut manufacturing costs and that reflects itself in Studebaker prices. Remember, selling prices of all cars are based on manufacturers' costs, not on quality of material, not on workmanship.

That's why prices vary so.

The engineering cost on Studebakers, for instance, is but $3.33 a car. If we produced only 20,000 cars on an "exclusive" basis, instead of 150,000, this would be increased to $25 per car or more.

Our die cost for bodies is under $2 per car. In small production it would go to $20 minimum.

If we "assembled" our cars, we would have to pay a profit to 75 to 100 makers of major parts.

* * *

Find out what Studebaker has to offer. And you will own a Studebaker.

* * *

In 1919 the public paid $80,000,000 for Studebakers; in 1920 over $100,000,000. In 1921 over $120,000,000. In 1922 over $155,000,000. In 1923, $201,000,000.

Every year the world turns more and more to Studebaker.

Compare Studebaker with Cars at Twice Its Price

The chief difference between Studebaker and many cars selling at twice its price is this:

Studebaker produces distinguished quality cars in quantity for those who want value, as against producing cars of equal quality, in small quantity, for those who want "exclusiveness." The quality is the same.

See a Studebaker and compare. There is no finer car.

THE WORLD'S LARGEST PRODUCER OF QUALITY AUTOMOBILES

JUDGMENT STEVENS VS. AIKENS

The following judgment was delivered by His Honor Judge Huycke at the close of the trial:

This is a very unfortunate action, and I am bound to say an action I did not suppose could possibly have arisen in the city of Peterboro, or in the boundaries of civilization. The plaintiff, a young woman, Miss Stevens, sues Thomas Aikens and Mrs. Aikens, his wife, for damages for the destruction of a dog, that dog being the property of Ethel Stevens.

There is no doubt that the dog is dead and the lady defendant at some time, before the action was brought to trial any way, tendered $5 in full satisfaction and there is a $5 cheque in court pursuant to the tender, which is offered in full satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim, and which is refused by and on behalf of the plaintiff, she proceeding for the balance.

There is no question, I think of the ownership of the dog being in the young lady in question, she was the owner of the dog, not her father or mother—there has been some reflection made upon her father and also upon her mother, which, if they were the plaintiffs, might very seriously diminish the value of their evidence and perhaps of the claim. The evidence with reference to the father is that he on two occasions, once in Welch's barber shop, and another time in Lipsett's Hotel, assumes to have stated that the dog was stolen—he contradicts that of course, and says that he said—if you say that it is so, let it be stolen, or something to that effect—he denies point blank that he ever did admit that it was stolen; that does not weigh so much with me as the additional fact that it was admitted by all these witnesses, particularly the witnesses that were in Welch's shop—that at the same time when he is alleged to have admitted that the dog was stolen—he also said that the lady from whom he got the dog was coming down from Hamilton to give evidence as to it. I do not see any reason at all how anybody could accept his statement as anything but a joke, which he says it was—the mere fact that he stated that the lady he got the dog from was coming from Hamilton, was quite sufficient to nullify any supposed admission he might have made that the dog was stolen; but even supposing he had made the admission, which I find is not true, it cannot possibly affect the right of the girl, his daughter, to recover unless it was shown that the ownership of the dog was not in her. Then again an attack was made upon the mother of the plaintiff—it was said that some years ago she was said to have poisoned some dog—or some dog was killed by poison and that she was convicted for setting out poison in a public place, and a conviction was referred to. If true, it was a horrible thing to do, and if she did do it she should be heartily ashamed of her conduct—but suppose she did, it does not affect the right of the girl her daughter to recover, if she was otherwise rightfully entitled so to do. It is said the sins of the fathers and mothers are visited upon the children, but these are not that kind of sins—this daughter cannot be responsible for the joking of the father or the improper things said to be done by her mother some few years ago.

The evidence is not all that could be desired; I, frankly speaking, would like to have had the facts more clearly set out; but the two defendants have studiously avoided giving any assistance whatever with reference to it—I do not know whether they are here or not—they are represented here, very carefully represented here, in this trial, but they have not seen fit, either of them, to give the court the benefit of their viewpoint of the transactions in question. What they would have said I do not know, therefore I must be guided and guided only by the evidence that is before me.

The evidence is that there was a little black Pomeranian dog, everyone being very much attached to him—that he was out for a few minutes, and after a little while Mr. Aikens, the male defendant, came to the father of the girl, Miss Stevens, and said he was very sorry and he wanted him to come down to his house, that the dog had been hit, that Mrs. Aikens had struck the dog with a stone, and he feared the dog was going to die. Stevens went down. Miss Stevens, the owner of the dog, was not at home, she was at church or somewhere, and he found the dog practically dead when he got there in the house of the defendants, comparatively near to the home of the plaintiff. The only evidence that there is, is twofold—is that the dog met its death and died in the house of the defendants, and an admission by the husband that the wife had struck the dog with a stone and he was afraid she had killed it. He said she picked up a stone and threw it, but does not say where she picked it. That in some respects is not very much evidence to go on, in snow four feet deep—not very much evidence so far as the wife is concerned as it might very reasonably be contended; there is against that for what it may be worth—the admission of liability on her part of having paid the $5 in—but to my mind a very much more serious question arises—it is the admission by the husband that the wife killed the dog of the plaintiff—and if the view I take of the law is correct—that very admission is sufficient to fasten liability for the wife's torts, or wrongful acts, upon the husband as well as herself; the only question is whether the recent Married Women's Property Act changes that situation. I do not think it does—as to that if there is any case opposed to my present view, it may be used in application for a new trial, or as may be advised.

I am compelled to hold, however, that the husband did admit that the wife struck the dog, this strike resulting in the dog's death; apart from the other evidence that is sufficient to fasten upon the husband the liability incurred by the wife, in other words, that the husband is responsible for the tort and wrongful acts and deeds even words and writings of the wife, unless, as I have said, affected by more recent legislation of the Married Womens Property Act with all its amendments.

There is another defence put in, that this dog was wrongfully at large, and certified copies of by-laws of the city filed, against which there is no objection. Supposing that is all true, it does not justify the defendants taking that dog in their house, and having gone into their house in their ill-treating it and much less killing it. There is no defence to that whatever—they might have laid a complaint and had the dog picked up, or they might have taken the dog and given it to the police; that might have been justifiable on their part, but I am not prepared to find that the dog was wrongfully loose, it was not very long—I thing, that there is evidence against the defendants which must justify me in giving judgment against them, and both of them, and must compel them to pay.

The evidence as to the value of the dog is most contradictory. The lady from Hamilton, Mrs. Mutter, says she has been offered several times $100.00 for it; she said, if I recollect a right, that he was a thoroughbred dog that would indicate; both its father and mother were thoroughbred Pomeranians — the mother it seems was registered —she certainly did say that this dog was a thoroughbred Pomeranian and that he was offered $100.00 for him on several occasions. The evidence of Dr. King would indicate that the value of these dogs was rather high He says they cost usually about $75.00. Also Dr. Johnston and other evidence on behalf of the defendant would indicate that the dog was of comparatively good strain. Dr. Johnston sells Pomeranian puppies unregistered at $25.00 to $35.00. However, apart altogether from the value of the dog it does seem to me that the circumstances are so unusual that the conduct of these people has been so cruel, diabolically cruel, very little consideration should be shown them—in other words if the court should lean in any direction it should lean towards making an example of an attack of this kind—there is no possible reason—no possible excuse for any such thing having been done. I do not know what the annoyance was, there may have been annoyance that caused all this to be brought about, I am told nothing of any provocation—I have not received the benefit of any such evidence, it might have influenced me to some extent if I had; but it seems now to me to be absolutely inexcuseable—exemplary damages should be given. I have never known or heard of anything more absolutely cruel and heartless; instead of the dog being struck with a stone the evidence of Drs. Johnston and Deyell, who made a post mortem, convince me that it must have been pounded four or five times with some kind of a blunt instrument, a hammer or a poker, the Doctors say, the dog's skull was broken and everything done in a diabolically cruel manner.

Judgment wil be for the plaintiff against both defendants for the sum of $100.00 and costs.

Feels Like Girl Sixteen

Rochester, N. Y.—"After my twin girls were born I was all run-down. My neighbors thought I was going to die. I saw your advertisement in the paper and bought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The first bottle helped me and I kept on taking it. I only weighed ninety pounds when I began taking it, and I have gained in weight and feel like a girl of sixteen. I never can say enough for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. NELLIE DOREY, 16 Skuse Park, Rochester, N.Y.

EXHIBIT WILL BE HELD OVER

3000 People Have Seen Social Hygiene Exhibit

Owing to the very large attendance at the Canadian Social Hygiene exhibit at the Public Library—reaching over the 3,000 mark without counting to-day's figures—it has been found necessary to hold the exhibit over for four days of next week, Monday and Tuesday for men only and Wednesday and Thursday for women. This will give those who have not yet seen the exhibit an opportunity to do so and it is expected that many citizens will avail themselves of the chance.

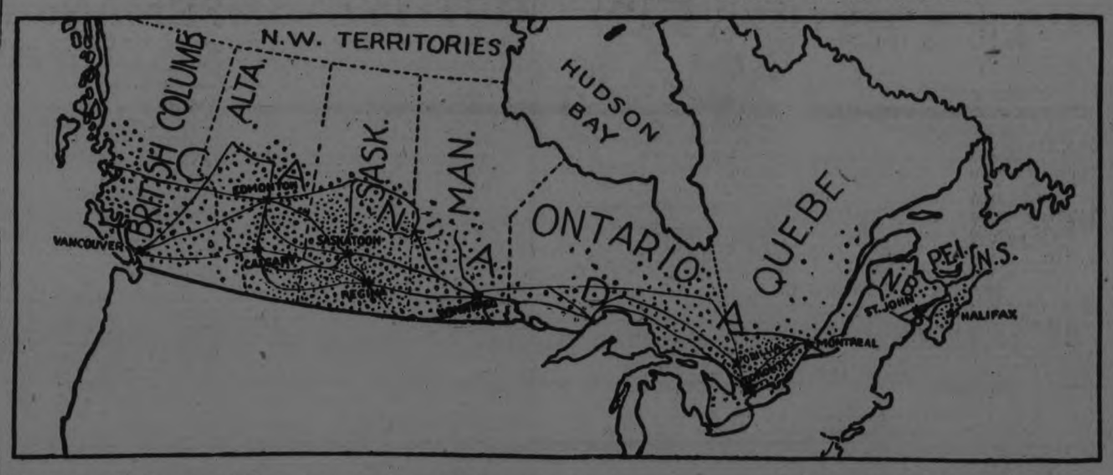
UNITED CHURCHES FROM SEA TO SEA



The dots on the above map indicate, in a general way, the extent of the church union movement throughout the Dominion. The following summary is an official statement of the results of the movement toward Union in Canada:

SYNODS.	Co-operation and Delimitation of Territory.	Affiliation.	Independent Union.	Total.
MARITIME PROVINCES	22	6	2	30
MONTREAL AND OTTAWA	----	28	1	29
TORONTO AND KINGSTON	168	2	—	170
HAMILTON AND LONDON	----	—	1	1
MANITOBA	64	69	15	148
SASKATCHEWAN	350	51	30	431
ALBERTA	278	16	3	297
BRITISH COLUMBIA	132	4	3	139
	1014	176	55	1245

It will be seen from this statement that there are in Canada 1,245 charges, representing at least 3,000 preaching stations where Union in one of these forms is now in operation. Since the above figures were compiled over a year ago further advancement has been made in the Prairie Provinces, in Ontario, in the East, and in the Presbytery of Halifax there are 28 churches in union and only nine purely Presbyterian churches in the whole of the Presbytery.

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Bert Traymore—a fascinating philanderer, whom a chance meeting brings into her quiet life.

Janet Mercer—Prudence's dearest friend, an older woman, plain but clever, is masseuse to the delicate child of

Mrs. Vansittart—a pleasure-loving woman-of-the-world, owner of Winston Towers, a beautiful summer home.

Peter Armstrong—a brilliant young inventor, clever and ambitious. His marked attention to Prudence at a ball at Winston Towers leads Virginia to call on the girl the next day in order to ascertain just how far things have gone. Traymore, who has put off meeting Prudence's mother, until the young girl comes to doubt his professed love, choses this day to make his call. He is embarrassed at finding his two sweethearts together, and the situation is awkward, until Peter appears on the scene.

CHAPTER XXV.

A Scrap of Paper.

Instantly, for Prudence and her mother, the atmosphere of the Green Gables 'best parlor' changed, as though by magic.

"Exactly as if we'd been stifling, and then someone had flung all the windows wide open," Mrs. Page afterwards explained Peter's timely arrival.

She had taken an instant fancy to the young inventor.

"He looks you straight in the eye. And he talked to me for nearly fifteen minutes about his mother. Any man who's fond of his mother has plenty of good in him.

That had been her verdict.

As for Prudence, she was only human; and young Armstrong's words as he entered the room had been balm on wounds for her.

One man who 'appreciated' everything she did!

Virginia's face had been a study at that moment. Pleasure over unexpectedly seeing Peter; annoyance that he should be calling on another girl; envy that he had constituted himself the latter's champion.

And, mingled with it all, the fixed determination that, if this Prudence chit had had a certain innings—pity being akin to love!—she, lovely Virginia Dale, would soon show her her true place, and the impossibility of holding any man's attention when a so-much-better equipped rival was in the field.

But to return to Peter's entry. He had shaken Prudence by the hand, bowed to Virginia, given the barest not to Traymore, and been presented to the mistress of Green Gables by her palpitant young daughter.

"Miss Prudence forgot her gloves when she left the party—and so I've brought them back to her." He produced a pair of long white kids.

Virginia giggled.

He turned to Mrs. Page. "You have a beautiful old home here. I was longing to rent it from you this summer, but the agent held up his hands in horror at the idea. Said you wouldn't consider it for a moment."

Mrs. Page gave back his smile. It was infectious, somehow.

"If we'd rented it to you, we'd have had to turn out ourselves

"That would have been a calamity." His glance instinctively went to Prudence. The mother saw it. Then:

"Perhaps one day you'll come and see my present quarters. Pear Tree Cottage isn't a patch on this, of course, but it's a quaint little place."

So he was extending an invitation to Prudence and her mother, was he? thought Virginia angrily. All that talk about being a hermit and no lady's man was rot—pure rot! He'd been only trying to get rid of her!

"The last time I came to see you, you weren't so cordial." Jinny tossed her head. "But I s'pose I'm not sufficiently old-fashioned to meet your ideas."

Peter Armstrong gave a lazy smile. "You came at the wrong moment—when I was conducting a rather dangerous experiment. And when I'm working I don't invite ladies into the laboratory in any case."

Came at the wrong moment, had she? The casually-spoken words seemed to have a double meaning. Perhaps he thought she'd done it again to-day? 'Butting in where she wasn't wanted,' as Virginia herself would have elegantly expressed it, was a brand-new experience for the spoilt young woman.

She turned to Mrs. Page with a smirk.

"Seems my ways are too 'modern' for poor Peter! But one would have thought an inventor, of all people, up-to-date and always on the search for something new!"

Bert Traymore moved his chair to sit by Prudence. He loathed the Armstrong fellow, but he wasn't going to run away a second time. And it did seem, oddly enough, that the cap was keen on Prudence. He'd made quite a little queen of her last night, and now was on her track again to-day.

He'd 'get back' at Armstrong by being doubly attentive to Prudence. It would annoy that plain-spoken mother, too. The old lady had snubbed him on the gambling business, and he could plainly see she disapproved of him. Of course, that let him out of the marrying question but it was a little galling none the less.

"You haven't a word to spare for me to-day," he contrived to whisper, reproachfully, in the girl's ear. "I'm feeling hurt."

But, somehow, Bert's crocodile pathos failed to register with Prudence. She cared for him—oh, yes—but she was still sore from Virginia's rude remarks and from Bert's failure to please her mother, when, after all, it would have surely been so easy to be nice. . . .

And he hadn't stuck to her in the way he should have done.

And—and somehow—Peter Armstrong's presence always made him, by comparison, seem a little 'trivial.' Subconsciously, Prudence sensed it.

After a vain attempt to cajole her, Traymore rose and announced he must be going.

"You'd better come, too, Jinny." He contrived, by means of a wink, which no one but Jinny saw, to indicate that Armstrong ought to be left alone with Prudence and her mother. "You can run me back in your car."

Virginia bade her farewells with a languid, patronizing smile, though inwardly she was furious at the turn of events. Prudence saw them off, a whole medley of turbulent feelings surging within her, chief of which was heartache.

After they had gone, she saw a scrap lying on the path, picked it up, and before she had realized it was a letter to another woman, had begun to read it.

"My darling Jinny," it commenced.

And what she read was: "Yours always and forever, Bert."

SILVER THREADS AMONG THE GOLD

NEW YORK, March 22.—(Canadian Press.)—The prophecy of "Silver Threads Among the Gold" was never fulfilled for woman who inspired the composer of the melody to which the famous words were set.

That woman Mrs. Harriet Danks, was buried yesterday, for her at least the long trail of unhappiness that so strangely followed the writing of the great love song is over. All that now remains of the family are a son and daughter, who have been at odds with each other over the Royalties from their father's ballad.

Mrs. Danks was eighty two. She died on Wednesday in reduced circumstances in a Brooklyn rooming house. She was buried in New Union Field, after a simple service at Leffert's Place Chapel.

Constant Headaches And Dizziness.

It is hard to struggle along with a head that aches and pains all the time, and in nine cases out of ten the persistent headaches are due to some derangement of the stomach, liver or bowels.

Undoubtedly the cause must be removed before permanent relief may be had.

Burdock Blood Bitters removes the cause of the headaches, as it acts on every organ of the body and strengthens, purifies and regulates the whole system.

Mrs. Peter Curran, 27 Morrison St., Sydney, N.S., writes:—"I have been troubled for the last five years with constant headaches and dizziness. After trying several remedies, which I found to be of no avail, Burdock Blood Bitters was recommended to me.

B.B.B. did me a world of good, and I cannot praise this remedy enough."

BREAKWATER VOTE CAUSES CRITICISM

Meighen Calls the Expenditure an Attempt to Rob Treasury

OTTAWA, March 22. Canadian Press. — "This vote is no more and no less than an outrage and a direct attempt to rob the treasury of Canada."

In these words right Hon. Arthur Meighen characterized last night in Parliament the revote in the estimates providing the sum of thirty thousand dollars for harbor improvement at Belle River in Essex County, Ont.

The item recalled the election in North Essex, when 'Tim' Healey was elected to succeed the late Hon. W. C. Kennedy. Mr. Healey last night made a brief statement defending the vote and declaring that it had been recommended primarily by his predecessor (Mr. Kennedy) and that he (Mr. Healey) has been a victim of gross abuse and misrepreesntation throughout Canada arising out of the famous "King needs Time" election dodger, responsibility for which he utterly disclaimed. The Belle River breakwater stood in great need of repairs, he said.

Robert Forke protested against the consideration of the estimates without due warning whereupon H. C. Hocken, (Con., Toronto West) suggested that the Progressive Chieftain send one of his men up to Belle River to see the breakwater, and ascertain for himself the needs of the locality. It was allowed to stand.

LONDON BUSMEN ARE ON STRIKE

Only Street Service Is a Small Fleet of Pirate 'Busses That May Be Stopped By Strikers.

LONDON, March 22 (Canadian Press). — The strike of tramway operators and busmen began at midnight. It involves about 40,000 employees.

The inconvenience that this practical paralysis of London's street passenger transport system will cause the public may be judged from the fact that nearly 2,000 tramcars and 4,000 omnibuses, normally carrying five millions of people daily, will be out of service.

The men, it is declared, did not show any great enthusiasm for the strike, but they unhesitatingly obeyed their leaders' orders.

The only hope of settlement lies in the official Court of Inquiry into the wages dispute, which will open this morning with Sir Arthur Colefax, K.C., presidig.

Fortunately for the public the underground railway men have to date declined to become involved in the dispute.

An attempt will be made to continue to operate 250 "pirate" buses owned by companies outside the combine but even this limited service is likely to be greatly impeded if not prevented by the energetic picketing of the strikers.

Scrambled to Work.

London scrambled to work this morning in crowded subways and on foot.

Thousands of people were late to their posts.

Double columned queues eight abreast and more than 300 yards long formed at the Balham and Clapham railway stations, waiting in vain for places on packed trains to the city.

The strikers demand a wage increase of about $1.95 a week.

Court inquiry into the strike was started this afternoon. Simultaneously Secretary Bevan of the Transport Workers, issued a statement upholding the strike and declaring the men's demands for a wage increase is justified.

Virtually no street cars or buses were running, throwing a tremendous burden on the subways, and there were reports that the subway men might call a sympathetic strike before night.

If the subway workers do go out the city will be practically without transportation.

Only a few scattered "pirate" buses were running this morning.

A Clergyman's Wife, Relieved of Constipation, Tells Women the Benefits of Internal Bathing.

Many women write delightfully frank letters to Dr. Tyrell telling him of the new health and joy that Internal Bathing has given them. From sufferers of rheumatism and those plagued with constipation and insomnia comes the same tale of amazing success. Internal Bathing is a natural, simple way of cleaning the intestines. Warm water circulates through the colon, ridding it of the poisons that should not linger there. As 95 per cent. of our ills are caused by the escape of those poisons into the blood it is easy to see that this method of keeping the intestines clean and healthy is a common-sense way of securing health.

A Winnipeg clergyman writes "My wife is naturally sensitive having her name appear in public print, yet is anxious that others should know what the J.B.L. Cascade has done for her. It has really given her a new lease of life. For years she had been doctoring for constipation, which became worse each year. Since using the J.B.L. Cascade, first about four years ago, she has not been sick a day, and has become robust and strong again. Should any person wish this letter confirmed, you are at liberty to give my name in private."

The J.B.L. Cascade is an invention perfected by Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell of New York, and has done more during the past few years to restore health and lessen disease than all other means combined. Ask for booklet explaining all about Internal Bathing and what is has done for others. It is free, or write to Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute, 163 College Street, Toronto.

ACTIVITY IN VICTORIA

Appareitly there is going to be quite a change in the above property this spring. The council have decided to grade Gilmour street and Homewood avenue through this property, and with the extension of the sidewalk, together with the sewer and water now laid in to the front of the lots, it seems that this property will gradually round in to the very best residential building property in the city. H. J. McCannan & Co., who are handling this property for the Hamilton Realty Co., report that three more new houses are to be commenced this spring, with prospects of more, as clients are negotiating about buying these lots to build. They also report that lots can be purchasd very cheaply and on easy terms, and anyone buying lots to-day will receive good profits before long.

EGG POOL FORMED BY BAILIEBORO FARMERS

BAILIEBORO, March 22.—The farmers of South Monaghan, with their wives, held a meeting in the Council Chamber on Wednesday evening to discuss the question of forming an egg pool in this district.

The attendance was about fifty, and no doubt many more would have been there had the road' been in a better condition.

Mr. A. H. Wilford, special representative of the United Farmers' Co-operative Co. Ltd., of Toronto, was present, and delivered a very instructive address on the co-operative marketing of poultry and eggs.

After the speaker had delivered his address, he spent some time answering any questions that anyone might want to ask. When he had made the matter clear to all, and explained all their difficulties, he then asked the meeting how many there were who were present that were in favor of forming an egg pool. Everyone present were strongly in favor of forming one.

The president of the U.F.O. Club then took charge of the meeting, and a committee, composed of Edmund Dawson (president), Harold Bebee (secretary), Mrs. Fred Wood, Miss Sylvena Rutherford, Messrs. William Finnemore and John Willan, were appointed to arrange and look after the business for this district. There are a great many hens kept by the farmers of this township and a great many eggs shipped out every season, therefore an egg pool will, no doubt, be a big advantage to the poultrymen and farmers.

Motor Van Stalled.

The roads at present are in an extremely bad condition for traffic. Some places there is still a great quantity of snow on the road, while in other places there are stretches of road bare for one-half of a mile. At present there is neither wheeling or sleighing. Wednesday, a moving van made its way from Niagara, U.S., to this village. It was en route for Peterboro, but could not get through the snow banks between here and Fraserville, so the furniture was unloaded on to a sleigh and one of the villagers drew the load to Peterboro.

The driver of the truck stated that he had found good roads practically all the way from the States until he reached the snow banks on the hill on the north side of this village...

Ford Got Through.

On Thursday a Ford toruing car made the grade between Port Hope and Peterboro, after having considerable trouble getting through two bad drifts.

The rural mail-men are having an extremely hard time getting around their routes, but few are making their entire route daily as it is too heavy a pull on their horses.

Cars on Rice Lake.

Rice Lake has been in splendid shape during the past two weeks for hauling loads on. The farmers are taking advantage of the good ice, and there is a large quantity of logs going into the Bewdley sawmill daily, and those who are operating the mill are kept very busy sawing custom logs.

AFTERNOON FUNCTIONS

By "THE STROLLER."

NEW YORK, March 21.—(United Press).—Well, what about these afternoon functions? How about these weddings and teas and funerals that are held in daylight hours? These are questions which confront most of us at some time or other during our earthly stay. Just what is best for the average fellow?

Not the percentum equivalent to the legal alcoholic content of liquor among American men possess the formal regalia which M. Brummel dictates shall be worn at formal affairs staged between dawn and dusk. The morning coat formal suit is widely snickered at, yet it is high in the favor of those who prescribe what to wear and when to wear it.

The Great War left in its wake shattered conventions, as much as it did broken lives and devastated cities. Informality was the cry during the years following the world conflict. Today, even at the Metropolitan Opera, the shrine of fashionably dressed people, the informal note has not yet entirely disappeared.

Business affairs, as well as personal, sometimes require attendance at a formal or semi-formal daylight function. If you have no "Prince Albert" as the formal day uniform is familiarly known, look over your wardrobe and see if you haven't a sackcoat of oxford gray or black or real dark navy blue. A double-breasted one is to be preferred. Then, rummage around and see if there isn't a pair of gray striped trousers. The vest should be of the same material as the coat, unless a fancy vest of rather subdued pattern and hue is to be numbered among your possessions. Spats are generally worn, but with an informal-formal outfit such as that just described, they are not at all essential.

The collar worn should be the wing-collar, customarily worn with evening regalia. The tie may be the four-in-hand or the bat-wing, with the latter earning favor nowadays.

Of course, this suggestion is for those who are merely guests and not the ring-leaders in the entertainment. The bridegroom and the best man must be attired in the "set" regalia, but a guest is more privileged in his choice of wear.

Dress at Funerals

At the funeral of some prominent personage, where formal attire is required, if one is to be an honorary pallbearer, for instance, it is essential that formal wear be adhered to in order to strike an incongruous note. But attending a funeral simply as a mourner or friend of the deceased, requires but the exercise of good taste in selecting clothing of sufficient severity and simplicity in keeping with the custom of formal wear at prominent funerals, or obscure ones, is a ridiculous one—but who are we that we should rebuke and revolt?

Certainly, a gay note may be struck in the choice of wear for a social afternoon function (if you can be seduced into attending one), such as a musicale or tea or bridge. A bright tie would not be out of place, and with the four-in-hand tie, a turndown collar would not lead to your rejection at the door.

CALGARY VS. CANADIENS AT MONTREAL TONIGHT

The Arena Ice Has Been Scraped and Surface Is Fair—Teams Play the Second Game in Ottawa on Tuesday — Frank Patrick Disappointed.

MONTREAL, March 22.—Canadians and Calgary Tigers will play at the Mount Royal Arena to-night in their first game of the final series for the Stanley Cup, according to a statement made here by President Frank Calder, of the National Hockey League, who is in charge of the titular matches in the east this season. At the same time it was stated that definite plan have also been concluded for the second game of the round, scheduled for Ottawa on Tuesday night. To transport the two teams and any Montreal supporters who may wish to journey to the Capital to witness the struggle, the hockey officials have arranged for a special train to leave Tuesday afternoon returning to the city after the game under similar plans as those that existed when Canadiens and Ottawa Senators met in the final N.H.L. play off game almost two weeks ago.

Level off Ice

That a suitable ice surface might be available for to-night's game at the Arena it is proposed to obtain proper ice scrapers and the surface at the Arena will be levelled off. At present there is some eight inches or more of ice and a scraping machine could level the top and leave the sheet in fair condition for a game. The visiting players have expressed themselves as willing to play here and, while Canadiens would prefer faster ice, they will start the final spurt for laurels before Montrealers who have supported them all season long in their uphill fight.

While negotiations have been going on the Vancouver Maroons eliminated in the semi-finals by the Canadiens Thursday night were quietly preparing to leave for their homes, and last night the majority left the city.

Patrick's Comment

Frank Patrick, president of the Coast League, said that he and his team felt keenly the fact that they were unsuccessful in their quest of the Stanley Cup.

"Canadiens have a wonderful team," he said, "and they beat us fairly, but it was unfortunate that we had to play a world series semi-final under the conditions that have prevailed. Our boys would have been much better on a hard sheet of ice."

He further stated that he believed the Calgary team would make a great showing against the Montrealers in the final series. "They will be heard from," he remarked.

Division of Gate

The Star says: "No official statement has been obtainable from any source as yet in regard to the money the players have made out of the Canadian Vancouver series, but as near as can be figured out without official data, it should amount about to this:

"Of the gross receipts of the two matches, the arena gets about $4,500. After the percentage due to the competing leagues and the travelling expenses of Vancouver, somewhat over $2,000 are taken from the residue, there remains about $5,000 to be divided amongst the teams, each team to be considered of ten more strength. As the money is divided on the basis of 60 per cent to the winners, and 40 per cent to the losers, each Canadian player will get about $330 and each Vancouver player about $220.

"The club owners get nothing."

Bowling

NEW LEAGUE FORMED

At an enthusiastic meeting of the different captains, at Solomon's Alleys, a new ten pin league was formed. This league will have a single single schedule and will start next Monday. There were eight teams entered as follows: C.P.C., Belmont Club, Crescents, De Laval, Lawn Bowlers High Rollers, C.G.E. and Examiner. The outlook for the success of the league is very bright and every team in the league will be strengthened by new material.

WILL HOLD TOURNAMENT

The Belmont Club are holding a ten pin bowling tournament next Wednesday night at 7 o'clock at Solomon's Alleys. There will be over 45 members competing in this tournament and it should be a roaring success. A great time and lots of fun is expected by the boys, and there is no doubt of the amount of fun they will get out of this rolling. It is likely there will be a large crowd on hand to witness the tournament.

BLIND SCORE MONDAY

The Mercantile League bowlers are reminded of the blind score prize which will be rolled for Monday. The boys wil have some great fun out of this as a blind score rolling always assures you of great fun. The blind score is 150 and the rolling starts at 7 p.m.

LEADS FOR PRIZE

Mrs. W. Barringer is now leading the ladies for the beautiful lamp prize being given at Solomon's Alleys. Mrs. Barringer rolled the sensationally high single score of 234.

There were lots of ladies rolling yesterday at the alleys, the Quaker Oats office girls being over. One of the ladies rolled a nice score of 202.

ROLLS BIG SCORE

Mr. Rattenbury while rolling at Solomon's Alleys yesterday rolling a wonderfully high single game of 354. Mr. Rattenbury is one of the best bowlers on the Red Ferns' team and has been rolling some high games lately, but yesterday was his best effort. This is a great score and is one of the best that has been rolled at Solomon's Alleys in a game of five pins this year. Some of the boys around said that Mr. Rattenbury's great scores were due to the fact that Mr. Solomon dined at Cressman's Tea Room, and that he used his influence over his pin boys, but "King Tut" denies this statement and says that the good scores set up lately by Mr. Rattenbury are due to his great skill alone.

NEXT WEEK'S BOWLING AT SOLOMON'S ALLEYS (City Ten Pin League)

Monday—High Rollers vs C.P.C.
Tuesday—Belmont Club vs Crescents.
Thursday—De Laval vs Lawn Bowlers.
Friday—Examiner vs C.G.E.

GREYBIRDS JOINED TRI-COUNTY LEAGUE

The other towns in the league are Newmarket, Sutton, Uxbridge, Stouffville, Beaverton, Cannington, Sunderland and Orillia.

Levi, Greatest Indian Athlete

THAT'S THE COMPLIMENT PAID HIM BY FAMOUS JIM THORPE

Showing John Levi, the Versatile Indian Athlete of Haskell University, In Native Garb and In Various Athletic Poses — Levi Is Called the Greatest Indian Star Since Jim Thorpe's Time.

John Levi, full-blooded Arapahoe Indian, by competing for Haskell Institute of Lawrence, Kas., in four major sports this season will go far toward proving the verdict delivered by Jim Thorpe last fall, who predicted Levi would be the greatest all-round Indian athlete of all time.

Thorpe saw Levi in action in the football game which Haskell lost to Minnesota University, 12 to 13, at Minneapolis last fall. In that game Levi took the opening kickoff of the second half and ran 85 yards through the entire Gopher team for a touchdown.

Offer From Yankees.

Levi has had bids to join the Yankee baseball club this spring but has about decided that he will finish his school work at Haskell and take on another year of football before trying out with the major league team. Big Jawn plays first base for Haskell when the diamond sport is on and he has height and reach that will cover anything within a radius of nine feet of the first sack.

The other two sports in which Levi participates are basketball and track. In basketball he holds down center and every box score shows five or six baskets to his credit.

Makes Track Debut.

In track Levi is just developing. Last season was his first cinder and field competition and he scored a notable achievement when he finished as high point man in a dual meet with Nebraska University, the outdoor champion in track of the Missouri Valley Conference.

Levi's point score in that meet was 15½. His best records in track to date are 16-pound shot put, 43 feet 7½ inches; discus throw, 136 feet 8 inches; high jump, 6 feet; 120-yard high hurdles, 15.3 seconds; 220-yard low hurdles, 25.2 seconds.

What Levi will be able to do in track in his second season now opening is problematical, but consistent development will cause Coach Frank W. McDonald to enter Levi in the Midwestern Olympic tryouts, which fortunately are to be held right in Lawrence on the stadium track of the University of Kansas.

Stars on Gridiron.

His greatest performances to date have been in football, probably because he has been playing the gridiron game for several seasons. His 200 pounds and speed count for much and he is rated as one of the hardest line plungers in the game.

Record Forward Pass.

At forward passing he is a marvel. His longest pass completed in a game is recorded at 58 yards, but in exhibition passing at Minneapolis and San Antonio last fall before newspaper men Big Jawn flung the pigskin 83 yards.

He is also an exceptional punter. His longest boot the past season was for 72 yards in the game Haskell played on Christmas Day with the Olympic Club eleven at Los Angeles. And that pun was so high that the fast Haskell ends were able to be down to nail the receiver in his tracks, despite the exceptional distance down the chalklines.

OWEN SOUND IN WINNIPEG GAME.

Play Western Champions To-Night For the Junior Championship of Canada

WINNIPEG, March 22.—(Canadain Press.)—Nine hours overdue, the train carrying Owen Sound's sturdy aggregation of junior puck sahsers arrived here late last night Jimmy Jamieson, manager of the team, reported the boys to be in fairly good shape despite their long trip. They will play the western champions to-night in the Memorial Cup series, emblematic of the junior championship of Canada.

SELKIRKS REPRESENT WEST IN ALLAN CUP.

Defeated Bellevue, Alberta, Last Night 4 to 0—A Classy Aggregation.

WINNIPEG, March 22.—(Canadian Press.)—Selkirk's classy hockey team will represent Western Canada in the Allan Cup finals in the east next Thursday and Saturday.

They earned the right last night when they shut out the sturdy and plucky aggregation of puck chasers from Bellevue, Alberta, by a score of 4 to 0. As Selkirks won the first game 3 to 1 they captured the round by seven to one.

The contest was a repetition of the first conflict between the teams with the visitors uncovering a stout defence but lacking finish to break through Manitoba's defence and were seldom dangerous, but they kept their tricky and well organized opponents working their hardest to score the four tallies. The visitors showed plenty of speed, particularly in back checking and upset many well organized Selkirk attacks by coming from behind to overtake an opponent, while Mackie and his poke check broke up several dangerous looking rushes.

Selkirks tallied twice in the first period, O'Meara getting the first one on a neat pass from Benard, the tricky centre players of the winners. They got another when Jack Hughes drove a sizzler from the face-off which careened off the goaltender's stick into the net.

Stable of Yearling Trotters Purchased.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Walter T. Gendler, of Atlanta, Ga., has bought the entire collection of yearlings by the late famous trotting speed sire, Peter the Great from Thomas D. Taggart's Laurel Hall Farm, near Goshen, N. Y., it was learned Friday. Mr. Gandler was said to have paid $55,000 for the lot, which numbers 19.

The yearlings are all out of noted brood mares collected by the former owner of Laurel Hall Farm, which several years ago bought Peter the Great, then 22 years old, from W. E. D. Stokes for $50,000.

FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

ARLINGTON, N.J., March 21.—(Canadian Press).—Roy Wingate was found shot to death lying on bed in his room late last night and his wife, lying nearby, was bleeding from wounds near heart. Revolver was clutched in his hand. Mrs. Wingate accused husband of shooting her and then taking his own life. Family is socially prominent here.

FRENCH TAX ON SPORT REVOKED

PARIS, March 22.—Premier Poincare made himself solid with the lovers of sports and athletics in France when he eliminated from his fiscal measures yesterday an article taxing the gate receipts at outdoor athletic and sporting meets.

Deputy Sarumder, acting in behalf of Gaston Vidal, who was unable to present an amendment to a Government-sponsored bill because he is a member of the Cabinet, asked the Government to eliminate the article, saying:

"This article does not deal with getting back stolen money from old, hardened war profiteers, but prejudices the most interesting portion of our splendid youth."

M. Poincare then agreed to accept suppression of the tax.

The athletic federations are jubilant, the general comment being that the move will not hurt the Government's chances at the next elections.

Yanks Centre Field Crowded Just Like Subway, Says Witt

Whitey Finds Stiff Competition With Combs and Haines Out For His Place

NEW ORLEANS, March 22.—A most curious little person wandered about the Yankees' apple orchard today and tried faithfully to do his stuff.

"My boy," he complained to an innocent bystander in a high, querlous voice, 'the traffic and congestion out there in centre field are sumthin' fierce. My boy, it's just like the subway back in New York. Yes, sir, my boy."

Everybody is "my boy" to Whitey Witt, and to everybody who rubs elbows with him in baseball, in hotel lobbies, on trains and in dining rooms. Whitey—pink of face and blue of eye—is just a boy, a funny little boy philosopher.

"My boy," he repeated, "it sure is crowded out there."

Hinkey Haines, who will be a gleaming star if his conversion into a left-handed hitter is successful, was prowling about precincts over which Whitey had exercised a tyrannical rule since he came to the Yankees in '22, after Elmer Miller had been tried and found wanting.

The Yankees searched far and wide for a capable center fielder, and in Philadelphia they found Whitey, his soul warped and sour. Whitey had had some words with Connie Mack, and he was disgruntled. He hated Philadelphia. He wanted to get away. He went, and he came to New York, and the Yankess won another pennant—their second. Whitey was a sensation. He was worth more than his weight in gold. After all, he weighs only 155 pounds.

Coombs was out there in centre field today, taking turns with Whitey and Hinkey at fielding the ball. Some pitchers were also out there hagging flies, and occasionally Harvey Hendrick dfirted over. The traffic certainly was 'sumthin' fierce.'

Make Sure of a Season's Satisfaction with Gum-Dipped Cords

Gum-dipping is a special Firestone process that saturates each cord with pure, live rubber. Cords thus insulated are kept from rubbing against one another and guarded against internal heat and friction, a tire's worst enemy.

The carcass of a Gum-Dipped Cord stays cooler—therefore lasts longer. There is less friction to generate heat and the tire is stronger, more resilient and easier riding.

Firestone Steam-Welded Tubes are made leak proof by a steam welding process. This keeps tires properly inflated—helps them give maximum mileage.

Start the season right by equipping with Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords and Steam-Welded Tubes. You'll save money, you'll have less trouble and you'll enjoy every mile you travel more. There is a Firestone dealer near you who will take care of your requirements and follow this up with good service throughout the year.

New York Stock Exchange and Curb Prices

TO-DAY'S QUOTATIONS AND OPINION AND REVIEWS OF THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, March 22.— (United Press).—Price movements in the closing session of the week in the stock exchange presented striking contrasts. Professional operators took advantage of widespread reports of curtailment in the motor industry to launch a vicious drive against Studebaker and other representative automobile shares.

This movement which forced new lows for the year in this class of stocks, proceeded simultaneously with vigorous operations for the rise in Delaware, Lackawanna and Western which advanced sharply to the best levels of 1924.

Such confusion is speculative activities is more or less a reflection of the situation in business fields, where trade reviews report general hesitency as a matter of fact there has been no general hesitation since the first of the year. But in spite of this labor has kept fully employed.

The bear operators opened their concentrated attacks on the motors at the start of the second hour, creating the unsettlement in the general list being induced to undertake this movement as the result of ugly rumors which were circulated concerning the outlook for the industry.

Studebaker broke to a further new low at 93 7-8 and other representative issues of this class broke accordingly. Good buying came into steel, which had been under accumulation since it dropped below par.

Bewildering price movements continued in the closing dealings. Whole sale selling of Studebaker was at its height forcing the stock down to a extreme low of 93 compared with the years high at 108 1-4 constructive activities went ahead among the rails and oils. Lackawanna continued the outstanding feature of the carrier group, reaching a high of 124 against Fridays low of 115 3-4.

Among the oils, Marland reached new high ground on the current recovery at 37, Coben at 35 1-2 Houston at 70 1-2 and Phillips at 40 3-4.

The weekly trade reviews reported indications of big bear year in building, stating that the steel and automobile industries were leading in point of activity. Although mercantile is conditions were described as spotty, this situation was clearly due to the peristent refusal of buyers to place forward orders, demonstrating that no piling up of goods was taking place, and that the demand would necessarily continued.

Stocks maintained in the early dealings the letter action noticeable throughout the greater part of Friday's session. Further recoveries were scored by the industrial leaders and D. L. and W. enlivened the rail group by a spurt to a new high for the year at 121.

One of the persistent rumors heard in connection with the advance in Lackawanna is that the road seeks control of Wabash.

A PRESCRIPTION FOR HEALTH AND MENTAL FEELING.

Health Is Obtained By Open Air Exercise and the Habit of Moderate Eating.

BY HAROLD B. MATSON

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 20.—A prescription for health and mental alertness unto 90—

"Eat moderately, sleep at least seven hours a night with windows open, take regular exercise in the open air, all natural delights without excess in any, and keep under all circumstances a serene spirit as possible."

He will be 90 years old March 20.

"My experience does not furnish a short, explicit prescription for keeping health and working power, probably because many and various causes have contributed to the result," he says.

"That I have borne much labor and responsibility without suffering even temporary breakdowns, seems to be due—after the inheritance of a sound constitution—to my possession of a good muscular and nervous system, prescribed by open air exercise and the habit of moderate eating.

"It may have contributed to the fortunate result that at no time of my life have I ever made use of nerve stimulants like tea, coffee, tobacco or alcohol, although I have never been a total abstainer from any of these stimulants except coffee. When I have taken them it has always been in dilute forms."

He is a firm believer in the good effects of change of one's environments. During his life he has always spent summer vacations in the country, and in his earlier days at sea in a sloop among the New England coast.

"It gave me a strong and wholesome change of air," Dr. Eliot explains, "and also of mental occupation, for I went as skipper and pilot."

Another important factor in his life has been his ability to sleep.

"I could spend long evenings in stirring debates and go to sleep on getting home. I could write diligently on an interesting subject until 11 o'clock and be asleep the moment I got into bed", he asserts.

Moderation came to him naturally, according to his own words, and was not the result of a peculiar wisdom or lively sense of duty.

The famous educator is also aware of two mental and moral conditions which have contributed to his safe endurance of physical and mental strains. They are: calm temperament and ability to avoid anticipation of disappointments and vain regrets.

"He who desires calm temperament will do well to be provided with strong muscles and obedient nerves," Dr. Eliot observes.

And he emphasizes his belief that "spiritual influences of love and good will" cannot be excluded from a life if it is to be one of "real joy and satisfaction."

Few men at 90 are able to live the pace of Dr. Eliot.

He is as active as a man of 60, although he has recently undertaken to guard his physical strength, living somewhat of a secluded life.

Close associates assert that he is as intellectually alert today as he was 15 years ago when he retired from the post as head of Harvard.

Perhaps, the outstanding thing about his intellectual interests is that he looks forward, never backward. He is intersted in tomorrow, not yesterday. The future of humanity holds his attention, never its past.

He has absolute faith in democracy, firmly believing that education and religion are the fundamentals of democracy.

AT THE CAPITOL

THRILLING STORY OF RUSSIA IS AT THE CAPITOL ON MONDAY

"The Rendezvous" at the Capitol Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday is a story of Red Russia

In order to punish his cousin, Prince Sergei Tamiroff, who has married without his consent, the Czar banishes him and his wife, Varvara, to Siberia. Unable to endure the hardships of the climate. Varvara dies leaving him a baby girl, Vera. As a token of his undying love, the Prince builds a shrine outside the village where a flame is kept lighted day and night. One evening Sergei is warned that enemies at court threaten his liberty. He escapes in time, leaving his baby to the care of his friend Vassily. Sergei never returns, and Vera grows up in ignorance of her royal parentage. But she has heard the story of the Prince's great love, and she helps Vassily tend the shrine daily.

Fifteen years later the war breaks out, and Siberia falls into the hands of some unscrupulous cossacks, led by Juan Godunoff. To Siberia also comes Walter Stanford, an American officer. He saves Vera, now a girl of eighteen, from Juan's unwelcome attentions, and the young people's friendship soon grows into love. They use the shrine for their rendezvous. Walter's company is ordered back to America, and Vera is left to the mercy of Godunoff who is now Governor.

Her only protector is Winkie, a comical English soldier, Walter's friend. Godunoff causes Vassily's arrest and in order to save the man whom she believes her father, Vera consents to marry the cossack. Unknown to her Vassily is treacherously killed on her marriage day. But the cossack meets his punishment the same day, when two agents of the Commissary government reach town and throw him in prison.

A few months later he escapes and returns to the town for revenge. In a fit of rage he beats up Vera who becomes deaf as a result of her injuries. In America Walter has persuaded his mother to come with him to Siberia. With the help of the Commissars Vera's marriage to Godunoff is annulled and her return to America as Walter's wife is made possible. Before leaving, she returns to the shrine to lock the door. Godunoff who has heard of Walter's return, is hidden inside, expecting another rendezvous of the young lovers and bent on killing them both. Not knowning this Vera locks him in, condemning him to a living tomb, while she leaves for America and happiness.

AT THE ROYAL

"THE STRANGER" AT ROYAL, MONDAY

Great Story with Great Cast, Betty Compson, Richard Dix, Tully Marshall, Lewis Stone, etc.

Critics and theatre-goers, who have been clamering for something different in the way of motion picture story material and plot development, are certain to welcome Joseph Henabery's production, "The Stranger."

The original story, from which the screen play of "The Stranger" was adapted by Edfrid Bingham, was written by no less an authority of novel plot construction and characterization than John Galsworthy, famous British novelist and playwright, under the title "The First and the Last."

So well did Galsworthy like the theme of this story that he used it three times: First as an abbreviated short story, next as a play, and finally as an elaborated short story. It was the first publication of it in the Cosmopolitan Magazine that attracted the attention of Joseph Henabery and paved the way for its present presentation on the screen.

If Galsworthy had deliberately set out to avoid all of the conventions of story telling he would have difficulty in finding a better theme or a more gripping series of situations and the adaptors of the story have utilized all three of Galsworthy's treatments of the basic story in constructing their screen play. Situations that are intensely real and vital, but startlingly at variance with the situations of the conventional drama, were the things that attracted Henabery's attention at the time of his first reading, and the same unique quality is destined to be one of the salient features of the finished picture.

To portray one of the quartet of principal characters in this story, Paramount called Betty Compson from England to be featured with Richard Dix, Lewis Stone and Tully Marshall. Robert Schable, Clarence Burton and Frank Nelson are a few of the capable players in the strong supporting cast, which will open a run of three days at the Royal Theatre on Monday next.

"HOTTENTOT RACE CONSUMED ALMOST 20 MILES OF FILM

Nearly forty miles of film was used to produce "The Hottentot," which is showing at the Royal on Thursday, Friday, Saturday of next week. Most of the two hundred thousand celluloid feet consumed in the picture was used to take the steeplechase, which forms the climax of the story.

The race, which is one of the most exciting ever screened, was so difficult to take, owing to its rapidity of movement, that a whole battery of cameras were used to get the action from a series of different angles. As a result, some wonderful pictures have been secured. You get all the thrills of a fast horse race and none of the discomforts of standing in a racing stand on a hot day surrounded by a jam of shrieking fans dancing up and down on your feet and screaming your ears.

Director Del Andrews worked a month filming the steeplechase. A number of crack polo players and gentlemen riders rode in it as a lark. Several of them were injured in falls at the hurdles, but they all declared that it was worth while to have taken part in such a sporting event.

Douglas MacLean, Madge Bellamy and Raymond Hatton head the cast of the exciting drama in which William Collier scored a tremendous hit on the stage.

With its unique combination of sure-fire comedy and powerful drama, The Hottentot is certain to win immediate recognition as the biggest comedy drama special of the season.

HAL ROACH MAKES NEW NOVELTY FOR SILVER SCREEN

After Revolutionizing Comedy With Harold Lloyd As Star, Noted Producer Takes Fling At Serial Production—"Her Dangerous Path" Is Different From Anything Ever Produced and Will Show Fans the Short Story Serial Here Monday at the Regent.

Hal Roach has introduced many novelties to the screen.

He has revolutioned comedy.

Now the serial field is claiming his genius again.

When he made "The Timber Queen," with Ruth Roland, many predicted he had reached the heights in thrill serials.

Perhaps he did, for he then turned his attention to a new type of chapter play—the human interest kind, with a real story to tell—a story that will interest every woman who patronizes a motion picture theatre.

In "Her Dangerous Path" which he has produced in ten episodes with Edna Murphy in the featured role for Pathe, Roach has made a distinctive step in the advancement of the serial. Every episode tells a complete story. Separated from any other unit of the series, it would stilly be a highly interesting production.

The story was conceived by Roach and developed by Frank Howard Clark. Wong Hong, Chinese servant and philosopher, to whom Corrinne Grant (in the story) comes for council, tells her by reading the sands of destiny what would happen in the event that she married each of her suitors.

This might be termed a short-story serial, for each episode really is a short story in itself.

Clements, before taking up screen work, was a noted stage director, his last work along that line being the revising and staging of "Monsieur Beaucaire," for James K. Hackett.

Lynch was dethroned after one of the sorriest exhibitions a title holder has given in the Metropolitan ring in years. He fought a sluggish, listless battle from start to finish.

NATURE AT HER BEST.

Those who appreciate nature at her best and revel in a wealth of variegated scenery, will find the route travelled by the Canadian National Railways between Toronto and Vancouver, one of never-to-be-forgotten beauty.

First through the inimitable lake region of Northern Ontario, skirting many placid, mirrorlike lakes pocketed between tree-clad hills, catching a fleeting glimpse of many portentous, rock-strewn little waterways dashing madly towards the quiet level of the lakes below. From Winnipeg the fertile Prairie Provinces treat the traveller to a type of gently undulating scenery not to be seen in any other part of Canada.

The ever-changing scenery of the Canadian Rockies never grows wearisome, no matter how often it is viewed. Jasper Park, with its protected wild game and beauteous Mt. Edith Cavell; colossal Mt. Robson, gigantic, slow - moving glaciers stretching from snowclad peaks, are only a few of nature's wonders the traveller by the Canadian National Route sees before descending to the balmy climate of Vancouver and the Pacific Coast.

There are two Canadian National trains leave Toronto daily for the West. The National carrying standard sleeping car and compartment observation car departs at 10.45 p.m. Steel equipped, the National is luxurious in every detail. A standard sleeping car connecting with the Continental Limited, the train de luxe of the Canadian National System, leaves Toronto every evening at 8.45.

Travellers to California or other points on the Pacific Coast usually take the famous scenic route through Canada because of its beauty. Excellent connections are made at Vancouver with both steamship and train.

A Severe Attack Of Heart Trouble Wa Relieved By MILBURN'S Heart and Nerve Pills

Mr. S. E. Barnes, Athens, Ont., writes:—"Four years ago I had a very severe attack of heart trouble. I consulted my doctor; he treated me for some time, but I only seemed to be getting worse. I finally went to our druggist and purchased three boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and derived immediate relief from their use, and I can truthfully say they are a wonderful medicine. I always keep a box on hand, and if I feel out of sorts I take a few pills and feel all right again."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Steve O'Neill is still a mighty good catcher. Like all players anxious to have a big season after being traded, O'Neill is due to have one of his best years.

The efficiency of the Boston pitchers should be increased at least 20 per cent under his direction. That means considerable in the winning of ball games.

Fohl, himself a catcher during his playing days, has the uncanny ability of getting the best there is out of his pitching material.

TORONTO POLICE IN A GUN FIGHT

TORONTO, March 22. — Canadian Press. — Without warning and without provocation three constables from Pape avenue police station were fired upon by a gang of men about 5:30 this morning in the Don Valley. Outnumbered and hardly able to see their assailants, the officers fired but a few shots in return, and then pluckily gave chase.

The three policemen had assembled at the call of a plainclothesman who had heard that an attempted robbery had been foiled in Rosedale, the fashionable residential district, and that the robbers were making their way to the Don valley.

Luckily the officers were not hit but from the shots fired by the gunmen they believed the gang numbered at least five or six

ATTACK ON AMERICAN FREIGHT REDUCTIONS

ROME, March 22. — (United Press).—The Interstate Commerce Commission's decision granting reductions in freight rates in American bottoms constitutes a fresh discrimination in international trade, similar to that resorted to in England concerning the export of coal, comments the Messager to-day. Furthermore, adds the journal, it shows the strong, rich nations are pursuing a strict national protection policy and also demonstrates the meagerness of the theory of European solidarity and of economic collaboration between America and Europe. Italy, possessing a transoceanic merchant marine, concludes the article, should worry seriously over the results of this new American prohibition.

Mr. H. Gillespie, of Lindsay, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Lee.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wilson, of Young's Point, and daughter Dorothy, have gone on a visit to Toronto.

A recent issue of the Lindsay "Post" carries a very complimentary reference to the work of Mrs. W. Lloyd Wood in an organ recital given at the Cambridge Street Methodist Church in Lindsay, with assistance of Mrs. Walter E. Reesor, soprano, and Mr. James Mackey, baritone. The progress, which was characterized as a "rare treat," included several organ numbers by Mrs. Wood, well known in Peterboro as Miss Ida Sanderson.

HORSES CHEAP LOCAL MARKET

One Sold For Sixteen Dollars--Butter and Eggs Plentiful.

Carts on the open section of the farmers' market this morning were few and far between. The majority came in on wheels, but there were two or three runners. The roads in the country, it is reported, are still snow-lined, but the city causeways are thick with mud.

Potatoes this morning were up to $1.95 a bag. The roots on sale were at prevailing prices, with winter radishes reappearing at 10c a peck. Beans were 15c and 20c a measure. Little Tamworth and Yorkshire piglets were $10 and $12 a pair with the prospect of contributing half a dozen specimens to the pigsty at a cut rate of $25 for the lot. Two blazing-combed Black Minorcas could be had for $2.50 apiece. Apples, with some good looking russets and Golman Sweets included, were 50c a peck and Spys were 75c.

In the basket section, eggs were down to a low price of 25c a dozen, with 27 and 28c asked at other sections. Butter and eggs were both plentiful, the former seling at 43 and 45c a pound. Chickens were generaly priced at 30c a pound, with a few ducks at the same price. Honey in five pound pails was 70c for the pure clover and 45c for the mixed. A small boy selling his mother's canned fruit had a dozen assorted jars at 50c apiece.

A young man was demonstrating a new idea in embroidery needles, deftly illustrating his remarks with quick stitches in the beautiful chenille flower that he was working on. Knitted socks were $1 a pair.

One man selling seedling onions had to put away his product until such time as a license for such vending comes back to him from Ottawa. An officer of the law was busy on the market this morning enforcing the new law with regard to the licensing such vendors, and helped himself with a liberal hand from the supply on hand, to be placed in an envelope and forwarded to the authorities at the capital for inspection.

A solitary load of wood was on sale on the open section, in hardwood slabs, at $13 for the load, ro $14, cut in stave lengths.

Several horses were auctioned off A friendly pair that had seen better days went for $21 and $16 apiece. A big bay, built on generous high lines, brought $76.

The father, hearing the cries of the child, rushed to the rescue, and in trying to lift the child, who was nearly submerged by the lye, burned his hands so seriously that amputation may be necessary.

"Fondly loved and sadly missed."
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, fond and true;
There is not a day, dear Ernest,
That we do not think of you.
Just a thought of sweet remembrance
Just a memory fond and true;
Just a token of affection,
And a heartache, just for you.
Do not ask us if we miss him,
Long to see his smiling face;
But in memory he is dearer—
No one here can take his place.

ARCHBISHOP RELEASED FROM RUSSIAN PRISON

By John Graudenz.

MOSCOW, March 22.— (United Press.)—On the eve of an expected pronouncement by Pope Pius regarding Soviet Russia, Archbishop Zepliak has been released from prison after serving a year of his ten year sentence for conspiracy against the Government.

It will be recalled that recently the Pope appealed to Premier MacDonald of England, to use his influence in obtaining Zepliak's release. Since then, it has been reported that the Pope was preparing a statement on Russia to be delivered next week. Zepliak originally was sentenced to death on conviction on charges of opposing seizure of church property and conspiring with the enemy during the Polish offensive. Later his sentence was commuted to ten years in prison. He will now be expelled from Russia. Simultaneously it was announced that the case against Patriarch Tikhon and his co-defendants, accused on the same charges for which Zepliak was sentenced, has been dropped completely.

Action on the government is attributed to the fact that "the population is becoming less superstitious about religion and is turning more and more to the study of science."

Partain claimed that he had paid for a six months' subscription and then after receiving the paper for a short time it had been stopped by Alexander. He presented a receipt and was awarded judgment.

KING EDWARD SCHOOL ASSOCIATION MEETING

The regular meeting of the King Edward Home and School Association was held yesterday afternoon in the school. Good reports were given by the secretary, Mrs. James Gerard, and the treasurer, Mrs. J. O. Fife. The president, Mrs. J. J. Pollock, was in the chair. An interesting and instructive address by Dr. A. W. McPherson dealt with "Prevention and Treatment of Infectious Diseases in Children." The doctor, who said that a knowledge by the parents of how to prevent and treat infectious diseases in children might often obviate the necessity of summoning a physician, gave some helpful information along this line, speaking of measles, diphtheria, whooping cough, smallpox, chicken-pox, and tonsilitis, the last of which he characterized as being more serious than was generally supposed, on account of often leading up to more dangerous forms of infection.

During the meeting an enjoyable vocal solo was given by Miss Violet Buckham, in "Mother Machree," with accompaniment by Miss L. Eliot.

POLITICIANS CAN'T FORGET EXPERIENCE

LONDON, March 22. Canadian Press Cable. — In a speech at Newport last night, J. H. Thomas, Colonial Secretary, said that men faced with the responsibilities of office and responsibilities of knowledge of what the great Empire meant could never again be as indifferent to propagandists as they were in the past. They must remain for all time responsible politicians, keeping in mind only the great interests of the country.

He said it was no use shouting in the House of Commons that Labor leaders were inconsistent; only cowards failed to face facts.

ROXIE STINSON TOOK WITNESS STAND AGAIN

WASHINGTON, March 22 (Canadian Press). — Roxie Stinson, divorced wife of Jesse Smith "Bumper," and friend of Attorney-General Daugherty, resumed the witness stand to-day before the Daugherty Investigating Committee, and brought her letters to support her story of last week.

First she denied that she was "a disappointed woman," and declared Smith had never led her to believe that she was to be his sole heir.

"Just utterly false," said Miss Stinson of the Attorney-General's charge that she had attempted to "capitalise her silence."

A young man named Lyle Johnson, Miss Stinson said, who represented himself as coming from Washington, offered her $1,000 for a lead on where to go to get information.

Miss Stinson said she refused to give any information to anybody until after she talked with Senator Wheeler.

For six months before his death Jesse Smith had been 'in fear," Miss Stinson said, and the last evening they had together he spent mostly in telling "what not to tell and what bank books and papers to destroy."

Some of Mr. Daugherty's statements, she said, were 'gossip, incompetent and malicious."

Harry F. Sinclair refused to-day to testify further before the Oil Committee, on the ground that any evidence he may possess should be reserved for the Courts. He said he did not desire to plead that his replies to the investigators might incriminate him because there was nothing incriminating the facts of the Teapot Dome lease.

Will H. Hays flatly denied before the Senate Oil Committee to-day that Harry F. Sinclair had given any stock to wipe out a $1,000,000 deficit of the Republican National Committee after the 1920 campaign.

MONTREAL CONSERVATIVE BANQUET FEATURED BY LAVERGNE'S TRIBUTE TO MEIGHEN AND HIS LEADERSHIP

Quebec Nationalist Declared Solid Bloc of Liberals Had Done Nothing For the Province That Elected Them—"Industries Going to the Dogs," He Declared, and Thousands Leave Country—Meighen Advocated Policy of Protection in East and West —Lavergue Admired His Moral Courage—Chiefs of Party Find Conservative Sentiment Growing.

ALL PROVINCES REPRESENTED.

MONTREAL, March 24.—(Canadian Press).—Admiration for Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Leader of the Conservative Opposition in the House of Commons, as a man of "great courage and independent thought, frank and outspoken in this country of different nationalities, race and religion," and an appeal for equitable treatment of the French-Canadians and for greater unity throughout Canada, were the outstanding themes of the address of Armand Lavergne, Quebec Nationalist leader, who spoke here on Saturday night at the banquet given in honor of Hon. Rodolphe Monty, former Secretary of State, and Hon. Andre Fateaux, ex-Solicitor-General, by the Liberal-Conservatives of Montreal.

More than one thousand people attended the function, which was presided over by Mr. Meighen. Representatives of Liberal - Conservative organizations throughout the country were present, among whom were Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Premier of Ontario; Hon. J. D. Martin, Minister of Agriculture in the Ontario Government, and Hon. Dr. Tolmie, General Organizer of the Conservative Party. Quebec Conservatives were represented in the addresses by Hon. Dr. L. P. Norman, Three Rivers; Hon. L. De G. Belley, Quebec City; Mayor Louis Cousineau, Hull; Pierre Audet, Levis; J. H. Lavoie, representing Labor, and Charles L. Mignault, President of the Conservative organization of the eastern townships. Arthur Lalonde, Conservative Organizer, master of ceremonies, called attention to the fact that there were delegations present from Chicoutimi, Ste. Agathe, Maskinonge, the eastern townships and the ancient capital. In addition, the two victors of the recent by-elections in Halifax and Kent County, N. B., W. A. Black and A. J. Doucet, were at the banquet board, as also were Hon. H. H. Stevens, Hon. J. B. M. Baxter of St. John, James Arthurs and W. A. Boys, Conservative Whip.

The list of speakers was lengthy, and it was not until after three o'clock Sunday morning that the program of addresses was completed.

Of Historic Importance.

"This is an event of signal and historic importance in the history of the Conservative Party and of Canada," said Mr. Meighen, in his opening remarks as honorary chairman. "Two citizens of Montreal, sons of the old Province of Quebec, have by their courage and by their industry, by their example and their wisdom, by their manliness and by their eloquence, so inspired the rank and file of the Conservative Party as to call forth this wonderful demonstration of personal loyalty."

Mr. Meighen went on to say how he had called into leadership of the Conservative cause the two men who were now being honored at the banquet. Hon. Rodolphe Monty and Hon. Andre Fauteux had accepted that call. It had been, he said, a tremendous task to face and overcome the obstacles created by enemies of the Conservative Party and establish once more the strength of the Conservative cause, "in the grand old Province of Quebec." Undiscouraged by defeat, Messrs. Monty and Fauteux "planted again the flag of Cartier and of Chapleau on the citadels and hilltops of Quebec. Time has been on their side. The record of the Liberal Party in office has demonstrated the futility of the so-called principles of that party to take care of the problems of Canada today." The Liberal Party, under Mr. Mackenzie King, had, he claimed, produced nothing but failure, and Quebec had suffered from that failure. He predicted that the triumph of the Conservative Party was coming nearer and nearer, and in that triumph, he said, that Messrs. Monty and Fauteux had played a noble part. He concluded: "I bring to them tonight my tribute of gratitude and admiration, and I salute them as men worthy of their race, worthy of their Province, and as honor to the Dominion."

Party Not Crushed.

The spirit shown at the banquet, said Hon. Rodolphe Monty, was not surprising in view of the reception which had been accorded Mr. Meighen and those who had gone with him into various parts of the Province, and it still showed "that twenty years of vilification had not been able to crush the Conservative Party in Quebec." He believed that if given opportunity the people would show that "they no longer wished to listen to the cries invoked, for example, in Kent against Mr. Doucet by such Liberals as Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Hon. Mr. Caron and E. Theriault." He declared that the old questions of tariff, of immigration and emigration and railways still remained, and he claimed that the Government was dealing with inertia in these vital matters. He said that in 1923 there had gone from Canada to the United States 200,000 people, more than three times the losses to the Canadian armies in the Great War. They had, he stated, taken with them more than ten million dollars worth of property. As to the farmer, he gave it as his view that the present state of affairs was due to the fact that the United States farmer had been protected by his Government whereas the Canadian farmer had been neglected and suffered from the effects of the Fordney Tariff. He said that the Conservative Party was willing to accept those Liberals who believed in the policy of protection of Canadian industries, both of the farm and the factory, and he also wanted a barrier that would force Americans to establish their factories close to the source of Canadian raw materials.

National Unity.

Hon. Andre Fauteux spoke in favor of national unity and pointed out that Canada had given the Western Provinces three transcontinental railways, which meant tremendous costs, from which the country was still suffering. It was, he said, essential to remember that Canada does not start at Fort William and end in the Rocky Mountains.

Touching on railway matters, including the purchase of the Scribe Hotel in Paris, Hon. Mr. Monty took occasion to correct an impression that he had spoken of Sir Henry Thornton as a foreigner. What he had meant was that Sir Henry had been brought into the Dominion and was not domiciled in Canada. He made a passing reference to Home Bank affairs in connection with the deposit of a million dollars of Canadian National Railways' money in that institution, and also in connection with alleged withdrawals by a Cabinet Minister from the bank.

Mr. Monty said that the Conservative Party stood for a tariff that would protect our markets against the United States; for reduction of the British preference to such a point that it would not interfere with the free development of Canadian industry and our own markets; and for the adoption of a sane policy of give and take reciprocity with the Mother Country and the sister nations for the general development of the Empire.

Tug-of-War at Ottawa.

Describing conditions in Parliament, he said that "it is a sensational tug-of-war between the Progressives of the West and the Liberals of the East. It is an organized comedy which would be humorous were it not such a tragedy at the same time. He declared that "the Premier leads with eyes turned eastwards; Lapointe faces the occident, and from time to time we hear a few confused phrases, a few banalities from the mouth of one or the other."

He concluded: "I have great admiration for the farmers of the West and I acknowledge their spirit of enterprise and their energy; but we cannot concede the demands of the few at the expense of national ruin.

London Street Car Strike Continues

LONDON, March 24.—(Canadian Press).—There was no change in the situation growing out of the strike Saturday of the employees of the tramway and omnibus services. Neither side of the dispute evidenced any intention to give in.

A court of inquiry sat yesterday taking evidence with regard to the situation. It is expected that the court will present its evidence to the Labor Ministry within a few days. A feature of the session of the court was the general admission that there was need for some central control for co-ordinating of London's transport facilities in order to remedy existing competition and overlappings. It is believed that the court's report may recommend that the Government introduce legislation in Parliament to attain this object.

ANNIVERSARY OF FASCISTI

Five Hundred Italian Municipalities Represented in Demonstration in Rome — Founded Five Years Ago.

ROME, March 24. — Representatives from more than five hundred municipalities participated Sunday in the fifth anniversary of the founding of the Fascisti movement in Italy. After paying respect to the Unknown Soldier, the delegates marched through flag-draped streets amid enthusiastic manifestations on the part of the populace.

A cordon of troops presented at arms at the Quirinal Palace and acclaimed King Victor Emmanuel, who viewed the parade from the balcony. The parade, which lasted more than an hour, was marked by continuous demonstrations.

Premier Mussolini delivered a stirring patriotic address at the Costanzi Theatre. The audience gave him an ovation. Addresses also were delivered by the President of the Council, the Mayor of Rome and other prominent persons.

MARY PICKFORD VISITS TORONTO

Slips in Quietly Accompanied by Doug, etc.

To use Mary's own expression, they sneaked in, and had it not been for having the curiosity of the hotel officials, they might have sneaked out.

There was no blare of bugles to welcome them, no din of brass band to herald their approach as they stepped from the New York train yesterday morning like any other trio of tired travellers, and found their way to the solitary taxi and the to the hotel.

At ten o'clock they were permitted a certain degree of privacy, and were allowed to breathe the breath of ordinary mortals.

They quietly visited Mrs. Pickford's sisters and their families living in the city, and then placed flowers on the grave of Mary's father in Mount Pleasant, and on the grave of her grandmother in St. Michael's Cemetery.

This brief interlude between the family and public duties was the real object of their visit.

In the afternoon Mary paid a visit to the soldiers in Christie Street Hospital, and to the humble cottage on University Avenue where she was born.

Business Block in Cargill Destroyed by Sunday Fire

Royal Bank With Shoe and Furniture Store Lost With Entire Contents and Living Quarters In the Second Storey — Confectionery Store and Restaurant Damaged—Losses Heavy.

CARGILL, Ont., March 24 (Canadian Press). — Fire early yesterday morning destroyed the Royal Bank, Kunkel's shoe store, and J. D. Schuett's furniture and undertaking establishment, together with their enire contents, and damaging A. Gregg's cofectionery store and restaurant.

The fire was fist noticed about 6 o'clock in Kunkel's shoe store, and had gained considerable headway.

All the buildings were brick.

For a time it appeared as though the whole south side of the street was doomed. Hard work kept the flames from the Gregg building, a frame structure next to Schuett's, and saved Weber's hardware and Hunstein & Grice's general store, the Post Office, and Bell Telephone Central, which were next in line.

The occupants of the burned buildings had their living apartments above their business places, and so quickly did the fire gain that they were unable to save any clothing save what they were wearing.

The losses, which are heavy, are fairly well covered by insurance.

At present the owners of the burned buildings do not know whether they will rebuild. The Royal Bank has already secured office space, and opened for business as usual to-day.

DISAGREEMENT DENIED OVER EXPERTS' REPORT

Different Opinions Expressed Over Decisions But Reports Will Be Unanimously Signed By Both Committees—Joint Report Ready Next Week.

PARIS, March 24.—The departure for London Saturday of Reginald McKenna, Sir Robert Kindersley and Sir J. C. Stamp, British members of the experts' committee, has given rise to reports that fundamental differences have cropped out in the work of the experts and that the British representatives have gone to consult their government.

It was stated officially last evening that no serious disagreement existed on the main decisions of the committee and that, while different opinions have been expressed in the course of the discussions, the reports now being drafted will be unanimously signed by both committees.

The pessimistic and alarming tone adopted by the British and also a part of the French press recently, however, may cause the Reparation Commission to issue an official communique setting forth exactly where matters stand, although Reparation circles refuse to make a specific announcement to that effect.

Sir John Bradbury, British member of the Reparation Commission, left for London Sunday morning, and his departure caused a stir in French circles. He is held by the French to represent a tendency towards a reparation settlement diametrically opposed to that of the French. It is felt here that his presence in London simultaneously with the three British experts means that the British experts are not in agreement with the findings of the majority in the schedule of payments for Germany during the next two years. The question of a moratorium is reported to be the point upon which opinions diverge.

Officially, however, the correspondents are informed that "the work of the experts is proceeding in complete accord on fundamental points," and that the joint report of the Dawes and McKenna committees will be ready the first week in April.

NEW OSHAWA COUNCIL.

OSHAWA, March 23.— The first City Council for Oshawa after the election of aldermen for the south-east ward which was held yesterday and resulted in John Stacey, A. J. Graves and O R. Burns being elected, will be composed of the following:

The first meeting of the Council will be held on Tuesday next.

UNITED STATES STEEL PROFITS

Half Billion Increase In Volume of Business and Earnings Also Show Gain—Adopted Shorter Work Day.

NEW YORK, March 24. — The volume of business transacted by the United States Steel Corporation and its subsidiaries in 1923 totalled $1,571,414,483, nearly half a billion dollars more than the year before, the annual report revealed Sunday. The earnings amounted to $179,646,674, after deducting expenses, taxes and interest, and the net income was $128,176,519.

"In point of total tonnage output of materials produced for sale," the report said, "the year 1923 has been exceeded in only two previous years, 1916 and 1917. As a result of these larger operations, together with improved selling prices, the earnings for the year show a substantial increase over those of the preceding two years."

In effecting the change in working hours, the twelve hour turn has been eliminated by December 1st in all subsidiary companies, except one, the report stated, which was not completed until February, 1924, owing to a shortage of skilled labor. The number of additional employees required to carry out the plan of putting the workers on continuous processes on a ten-hour day and all others on an eight-hour day, was 1117. The average number of employees was 2680 during the year.

"Of the increase in total payrolls resulting from this change," continued the report, "approximately sixty per cent., arising from employment of additional men and 40 per cent. from increased wage allowance to employees whose hours of service were not changed, being those who already were working ten hours or less per day."

AGITATION FOR REPUBLIC ENDS

LONDON March 24 (Canadian Press). — The Persian Parliament has abandoned the idea of a Republic, but has deposed the Shah, and has decided to install his infant son on the throne, according to a Teheran despatch to the Daily Mail.

The correspondent says that a momentous sitting of the National Assembly to decide on the future form of Government was held on Saturday when, owing to the opposition of the clergy and the public, the agitation in favour of a Republic collapsed.

The new Shah is two years old, and a Regent will be appointed to act during his minority.

EATING AN OLD SHOE CAUSES COW'S DEATH

CARLISLE, Pa., March 23. — A post-mortem examination conducted on a cow owned by Charles Shearer, farmer, showed that death was caused by the bovine eating an old shoe.

In addition to the mangled pieces of leather in the cow's stomach, the veterinarian found three large nails and twenty smaller ones.

According to military experts well-trained men are more important in warfare than well-trained officers.

SECURITY WITH PEACE SUBJECT OF CONFERENCE

France Takes Initiative In Negotiations With British On Question Regarded As a Fundamental Basis of Agreement on Reparations — Views to Be Exchanged.

FOR EUROPE'S PEACE.

PARIS, March 24.—With the visit here to-day of Count De St. Aulaire, French Ambassador to London, France will assume the initiative in diplomatic negotiations with the British Government concerning the problem of security for France. The Ambassador's return home is for the purpose of taking part in a joint examination of the principles under which the security of France and the general peace of Europe can be assured.

Count De St. Aulaire and Premier Poincare will discuss— in their broad outlines at least—questions of a pact of guarantees; the problem of the Rhine frontier and the role which the League of nations will be called upon to play in the new system of a European balance of powed. This conference may be regarded as the normal development of the policy inaugurated by the French Government by its recent publication of its yellow book.

Security Essential

The French Government considers, although no official announcement has been made to this effect, that while the experts' committee were engaged in their work of finding a solution for the reparation problem it was an opportune moment to begin negotiations on the question of France's security, which always has been regarded here as one of the fundamental bases to a general agreement.

An exchange of views regarding security has been in progress between Paris and London for some weeks through diplomatic channels. The matters received fresh impetus following the second letter of Ramsey MacDonald, the British Prime Minister, to Premier Poincare, and since then security, rather than reparations, has formed the bulk of the usual communications between the Chancelleries. This culminated early last week by the sending from Paris of an expression of a desire that the security problem be discussed before the reports of the expert committees were submitted.

Exchange Views

A reply from London that the French Government's suggestions would receive sympathetic consideration brought about the arrangement of the interview between Count De St. Aulaire and Premier Poincare. Official circles in Paris are desirous that too exaggerated importance shall not be given to negotiations at this stage, as it is believed the long details cannot be even touched upon at to-day's conference, which, it is said, will take place simply for the purpose of allowing Count De St. Aulaire to obtain an outline of the view of the situation at the French Foreign Office and to give the Premier the viewpoint of the British Foreign Office.

COLLEGE STUDENT HAS DISAPPEARED

Vanished From Group of Fraternity Brothers--International Search,

SEATTLE, Wash., March 24 (Canadian Press).— College students and relatives have united in an international search for Hamilton Ghent Pettit, University of Washington sophomore, son of a well-known Welland, Ont., attorney.

Pettit disappeared without leaving any clues, nearly a month ago, from his home in Zeta Phipsi Fraternity House, it was revealed yesterday.

The missing student, apparently without motive, literally vanished from a group of Fraternity Brothers on the night of Tuesday, 26th February, leaving practically all his personal effects in his room.

He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Pettit, of Welland, Ont., and previous to his coming here on 1st January, to study forestry, was a student at Ridley College and the Royal Military College.

Press Deprecates Lecturing Prince

LONDON, March 24.—(Canadian Press Cable).—Exhortations addressed to Premier Ramsay McDonald to endeavor to influence the Prince of Wales of being less venturesome on horseback are derided by two prominent Sunday papers.

The Sunday Times says it is time people ceased trying to play grandmother to the Prince "although he has too much humor to be disturbed by objurgations that are half lecture and half cackle."

The Sunday Express declares that if Premier MacDonald interferes he ought to devise a method whereby the Prince could take a more active part in public life. "We ought to provide him with opportunities for public service more interesting than laying foundation stones and making after dinner speeches."

POINCARE BILL PASSED HOUSES

Victory For the French Premier In Plans to Stabilize Finances of the Nation — Senate Vote Was 146 to 12 — Save Billion In Economics.

PARIS, March 24.—Premier Poincare Saturday scored another victory in his movement to stabilize the nations' finances and restore economic equilibrium in France, when both the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies passed the Government's taxation and fiscal reform bill. The vote in the Senate was 146 in favor of the bill.

The fiscal bill is expected to bring to the Treasury an additional 6,323,000,000 francs through increased taxation yearly and effect one billion in economies. The bill was presented to the Senate for final vote by Premier Poincare and Minister of Finance De Lasteryrie.

It is understood on good authority that the Government's next fiscal move, in its efforts to improve France's financial situation, will be to present a plan for the consolidation of the national floating debt—about eighty billions— before Parliament's dissolution for the general elections.

DANCE IN CHURCH SHOCKS ONLY ONE

NEW YORK, March 24.—(Canadian Press).—Eurythmic dancing was given yesterday at the Church of St. Mark's in Bouwerie, in defiance of its interdiction by Bishop William Manning of the Episcopal Diocese of New York. "Ritual dance of Della Robbia annunciation," designed for the observance of the feast of the annunciation of the Virgin Mary was given by six young women, attired in Greek costumes at both afternoon and evening services. Preceding the dance, Rev. Dr. William Guthrie defended eurythmic dancing and explained the symbolism of those on the programme.

$50,000 OFFERED BY FREE STATE FOR ASSASSINS

Detestation of Shooting of British Soldiers Voiced Throughout Ireland--De Valera Party Active, Refuse to Compromise and Form Grave Threat to Government.

NO ARRESTS MADE.

QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, March 24.—(Canadian Press).—Spurred by the Government's offer of a reward of $50,000, hundreds of civilians yesterday joined the Free State troops and police in the search for the persons who shot down British soldiers and local civilians as they were returning from Spike Island on Friday.

Mary MacSweney and David Kent, Republican members of the Dail Eireann for East Cork, "in behalf of the loyal citizens of the Irish Republic," disassociated themselves from the Queenstown shooting.

Cardinal Logue, Primate of Ireland, described the Queenstown affair as an inhuman crime perpetrated with a view to bringing the Free State Government into disrepute and embroil it with the British Government.

Thusc far no arrests have been made, and the only details which has been learned concerning the circumstances leading to the crime is that some miles outside of Queenstown Friday night two motor cars were observed which it is thought carried a covering party to the assassins.

Patrol Queenstown

The British torpedo boat destroyed Sea Wolf arrived in Queenstown Sunday morning, with the purpose, it is believed of removing the body of Private Aspinwall, one of the victims of the shooting, to England. Free State troops are patrolling Queenstown and the surrounding district and nobody is being allowed to land at Spike Island.

Universal detestation over the tragedy is being voiced throughout Ireland. Some concern is felt regarding the safety of the small British garrison at Lenan, Lough Swilly, County Donegal, whose position is even more precarious than that on Spike Island. Both British and Free State officials are exercising extraordinary vigilance to prevent further outrages.

Nationalist "Die-hards"

Frank Rutledge, who accepted the leadership of the nationalist party after the capture of De Valera, has come out with another emphatic statement that his followers will accept no compromise on the question of republicanism.

In his statement he says that he regrets the probability of a recrudescence of active hostility and military operations against England, but at the same time in the strongest terms he says bitter and violent things against England generally.

Government Doomed?

It is generally believed that the present Free State Government is bound to fall soon owing to the repeated crisis that are almost daily arising in the army. In this case it is expected that the republicans will make a bold effort to seize power after the manner of the coups of the Fascists in Italy and Spain. Following this republicans say they will begin negotiations with England for the elimination of the oath of sovereignty, and press for full and complete independence.

The whole situation must be clarified one way or another within the next few days, and as a factor towards settlement the holding of the daily athletic games which are to synchronize with the opening of the great exhibition at Wembley are regarded most hopefully by both sides.

UNITARIAN MINISTER GIVEN DECISION

NEW YORK, March 24.—(Canadian Press). — Rev. Charles Francis Potter, pastor of a West Side Unitarian Church, and exponent of religious modernism, last night was given the Judge's decision over Dr. John Roach Stratton, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church in a debate on the question: "Resolved, that the miraculous virgin birth of Jesus Christ is a fact and that it is an essential Christian doctrine." Dr. Potter upheld the negative.

The remarkable advances of modern science which have made the miracle of yesterday the common place of to-day reject the claims of modernists that the virgin birth of Christ is a scientific impossibility, Rev. Dr. Stratton declared.

GERMAN GOVERNMENT HAS MOVED TO RIGHT

LONDON, March 24. Canadian Press. — Colonel Josiah Wedgwood, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, in a speech last night declared the German government had moved to the right, and that if the National Freedom Party were successful in the coming elections, arming would begin; then good-bye to reparations.

The British government, he said, regarded this possibility with the gravest anxiety, for it was obvious that there could be no settlement without German co-operation.

The first duty of statesmanship seemed to be to re-establish the entente so that the allies might jointly press for carrying out the expert committee's report, to the end that Britain could stand with her allies "against the maddened herd from across the Rhine."

REPARATIONS PAID TO DATE BY GERMANS

PARIS, March 24—(United Press) —Germany has paid reparations, in cash, kind and ceded property amounting to 8,411,330,000 gold marks up to December 31, 1923, the Reparations Commission announced in a communique to-day.

Of this sum, 1,903,000,000 gold marks was in cash. Of the grand total paid, France receives 1,804,000,000 gold marks worth, Belgium 1,782,000,000, England 1,318,000,000, and the remainder was divided among the other allies.

REV. JOHN COBOURN DECLARES OPEN WAR

Calls on the Government to Enforce the Prihibition Law.

GUELPH, March 24. Canadian Press. — Rev. John Cobourn, of Toronto, Field Secretary of the Department of Social Reform, of the Methodist church, declared war on a taking of a plebiscite for control of the liquor traffic by the government before a capacity audience at Dublin Street Methodist church, Sunday morning.

Resolutions were unanimously adopted demanding that the government refrain from taking the vote before it had first endeavored to enforce the law as it stands, declaring also that there is no general demand for a vote.

"The church is as David going out single-handed to slay this 'Jack Dempsey' of the Philistine host, and it must succeed," he said.

NEW REASON ADVANCED CAMPBELLFORD CHURCH REV. CRAWFORD BROWN

Claims Real Object is to Form Religious Party Strong Enough to Dominate Parliament — Meetings Next Sunday

CAMPBELLFORD, March 24. — Rev. T. Crawford Brown of Toronto, representing the Presbyterian Church Association, speaking in St. Andrews Church here on Sunday morning, made the statement that the real object of organic church union is to form a religious political party strong enough to dominate the Parliament and the Legislature of the country. In support of this statement he read from a published address of Rev. Dr. S. D. Chown, head of the Methodist hurch, to the effect that when the churches interested unite the battle now going on for control in Canada will be lost in a few years.

Dr. Gordon had stated at the last meeting of the General Assembly that he would like to see the Legislature that will dare to refuse to pass any legislation asked for by a United Church.

"We have," said the Rev. Mr. Brown, "nothing but contempt for any such machine. We believe in government by and for the people—not by any religious organization."

Stands for Co-operation.

Mr. Brown, who was brought here to present the case of the anti-unionists, chose as his text several verses from the 17th chapter of St. John's Gospel, the selection on which he laid the most stress containing the words "Neither pray I for these alone but for them also which shall believe in me through their word."

After a brief introduction in which he outlined the object of his address, a fair preesntation of the Association's side of the case, Mr. Brown said he could not understand why there should be any bitterness, enemity or severity of feeling over the question in any church, as we should all respect the opinions of others. The points which be brought out in his address, every one of which he elaborated in choice language were:

The Christian church is constituted of all true believers in Christ.

Among these there already exists a spiritual union regardless of the denominations to which such believers belong.

The unionists claim that this prayer of Christ has not been fulfilled, and what he asked for was organic as well as spiritual union.

At the time of the Reformation there was practicallly a uniform church and yet it required a reformation to revivify and save the church.

There was no outcry on the part of the people in the sparsely settled sections of the west, where Mr. Mr. Brown in his student days served as a missionary. The people of all denominations co-operated in services and when organic union was first suggested in 1899, these people did not favor it, living in the hope that the population would so increase that they might have a church of their own.

In 1902 these people were still opposed to organic union and in favor of co-operation.

There is no quarrel with union, but with the kind of union. The quarrel arose when organic union instead of co-operation was proposed.

The idea or organic union is fundamentally wrong. No two persons can look, think or act alike. We do not want to be forced to close our homes and go and live in apartment houses.

People are not ready for organic union and if we force them into it by legislation we cannot keep them there.

The unionists say in effect that they cannot respect our convictions and they go to the government and ask for legislation to coerce us. That is where the trouble come in.

Mr. Brown emphatically declared that he was willing to sacrifice his ministry and all that he has to resist this movement. He had been taught at his mother's knee that the Presbyterian church was the most democratic on earth, but now it is claimed that the Presbyteries and the assembly have authority to go to the government and ask for legislation to wipe out that church.

The anti-unionists dispute this claim. The people are the church and organic union would make that church autocratic instead of democratic.

Organic union was never a peoples movement but was conceived in the mind of a professor.

There was a definite purpose from the beginning never to refer this question to the people, to keep it away from them and put it through regardless of their wishes.

When the first vote was taken in 1911 over 50,000 voted against and 115,000 for union. Think of the number who did not vote at all. With these figures in mind the General Assembly in 1912 decided that the matter must not be proceeded with.

There was another vote taken in 1915 when thousands of our young men were fighting in Europe. Since that vote there has been an increase of over 115,000 in the number of members and adherents of the Church, and these have never voted on the question.

REV. G. C. CLARKE
Rector of Christ Church, Campbellford.

In 1916 the General Assembly voted in favour of union, but in 1917 the question was dropped until the second Assembly after the close of the war.

Since that time 1,245 union churches have been established in Canada on the assumption that the Church is committed to union, and that it will eventually be consummated.

Mr. Brown said that such a pledge was not warranted.

There are only in reality 55 union churches, the others being really abliated. The so-called Rosedale Church in Toronto is in effect a community church in which the people take part of their own free will.

The different congregations have not been educated by their pastors in church union.

The leaders of church union are afraid to submit the question to another vote.

Even if the Presbyterian, Methodist, and Congregational Churches are united the members will constitute only 25 per cent. of the total population, so that the control to which Dr. Chown refers is likely to remain in the hands of the other 75 per cent.

If the question of organic union had been left to the active ministers and the people of the Presbyterian Church, it would have been dead 13 or 14 years ago.

Organic union will mean disruption instead of harmony. Unionists plead economy as one reason for the proposed change. They may be right, but that argument is not conclusive. The speaker believed that it might be in the interests of economy to have Canada a part of the United States, but the people would not be driven into such action by legislation.

Organic union has been dropped in New Zealand and Australia.

There will never be peace in the Presbyterian Church until these leaders in the organic union movement leave it.

The Presbyterian Church, like the Methodist Church, is strong and flourishing. Wherever on this earth it has been planted, it has lived and been abundantly fruitful.

Reply to Dr. Pidgeon.

At the evening service Rev. C. F. McIntosh explained to the congregation that the session of St. Andrew's church had decided, without request or pressure from outside, to bring two outstanding speakers here to discuss the church union question so that the people might fully understand it. At both services next Sunday the speaker will be Rev. Dr. Denoon, pastor of the Avenue Road Presbyterian church, Toronto, who will present the unionists' side of the problem.

Rev. T. Crawford Brown prefaced his discourse with the statement that the Presbyterian Church Association, of which he represents, has no quarrel with the unionists. Members of the Association respect their convictions but object to the leaders who claim that they have authority to compel those opposed to organic union to go with them.

The Association members object to the enabling bill now before the Legislature and Parliament. Thousands who were ardent unionists have changed their views since that measure has been introduced.

The evening discourse, which lasted for over an hour, was a reply to a sermon recently delivered by Rev. Dr. Pidgeon, Moderator of the General Assembly in the Bloor street Presbyterian church, Toronto, Mr. Brown taking issue with Dr. Pidgeon on every important point in that address. Dr. Pidgeon says that the ideal should be made practical.

Some anit-unionists, according to Dr. Podgeon, believe that denominationalism is ideal. Mr. Brown contended that denominationalism has done more for Christianity than was ever accomplished by the uniform church that existed before the Reformation. No mission work was carried on before that period. The great uniform church had no use for this kind of work. All missions have been established and supported by denominations. What is needed is to free the churches of sectarianism, not denominationalism. The greatest unity of all is the unity in diversity.

Dr. Pidgeon says that organic union is the only answer to Christ's prayer for unity and that union is part of a world wide movement.

The Baptist and Anglican churches, Mr. Brown said, are opposed to union as against co-operation, and refused to appoint union committees.

"I wish to God," declared the speaker vehemently, "that the Presbyterians had also refused to appoint such a committee. If they had we would not be where we are today—on the verge of disruption.

"We challenge the unionists to trust the people with another vote by the three churches interested, for we believe that the Methodists are no more in favor of this movement than are the Presbyterians. Canadians may be loyal Britishers, but they would not consent to obliterate Canada by being merged in the Empire. We challenge the right of any government to say that they have the right to settle this question without referring it to the people.

Dr. Pidgeon's assertion that the action of the General Assembly on this question is not arbitrary, was another statement challenged by Mr. Brown. Presbyterianism is the government of the church by Presbyterians, but at the last General Assembly many ministers went as delegates from presbyteries that were opposed to union and voted for it. Presbyterianism is more than a matter of church government, it is a system of doctrine.

The Presbyterian church is not exactly a democracy, but the voice of the people is the voice of the church, their conscience is its conscience.

Dr. Pidgeon says that this call for a vote after the church court has acted is an attempt to subvert the historic procedure of the church.

To this Mr. Brown replied that in all matters of chief importance, the church court must have the approval of the people.

Organic union, the speaker said, cannot be given effect without practical unanimity. When 50,000 Presbyterians voted against it the General Assembly dropped the question for a time, but decided to go ahead when that adverse vote, in 1915, had increased to 73,000.

The Anglicans and the Baptists will not merge at the expense of their names and identity. If organic union is consummated it will mean the end of co-operation with these churches for all time to come.

On the final vote taken in the Assembly only two delegates opposed church union. At the Assembly last year those opposed to it numbered 142 and the majority of these were from Western Canada, where the demand for organic union is said to be urgent.

Three months ago, Mr. Brown continued, it was impossible for the Association to get their speakers into the churches to discuss this question. Now 150 churches in Canada have sent in requests for these speakers and in many of these the majority voted in favor of union in 1915. Mr. Brown is convinced that when the people understand the question the leaders will never get the unanimity that is essential before organic union can be consummated.

Referring to the delegation of 150 of the church union committee that had waited on the Legislature to ask for the passing of the enabling act, Mr. Brown stated that Dr. Chown had told the six members who had received them that 612,000 Presbyterians, 625,000 Methodists and 30,000 Congregationalists were urging this measure. As a matter of fact there are only 375,000 Presbyterians of voting age in all the Dominion of Canada. There is a conspiracy on the part of the leaders of these three denominations and they are lobbying for this bill.

Mr. Brown insists on the Westminister confession of Faith in its integrity. Whatever it is it is scriptural and the man who ridicules it might as well ridicule the Bible itself The basis of the union he regards as nothing more than a compromise

Dr. Pidgeon says that in the proposed new church the elders will not be dropped but Mr. Brown contends that little more than the name will be retained.

The Stationing committee as proposed for the new church Mr. Brown regards as one of the most autocratic institution in the world. It is the inalienable right of every Presbyterian congregation to call its own minister. No church court can place a man in a pulpit unless he has been called to it. The authority of the Stationing Committee is absolute. There is to be no appeal from its rulings. If a congregation asks for a certain minister there is a possibility that the request may be granted. The speaker cited the case of Dr. Bland of Toronto, one of the leading pastors in the Methodist church, who had been sent by the Stationing Committee to Elora, where he was not wanted and where he was not wanted and where he believed he was not wanted. In order to avoid accepting the charge Dr. Bland was obliged to give up the active ministry for one year. The Stationing committee can take a minister from one church, under the proposed new regulation, and place him in another without regard to the wishes of the people.

The object of the enabling act is to get possession of the property of the their churches and if the leaders succeed the name and property of the Presbyterian Church will be gone.

The regulations of the proposed new church provide that the man or minister who refuses to go into it will be considered as never having joined. The ministry stripped of his ministry, will be cast adrift and with those who refuse to enter the new church will join the disgruntled wanderers in the wilderness for many years to come.

Mr. Brown explained how organic union would effect St. Andrews' church in Campbellford. Suppose there were 401 members and of these 201 voted for union. The other 200 would become church aliens and the same would hold true if the vote were reversed.

The proposed national church would embrace only 25 per cent of the entire population.

"We object," said the speaker in his peroration, "to legislation that will take away our property and our identity. We will maintain the Presbyterian Church in Canada for all time to come. We appreciate the history, the sacrifices and martyrdom of its founders and the heritage which our fathers have left us and we feel that we are under obligation to leave that heritage to our children.

The church was crowded at both services representatives from all the Protestant congregations in town being present and Rev. C. F. McIntosh extended a hearty invitation to everybody to hear Dr. Denoon next Sunday.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Several Cases Heard in Police Court—Story of Two Harvesters.'

CAMPBELLFORD, March 24. — Two of the now famous British harvesters, who were apparently willing to accept work instead of remaining in Toronto or joining in a miniature Coxey's army hike to Ottawa in search of relief, found their way to Campbellford about six weeks ago. They had come with the hope of finding employment at one or other of the new Hydro plants now in process of construction, but at the time there were no vacancies.

The men, both of whom were well appearing young men, and who had records of service in the World War, were without money, but some of their fellow-veterans and other citizens joined in a collection for their benefit. Mayor Meyers used his influence to secure them work at the paper mill, and the men enjoyed board with a private family.

About a week ago, the strangers were laid of and one of them left for Lindsay telling his landlady that there was eight days wages coming to him at the mill and that she would receive money to settle his board bill next pay day. The proprietor of the boarding house, after the young man left, telephoned to the office of his former employees and was told that he had received his wages in full. She served out a warrant for his arrest and Chief Duncalfe went to Lindsay and brought the young man back to the town.

When the case was brought up for hearing before Magistrate G. A. Payne, the young man explained that he had acted throughout in perfectly good faith. He had been under the impression that there was sufficient money still due him at the mill to settle the claim of the landlady. Anyway, it had not been his intention to leave town for good and when he started for Lindsay he had purchased a return ticket. The matter was adjusted by the young fellow paying his landlady's bill.

Case of O. B. T. A.

There was another charge, that of being intoxicated, against the young man and on this he was found guilty. The usual fine of $10 and cost was imposed and this too, was paid.

When required to give the name of the bootlegger from whom he obtained the liquor the defendent implicated a well-known young man and the latter was taken into custody by Chief Duncalfe, Friday night. Another young man, a friend of the new defendant, and who was with him when the officer appeared made a spectacular break for the open and is now supposed to be enjoying peaceful seclusion of Brighton. His alarm was groundless as he was not wanted by the police.

New Case Heard.

The new case was begun in the police court on Saturday morning and after a number of witnesses had been heard, the hearing was adjourned until 2 p. m. Tuesday in order that additional evidence could be secured. Further interesting developments are expected as there is a suspicion that the liquor with which the defendant had handled was stolen from the cellar of a private residence.

AT THE REGENT

The programme at the Regent Theatre this week as as follows:

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday "Disraeli," with George Arliss in the leading role. Arliss is the film actor who achieved such a success in "The Devil," a picture in which he portrayed with startling fidelity some of the characteristics commonly ascribed to the Prince of Darkness. He bears a striking personal resemblance to the famous British Statesman whom the personates and the picture is rich in historic interest.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday with the usual Saturday matinee—"The Ninety and Nine," founded on the Bible Story of the lost sheep.

UNBELTED.

Many frocks this season are unbelted and others have very narrow belts of grosgrain ribbon, the shade of the frock, that are almost invisible, yet define the waistline just enough to relieve the tube effect, which is not becoming to all women.

FIRST NEWS OF HONDURAN WAR

Message By Courier Would Have Meant Death of Bearer If Found — Has Already Cost 1,500 Lives —Government Prevents News Going Out.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, March 1 (Associated Press, by Courier).—Civil war has taken possession of Honduras, and this war has already caused the loss of over 1,500 lives— and it is just beginning.

War broke out on Feb 6, when Colonel Anduray of the Carlas Party, attacked and took the City of Siguatepeque, eighty-five miles west of Tegucigalpa. At the same time attacks were made on the Cities of Yoru, Choloma, La Paz, Marcala, Masica, San Marcos de Colon, &c., where many killed and wounded. But the only town taken by the revolutionists were Marcala and La Paz Government troops retained control of the other towns attacked.

The Government appointed a new Bonilla Party. But this Cabinet remained in power only four days. Dr. Bonilla told his leaders to keep aloof from the dictatorship government. All agreed except General Ferrera, one of the best military men of Honduras belonging to the Bonilla Parey.

General Ferrera attacked the Esperanza, Ocotepeque, Gracios, Santa Rose de Copan and Santa Barbara, all important cities of the west section of the country. He took them all in less than a week. In his proclamation General Ferrera did not say whether he fought for General Carias or for Dr. Bonilla or for himself He simply said he rose in arms against the dictatorship.

General Carias with an army of about 2,000 men was at Lamani on Feb. 9. 60 miles from Tegucigalpa. There he proclaimed himself President of the republic. The American Minister sought to bring about an adjustment between Carias and the existing Government, but the latter refused to follow his advice.

General Carias was reported the next day as marching on the capital. The Government became alarmed, and at once took the necessary measures to defend the capital of the republic. Tegucigalpa is a city of over 40,000 population, occupying an area of over three miles in length, by two miles in width. It is surrounded by five hills. The hills were immediately occupied by troops with artillery and machine guns.

Capital's Fears.

The attack on the capital was awaited on the tenth. The Diplomatic Corps took no steps toward preventing the expected bloodshed in an open town where the noncombatant population would suffer the horrors of a battle in the streets. Fortunately General Carias diverted his route to the Nicaraguan border. It is stated he did not have enough ammunition to attack Tegucigalpa.

Heavy fighting took place on the 20th between Government forces and revolutionists. At Fedregalito, the Government troops came into contact with General Garias's army. A big fight took place, lasting nine hours, resulting in about 270 killed and many more wounded. At Jacaleapa another battle took place with more than 115 killed on both sides.

Next it was learned that General Ferrera with 2,000 Intibuca fullblood Indians was attacking Comayagua, the most important town after Tegucigalpa, with a population of 15,000. Fierce fighting took place during two days. When the Government troops were finally forced to the Cathedral towers where they mounted their machine guns), the Intibuca Indians stormed it in a terrible attack with the machete knife. The Indians preferred the machete, a long cutlass of about twenty-five inches, for storming purposes.

Fled to Mountains.

On February 22 Comayagua fell into the hands of General Ferrera and his fierce fighting Indians. Part of the civilian population took to the mountains before the attack, and thus saved many lives. The result of this battle was about 450 killed and 250 wounded.

General Ferrera sent emissaries to the dictatorship Government on February 24, demanding the surrender of Tegucigalpa within forty-eight hours, else he would attack and take it by force. The Government held the emissary and sent word to Ferrera to take the capital if he could.

Tegucigalpa was panic stricken at the prospective attack by those Indians. The people appealed to the Diplomttic Corps to prevent fighting in the city. The American Minister said he had no instructions and could do nothing but let things follow their course.

The government put 2500 men in the capital to defend it. All stores and offices were closed and people sought places of safety, knowing an attack on the capital meant fierce fighting in the streets.

Plague Threatens.

At the time of sending this despatch the situation is unchanged. The attack on the capital is expected any moment. General Ferrera has delayed the attack for five days. The city of Comayagua is threatened with a plague as a result of the fighting and the dead bodies badly buried or not buried at all.

In the city disorders are beginning to break out. Shooting is heard continuously through the streets. The roof of the American Consulate was struck by shots the other night. Several people have already been killed in the streets and the shots are heard at the rate of five or six a minute. After midday nobody dares go outside.

No cables, no telegrams, no mail, no radiograms are allowed by the Government to be sent anywhere outside. This despatch may never reach its estination. If it does the bearer will have risked his life to get it through the line of many fighting forces.

The United States navy is better fed than any other enlisted personnel in the world. Rations now cost 49¼ cents a day per man.

TORONTO'S REQUEST.

The Toronto deputation which waited upon the Federal Government the other day and asked for financial assistance in building a bridge connecting the Queen City with its celebrated "Island" got little encouragement at Ottawa, and naturally Toronto newspapers, regardless of their political affiliations, profess to believe that their community has not been very handsomely treated.

Outside of Toronto, there will be little complaint.

With the various Governments being urged on every hand to economize and to clamp down the lid of the treasury as tightly as possible, there would have been little justification for making a large grant towards the expense of an undertaking that could not truthfully be described as a necessary work.

A bridge to the Island would be a very desirable thing no doubt, but there is a pretty general feeling that if Toronto people want it they should build it themselves, or defer their request until a time when it will not be necessary to be so frugal in the handling of the money of the Canadian people.

So far as the Federal Government is concerned there should be no hesitation in allowing this bridge matter to "stand" for some time.

There are no unnecessary bridges on the road that leads to lower taxation.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSAATION.

The opposition of organized labour to the proposed changes in the Workmen's Compensation Act, which has caused Premier Ferguson to promise that the amendments will not be passed until they have been further discussed with representatives of the worker, is not difficult to understand.

The feature of the administration of the Compensation Act that has most strongly appealed to the employee has been the complete absence of any resemblance to litigation.

Claims have been promptly and satisfactorily settled, and the findings of the Compensation Board have in the vast majority of cases been accepted as fair and just.

The proposal that a board of review be established is viewed with distrust by the workers, who feel that this is the thin end of the wedge, and that such a board would restore the element of litigation in the settlement of cases under the Act.

The fact that it would be to their interest possibly to have an appeal board to which settlements not considered satisfactory to them could be referred for adjudication, does not suggest itself to representatives of labour as sufficient justification for running the risk of complicating the settlement of claims.

They prefer the present system as simple and effective and are opposed to any change along the lines suggested.

THE OTTAWA "HIKERS."

Municipalities along the route of the trek of the unemployed British harvesters from Toronto to Ottawa would be heartily in favour of a regulation that would make such expeditions impossible.

To have a body of 35 or 40 men drop in for a visit, expecting to be fed and housed at the public expense, is embarrassing at a time when every Municipal Council is playing the economy melody on every possible occasion.

And yet a blunt refusal may be a dangerous proceeding in the event of the visitors kicking over the traces.

So far the towns and cities visited by the hikers have refused to take a chance, digging down into the funds to entertain the marchers rather than run the risk of a possible riot.

But they feel that they should not be called upon to feed every body of men who happen to take a notion that a march to Ottawa will solve all their problems.

This feeling is evidenced by the suggestion from more than one municipal authority, that the marchers should keep their eyes open for employment among the farmers en route.

And why should they, with the open road before them and a municipality willing to be held up at the end of each day's march?

Sooner or later, however, if this mass "hiking" is not stopped, the municipalities along the line of march will take most of the pleasure out of the expedition by taking in all the "welcome" signs and refusing to play host every time a Toronto to Ottawa movement is on foot.

'GROTESQUELY OVERGOVERNED."

When Dr. Horace Brittain, Director of the Citizens' Research Institute, visited Peterborough not long ago and addressed the Chamber of Commerce he laid much stress upon the statement that Canada was overgoverned.

The same diagnosis is made by Grattan O'Leary, Ottawa newspaperman, who in an address at Toronto on Saturday declared this country was "grotesquely overgoverned."

The figures he quoted in support of this contention are arresting.

Adding Federal, Provincial and municipal indebtedness, Mr. O'Leary adduces the fact that there is a total debt of $500 for every living soul in Canada, as compared with $309 per head in the United States.

And then he gives some reasons.

The United States, with 110,000,000 people, important possessions and a large army and navy, has but eight Cabinet Ministers, who receive a salary of $108,000 a year.

Canada, with fewer than nine million people, no outside possessions and practically no army or navy, employs eighteen Cabinet Ministers, whose salaries, including sessional indemnities, total $229,000.

Two hundred and thirty-five members of Parliament and 96 Senators are paid $4,000 a year, and altogether through the Federal Parliament the people of Canada have to contribute $1,644,000 a year in salaries and indemnities.

When the cost of the salaries of Provincial politicians is added, the total reaches nearly three millions of dollars a year.

Great Britain, it is pointed out, has a House of Commons of 615 members, whose total indemnities are $1,230,000.

In this country, counting in the Provincial Governments, there are 908 legislators and 97 Cabinet Ministers, with a total pay roll of $3,000,000.

These are figures over which Canadians should do some quiet thinking, especially, as Mr. O'Leary points out, "for every one of these Ministers there is a department with secretaries, stenographers, staffs, offices and rentals to pay, and it is impossible to estimate what it all means in taxes to the people of this country."

The statement that something like half a million people are living on the taxes of the rest of the population of Canada is astounding.

GREAT WEALTH FROM TOURISTS.

While of course it can only be approximate, the estimate of the Dominion Parks Board that $136,000,000 was spent in Canada last year by foreign tourists is arresting, says the Ottawa Journal. The board couples the estimate with an obvious deduction that might be overlooked, namely, that although the scenic beauties brought so much money into Canada it was not accompanied by any depletion of natural resources. "The same scenery will be there for others to gaze at this year." By Provinces the returns are figured this way:

British Columbia	$36,000,000
Alberta	20,000,000
Saskatchewan and Manitoba	10,000,000
Ontario	30,000,000
Quebec	30,000,000
Maritime	10,000,000

Alberta is probably the best exhibit as an indication of what can be done. The enormous increase in tourist revenue for that Province is almost entirely due to the opening up of the Banff and Jasper parks, the construction of automobile roads and the provision of accommodation for visitors. There have been those who have criticised expenditures on these parks and who have shown slight concern over threatened encroachments by private power and other interests. The story of the Banff tourists should be sufficient answer.

So far it cannot be said that Ottawa has had an adequate share of this tourist money. The delay in the completion of the highways to the border and the stagnation in the development of the beautiful Gatineau country are responsible.

The Dominion Parks Board is doing national service not only in the parks under its control but in drawing attention to the riches that Canada's beauty spots can be made to attract in this age of the automobile.

ROMANCES OF ADVERTISING.

There is an almost endless story of great achievement, actual production and superlative performance back of that now prosaic slogan, "It pays to advertise," says the Kingston Whig. Slogans in business are not always substantiated by subsequent events, just as guarantees do not always hold water, but the business has not been found in which "advertising does not pay." What capital is to industry, what rainfall is to farm soil, advertising is to business. Advertising is as necessary to national distribution as the railroads.

Speak of goodwill in business and you really mean reputation. Reputation in modern business is attained ed only through the co-ordination of merit of product, scientific business methods and adequate advertising.

In 1886 twenty-five gallons of a soft drink syrup called Coco-Cola was sold for $25. From this sale the first Coco-Cola advertisement was paid for. The original company sold its goodwill for $20,000,000.

Millions are spent with profit for advertising in the magazines and newspapers of this country annually. Once it was the custom to advertise new products in a small way increasing the advertising and broadening its scope as business results warranted. Today, where capital is available, there is no longer the cautious venturing into the water. Big business now strikes for the deep water first.

The first Wrigley's gum advt. cost $32—the company's entire capital. The Waterman Fountain Pen Company started in business with a $62.52 publicity campaign, and the Hupp Motor Corporation with a $100.65 campaign. In 1890 the Borden Co. appropriated $513.75 for advertising. All of these internationally known corporations now spend millions annually for advertising in newspapers, magazines and in other forms.

Advertising built a large factory for the Royal Baking Powder Co., which first sold its baking powder in a small drug store in Fort Wayne, Ind., as a side line. In this experience this company is not alone.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

At that it is a little early yet to take them off.

Iceland believes in real protection, and all importations are forbidden after the 14th of this month.

The Examiner expects any morning now to find a letter from Pro. Bono Publico in its mail plaintively asking how much longer are people expected to put up with the dust nuisance.

Last spring Victoria Park was closed to the public for several weeks to protect the grass from the people who are accustomed to taking a short cut over the sward. The same policy should be followed this year, and the park closed until the ground has been given a chance to dry.

The memorial tower of the Parliament Buildings will likely have to be sacrificed for the present as a consequence of the economy campaign. Sessional indemnities, however, still remain at the same level.

Mothers Should Not NEGLECT BRONCHITIS In the Babies

Mrs. E. Langdon, Kingston, Ont., writes:—"My baby had bronchitis when he was two weeks old, he recovered from the attack but took it again, several months later, and on account of the severity I was almost panic-stricken to know what to do for him. My mother advised me to try Dr. Woods' Norway Pine Syrup, as she had used it for several years with splendid results.

I got a bottle, and after I had used it I could see a decided improvement in him; after several bottle he was completely relieved.

My boy is now two years old, and he has never had an attack of bronchitis since.

As a mother, raising a family, I am very grateful to know that I have found a real remedy for bad cold and bronchitis, as it lifts care and anxiety from an anxious mother's shoulders."

RUSS

Russia announces that in 1923 she exported about one and a quarter million tons of grain. Roughly a fourth of it went to Germany.

This doesn't necessarily reflect a natural comeback of Russia in the world grain markets. Maybe a lot of Russians starved while this grain was being exported. China, during the worst famine, always manages to export eggs.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, March 22.—Corn led a general advance in grain values to-day. Change of front on the part of various speculators who have recently been active sellers of corn did a good deal to bring about the advance. Corn closed at 5-8 to 1 1-2 and 1 3-8c. net gain, May 79 3-8 to 79 1-2c., with wheat firm, 3-8 and 1-2c. to 3-4c. up, May $1.05 1-2 to $1.05 5-8, and July $1.06 3-4; oats showing 1-4c. to 5-8c. rise, and provisions unchanged to 7c. higher.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, March 23.— There was no improvement in the demand for cash grain in the local market Saturday. The flour market was quiet. The tone of the millfeed market was steady but the rolled oats market was quiet. An active trade was done in eggs. Total receipts were 588,620 cases as against 567,743 for the corresponding period last year. There is a moderate business in butter. Total receipts from May 1 to date have been 156,957 packages less than in the same period of the previous year. There is practically no market in cheese. Total receipts from May 1 to date have been 133,792 boxes more than in the same period a year ago.

ALL FOODS SHOULD BE SEALED.

The medical profession very generally advocate that all food products should be sold in sealed packages. All cities rigorously inspect butcher shops to prevent meat from being infected; many prohibit milk from being sold in bulk, and gradually this will come with everything. 'SALADA' was the first to introduce the package idea as regards tea, over thirty-two years ago, and "SALADA" is still a little purer and a little better than other teas. It has by far the largest sale.

Cobourg and District

COBOURG, March 24.— The regular meeting of the Mothers Department of the Methodist Church for March was held in the school parlour, fifty one members being present. After opening the meeting with a hymn and prayer the usual business was transacted.

The second part of the meeting was taken by Mrs. W. Briming as convener, the singing of a hymn was followed by the Lord's Prayer in Unison.

Mrs. Cowan read a portion of scripture and Mrs. Stillman, wife of Rev. R. F. Stillman, formerly of Omemee, gave a very instructive paper on "Home-training for the child", in which she pointed out the wonderful privileges we had and our great responsibility to our children. Some of the essentials she spoke of in home-training were: example, love, kindness, and that each mother should feel that to a great extent the perfection of souls in the home rests with her. So it is imporant that she fit herself for the work and this knowledge is gained only by living in close communion with the Great Master. Great appreciation secures great effort, show them God's love. A smile of recognition, a word of encouragement, an act of kindness may be the germ from which springs a noble character. A little sacrifice prompted by a heart full of kindness leaves impressions that are lasting. Let our motto be "I serve." Let us share our talents, our successes, our happiness, our blessings with those about us and help carry each others burdens, and God's blessing will rest on us.

Other items on the programme was a well rendered piano solo by Hubert Steacy and a recitation by Helen Navin.

After the close of the meeting pamphlets were distributed bearing on the subject of Social Hygiene which seemed very appropriate following Mrs. Pankhurst's excellent address given a short time previous.

THREE NOMINATED FOR PERCY DEPUTY REEVE

W. H. Nelson, Who Resigned When the Validity of His Title Was Questioned, Is Again a Candidate Opposed By John Allen, With W. J. Baker Also Nominated--Election Next Saturday.

(By a Staff Reporter)

WARKWORTH, March 24. — Three candidates were nominated at the township meeting here Saturday for the position of deputy-reeve in the Percy Council to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of W.H. Nelson about the validity of whose election some legal question arose, as to the time he was also a member of the school board in the section in which he resides. Those nominated were ex-Deputy Reeve Nelson, W. J. Baker and John Allen, who was nominated for the position last January but who failed to qualify in time, this delay giving Mr. Nelson the position by acclamation. At the close of the meeting Saturday all three nominees qualified. Mr. Baker however, announced that he has no intention of being the third man in a triangular fight and that he qualified on the chance that in order to save the township the expense of an election they would withdraw.

P. S. Ewing, the township clerk, presided and nomiations were made in the following order:

John Allen, nominated by John F. Diamond and Patrick Cooney.

All three nominees are farmers. Mr. Baker resides just outside the limits of the police village of which his mover and seconder are residents He was regarded as a compromise candidate and was put up by those who are anxious to save the cost of an election. It was thought that if a neutral man were nominated Messrs. Nelson and Allen would bury the hatchet for the present at least, and withdraw.

The After Meeting

When the nominations were declared closed at 1 o'clock Clerk Ewing was elected chairman of the public meeting. He regretted that owing to the condition of the roads the attendance was so small and that there were no ladies present. Now that the ladies have the franchise they should turn out to hear public questions discussed.

The candidates were heard in the order of their nomination. Mr. Allen said that if Mr. Nelson would retire he too was willing to do so leaving the field to the third man.

Mr. Baker said that the other two men were neighbors and friends of his. He did not believe that the people of Percy Township would take kindly to an election at this time. For his own part he was a utility man. He has no aspirations to a place in the Council but he had been asked to permit the presentation of his name so that an amicable arrangement could be made by which an election could be avoided He had been reeve of the township some years ago but never a member of the Counties Council as at the time the representatives in that body had been commissioners.

Too Much Friction

Mr. Allen declared that there was too much friction in municipal affairs but for his own part he had never taken sides in these differences. He was in favor of harmony and of the other nominees would retire he would be willing to fill out the term for the balance of the year.

Mr. Nelson Will Stand.

Ex-Deputy Reeve Nelson said it was not necessary to tell the reason for an election at this time. Mr. Allan had said that the speaker did not know the law or he would not have sat as deputy-reeve. The lawyers did not, apparently know the law, or there would not be so much difference of opinion on this point. Mr. Nelson said he had been in the Council three years and that his right to sit had never been questioned until this year.

"I have been nominated again," Mr. Nelson declared, "and I will stand. If I am beaten it will be at the election next Saturday. I ask for the support of the voters of the township."

Mr. Baker Again.

Taking the platform again Mr. Baker said he would rather see the matter settled without a vote. The roads are broken up and the people cannot get out to the polls. They did not appear to be interested anyway. He was in favor of economy in municipal affairs and of a better system of carrying on the work on the highways. Statute labor should be abolished and the work placed in the hands of some one who understood it. The work performed by statute labor now is almost entirely local, whereas under the modern system the roads would be fixed up where improvement is most needed. The hours for statute labor should be increased from eight to ten a day.

Would Cut Salaries.

Mr. Baker said that in his day the members of the Council gave loyal service for only $40 a year. The salaries of all municipal employees, he alleged, were too high and should be cut from 30 to 40 per cent.

In reply to a question from Reeve McCubbin, who is an advocate of statute labor, Mr. Baker said that under the county road system certain dangerous places, which he specified, in the highways, would be remedied. They need widening out to make traffic safe.

An Election Certain.

The nominees have until noon Monday to make up their minds finally as to whether they will stand or resign as all have qualified.

One thing is certain—ex-Deputy-Reeve Nelson will not retire, and Mr. Allan is just as likely to remain in the field. The voters will be called upon to decide between the two, as Mr. Baker makes it clear that if there is an election he will not be in the running.

Clerk Ewing announced that the books and records in his office are open to the public at any time. Any person desiring to secure information was invited to call upon him or apply by telephone at any time.

All the members of the Percy Council were interested spectators of the proceedings. Among others present were: Reeve C. H. Davidson, A. L. Reindeau and John Bateson of Campbellford.

MONTREAL CONSERVATIVE BANQUET

Lavergnes' Tribute.

Armand Lavergne, Nationalist of Quebec City, began his address by paying a warm tribute to Mr. Meighen. "You wonder why I am here," he asked. "Moral courage is so rare in the Province of Quebec that when I was invited to this banquet I decided to come. We of French Canada had hoped that our sixty-five deputies would do something for us, but nothing has come of it. In Messrs. Monty and Fauteux, at least, we have a fine example of moral courage, of men who live up to their ideas and convictions unlike their adversaries who have one opinion in Quebec and another in Ontario.

"As for your great leader," said Mr. Lavergne, turning to Mr. Meighen, "I esteem him as a man of great courage and independent thought. He is a man who preaches the same sermon everywhere. He is frank and outspoken, and in this country of different nationalities, race and religion it is by frankness and openness that we can understand each other.

Meighen's Courage.

"The conscription law is not Meighen's. His is the law of exemption, but this is an old matter. We Liberals of conviction and tradition are fed up with unfulfilled promises, and it is with heavy hearts that we see thousands of our own go to the United States. Our industries are going to the dogs; therefore we greet the man who has the courage to preach protection, not only here, but in the West where it is popular, and I have always admiration for the man who preaches unpopular things."

Mr. Lavergne proceeded to speak of racial matters. With his head thrown back, his eyes closed and his arms gesticulating, he passionately poured out the grievances which in his opinion the French-Canadians have in Canada.

Pleads for Canadianism.

"We want no pale imitation of the United States here," he exclaimed. "We want no melting pot. We, the French-Canadians, have treated you English-Canadians as brothers since 1867. For 150 years our fathers have fought together and bled together. Even if you cannot treat us as brothers, at least you should treat us as associates. Have you always been just? No, I will say. Have you always been generous to us? I am accused of being an extremist. If I love Ontario better than I love France, then I am an extremist. If I love Canada better than England then I am an extremist. I am a Canadian of the French tongue and I hope to God there are Canadians of the English-tongue."

By giving in to the demands of the westerners, he declared Canada would lose its national characteristics, "pale into a race of the melting pot." Enough sacrifices, he cried, had been made for the west, it was time to look after the east.

Hon. Dr. L. F. Normand of Three Rivers, spoke of what he described as the revulsion of feeling against the Government in his city and district.

Hon. L. De G. Belley, of Quebec City, spoke optimistically of conditions politically in that city.

Martin Urges Entente.

Hon. J. D. Martin, Minister of Agriculture in the Ontario Government, pleaded for the bonne entente between Quebec and Ontario declaring that mutual ignorance was the main reason for many unfortunate misunderstandings. He declared that Ontario farmers were all in favor of protection.

Hon. Dr. S. E. Tolmie, general organizer of the Conservative party, spoke with pride of the results in Halifax and Kent and congratulated Messrs. Black and Doucet who were both at the head table.

Pierre Audet, of Levis, J. H. A. Lavoie, representing Labor and Charles L. Mignault, president of the Conservative association of the Eastern Townships, replied to the toast to the Conservative party. They denied the charges that Mr. Meighen has insulted French Canadians.

Ferguson's Prophecy.

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Premier of Ontario, spoke of the historical bonds that were the ties between the two provinces and said that Canada was to-day in as difficult and serious a position as it was in 1874. He prophesied that Ontario would give 70 seats to Mr. Meighen and "if you do your duty, Mr. Meighen will have at least 30 seats in Quebec."

Greetings from British Columbia were conveyed by Hon. H. R. Stevens while Hon. J. B. M. Baxter spoke for New Brunswick Conservatives.

A. J. Doucet, M.P. for Kent, also spoke.

J. A. Lamarre, president of the Cartier-MacDonald Club, proposed the toast of the evening. F. W. Stewart, president of the Liberal-Conservative Association and Isaac Lande, president of the local Hebrew Liberal-Conservative Association joined in the toast in the words of compliment to the work done by the two Quebec leaders. Mrs. A. E. Labelle and Mrs. Henry Joseph expressed the opinion of the Conservative women of the province.

MANY CAPES.

The smart coat not only has one cape, but sometimes has as many as three. Needless to say, they are very subtly cut and there is no suggestion of heaviness or added weight.

The illustration shows an interesting test you should try in your own kitchen. It proves the superiority of good enameled ware for cooking purposes. Take an SMP Enameled Ware Sauce Pan, and a sauce pan of equal size made of aluminum, tin or other metal. Into each pour a quart of cold water. Set both sauce pans over the fire. The water in the SMP Enameled Ware Sauce Pan will be boiling merrily in about five minutes, while the water in the all-metal sauce pan will come to the boil in about eight minutes—three minutes longer. IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Missionary Auxiliary Held March Meeting--Personal Mention.

MILLBROOK, March 24.—Mrs. J. R. Eakins extended the hospitality of her home for the March meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of Grace Presbyterian Church, a large number being in attendance. It has been the custom for some years to hold the women's meeting in the church and have afternoon sessions, but the Executive decided to try a change and meet in the various homes in the evenings. The number who were present, and which included some who had not been in the habit of attending the missionary meetings, at the initial meeting at Mrs. Eakins', was so encouraging it is likely the house-to-house plan will be followed in the future.

The President, Mrs. (Rev.) G. S. Gervan, occupied the chair. Mrs. C. Thorndyke reading the Scripture lesson, and afterward six of the members led in sentence prayers. The Secretary, Mrs. J. A. Eakins, read the minutes of the last meeting, and also brought a number of business items in connection with correspondence received by her during the month before the gathering. Mrs. H. W. Johnston was appointed delegate from the auxiliary to attend the World Missionary Conference at Peterborough, March 21 to 24, inclusive.

"The Broadcast," a monthly bulletin issued from headquarters in Toronto, and so full of interesting, up-to-date missionary information it may be likened to "listening in" on a radio, was distributed and selections read.

Mrs. Gervan took up the chapter from the study book, "Formosa, the Island Beautiful," giving a most inspiring and helpful resume of the opening chapter, which was followed by a general discussion, during which the fact was brought that Dr. Mackay, the pioneer missionary to Formosa, once delivered an address in the old Presbyterian Church, Millbrook, when home on furlough many years ago. One or two of those present retained a faint recollection of Dr. Mackay's visit, though it was impossible to recall the substance of his remarks. However, the personal touch deepened the interest in the study of the scene of his life work.

Mrs. Eakins served refreshments at the close of the gathering and a delightful social hour was spent before the guests left for home. The April meeting will be held at the manse through the kind invitation of Mrs. Gervan.

Annual Statement.

The annual financial statement for the municipality of Millbrook now issued shows total receipts of $20,-542.22 and total expenditures of $20,-465.35, leaving a balance on hand of $76.87. Total assets are $70,596.97, liabilities $39,283.56 and debenture debt $39,046.90, the latter item including school debentures of $30,000 for a period of thirty years and $5,-000 for twenty years. H. R. Armstrong and J. L. Byam are Auditors. The usual number of copies have been printed, and any interested may obtain same by applying to the Clerk, L. C. Russell.

The Ontario Department of Agriculture is sending out in one envelope a group of publications, two of which, "Food for the Family" by Miss Chapman and "Better English" by Prof. O. J. Stevenson, are highly recommended for placing in all schools of the Province. They may be had for the asking, and school boards are urged to see that same are on the teacher's desk, or on the library shelves, teachers to make use of their contents as they best see fit and encourage the pupils to read the pamphlets.

Children Vaccinated.

Over eighty school children have been vaccinated by Dr. H. A. Turner during the past two weeks, the Medical Health Officer making this valuable contribution to the public health free of charge.

The subject to be next debated upon the district A.Y.P.A. series is: "Resolved, that the school exerts a greater influence in moulding character than does the home." The date is April 8th, St. John's, Peterborough, and Millbrook being the two associations to contest in the final honors for the district cup.

Arthur and Patricia Richards, the little son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Richards, are visiting their aunt, Mrs. W. McKim, Peterborough.

T. H. Aiken was among those from Millbrook who attended the meeting of the Grand Chapter of the Royal Black Preceptory in Peterborough this week. Rev. R. M. Peterson of Frazerville was again elected Grand Chaplain for Ontario East.

Mrs. H. Argue of Port Hope was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Eakins and Mrs. A. Ferguson on Wednesday.

Three Hamilton Boys' Adventure Cut Short.

SARNIA, Ont., March 24 (Canadian Press). — In a search for pastures new, three Hamilton boys arrived at Sarnia on Saturday night via the bumpers.

They are James and Emerson Cook, brothers, and Edwin Simpson, all about 14 years of age.

The boys had no idea where they were going or what they intended to do, simply saying they wanted a trip.

They will remain in care of the city police until their parents issue instructions.

2 BOYS DROWNED THROUGH THIN ICE

Toronto Pond Was Scene of Fatality — Had Been Warned.

TORONTO, March 24. —(Canadian Press.)—Roy McGowan, aged 8, of Roncesvalles and Elmo Gillespie, aged 9, Annett street, were drowned in Grenadier pond yesterday afternoon. The bodies of the lads were recovered from the water by Superintendent Lang, of the life-saving station, and his men, after ten minutes' dragging.

The drowning of the two boys came after warnings had been issued through the press regarding the unsafe condition of the ice, both on Grenadier pond and the bay. Eye-witnesses of the tragedy were Mary Grover, Verna Martin and Ivy Davies.

They were walking in the vicinity of the pond when they saw McGowan and Gillespie, in company with two other boys playing football with a tin can on the ice. Presently the game took the two lads further afield than thier companions and it was their misfortune to step upon a thin spot in the ice and go through into the water. One of the lads, in falling, clutched the other, and in this way both went to their death. Other boys ran from the scene, but the young girls kept their wits about them and notified the police of the tragedy.

Despite the tragedy quite a number of people were seen tempting fate on the ice at the pond on Sunday afternoon, a short time after the occurrence.

ALCOHOLIC VICTIM.

ROCKVILLE, Conn., March 24 (Canadian Press).—Wilfred Rheaume of Toronto, Ontario, dropped dead on the street here yesterday.

His companion, Michael Russell of Hazelton, Pa., was found to be in a critical condition, and after receiving medical aid, was turned over to the police for questioning.

George Forbes eliminated "IFS" from his Future—

The mortgage payments were easy enough for George Forbes—he had laid down $4,000 cash on a new home and signed a mortgage for the remainder, a matter of $5,000.

But, each time he signed a cheque to meet a payment, the disquieting thought came to him —"Could my wife carry this along without me?"

As time went on, the thought became almost an obsession with George Forbes.

A friend's advice, however, showed him the way out and after investigation, he took out a North American Life Policy for $5,000 to cover the mortgage.

Whether George Forbes' disturbing thoughts were really a premonition will never be known, but the facts are, that less than two years later, he contracted a fatal illness and died within a week.

His foresight was rewarded, for his North American Life Policy freed the home from the mortgage which hung over it and would probably have lost it to his dear ones.

George Forbes' story is not an unusual one and it is wisdom to play safe by insuring mortgaged property. Full information regarding rates, etc., are obtainable from any representative.

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Bert Traymore—a fascinating philanderer, whom a chance meeting brings into her quiet life.

Janet Mercer—Prudence's dearest friend, an older woman, plain but clever, is masseuse to the delicate child of

Mrs. Vansittart—a pleasure-loving woman-of-the-world, owner of Winston Towers, a beautiful summer home.

Peter Armstrong—a brilliant young inventor, clever and ambitious. His marked attention to Prudence at a ball at Winston Towers leads Virginia to call on the girl the next day in order to ascertain just how far things have gone. Traymore, who has put off meeting Prudence's mother, until the young girl comes to doubt his professed love, choses this day to make his call. He is embarrassed at finding his two sweethearts together, and the situation is awkward, until Peter appears on the scene.

Virginia contrives so that Prudence shall see a love-letter to her (Virginia) from Bert.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Good-Bye.

Janet Mercer sat in her own tiny, chintz-bedecked sitting-room, trying to read the pages of a novel, but with one ear all agog for the sound of a tread she knew and loved.

Will Ogilvie had said he might drop in for a moment on his way home from the bank.

She had seen, alas! so little of him lately.

It was a pretty sitting-room. Odd, that Janet, though always neat and tidy in her person, never seemed to wear really becoming clothes herself, and yet understood the art of 'doing up' an apartment until it became a joy to the beholder.

For the past eighteen months she'd lived—between 'cases'—in the three rooms which constituted the ground floor of a small, rather ugly-looking house in the country town. Parlor, bedroom and kitchenette—they were her pride and joy.

Her landlady lived upstairs. She never interfered with Janet. Indeed, the strong featured nurse was not the type of woman that landladies dare to interfere with much.

Nor did Janet encourage the good creature to much gossiping. "Keeps herself to herself, she does," the latter said of her.

Janet sat in a low rocker and tried to concentrate upon her book. But her glance wandered around the pleasant room. It was full of flowers that little Lucia had plucked from the grounds of Winston Towers only yesterday, and given to her in one huge bouquet.

"Quite bridal!" Janet had laughed.

But the words made her heart ache none the less. Would she ever be a a bride? Weren't flowers incongruous as a setting for her own homely face and ungainly person?

She rocked gently to and fro, while a little breeze from the open window fluttered the pages of her novel. (Depressing trait that in most novels the heroine must be beautiful! After all, don't we read books just to see our own lives reflected in them—our own problems, our own joys and sorrows? The 'human element' is everything. And, thought Janet, with a wry little smile at her lips, she herself was in such direct antithesis to the lovely lady in the story, that she couldn't quite visualise the beauty's way of life, and her reactions to certain situations.

Janet's feet were on a handsome rug, the gift of a patient who had travelled widely in the Orient. Indeed, there were many expensive knick-knacks round about her.

But, to-day, Janet wasn't in an appreciative mood, nor could she—literally or metaphorically—count her blessings. What did she want, and want desperately, seemed to be slipping beyond her reach!

It was the thing that makes the world go round—the thing that beat about her, even in this country town, like the spiced perfume of enchanting flowers. That magic thing created of laughter and tears and longing, which some poet has so aptly termed 'bitter-sweet.'

"I'm nearly thirty. I'm homely and unattractive; I've no appeal for men." Janet rose to her feet, as though she'd shake the longing off. She gave a harsh laugh, knowing full well that even that laugh of hers was grating and unbeautiful.

Love! Cruel, how it came so easily to some! Yes, while others would have given their very souls for it, in vain!

Janet's friends would have marvelled had they known what was welling in her heart to-day.

A home! Children!

But, ranking higher than either, and making her breath catch in her throat—a husband! An adoring husband, in whose fond eyes she wouldn't be plain and unattractive, but everything his soul could wish for!

Dreams! Just dreams!

"I'm a foolish old maid," she said aloud, and walked straight into the bedroom to her looking-glass. "There Janet Mercer, that'll knock commonsense into you quicker than anything will!"

'That' was the uncompromising vision of an honest-featured, though unbeautiful countenance, with small greenish-grey eyes that usually had a twinkle in them, but to-day held the look of a faithful animal that had been hurt. Hair nondescript, though neatly bound about her head. A pug nose that sat impudently, almost absurdly, in the wide expanse of her round, freckled face. And a wide, generous mouth, with an up-quirk at the corners.

Wasn't it the irony of fate that a woman who was yearning for a home and a husband and happiness—just like other women—should be so handicapped?

And wasn't it unfair how fluffy little misses, with no sense whatever in their heads, and very little real affection in their hearts, beyond the pussy cat variety that leads them to snuggle up to the hand that feeds them, purring—wasn't it unfair that they should be in the position to spurn love for which women like Janet would give their very souls and count the world well lost?

"It's that terrible tongue of mine," said honest Janet. "And the awful bit is that I don't seem to learn by experience, but go on saying the wrong thing, and the tactless thing, even if it is true!"

She'd lashed out at Will Ogilvie one day, and the surprising clarity of her analysis had hurt him terribly, by its very truth.

He'd kept away since.

"And small blame to him!" thought Janet, for she could see two sides of the question, and to a certain point guess how he felt.

Would he come to-day?

It wasn't likely.

At that very moment there was his rat-tat at the door.

"Oh, hello, Will!" She made her voice sound casual as she opened to him, though her heart was throbbing in the bosom underneath the nurse's uniform. "I'm just off to Winston Towers. But come in for a minute, won't you?"

He looked moodily at her, then said, slowly:

"I've come to say good-bye, Janet. I'm giving up my job here, and going abroad. But I don't suppose, after what you said, you'll miss me."

Going abroad? Not miss him? Every throb that pounded in her chest tore loose a heart-string!

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

THE LAND OF THE DOOFUNNIES

"Hello," called the Twins, happily.

"Hello there, kiddie!" said a voice, and lo and behold, there appeared on a pussy willow branch, the Fairy Queen herself.

"Hello," called the Twins happily, "we didn't know you were here."

"Oh, I'm everywhere," laughed the dear little lady. "I've just been down to the dingly dell to watch my fairy gardeners put in some more violet plants for spring. On my way home I passed an old stump and stopping a minute I heard the funniest sounds. I have to laugh when I think of it."

"What were they?" cried Nick eagerly.

"Do you really want to know?" cried the Fairy Queen teasingly. "My, my! What a curious little boy! But there! I'm only fooling. That's why I'm here, my dears."

"When I heard all those funny sounds, I said to myself, 'I'll have to send Nancy and Nick to this place down the old stump, for they will have lots of fun.' So I came to leave the magic green shoes with you again and start you off on a new adventure. Do you want to go?"

"Oh, yes, yes, yes!" cried the Twins together. "What is the funny place called? May we go right away?"

"Yes, if you like," answered the queen, flying down to the ground and slipping the magic shoes on their feet. "But I'll tell you a little about it first. The place is called the Land of the Doofunnies."

"Doofunnies!" exclaimed the Twins What are they?"

"Just odds and ends," said the Queen. "Things people make and then forget about. After they grow up they wonder whatever became of this and that they had when they were children. They don't know that there is a special place where these things go. They just slip off when nobody is looking. But the place is there just the same, and the way to get to it is down the old hollow stump beside the button-wood tree."

"Odds and ends!" puzzled Nancy. "What are they?"

The Fairy Queen laughed. "Oh, they are all odd, the people of Doofunny Land are, and sometimes they are ends. Mister Fuzz Wuzz, the pipe-cleaner man, runs the place, and his subjects are the clothes-pin doll, and the napkin rabbit and the wooden soldier, and the potato-horse, and the peanut boy, and the gingerbread man, and the pin-cushion lady, and the stocking cat, and the little tin mouse, and a rubber bow-wow that whistles. Besides there are a lot more. The cut-out people and Teddy-bear and Radio Rex and the wooden clowns, and animals from the Humpty Dumpty Circus."

"Sounds grand to me," said Nick, turning a somersault. Let's go right away, Nancy. May we?"

"Yes, run right along," nodded the Fairy Queen. "Tell Mister Fuzz Wuzz that I sent you. Goodbye!"

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

FISH RECIPES.

With Lent coming on apace Lenten dishes of all sorts are needed. Fish comes first to mind and is an excellent food for changing weather.

From a dietetic standpoint the lighter diet of meat is desirable as spring comes on.

Any sort of the so-called "greens" combines well with fish. A fruit salad followed by a cheese course, or a fruit dessert with a simple salad of lettuce or cabbage, finishes a fish dinner satisfactorily.

Keep in mind that fish is a protein food and must be cooked at a low temperature after the cells are sealed.

Stuffed Fillets of Sole.

Four fillets, 4 pieces of potato one inch thick, 1½ cups canned tomatoes, ½ medium-sized onion, 1 sprig minced parsley, 2 cloves, dash nutmeg, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon paprika, ½ teaspoon sugar.

The potato pieces should be the width of the fish and about one-third as long. Parboil in boiling salted water for 10 minutes. Drain and brush with butter. Fold each fillet of fish over the prepared potato. Strain 4 tablespoons tomato juice from can of tomatoes and reserve. Add onion finely chopped, parsley, cloves, nutmeg, salt, sugar and paprika to canned tomatoes. Put tomatoes in a deep buttered baking dish. Place each fillet on tomatoes and bake half and hour in a moderate oven. Baste frequently with tomato juice. Remove fish to hot platter and pour tomatoes over. The platter can be garnished with points of toast.

Stuffed Fish Steaks.

Two fish steaks cut about ¾-inch thick, 2 cups stale bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 2 tablespoons minced gherkins, 2 tablespoons chili sauce, 1 egg, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon paprika, 1 lemon, 3 very thin slices salt port, 4 tablespoons boiling water, 1 tablespoon floor.

Put two slices of salt pork in a shallow baking pan. On these put one steak. Spread with dressing made with bread crumbs, beaten egg, butter, minced pickles, chili sauce, salt and paprika and warm water to make moist. Cover with remaining steak and put one slice of salt pork on top. Dredge with flour and pour boiling water in at one side of the pan. Put into a hot oven for 10 minutes, reduce heat and bake slowly for half an hour. Remove from pan to hot platter and squeeze lemon juice over the whole.

AMERICAN CATHOLICS HONORED BY VATICAN

American Generosity to Church Lauded by Holy Father in Elevating Cardinals.

ROME, March 24. — (By Henry Wood, United Press). — Patrick J. Hayes, of New York, and George W. Mundelein, of Chicago, became America's new cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church to-day.

At 10 a.m. His Holiness Pope Pius convened the secret consistory, announcing the elevation of the American archbishops.

The Holy Father then read the allocution, setting forth the reasons of the Church for honoring the United States. He paid a high tribute to American generosity and the support which the American Catholics have rendered the work of the Church.

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

The New York Stock Exchange was founded 131 years ago by legitimate dealers to protect themselves and the public against swindlers.

Back in 1790, when stocks and bonds were making their debut into our history, trading was carried on under the trees in Wall Street.

The swindlers and sharps were with us in those days, too. It did not take them long to see that it was to sell stocks and bonds and pocket the proceeds. This threatened to kill the market for legitimate securities.

One of the primary aims of the Exchange was, and still is, to protect their business by fighting the crooks and bucket shops.

Generally speaking the man who needs a larger income most can least afford to try to get it from investments, while the man wh needs a larger income least is the one who can afford to get it from investmeuts.

The above statemene sems rather strange, yet it is true. To obtain a high income safety must be sacrificed. The degree of safety which a man can sacrifice to get a high yield depends upon his individual circumstances.

A retired doctor or school teacher dependent on a moderate income for a living cannot afford to take risks to increase that return. On the other hand a young business man on a good salary can afford to take some risk to obtain a higher yield. Yet he does not need the increased return as much as the school teacher or doctor.

The wise individual builds up a surplus during the most fruitful years of life and avoids getting into the position of not being able to afford any risks.

BEING HELPFUL A WORK FOR CHURCH

Inspiring Sermon by Rev. James Gordon, New Pastor of St. Andrew's Church.

"I have about come to the conclusion that the business of the church is to speak a word in season to the man who is weary, who is broken in spirit, who has had the bottom drop out of 'is life," was the introduction to an inspiring sermon delivered yesterday morning, by Rev. James W. Gordon, M. A., B.D., on the occasion of his introductory sermon as pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Mr. Gordon came to Peterboro from Mitchell, Ont., to fill the position vacated by Rev. James Rollins, who accepted a call to Renfrew. In spite of the mission services going on in other churches throughout the city, St. Andrew's was filled to the doors to greet the new minister.

"We know what to do and say at a social reception or at a ball game" he continued, "but do people in need and distress send for us because we know just what to say under such circumstances? It is easy to slap a man on the back, and say 'Cheer up, old fellow; it'll soon be all right.'"

Pointing out the need for men and women who can say the right word of comfort and hope to those who are in trouble, the speaker said the need for such comforters will never end. "A high or low tariff isn't everything," he said, or a Labor government or any other kind of government. By reading the newspapers these seem to be the important things—the things that will save the nation. But when all parties and peers in the state have all worked their best into the warp and woof of society, and every ism has been worked out to its conclusion, there will still be a world of people who need a word of comfort when they sit under the shadow of sorrow and loss.".

To gain this spirit of understanding and helpfulness in sorrow it is necessary to be in communication with God, not spasmodically, but day after day, and the way to accomplish this is by listening to the word of God through the Bible. "About the nicest looking and cleanest and least thumbed book in the average home to-day," he declared, "is the Bible."

"Throughout history the names of the great men who moved the world and guided the destinies of the people have been the names of listeners-in to the word of God: Moses, Samuel, Isaiah, Jesus, Paul, Augustine, Luther, Knox, Calvin and Wesley. "They are men who told the world in stormy times and in ages of chaos what God wanted done."

Oceans of Propaganda."

While these 'listeners in' are proceeding intelligently about their work of spreading the knowledge of God, other people are spreading oceans of propaganda. "They know what they want done," Mr. Gordon said, "but they don't know what God wants done. They have not listened in. If we are to have any ideals and stick to them we can only have them by listening to God, and it must be done daily."

The word in season that will help the sorrowing and bring comfort is the intimation that God is standing by, and the knowledge of the reality and nearness of God. "Our attitude to man is our attitude to God. If men knew how beautiful God is, and how wonderful His love, they would not trample it the way they do."

SHOT HER HUSBAND IN MOVIE THEATRE

"Because She Loved Him" is Explanation Given by Wife Who Afterwards Drank Poison

DETROIT, March 24—(Canadian Press).—A crowded "house" watching a movie in the Del Theatre on Mack Avenue saw the darkness near the orchestra pit rent by three flashes of flame on Saturday evening, and a moment later saw Sigmund D. Rosen, the 21-year-old organist, slump over the keys, dying from three bullets in his body.

In the fraction of a minute, before hundreds in the audience recovered from their surprise, the figure of a woman could be seen in the half light, at the foot of the centre aisle. She raised a bottle to her lips, drank deeply and then collapsed.

The woman was Mrs. Harriett Rosen, 27 years old. She had shot and probably mortally wounded her husband, and then drained the vial of poison. She did it, she said, afterwards, because she loved him.

Within three minutes after the first shot was fired, the theatre audience was thrown into a panic. Children, men and women rushed for the exits. The motion picture operator stopped his cranking and the Western drama being shown on the screen faded out.

Rosen and his wife had separated. The man will die but the woman may recover.

HUNTING FOR ASSASSINS.

DUBLIN, March 24. — (Canadian Press).—Joseph McGrath, resigned Minister of Industry and Commerce, declares in a statement that he and two or three others will resign membership in the Daily Eireann tomorrow.

Referring to the recent army crisis he says the agreements between himself and President Cosgrave, by which he undertook to remain in the Cabinet have been broken. He undertakes to secure the return of all stolen arms.

As a result of the shooting at Queenstown Friday, no further deaths have been reported, and the hunt for the assassins continues. It is stated that military headquarters is fairly certain of the identity of the fugitives and that they have been traced as far as Middleton, County Cork.

Gum Chewing Aids the Teeth

You have the authority of doctors and dentists for this statement. Your own experience will prove it, if you will use WRIGLEY'S after every meal.

The following quotations from a recent work on teeth and health are worth remembering:

"Dentists have found that the exercise of gum chewing brings about a better nutrition of the teeth . . . ."

"The cleansing action of the gum between the teeth helps to keep them free from the particles which lodge in the crevices and cause decay."

The busy man—or woman either—rarely has time to clean the teeth after eating. Yet they should be cleaned, and

Your Health

By DR. CLIFFORD C. ROBINSON

HEREDITY AND HEALTH

The influence of heredity upon a person's nervous and mental make-up is often very marked, but in many cases such traits or characteristic habits do not show.

We come into the world, each one a being of limited capacity, but in other respects free to become what circumstances of education and environment make us. ....

We are responsible to the extent of our powers of capability, to be, to have and to do those things which place their stamp on us for good or ill, according to our personal growth and activity.

Brain, heart and hand depend more upon the healthy functional activity of these organisms, than upon some far off influence called heredity.

One can do more to develop and gain physical perfection by well directed diet and exercise than by rather half-heartedly claiming heredity shapes our ends.

The growth of mental and physical activity in all tissue of the body, even to that of the most insignicant secreting gland, depends not so much on heredity as our own will and desire to get and place the bodily functions under perfect control.

Healthy life for work and true happiness is the paramount issue.

One can rise above his grade by careful attention to the hygiene of health and bodily condition. Using the equation of health and paying every possible attention to the laws of best mental and physical development will account for a most striking contrast to what has usually been fatally pessimistic views on this subject.

Modern intelligence agrees that health will shape and develop the individual more than heredity.

G LAYMEN'S BANQUET A FEATURE OF THE ISSIONS CONFERENCE

neration Seems to Be oved More by Jazz han Anything Else, Said One Speaker--The fternoon Session.

big Laymen's Missionary banquet as the feature of Saturday evening's session of the World Missions Conference. Representatives from the different evangelical churches of the city, to the number of one hundred and fifty-two, gathered in the Sunday school rooms of St. Paul's Presbyterian church for a banquet that was featured by a spirit of good fellowship and get-together-ness. The chairman of the laymen's committee, His Worship Mayor Turner, presided. Rev. Dr. R. P. McKay, general secretary of the Presbyterian Mission Board, asked the blessing and Rev. Mr. Pogue pronounced the benediction. The evening was featured by the appearance of the Masonic Male Voice Choir, led by Mr. John Crane, who gave, in splendid style, two vocal numbers, "Lead, Kindly Light," and "Hail, Smiling Morn."

The speakers of the evening were Rev. Canon S. Gould, general secretary of the Missionary Society of the Church of England, and by Mr. W. H. Goodwin of Montreal. Both were marked by a degree of enthusiastic fervor in the cause of missions that made them interest-holding and informative.

Rev. Canon S. Gould, who address was given with eloquent forcefulness, spoke on "Christianity in Relationship to the International Spirit," from impressions gathered from a recent Jsonal tour of the Orient, and from thirteen years spent in missionary endeavor in Palestine.

Speaking of two of the great ideals of the war, national expression and international brotherhood, the Canon remarked that the first ideal had been reasonably attained, "but in international relationships the world today presents many disagreeable features."

Four general attitudes of mind were instanced, that had relation to this question: (1) a frank self-interest, (2) an irresponsible detachment, (3) type of optimism that ascribed the best possible to other races, while a strong suspicion lurked in our minds that they were not as good as we thought, and (4) an attitude of unconquered and unconquerable faith, the attitude of the seer of old, "that sees the gates open day and night and the nations of the saved entering therein."

The speaker quoted the words: "The only non-Christian great power independent today of Christian tutelage and advice is Japan," adding Turkey as a possible second. "Of what character should this advice be that those others depend on?" He went on to speak of the British action in Palestine, and said he was not yet able to see it in the light ascribed to it, as being analogous to the deeds of the Persian Cyrus, when he sent back the exiled peoples. The long-held desire of the people of the Holy Land for such a consummation of their hopes had now found only in Palestine after the precipitate announcement of the British, a solid uniting against the latter of the non-Jewish elements, who were unable to accept the term, "a national home for the Jews," a term, he said, "which connotes certain things and nothing can divest that term of those conditions."

"The only religion in the world today that can be used as a condition for these fundamental things that concern humanity in its fundamental relationships is the Christian religion, and an attempt to adjust non-Christian religions to them leads ever to contradiction between precept and practice, or to a frank disavowal that it is impossible to base these things on the Christian faith. An example of the attempt to apply the principles of Christianity without acknowledging the Overlordship of Jesus Christ might apply to India at the present time."

Speaking of China, Canon Gould said that the feet of the Chinese people were set on the right track, but they were stumbling on the way. "If we could give the Chinese people all the religion that they are ready to swallow today, we would have to increase our missionaries a hundred-fold. The success of the movement depends upon the measure of encouragement and help that Christians are willing to give at the present time."

Mr. W. H. Goodwin, a member of the Methodist Church in Montreal, spoke with vigor and sincerity on the laymen's side of the missionary work of the present day. Speaking of the great impetus given in 1908 by the Laymen's Missionary Movement and the interest it inspired, he regretted the present-day attitude, "when the generation seems to be moved more by jazz than by anything else." He thought conditions at the present time in the church's life might be compared to the situation confronting Joshua, when he was faced, on the death of Moses, by the command of the Lord: "Rise up, thou, and go over this Jordan," into the Promised Land.

One of the greatest difficulties of the time was the indifference of followers of the church, and another was the general attitude of the world, which the speaker instanced as expressed in John Galsworthy's pamphlet, "International Thought," where "science, finance and the press" were considered as the principal elements of importance in the realm of present-day international thought. Even sport was commended highly for its good influence, but religion was mentioned only once, "and then with a small 'r.'"

Opposition that had to be faced as well as apathy was the spirit of Islam, the spirit of Bolshevism, whose believers, meeting in one of the ancient churches of Europe recently, declared that "this club will spawn generations of godless men who will bring the light of Communism to the four corners of the earth," and the opposition of materialism, that spirit of the world that dominates everything. Here Lord Birkenhead's recent speech was quoted, when he declared that "the world still offers glistening prizes to men of stout hearts and sharp swords," and when idealism was characterized as "sloppy folly and a dangerous nuisance."

Denominational divisions were another stumbling-block, and the quotation given that "Christianity is the only religion preaching unity and the only religion that doesn't practise it." In China, the land where the cult of Confucius united four hundred millions of people as one, no less than one hundred and twenty different brands of Christianity were being preached. The speaker quoted the recent visitor from Africa to Montreal who said: "Don't bring your divisions to Africa."

Departmental divisions and factions in the church itself were another danger, and the speaker, referring to the late Sentaor Cox as a man of far-reaching vision, asked for a forward-looking attitude, rather than the attitude which is constantly bothering about evolution.

"I don't want to be considered only as a gas explosion in the progress of a car. I don't want to be made to think of millions of years and then be told that I am just a puff of air. I don't want to look back, but to look forward with an eager vision to the Promised Land," said Mr. Goodwin, concluding an earnest, inspiring talk with a plea for "one mission committee, one church night in the week for laymen, one man on the job, and one job for all."

Resolutions presented by Mr. E. H. Ingall and seconded by Mr. Wm. Madill, were then unanimously accepted by the gathering, as follows:

Resolved, (1) That we re-affirm our conviction that missions constitute the supreme task of the Christian church; (2) That we seek to acquaint ourselves more fully with the needs and achievements of the missionary enterprise and to give it our prayerful and financial support; (3) That we endeavor to develop the missionary life of our respective congregations and to insure a more adequate support of the missionary work carried on by the mission boards of our respective churches.

Rev. Dr. Rose expressed his appreciation in a few well-chosen words of the chairmanship of Mayor Turner and the splendid addresses given by the two speakers.

The Afternoon Session

In the afternoon, upwards of nine hundred children gathered in the church for the children's mass meeting, presided over by Inspector A. Mowat. A choir of children recruited from various churches gave a very pretty vocal rendition of "Tell the Blessed Tidings," led by Mrs. J. A. McKone, with Mrs. M. C. Mackinnon at the piano. Singing in which all the children present joined was a portion of the programme also, with the reciting in concert of the twenty-third Psalm and the Lord's Prayer.

Interesting stories on child life and child's stories of India and China were given by Dr. J. W. Waters, a Presbyterian missionary in India, and by Rev. W. M. Trivett, of the Anglican Church in China. Both were attended by assistants in costumes representing the native dress of the two countries, Dr. Waters presenting also two of the Bible women who labor in India. Those assisting included Rev. Jas. H. Bruce, of the Presbyterian mission in Honan, China; Marjorie Bentley, Isabel Pogue, Maisie Cowan, Miss Freda Fowler, of Warkworth, Dorothy Henry, Gordon Pogue and small Perrin Clarke.

Rev. Mr. Trivett described in pleasant fashion some of the customs of the Flowery Kingdom, with its indigo blue dresses that remind its inhabitants of the Heaven they talk so much about. An interesting factor was the explanation of the thought which governs the Chinese peoples; their constant attemp to outwit and trick the evils spirits whom they believe to be always trying to hurt them. Little children are named ugly names, for this reason. "Little cat," and "pig," and "dog" are common names for boys and girls, so that the evil spirits will not envy them and take them away from their parents. Mercy and love and kindliness were practically unknown to these people, haunted always by their fear of menacing evil things about them, and they have great respect for family life. The bride has no standing in the family, but the old woman, the grandmother or mother-in-law, is venerated and held in much respect. They have little regard for the truth, and speak without much attention to it, trying always to use "pretty words." Mr. Trivett concluded his address with a recitation of a Chinese hymn and the Lord's Prayer in Chinese.

Dr. Waters, speaking on India, used as an illustration a day's visit to his own particular town, Rutlam, in Central India, and related some of the curious things about the life of the people of that land. He described, in terms suited to his audience, the theory of transmigration of souls which influence the lives and thoughts of the East Indians, and leads them to such practices as supplying sugar for the ants by the way, refusing to kill rats, even though they carry the loathsome bubonic plague, or to destroy any creeping or crawling thing on the ground that such an insect or animal may contain the soul of the killer's grandfather or other relative. To be born 8,400,000 times is the belief held by the Hindu, who thinks that after that, he vanishes into nothingness.

The acts of the so-called 'holy men,' who measure their length by crawling along the way on their pilgrimages to the sacred Ganges River, or hold their hands in the air until they shrivel away, or remain imbedded in the earth up to their necks, were referred to, and the fear of evil spirits which also influence these people, who put their hideous gods to sleep at night by banging on loud drums and lighting candles to dazzle their eyes.

BANK DISCUSSION IS NOW POSTPONED

At Present It is Not Known When It Will Come Up or What Form It Will Take.

OTTAWA, March 24 (Canadian Press). — The discussion on the Home Bank, which was scheduled for to-day in the House of Commons, has been postponed, and there appears to be some uncertainty as to when it will come up or what form it will take. When the subject was broached last Thursday there were two resolutions on the order paper, both of which dealt directly with the collapse of this bank, but in the meantime one of these has been dropped.

The two resolutions stood in the names of William Irvine, Labour, Calgary East, and T. L. Church, Conservative, North Toronto.

Mr Church has now dropped his motion.

An arrangement has now been made it is understood, for the consideration of the Irvine motion on Thursday next, and unless some unforeseen circumstance intervenes, the debate will take place then.

The withdrawal of Mr. Church's resolution has, however, introduced an element of uncertainty into the situation, and it is not known what developments may be pending.

OLD "LENA" BLACKBURN

Old "Lena" Blackburn, one-time "$10,000 beauty" of the Chicago White Sox, is still roaming around in the American Association. Blackburn came to the Comiskey club back in 1910. He came with a great reputation. He went back without it. Blackburn, in the majors, was plenty good enough afield but he couldn't hit the size of his lid. With Milwaukee, from whence the Sox got him, "Lena" hung up quite a mark as a clubber. Against big time pitching, though, he could do nothing. Blackburn, later caught on with the Cincinnati Reds but it was the same old story with that outfit—a poor batter. And back to the minors he again drifted—for good. As a major leaguer, Blackburn played short but since joining the "Double 'A's" he has been performing at third base.

SAYS HIS SONS BEAT HIM BLUE

North Monaghan Man Charges Sons With Assault--Admits Slapping Wife-- Unusual Case in County Court

Referring to their father as "the boss" and as "that guy there," Arthur and Clarence Blodgett, in the County Criminal Court this morning, before Magistrate O. A. Langley, denied the charges of assault brought against them by their father, James Arthur Blodgett, of North Monaghan. The evidence for the defence was submitted to-day and the witty and sometimes acrimonious replies of the witnesses to one or other of the counsel kept the large number of spectators in a constant foment of amusement, and even the Court could sometimes scarce forbear to smile, despite the tragedy of the affair.

J. A. O'Brien acted for the Crown, and B. D. Hall as solicitor, and Jos. Wearing, as counsel appeared for the defence.

Evidence for the prosecution alleged that James Blodgett had been set upon and beaten by his sons, one of whom claimed a horse collar which his father refused to give up. Evidence of blood stains on the floor was given, and it was alleged that a visitor to the house described it as looking like a slaughter house. Mrs. Blodgett was certain that neither of the boys kicked his father, and Hazel and Ethel Blodgett said the collar which caused the scuffle was the property of their brother, Arthur.

After a scuffle Arthur retired from the field, leaving his horse collar, which cost $6.50, in his father's hands, the father alleging having received bruises to his side and a blow on his nose that made it bleed.

Defendant's Story.

Arthur Blodgett, 21, son of the plaintiff, James Arthur Blodgett, said he lived with his father. He weighed 150 pounds, and his father weighed 190 pounds.

On the night of the alleged assault he went to his home to get his mother, as he could not be contented to leave her there. "I couldn't leave her with my father," he said.

On his arrival there he took a horse collar he said belonged to him, as he was taking all his possessions. He had purchased the collar with prize money he won at the Peterboro Exhibition with a mare owned by his father. The understanding was that any prize money from the animals he showed would belong to him, and his father never claimed the collar until the evening the witness put it in the cutter.

"I put the collar in my cutter and went into the house when he went out and took it from the cutter. He dared me to put my hands on it. He was swearing I said 'I'll take the collar, I bought it and paid for it.' He said 'Don't you run up against me.' He tapped me on the nose with his finger and said 'Don't you touch either the collar or me.' He said 'Just hit me; hit me.'

I walked over and took hold of the collar and he threw himself on the top of it on the floor. He held on to the collar and pulled it. He rolled over and kicked Clarence in the stomach. There was nothing accidental about it that I could see. I didn't kick him in the face or at all and I didn't hit him. In pulling on the collar his nose struck the floor and that made it bleed. I didn't see his head strike the floor but I heard him cry out when it did. We were both excited. The only way I can explain his side getting blue was the pulling of the collar over to unbuckle it. I have had trouble with him as long as I can mind."

The witness said he never had trouble with anyone else he ever worked for but his father and he did not get along together.

In the end he gave up the struggle and allowed his father to retain the collar.

Mr. Wearing, "Some evidence was given of a pint or a quart of blood on the floor."

"I never saw a quart and it was a very small pint. It was no worse than I've seen before when he has fallen off the sofa or out of bed and started his nose bleeding."

Mr. O'Brien, cross-examining, asked regarding the relations between the witness and the hired man who swore Arthur Blodgett kicked his father.

"He was all right, but poor Bill was a little soft."

Never Beat up Father

"Have you and your father ever come to blows?"

"Yes, we have."

"Do you recall one day your uncle Tom, took a whip away from you?"

"He never took a whip away from me in his life."

"Do you recall threatening to beat your father up and Harry Smith was there?"

"No."

"Or threatening Harry Smith for interfering?"

"Do you recall taking a stick to your father one time your uncle Justice Blodgett was present?"

"No. He (Justice Blodgett) has had a spite at me for a long time and he's trying to get it worked out now.

"Do you recall the Sunday before your father went to hospital recently?"

"No."

"I am instructed that it was on that Sunday you beat your father up and Smith saw you doing it?"

"No, I never did."

"Do you recall seeing Clarence do it?"

"No. I don't know anything about it."

"One time I did lay violent hands on my father. I had good grounds for it. We never got along. I don't recall wanting my father to turn over the farm."

"Would you have any difficulty in trimming your father if you wanted to?"

"It all depends on how he felt."

"Was your father groaning in pain?"

"I don't know whether it was pain or not."

"You knew that you might have taken the collar peaceably?"

"Yes."

"Yet in spite of that you proceeded to get into this scuffle with your father?"

"There was no spite about it."

"Why did you attempt to take it by force when you might have had it peaceably?"

"Well, when he dared me to take it, by gosh, I thought I'd do it."

Gallon of Home Brew.

Mr. Wearing: "What do you mean by saying Bill is 'soft'?"

"Well, he's so soft you can tell him to do anything and he'll do it."

"What were the circumstances surrounding your altercation with your father before?"

He was yelling and shouting so no one could sleep. He had a gallon of home brew. I put him into bed. There was a little rough work."

William Clarence Blodgett seeming highly amused by his position, said he went with his brother to gather up his clothes. He repeated the story of the scuffle as told by his brother Arthur.

Referring to his father as the boss, the witness said he stood and laughed at the two tussling on the floor after taking off his glasses, because he had got them broken once before. He just walked close to them to see how they were getting on when "the boss kicked me and knocked me back."

"So you didn't get into the scuffle at all?"

Witiess (indignantly)—"No."

The witness said his father's nose started bleeding when he hit the floor. He had been in trouble with his father before.

"We were cutting wood when the boss hit me on the back of the head with his axe when he was half shot, and I hit him. Arthur took him away.

Saved His Glasses.

The witness referred to his father as "that guy there" while telling of this encounter which arose out of a dispute over liquor.

Mr. O'Brien —You didn't complain about the blow with the axe?"

"No."

"What did you take off your glasses for?"

"Because."

"That's no answer."

"I might have got into the fight."

"Were you laughing so much that they might have fell off?"

"They might have at that."

"Are you used to taking them off in the house?"

"Yes."

"Why didn't you take them off here?"

"I haven't the case to put them in."

"Are you long-sighted or short-sighted?"

"I don't know. I may be between."

"Why did you take off your glasses. I haven't heard yet?"

"I told you."

"The scuffle had nothing to do with you taking your glasses off?"

"No."

"Then why did you take them off?"

"Well if I had left them on when I was kilked I would have had them broken."

"And you went to hit your father when your mother stopped you?"

"Yes. First place I could have got him."

"Who pulled you back?"

"Both my mother and Arthur."

"Both of them?"

"Yes. That's what I told the other fellow."

"I presume you mean Mr. Wearing when you say 'the other fellow'?"

"Yes. I forgot his name."

"How much blood did you see?"

"Not much."

"I pitcher full?"

"No. That pitcher holds 3 quarts."

"Well, how much did you see?"

"About that glassful."

Didn't Tap His Nose

In reply Mr. O'Brien called James Arthur Blodgett senior who denied hitting Clarence with an axe and said he did not tap Arthur on the nose with his finger in starting the altercation of which he complained.

He did not strike his nose on the floor, but was kicked by Arthur.

He did not throw himself on the floor but was pulled he said, and son one kicked him on the side.

had never seen Clarence with glasses off. Arthur had beaten him up several times.

Mr. Wearing: "And on each of these occasions you were drunk and beating up your wife, and causing a disturbance?"

"No such thing."

'Do you deny beating your wife?'

"I did give her a slap or two when she hit me over the head with the mop and broke it."

Can you explain why non of your family can live with you?"

"Any of them could live with me if they would do what's right. On the Sunday before I went to the hospital, Clarence beat me up. I have never got any money from Arthur and he never gave any to my wife. I was always a good husband.'

Disciplined by Sons

Mr. Wearing said this is an unfortunate case in which the boys have been brought up by the father himself in such a way that they have no respect for him and such scuffles are common place affairs.

The father instead of disciplining the sons has apparently had to be disciplined by them in order to protect their mother. The father's conduct had put him in a position where he was simply regarded as "one of the fellows."

Music Committee — Douglas Carlisle, chairman; R. A. Brown, Rev. W. Harold Young, J. M. McHardy.

Bulletin Editor — Rev. W. Harold Young.

Rotarian Alex. Mowat, retiring chairman of the Rotary Educational Committee, commended the Rotary Magazien to the members, and laid before them as the outstanding duty of Rotary to strive for a real brotherhood of man in the world. The founding a brotherhood, he considered, should be the goal before Rotarians and their efforts should be directed in that direction.

The eloquent message was warmly applauded and Rotarian W. R. Morris suggested it should be sent to the "Rotarian."

Rotarian F. H. Dobbin gave a most interesting report on his visit to Fulton, N.Y., where he represented the Peterborough Club at a meeting of the Fulton Rotarians, whom he described as a friendly, courteous, sociable collection of men. He referred to the fact that Mayor Turner had given him a beautiful silk Canadian flag for presentation to the Fulton Club and said that the gift had been thoroughly appreciated. Rotarian Dobbin related particulars of his visit to many industrial establishments in Fulton and his impressions of the United States' manufacturers and business men. He had been particularly struck by the fact that they did not wait for a demand to arise for a certain article, but rather worked on the principle of turning out the product and then created the demand. He illustrated his point by a description of the huge plant which is manufacturing paper milk bottles and expects to control the field on this continent in a few years.

Capt. Tom Best, of the Y.M.C.A., gave a short and characteristically hearty address in which he emphasized the value of making friends.

There were more than the usual number of visitors, including Rotarians W. L. Doyle of Belleville, and Kiwanians Doran and Hugh Niven, the latter of which asked for the support of Rotary for Friday night's concert of the Male Voice Choir.

QUEBEC IRISH FADED IN FINAL PERIOD AND SOO DELIVERED PUNCH

Ontario Senior Champions Advance Step Nearer the Allan Cup — Met Stiff Opposition In One of Best Games Seen in Ottawa This Winter—Battle Confined Largely to Forward Line.

SOO'S GOALER GOOD.

OTTAWA, March 24. Canadain Press. — Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds advanced one step nearer the Allen Cup when they defeated Sons of Ireland of Quebec here on Saturday night, 3 goals to 0, in the first of the two semi-final games. The 5,000 spectators who attended the struggle witnessed one of the closest and hardest fought games that has been seen in Ottawa this season, and probably one of Canada's best amateur games of the year.

While the score would indicate that the Soo's victory was an impressive one, it was a very tight fit, with the Sons commanding the play throughout the major portion of the playing time. A bit of hard luck, combined with a magnificent exhibition of goal tending by "Flat" Walsh in the Soo Nets, accounted for their zero score.

Seldom has a more finished display of goal tending been seen than that furnished by Walsh. On some of the spectacular saves he executed he was playing with Lady Luck decorating the cross-bar of his net, but on the majority of the shots, he played them carefully and safely.

Championship Qualiy.

The game was of championship calibre throughout, and both teams showed a brand of hockey that is ample proof of why they are fighting it out in the semi-finals as representatives of Ontario and Quebec. One feature of the contest was the small amount of work either defence was called upon to perform, in the way of body checking. It was a battle of the forward lines with the maroon-clad speeders under George McNamara's direction holding the desperate attacks of the Green shorts in submission, and then slipping in with the necessary punch in the final twenty minutes to cinch the game.

The pace was so fast all the way that combination was forced into the discard, and one man rushes predominated. In this respect the clever work of the Sons, individually, more than made up for lack of combination on their part. They fought back all the time, especially in the last period, and their exhibition of heart which was prominently displayed throughout, earned the undivided applause of the crowd on numerous occasions.

Goaler Injured.

A regrettable incident occurred just before the end of the first period which resulted in Turgeon, the Sons' goaler, being carried to the dressing room. Phillips had accepted a pass from Lessard and Referee O'Leary blew his whistle for an offside play. Before the whistle could stop the play, however ,Phillips shot and the disc struck Turgeon on the face when he jumped to clear it. It was an ugly gash and the remaining two minutes and ten seconds of the period were added on to the second stanza. Turgeon finished the game in the Quebec net and continued to turn in a brilliant performance.

Penalties were rare for the first two period, but were handed out more in the closing twenty minutes. Referee O'Leary ruled with an iron hand and was perhaps too strict on some occasions, but nevertheless he kept admirable control of the game, and little got by on either side. Two periods passed into the discard without a goal being registered. The Sons assumed the offensive from the start and their close checking tactics on the forward line nullified the Greyhound's speed.

First Period.

They went away with a bang, Phillips taking the first shot. Play went from end to end and Walsh made three spectacular saves in a row. Laroche stood out with a pair of good tries. The Sons had the Soo badly bottled up for a couple of minutes. Lessard missed an open net on Phillips' pass. Walsh saved two in a row from McNaughton and Dinan, stopping the latter's hot drive with his chest while n his knees. Dinan drove a high one that fell on top of the net when Walsh only partially blocked it. Phillips' wicked drive hit Turgeon on the head and laid him out. There was two minutes and ten seconds to play and it was added to the second period.

Second Period.

The opening was tame long shots causing no damage. Starkins tricked the Soo defence and Walsh but missed the open net. Playing a man short through Cook's penalty, the Soo had a hard time holding the Sons. It was evened up when Starkins was penalized. Turgeon saved brilliantly frm Cook and Lessard. Laroche went in alone and hit the post. Turgeon came out to stop Woodruff. Sons tied the Greyhunds up again with a terrific offensive, Walsh saving the 14Northerners on four separate occasions.

Third Period.

McNaughton lost control of the puck when inside the defence, and then hit the post on the recovery. Laroche tried three times and Dinan missed the rebound. Woodruff scored on a double pass with Lessard in 1:45. Soo cleared from a dangerous face-off, after Walsh had gone down to stop Laroch. Sons played two men short with McNaughton and Laroche penalized. Cook nearly scored from a face off. Donnelly was ruled off for tripping; Phillips followed and the Soo held them with two men short. Sons went all over the Greyhounds but could not beat Walsh. Laroche wen in on his wing and Walsh was lucky when the drive hit his arm and bounded over the net Donnelly broke with Lessard and Phillips. He passed to Lessard, who returnd it and Donnelly forced the play into the net a goal resulting. Time 14:00. Phillips passed to centre from right wing and Lessard took the pass and scored in 1:05. Sons kept up their attack, Walsh saving a sure one from Lonergan at the bell.

Sons: — Goal, Turgeon; defence, Lonergan and Starkins; McNaughton, centre; left wing, Laroche; right wing, Dinan; subs., Gaudreault, and Pednault.

Referee, Dr. Ed. O'Leary, Ottawa.

SAULT STE. MARIE, March 24.—(Canadian Press). — The Soo sent a notice Saturday to Secretary W. A. Hewitt of O. H.A. warning him that it would protest the use of McMunn by the Selkirks in the finals for the Allan Cup.

The Selkirks it is alleged have signed up McMunn apparently with the idea of using him in the finals. He was a Falcon player early in the season and only left to join the Olympics an hour before the Falcons played their first game.

LOOMIS SQUAD PLAY TORONTO

Meet Broadview "Y" In Intermediate Basketball Semi - Finals — Game Here Next Saturday Night.

The local Intermediates will meet the Broadview "Y" in the semi-finals of the O.A.B.A. play offs. The Petes will represent the East in basketball. Queen's, which also held some right to this honor, waived all their claims on account of the nearness to examinations. It is generally admitted that Peterboro will uphold the honor of the East to the best advantage.

The O.A.B.A. executive met in Toronto Friday afternoon and the schedule for the play offs was drawn up. The winner of the Toronto-Peterboro series will meet the winner of Western Ontario. No winner has been declared in the West as yet. The Petes play in Toronto on Wednesday evening and they will be seen in action at their own gymnasium on Saturday night.

This Broadview "Y" team last year won the junior championship and they moved up as a team to the higher company. They defeated the other Toronto teams handily and they are certainly a team to be reckoned with.

The Petes are in first class shape although they have not had a game in the past two weeks. Doug Loomis has kept them in action and the whole "troupe" go through their paces regularly. Saturday night the full squad was out and a peppy practice lasting forty minutes was held.

ANNUAL CURLING MEETING TONIGHT

Election of Officers and Wind-Up of Season — Lacrosse Meeting Will Be Called Soon to Decide Local Action.

The 1924-25 curling season opens tonight with the election of officers at the annual meeting in the club assembly room. Three seasons will intervene before the lockers are opened and the broom industry gets a rush order, but for all the inrushing joys of Spring and the postponement through summer and autumn tonight's meeting faces definitely forward except for the retrospect of the winter's games in the presentation of prizes. The attendance should be large and every member who interested in the welfare of the club and the game should take a hand in electing the officers for the coming year.

Walter Jackson predicts a future in hockey for young Rainnie and Massie of the Lakefield Grove School's first team. He also likes Ridpath of the village team, and says quite a lot of good players were developed in the Lakefield junior leagues during the past winter.

Peterboro's crop of prospects was neither numerous or promising. A few youngsters in the High School league teams may be heard from, but the material for intermediate teams four or five years hence was not brought out in anything like the comparative abundance that marked last year's activities in baseball.

Vic Hamilton is calling a meeting of lacrosse players one of these nights to wind up last year's effort and consider the outlook for this summer.

Lacrosse faltered badly last season after a rather impressive start the year before, and if the game is to survive it must be carried along by the players who have been developed.

Johnnie Sutherland has been approached recently by quite a number of those who like the game, and has intimated that he will do his share toward promoting a team if the players are in earnest and also providing there is other and ample support. The little Caledonian named a list of more than twenty players who, he believes, would make a strong intermediate team if they would turn out faithfully and confine all their athletic interest to lacrosse instead of dabbling in it while actually concentrating on baseball and soccer.

If lacrosse lapses this season it may disappear from local fields for another decade or two, and in any event will be all the harder to bring back. The decision rests with the young men who like the game and who can play it if they will give it a fair chance.

The Illinois Athletic Club team of Chicago held the former record of 10m. 5 2-5s.

CALGARY TIGERS WERE TANNED BY CANADIENS

Westerners Decisively Defeated By Montreal Team In First of Stanley Cup Finals By Score of 6-1 — Only Two Penalties For Minor Infractions.

MONTREAL, March 24 (Canadian Press). — With a 6 to 1 victory over Calgary Tigers at the Mount Royal Arena on Saturday night, the Canadiens decisively demonstrated that the Stanley Cup and the world's professional hockey laurels are well within their grasp, and as a result of their overwhelming win, the National Hockey League champions are big favourites to clinch the crown when the two teams meetin the second game for the trophy under Western rules at Ottawa on Tuesday night.

After the first period of the game the Prairie champions were outclassed and were seldom able to hold the youthful Canadien forwards in check, while the latter in turn checked back so determinedly that the invading players found it extremely difficult to get close in with Vezina, and when they did evade their checks they ran into a sturdy defence in Sprague Cleghorn and Billy Coutu.

Another crowd of 6,500 comfortably packed the Arena to witness the last hockey game of the season in the city.

Prior to the game an ice planer was sent twice over the water-covered sheet and two inches of ice was planed off.

While decisively beaten, it remained for the Calgary players to provide the smartest piece of hockey of the entire sixty minutes.

Just before the close of the second period, with the count of 4 to 0 against them, the Tigers rallied to stem the onrushing N.H.L. champions and to break through and tally.

Eddie Oatman was the pivot in a four-man rush towards the Canadien net. A bewildering passing bout in which Oatman, Norris and Gardiner took part, left the latter with the puck and past the local defence.

The Calgary defence man has a terrific shot, and he put all his energy into a drive which brought the lone counter for the Westerners.

Besides clever individual work by every member of the local team, there were two outstanding combined attacks by the Canadiens, both of which resulted in goals. The first came right at the face-off in the second period when Morenz secured, passed to Joliat, who rushed in and returned a fast pass to Morenz from behind the net. Before the Tiger defence had got set, Morenz had driven the puck behind Reid for his second of three goals scored during the fray.

The second smart tit-bit was a clever rush engineered by that crafty player Odie Cleghorn, who stickhandled his way to the Tiger defence and left Billy Boucher in an excellent position to score.

Besides playing below their usual form, Calgary were the victims of "breaks." The fifth goal secured against them was a somewhat lucky one. Joliat rushed and shot, and the rebound off Reid's pads dropped 15 feet in front of the goal.

Reid and Gardiner both rushed to clear the disc and bungled up the play, leaving the puck for Joliat with an empty net into which to give it a flip.

With it all Calgary were good losers, and fought a clean game in which only two penalties were inflicted, one to each team.

The Tigers made their best showing in the first period, and to within 50 seconds of the first rest session they held the Canadiens scoreless. But with the timekeeper ready to ring the bell, Morenz went through on a rush with Billy Boucher.

Boucher was forced behind the net, but passed out and Morenz whipped in the disc while at close quarters with Reid.

KINGSTON FANS ARE RESTLESS

Eager For Baseball to Start and Regard Oshawa As Team to Beat In Central Ontario.

The Kingston Standard says: In just a little more than two months the Kingston in the C.O.B.L. will be in the throes of their first encounter with Oshawa, the new entrant this year in this section of the league, and the fans will get the low-down on the local prospects in the race.

Already fans are beginning to grow restless; they want baseball now that the hockey season is finished, and the sooner it comes the better they will be satisfied. Oshawa will be the team to beat in the C.O.B.L., and Kingston will be there with bells on when the umps call "Play Ball" at the old Fair Grounds on May 21st.

Local fans have heard a lot about Dainty the crack Oshawa twirler, and it's a cinch Kingston will have to have the battings togs on the day they stand up and look at the sweet slants of the Motor City twirler crossing the plate. Dainty was wanted in the M.-O. league and is just a little better pitcher than Al Heckman, Peterboro slab artist; he possesses a round-house curve, a C.P.R. drop, and a few other fancy flings up his sleeve, but Kingston will send out an array of maulers who ought to make him wish he had gone to the M.-O. league. As is the Oshawa team is a bang-up one; Roddick, one of their start outfielders, used to be quite a pitcher, while Mickey Murray, the hot-corner player, is one of the finest third-basemen in the province, barring Batstone and Joe Breen.

One of the local players is so anxious for the season to open that he has been doing a little spring training of his own. Ruuning to work in the morning, and tossing a ball about on the days that the sun has been warm, has been part of his spring workout. It's a safe bet that when the bat bag is emptied for the first time at the Fair Grounds he'll be standing over it looking for his old dilapidated glove. Smith, the Queen's flash, ought to be a big asset to the team. He has the speed of a greyhound, and will worry Swanson, "Peenie" Mills, and the other backstops not a little. In all the Kingston team will be a good one, and no young player who can show the goods, will be barred from the lineup. The team is a Kingston one, Kingston boys who have the ability will be given the opportunity of showing their wares.

TILDEN'S PLANS.

NEW YORK, March 23.— Disclosing plans for what may be his final season of competition, William T. Tilden, national champion, announced yesterday that he would devote his 1924 play to the Davis Cup and the defence of his national titles in the singles and doubles.

At the same time, Tilden, in a statement issued through the United States Lawn Tennis Assocation, reiterated that the organization's interpretation of its new player-writer rule would force him to retire from amateur competition after January 1, 1925, when the rule goes into effect.

WOMEN'S INDOOR TENNIS.

BROOKLINE, Mass., March 23.—The National Indoor Women's Tennis Championship on the Longwood covered courts ended yesterday with victories for Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup of Wilmington, Del., in the singles ,and for Mrs. George W. Wightman of Boston and William T. Tilden, II., of Philadelphia in the mixed doubles.

ASTON VILLA WAS FEATURE

Defeated Tottenham By 3-2 — Cardiff In Fourth Place—Reversal of Form By Northampton.

LONDON, March 24.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—One of the features of Saturday's league football was the extraordinary reversal of form shown in the Northampton-South End United game, which Northampton won 8 to 0 as compared with last week when South End were the winners 5 to 1. Lockett and Seabrook stood out as scorers in yesterdays' game, tallying three each for the winners, while Pease and Meyrs each scored one, the latter from a penalty shot.

Aston Villa's victory over Tottenham Hotspurs by 3 to 2 was a marked feature of the English first division games and was largely the result of the great efforts of Capewell. Five minutes from the close of the first period Lindsay scored first for the home team. Capewell equalized but Elkes regained the lead for the Londoners before the interval.

After ends were changed Capewell again put Aston Villa on even terms with their opponents and finally completed the hat trick when he headed in the winning goal.

Nott's County were a better side than Cardiff City whom they defeated one to nothing to administer the fourth successive defeat experienced by the Welch team, a mark of its deterioration from which it is unlikely to recover so far as championship games are concerned.

PUBLIC HOLIDAY IF HOUNDS WIN

Sault Ste. Marie Excited Over Success of Their Allan Cup Chasers and Anticipate Final Victory

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., March 24 (Canadian Press). — Soo hockey fans intend to give the Greyhounds solid support in the final game, providing, of course, that the Soo takes the round from the Sons of Ireland, and arrangements are being made to run a special train from the Soo to Toronto, which will leave on Friday night, and will bring from two to three hundred hockey fans to see their team clash with Selkirks in the last of the Allan Cup final games.

A great reception is being planned by the citizens of the city for the Greyhounds on their return to the Soo.

A big band, composed of all the musicians in the city and district will meet the team at the station, and a great citizen's' banquet will be given, and if the Greyhounds win the Allan Cup the Soo will have a public holiday.

English Runners Won International Race.

NEWCASTLE, March 23.—(Canadian Press Cable.)— The International cross-country ten mile race was won yesterday by England with 21 points .Other scores were: France 80, Scotland 123, Wales 163, Ireland 180 and Belgium 181.

England secured the first six places, Corporal Cotterell, army and national champion, being the first home. His time was 55 minutes, 35 2-5 seconds.

GERMAN FOUND PARIS CORDIAL

First Bicycle Rider From Germany Since World War Loudly Cheered When He Finished Third

PARIS, March 23. — Carl Wittig, the first German bicycle rider to appear at the Paris velodrome, since the world war, was given a codrial reception by the Paris public to-day. The German rider was treated cooly, as somewhat nervous, he took the track in the face of what he evidently was convinced would be a hostile demonstration against him.

The crowd, however, warmed up to him as Wittig unmindful of several mishaps to his motor pace, pluckily kept on riding and went after the leaders in the race with a great show of courage. He was loudly cheered when he finished third in a field of six after it had appeared he was hopelessly beaten. The spectators then shattered tradition by calling upon Wittig to do an extra lap "for honor," something which is generally reserved for victors in races so that they may receive the plaudits of the crowd.

CLEVELAND WIN FIRST.

CLEVELAND, O., March 24.—(Canadian Press).—Cleveland defeated Pittsburgh, one goal to nothing, Saturday night, in the first of two games to decided the championship of the western group of the United States Amateur Hockey League.

The NUT CRACKER BY JOE VILLIAMS

SARASOTA, Fla., March 24.—Big league rookies are getting their necks measured for stylish two-edge axes and will soon be back in Wallow Hollow, Me., telling the hometown boys what an awful egg plant Manager McGraw turned out to be.

No rookie in spring yawning camp ever got a fair shake. Either the stewed cucumber who managed the team played favorites or else he wouldn't recognize a coming ball player if he wore a trade mark and was sewed up at the seams.

Cobb came up from nowhere. Speaker was four lengths back of that. A southern professor went butterfly sniping and bagged Jackson by mistake. Even Charley Ebbets would give a couple of smackers for these lads as an outfield, if delivered freight prepaid.

Most interesting species of rookie genus if $100,000 beauty who comes into camp with air of great importance, and in week or so is given the air with no importance attached thereto.

Rookies you hear least about are generally the ones that step into swift circles and knock the rest of the league bow-legged. Berlenbach was just a wrestler until he got a reputation. He is still just a w ler.

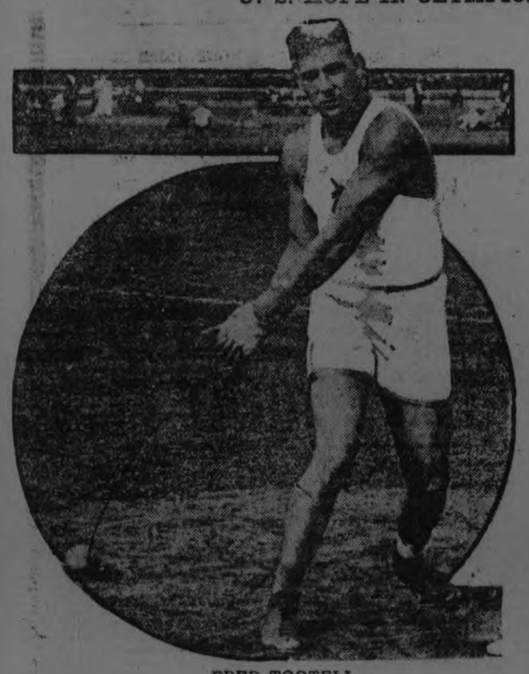
MAINE COLLEGIAN IS MAIN U. S. HOPE IN OLYMPICS.



FRED TOOTELL

Not since the days of Pat Ryan, Matt McGrath and Pat McDonald has there been a hammer thrower of the undoubted ability shown by Fred Tootell of Bowdoin College. The Maine collegian holds the intercollegiate record with a cast of 181 feet 6 1-2 inches. With a bit more seasoning, which he is now getting, he will be at the height of his form for the Olympics next summer.

MISSIONS CONFERENCE

This morning's session, a ministerial conference of all communions, of the World Missions Conference had for its theme, "Pastoral Leadership in the Missionary Enterprise," and was attended by about twenty-five ministers, including visitors to the Conference and representatives of various communions in the city and district. There were also present half a dozen women, representing the W.M.S. of Norwood and Havelock. Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave occupied the chair, and led the devotional exercises.

A discussion on (a) Developing a Missionary Mind and (b) Securing Adequate Expression, was led by Rev. H. C. Priest, secretary of the Missionary Education Movement. The discussion centred about various problems in the missionary movement, and the ramifications of the sub-headings were entered into fully. Rev. Mr. Priest outlined the background of the question in several ways, mentioning the transfer from the mission to the church of the responsibility hertofore borne by the mission; the transitional character of the foreign mission work; the uniformed church at home, and the deadly indifference to the missionary enterprise sometimes manifested; the inadequate revenue to meet increased expenses of the work, and the inability of the Boards to send out prepared candidates.

With regard to the element of pastoral leadership, Dr. R. P. MacKay, secretary of the Presbyterian Foreign Mission Board, was of the opinion that some pastors become circumscribed by congregational interests, and Rev. A. J. Langford thought that the pastor should not attempt to transfer leadership in missionary questions. "The minister is the key man," said the speaker.

Rev. Dr. F. C. Stephenson, secretary of the Forward Movement for Missions in the Methodist Church, asked how far should the Mission Rooms take the initiative, and what things should be done by the Rooms to help the pastor take the leadership? Rev. Dr. Rose thought that present-day local leadership was weak, and Rev. Mr. Pogue considered that one of the problems of the Board was to extend help to ministers who needed it, but might resent it.

Other speakers taking part in the discussion were Rev. P. L. Jull, of Lakefield; Rev. Mr. Rork, who thought that the great need in missionary work was an awakening of interest and an enlivening of the spirit of the people, and who referred to the squandering of two hundred millions of dollars yearly by the people of Canada on luxury and amusement, while they gave only five millions to missions; Rev. H. M. Manning, who recommended the preaching of the best sermons on missions that were possible; and Rev. A. E. Armstrong, secretary of the Presbyterian Foreign Mission Board, who spoke on the influence in the movement of the proper sort of literature. Dr. Stephenson requested the co-operation of those present in advice to him as to the best type of literature to use. Rev. Mr. Priest spoke of the need of recognizing the missionary work of any church in any country as being all part of one great mission, and Dr. Blagrave, closing the discussion, referred to "the difficulty due to the innumerable organizations and the innumerable distractions with which society is honeycombed to-day."

"The Great Essential."

A fervent and thoughtful address on "The Great Essential," which the speaker characterized as being prayer, was given by Rev. Dr. R. P. MacKay, in the form of brief, pleasing sentences interspersed by prayer from members present, represening the various churches.

Dr. MacKay referred to the conditions noticeable in the world in 1857, when a great cycle of noon-day prayer meetings was started by a devout pastor in New York and led to a chain that spread from the Atlantic to the Pacific. That time, when extraordinary conditions of prostitution of honor and honesty in politics, corruption in commercial life, luxury and pleasure-seeking in society and general wickedness in life, prevailed, when banks and commercial institutions were failing, and thousands of men were out of employment, was compared to the present day, "when conditions are as bad or worse, in some respects." The answer to the prayer of the man who commenced these meetings when he asked; "Lord, what wilt thou that I should do?" was the establishment of this great chain of supplication to the Lord.

"To-day, are we in his condition? Are we asking the Lord unceasingly what He would have us do?" The speaker declared; "the whole world internationally is in trouble to-day. In Europe, millions of children are starving to death. Protestantism also in Europe is crying for help. How is the church going to meet the crisis?" Missionary conferences like the present one, student conferences and great bodies of students offering their services on the foreign mission fields, were signs of God's working among His people. "If there ever was a time in the history of the world when he should be on our knees, it is now. We are in a perilous time and there is only one safety in Jesus Christ. We are busy at many things. We have so many irons in the fire, but we should never forget the first and most important thing; "What wilt Thou have me do?" "

Sometime in the seventeenth century, said Dr. MacKay, a ship from Europe sailed out with every man on board signing a declaration that he would not utter one word of discourgement during the voyage. This was the spirit that was necessary in the church, and a remembrance also of the conviction that grace abounds always, as was vouchsafed to George Fox, the founder of the Quaker society ,when he saw the spectacle of the world overwhelmed by a dark mantle of sin and above it, the bright cloud of God's abounding grace.

During the addresses, prayer was offered by Rev. H. M. Manning, Rev. Jas. H. Bruce of Honan, China, Rev. Dr. Blagrave, Rev. C. W. Rose, Rev. D. G. Rideout of Toronto, Rev. Mr. Rork, and Rev. Rev. R. Pogue.

In connection with the exhibit by Dr. F. C. Stephenson are several large pictures of missionaries from this district, including Rev. F. Dickeson, B.A., of Madoc District, Rev. F. J. Reed, B.A. of Canning ton district, Rev. E. Hibbard, B.A. of Peterboro district, Rev. E. W. Morgan, B.A. B.D. of Picton district, Rev. W. E. Smith of Cobourg Rev. G. W. Sparling of Bowmanville, and Howard J. Veales, B.A., B.D. of Lindsay.

The committee in charge of arrangements is particularly anxious that there be a crowded church this evening for the final session of the Conference; the Mass Meeting of Young People with Capt. T. F. Best, of the Y.M.C.A. Toronto, as chairman, and seven minute addresses on the "World Call" given by outstanding speakers from the foreign and home mission fields.

HARVESTERS GET A NEW ISSUE BLANKETS

Towns Along Route Are Still Doling Out Food and Supplies.

KINGSTON, March 24.—(Canadian Press).—The British harvesters who are treking from Toronto to Ottawa arrived here late yesterday afternoon and were quartered at the Armouries, where they will remain until to-morrow morning, when they will resume their journey. They left Napanee yesterday morning after spending the night there, and walked as far as Odessa, from where they were brought in by truck, a number of them having become tired and footsore. Mayor Angrove had made arrangements to have the men boarded at a local restaurant. At the Armouries the men were supplied with three blankets each, and Captain Law, leader of the party, said that at only one other place, Cobourg, had blankets been given them, but the hikers, 95 per cent. of whom are ex-service men, have no complaints to make. One of the men, J. Loner, of Glasgow, Scotland, took ill on the way to the city and is now in the General Hospital.

WILL SELL CO-OPERATIVELY.

The latest factory in the Peterboro district to decide to sell co-operatively is the Star Factory near Dunsford, the patrons of which recently voted unanimously to sell their cheese this season through United Dairymen Co-operative, Limited. A number of the patrons of the Dunsford Factory in the same vicinity have also expressed their preference for co-operative selling. Both these factories last season sold on the Peterboro Cheese Board. Four of the five factories in Victoria County will this season sell co-operatively, and it is likely the fifth will do so also.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

QUASIMODO IN "HUNCHBACK" IS FAMOUS STAGE ROLE

One of the veterans of the stage who has long since retired from public life recently was invited to attend a performance of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," the Universal production which comes to the Capitol next Thursday, Friday and Saturday. At the close of the performance he declared that Lon Chaney has accomplished the greatest piece of dramatic acting in the history of the theatre.

Recalling the impersonations of Victor Hugo's "Quasimodo," hunchback of Notre Dame, which have won a high place in theatrical history the veteran cited the three-act stage version by Edward Kimball which was produced under the title of "Esmeralda." In this play Yates, one of the leading artsits of the time, made an enormous hit in London; N. B. Clarke scored an equally great success at the old Bowery Theatre in New York City, which Junius Brutus Booth, Jr., duplicated at the National Theatre in Boston. Another notable performance of the role was that of J. E. Nagle at the famous old St. Charles Theatre in New Orleans.

During the making of the production at Universal City, Lon Chaney, the star, remarked to an interviewer: "An actor, either on the stage or on the screen, gives the best that is in him when he feels, to the life of it, the character that he is interpreting. He should study the story or script of the play, until he gets himself into it; he should discover and take to himself the soul of the character, and, he likewise should have a sympathetic understanding of all the other characters. Though I have known Hugo for years, it was not until I began an intensive study of him for this character of "Quasimodo" that I really felt the world that he had created.

"I have tried—and the critics have since agreed he succeeded—in materializing the Quasimodo created by Victor Hugo; in expressing the form of the creature, the primal brute of him and the soul that struggled for voice in the blackness of his affliction. The camera demands infinitely more than the stage, in the way of detail, and that meant work and intensive study in preparation for the part.

"I was fascinated by the part and consider it the greatest role that I have had the good fortune to portray. The past has been called back, as though by magic, and it has possessed all of us. The experience has been a sort of a dream-reality. I have felt as though I really were in the streets of ancient Paris, an illusion that has been shared by the most skeptical of the thousands of visitors."

UNUSUAL CAST IN "THE RENDEZVOUS"

Marshall Neilan Mingles New and Old Screen Players in His Third Goldwyn Production.

Marshall Neilan, known discoverer of talent, introduces a most unusual cast in his latest drama, "The Rendezvous," a stirring Russian photoplay which will be presented at the Capitol Theatre today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

For Conrad Nagel, who portrays the leading masculine role, that of an American army officer, it marks his initial appearance on the screen as a Goldwyn player, and his first work under the direction of Neilan.

Lucille Ricksen, who, as a Russian peasant girl, plays the leading geminine role, is introduced for the first time as a leading lady—the youngest in filmdom. Yet her work is most extraordinary.

Sydney Chaplin, brother of the famous Charlie, also makes his debut in the Neilan film, this being the first part he has played in other than his brother's productions for several years. His comedy genius seems to be as great as that of Charlie, and it is to be predicted he will even rival his brother for first honors as a fun maker.

Emmett Corrigan, coming direct from a starring engagement in "The Monster,' on the New York stage, is also given opportunity to make his name equally well known on the screen. Eugenie Besserer, gives her usual sincere performance in the role of a peasant woman.

Another new name, which severa years ago was seen as a star, is that of Richard C. Travers, who makes a strong comeback in Neilan's vivid story, as a Russian prince. Kathleen Key, also a newcomer, promises to go far as a portrayer of exotic roles. Kate Lester, the grande dame of the screen, appears again with dignity and charm as Nagel's mother.

Elmo Lincoln, known most familiarly as the "Tarzan" of the films, and Cecil Holland, as his sinister henchman, carry well the heavy roles of the play.

Playing small, but very distinctive parts, are Lucien Littlefield and Max Davidson, who represent the new rulers of Russia, and who create many laughs by their clever interpretations. R. O. Pennell, impersonating the Czar, is remarkable in his likeness to the former ruler.

AT THE ROYAL

ONE OF SEASON'S FINEST PICTURES AT THE ROYAL.

Strong Love and Regeneration Theme in This New Production.

One of the season's finest pictures is down at the Royal Theatre now. It's "The Stranger," a Paramount picturization of a short story by John Galsworthy. Betty Compson, Richard Dix, Lewis Stone and Tully Marshall are the featured players. Joseph Henabery directed.

Even if film fans will but remember the Miss Compson of "The Miracle Man," Richard Dix of "The Christian," Lewis Stone of "Scaramouche" and Tully Marshall of "The Covered Wagon" and imagine them all in one picture, they can then make but an inaccurate guess of what "The Stranger" is like. You have to see it to actually realize how really big this production is. It's a story of regeneration, chuck full of heart-interest and appeal—a picture that has met with the approval of the press the country over, and its reception in Peterboro will be no exception to the rule.

There's humor, too, to lighten the more dramatic sequences. "The Stranger" is so well done in fact that, though of the regular feature length, it seems to slip by all too quickly, so engrossed is one in the action taking place on the screen. There's not a lagging moment in it.

This is Miss Compson's first picture since her return from England, and may we add that it is very good to have her with us again. A word here, too, on the superb characterization of Tully Marshall in the title role would not go amiss. It more than measures up to the standard set by his "Bridger" in "The Covered Wagon," and this is praise indeed. Richard Dix has always been one of our favorites and there's nobody quite like Lewis Stone for a role such as Keith Darrant.

FAMOUS IRISH TENOR AT THE ROYAL.

Barney O'Mara, known from coast to coast, pays Peterboro a three-day visit, commencing to-day, at the Royal. He features Irish songs, old and new. Eddie Hill, the dapper comedian and cartoonist, is on the same programme.

AMATEUR NIGHT WEDNESDAY AT THE ROYAL.

More local talent is being secured for Wednesday night at the Royal. Cash prizes will be given all who take part in these entertainments.

THOMAS H. INCE PAYS $21,000 FOR "THE HOTTENTOT"

Twenty-one thousand dollars is a reasonable price for a regular laugh in the opinion of Thomas H. Ince, the famous film producer, who paid that sum for the screen rights of "Hottentot," showing at the Royal theater, Thursday.

The picture is even funnier than the stage play of the same name in which William Collier scored one of the biggest hits of his career, both in New York and on tour. In addition to the endless laughs there is a steeplechase that makes even the most blase fan it up and take notice.

Douglas MacLean plays the role, which Collier created, with equal success. Pretty Madge Bellamy is more winsome than ever as the girl in the case and Raymond Hatton is the third member of an irresistible trio of laugh-producers.

holding the boards in London, New York, South Africa, and Canada, and in the past two years the well-known producer, who staged this play originally at Daly's Theatre, London, has had a company in Australia.

The company and production remains intact for this final engagement with Miss Ethel Walker, the Australian prima-donna, in the title role, the role in which she appeared in the Oscar Asche production in Australia, and supported by the same great cast and chorus of musical celebrities, that appeared here in January last with such success.

Stanley T. Vermilyea, the well-known composer and producer, is responsible for this presentation being the high-class one that it is, and all can be sure that on any future productions appearing with his name as the producer, all can expect a performance of the best on the speaking stage.

Popular prices will prevail for both performances, and all should take advantage of this opportunity to see the most popular of all musical comedies at prices to suit everyone's pocket.

DAN MASON, CREATOR OF TOONERVILE TROLLEY SKIPPER IN NEW PICTURE

When you think of the old slow-poke of a street car that runs through Toonerville—ladies and gentlemen, meet the Toonerville Trolley—you think of two persons: Fontaine Fox, the creator of the comical cartoons that delight thousands, and Dan Mason, the genial veteran actor who created the famous character of the Skipper in the screen adaptation.

So it is something more than coincidence, that he has an important part in a play that deals with trolleys. It is "Conductor 1492," Johnny Hines' latest starring vehicle, which comes to the Regent Theatre as the feature attraction beginning to-day.

But Dan Mason for the nonce has nothing to do with plying the craft of the temperamental skipper. Instead he has the part of the father of a conductor, and an Irishman to boot. As the old Irishman in Old Erin, he provides gags and mirth in abundance.

"Conductor 1492" is the story of the escapades, mis-adventures and absurd mishaps that occur to Mike O'Toole come to America to seek fame and fortune, being lamentably in want of either commodity. He gets a job as a conductor on a street car, runs the car and passengers as if he were president, kids them to the top of his bent, and realizes his ambition in the most unexpected manner.

The entire cast is composed of the following: Johnny Hines, Doris May, Dan Mason, Ruth Renick, Robert Cain, Fred Esmelton, Byron Sage, Michael Dark, Dorothy Burns and Cameo, the Wonder-Dog. "Conductor 1492" is a Warner Brothers classic of the screen, co-directed by Charles Hines and Frank Griffen from the story by Johnny Hines.

TO-DAY'S QUOTATIONS AND OPINION AND REVIEWS OF THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, March 24 (Special to The Examiner). — Other developments over the week-end were overshadowed by the appearance of United States Steels 1923 report showing the corporation in the strongest position in its history with working capital of $570,841,000, an increase of $34,570,000 over 1922.

Steel Common responded to this extraordinary exhibit by spurting 1 3-4 to 100 1-2, stimulating the whole industrial list.

Bethlehem Steel, Republic, and other prominent independents took a leading part in th early recovery.

Sugars were especially strong in response to the vitality displayed by the raw sugar market American beet sugar bumped to 43 3-4 against last week's low of 36.

Professionals tried to nullify the good effect of the steel report by resuming their drive against Studebaker which was forced to a further new low on the movement at 91 7-8. But this manoeuvre was frustrated by the appearance of a brisk demand for the oil shares which developed group buoyancy around the close of the first hour.

New highs on the present recovery were scored by Atlantic Refining at 120 1-8 Phillips at 41 1-4, Houston at 71 7-8, and Cosden at 36 1-8.

This strength was based on the statistical position of the oil industry, whose growing strength has been lost sight of in the cloud raised by the Washington disclosures.

LIKE PLAYING FOR DEAD RACE HORSE.

Abolishment of All Highway Grade Crossings In United States Would Cost Ten Billion Dollars.

By ALBERT APPLE.

Railroad men estimate that it would cost 10 billion dollars to abolish all highway grade crossings in the United States. This, comments Barron's Weekly, is about half the entire original cost of building the railroads.

When the roads were built, construction costs were very low compared with now. Grade crossings could have been eliminated in thousands of cases, by bridging streets and roads above the steel tracks or tunneling them under, at no great increase in cost.

But the builders were not sufficiently prophetic in imagination to look into the future and realize that grade crossings would later become a grave traffic problem.

Now, at enormous expense, the railroads are gradually eliminating grade crossings—repairing their original blunder. It's like paying for a dead horse.

* * *

The big traffic problem in cities today is that streets are too narrow. When the streets were laid out originally no one dreamed that the day would come when they'd not be wide enough. The general measure seems to have been to make roads just wide enough for two wagonloads of hay to pass each other without going into the ditch.

Despite this precedent, many old cities continue laying out narrow streets, and even new mushroom towns fail to build wide enough highways for steadily increasing congestion of traffic, bound to come.

* * *

A large portion of human effort is devoted to undoing the mistakes of the past. This is especially true of individuals. For instance, the majority of people seeking health in middle age, when they should be sturdy, are the victims of improper living in youth. Ill-health as a rule is the payment of a bill that has been piling up for years.

In some ways it's a good thing we can't rend the veil and have our futures revealed to us. But, if we could see ahead 10 years or more, most of us would change our habits, methods, goals and purposes—abruptly and decidedly.

Most people drift with the current. Only a few inquire carefully of veterans who have made the voyage before, and then steer a charted course to a definite destination.

BETHANY NEWS

BETHANY, March 24.—The concert held on Friday night, under the auspices of the Women's Institute, was one of the best held in Bethany for some time. The play entitled "Civil Service," in three acts, staged a humorous side together with the serious, and the players fitted into their different roles to perfection. The stage setting represented the workroom of a small city post office, in which Mr. Reynolds was the postmaster, together with R. F. D. (a mystery), Simpson Peavy, Steve Audaine, Goldie Wex, and Kate Kenyon as a staff. R.F.D. held down the rural route, and had been convicted on a previous occasion to twenty years imprisonment for the theft of a few dollars from a letter, and at the time of his conviction he was separated from his wife and child. His wife died shortly afterwards, and he had not seen his son since having lost his whereabouts, but was always on the lookout for him. Steve Audaine, the money order clerk, was living beyond his means, and was confronted with a lot of of debts, which Miss Goldstein had given him a week to make payment. Mrs. Jeffs mailed a letter in which she said contained one hundred dollars, and demanded a guarantee for its safe delivery, but being too miserly to register the letter, took a chance on the ordinary postage. Steve Audaine, needing money very badly, stole the letter and removed the money. An investigation was held by Mr. Cochran to determine the thief, and Geldie Wex was accused of stealing the letter but maintained his innocence. Then Mr. Audaine was accused, and in giving his evidence, it turned out that he was the long-lost son of R. F. D. It was then that the old man, R. F. D., took the guilt, so that the son would not be convicted and was placed under arrest. Kate Kenyon, who was in love with Steve, formed a plan to clean the slate of any theft, took her own money and gave it to Mrs. Jeffs, and pleaded so earnestly that Mrs. Jeffs got in touch with Mr. Cochran and claimed it was all a mistake and that she had overlooked putting the money in the letter, and had found it in her coat pocket. The play took over two hours, with music between acts. The cast of characters was as follows:—

R. F. D. (a mystery), Walter Rowland; Mr. Reynolds, postmaster, Frank Bigelow; Mr. Cochran, post office inspector, Bruce Ryley; Simpson Peavy, mailing clerk, Cecil Magill; Steve Audaine, money order clerk, Mr. Maples; Geldie Wex, country boy, Frank Hannah; Octavia Reynolds, postmaster's daughter, Kathleen M'Cartney; Mrs. Jeffs, a lady of importance, and Miss Goldstein, a collector—Clara Reynolds; Birdie Bivins, hired girl, Verna Belle Lee; Kate Kenyon, the stamp girl, Mae Magill. Mrs. Carscadden, as manager, deserves credit for the efficient manner in which this play was carried out. The proceeds amounted to $93, and will be used for the upkeep of the street lights.

OPPOSITION TO POWER PROJECT IN PARLIAMENT

Quebec Members Urge Economy and United States Aggression As Reasons Why the St. Lawrence Waterway Scheme Should Be Discouraged—Would Be of No Value to Quebec.

Ontario Needs Power.

OTTAWA, March 25.—(Canadian Press). — Opposition to the St. Lawrence waterways project was expressed in the House of Commons Monday by J. Archambault, (Liberal, Chambly and Vercheres). He criticized the removal of Judge Mignault from the International Waterways Commission on the grounds that Quebec was left without representation. Any inquiry that might be made into the cost of the project, would in itself be too expensive. Mr. Archambault made three points against the scheme:—

1.—Economy; 2: That it would be of no value to the province of Quebec and finally, 3: That it was a bad precedent to set by entering into a joint project with the United States of that nature. If any canal were to be built, it should be the Georgian Bay Canal.

Exceed Billion

Mr. Archambault referred to a report mad, by an American engineer W. L. Cooper who estimated that the entire cost of the project would be $1,450,000,000 and said that during winter months the canal could only be seventy per cent. efficient. The deepening of the St. Lawrence, he said, would involve great costs in the matter of dredging harbors.

Mr. Archambault appealed to the financial results of the Panama Canal and the New York barge canal as evidence that the operation of the proposed St. Lawrence Waterway would result in a large deficit. He calculated that allowing for cost of operation and for annual charges on the cost of construction, there would be yearly charge against the Dominion of Canada for the canal of $17,000,000. He cited the proposal of Senator King of Utah, that the south shor, of the St. Lawrence should be ceded to the United States and remarked that he might just as well have proposed that New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island should b, handed over.

Danger to Canada

It would be dangerous, he declared for Canada to enter into a joint agreement with the United States on this subject. If Canada footed the whole bill, it would be too heavy a load to carry; if the United States paid seventy five per cent. of the cost, the United States would have would get in the working of such an control. He cited, as an example of the kind of treatment Canada would get in the working of such an agreement, the disregard of Canadian interest which had been shown by the United States in connection with Chicago drainage canal.

Power Pay Interest

Hon. R. J. Manion (Conservative Fort William) contested the figures given by Mr. Archambault for the entire cost of the project. The engineers of the international joint commission had estimated the cost of the waterways in the international section of the river, including water power development of $252,000,000. Their report had stated that the returns from electrical power might even pay the interest charges on the cost of the international section. Dr. Manion said that he had no objection to the Georgian Bay Canal, but he thought the St. Lawrence scheme would be more satisfactory because it would cost less. On, half the cost of the project would paid by the

THE WEATHER.

While every day since Friday I have been informed that a robin had been seen, they are as yet scarce—probably the scouts of the main body on its way. A few days ago I remarked that the past winter had been an "ideal" one. Exception has been taken to that statement, particularly by those engaged in the lumbering business. They tell me that instead of being "ideal," it was the worst winter in forty years for getting out logs and wood generally. With four feet of snow in the woods and a soft bottom (the ground being little frozen) their task was rendered more than usually difficult. It has, however, been remarked by all that the winter's snow was never seen to disaappear so easily, quickly and harmlessly, as it has done this spring. —W. P.

EIGHT DEAD IN STEAMER CRASH

British Seamen Killed In Their Bunks By New American Vessel That Stove Great Hole in Forecastle—Collision In Thames Estuary.

GRAVESEND, England, March 25.—Eight persons were killed and three seriously injured on board the British steamer Matatua, during a collision early on Monday morning in the Thames estuary, with the American steamer American Merchant, a new freight vessel, on her maiden voyage from New York to London. The United States steamer was badly damaged and was towed into the Tilbury dock. There were no casualties aboard her.

The Matatua was outward bound when the collision occurred. The bow of the United States ship cut through the forecastle of the Matatua, making a hole 50 feet by 30 feet. The men killed, two engineers and six greasers were asleep in their buunks. Their bodies were badly mangled.

The American Merchant kept her nose in the sole in the side of the Matatua, and succeeded in pushing her on a mud flat where she was beached. The United States vessel has a hole in her side only six inches above the water line. As she was being towed to the dock at Tilbury the American Merchant flew her flag at half-mast.

BRITISH AIRMEN ENTER AIR RACE

Flight on First Leg of Round the World Trip Planned to Lyons, France.

LONDON, March 25.—(United Press).—Great Britain also is after the honor of being the first to fly around the world. She plans her flight start for April 15, nearly a full month after the United States plans to be away from its California start. The British attempt will have the full co-operation and assistance of the Royal Air Forces.

The leader of this expedition will be Squadron Leader A. Stuart MacLaren. His companions will be Flying Officer W. N. Plenderleith, another Scotsman and Sergeant Andrews, who is to act as engineer-mechanic.

Sir Hugh Trenchard, the head of the Royal Air Force, has reviewed all the plans.

The machine to be used is a Vickers-Viking amphibian, fitted with a 450 h.p. Napier Lion engine. It has a range of about 1,800 miles and as the last lap of the long trip will be a flight across the Atlantic this, if wind and other conditions are favorable will be accomplished without any descent being made during the crossing.

The distance to be traversed is approximately 21,500 miles, and this will take about 240 hours (10 days) of actual flying time. The new drakes of the air hope to be back in London before the end of July.

SYMPATHY FROM BRITAIN SHOWN TO FREE STATE

Repudiation of Outrage At Queenstown Accepted By Government — Committed By Foes of Irish Treaty With Britain Says Premier MacDonald.

PACIFIC MESSAGE.

LONDON, March 25.—That the outrage at Queenstown, in which a party of British soldiers was fired on by men wearing Free State Army uniforms, is not likely to cause difficulties between the Free State and British Governments, was shown in the House of Commons Monday.

Accept Repudiation

J. H. Thomas, Secretary for the Colonies, in answer to a question said the crime had been repudiated by every political party in Ireland, adding: 'We accept that repudiation.'

Expressing the opinion that the crime was the work of irresponsible elements whose motive was to bring about the downfall of the Free State Government by embroiling it with the British Government, Mr. Thomas continued:

"We are convinced th, Free State Government is doing its utmost to track the murderers and wipe out this blot on Irish honor. It should have all the help and sympathy we can give it."

Being pressed to say whether the British Government would accept responsibility for the protection of British soldiers and sailors landing in Ireland, the secretary took the stand that in this matter Ireland was in th, same position as the other self-governing dominions.

Premier's Message

Further evidence that the British Governmenuth will not permit the Queenstown shooting to interfere with its good relations with the Free State Government, is contained in a message which Premier MacDonald sent to President Cosgrave acknowledging receipt of Quenstown's public repudiation of the crime.

"Queenstown can rest assured," says message, "that this murderous outrage committed by their common foes will not be allowed to disturb the friendship of the British and Irish nations, cemented by the treaty."

CHICAGO, March 25 (Canadian Press). — Death from starvation claimed Endre and Theodore Kloster, 70 and 72 years old, and blind since birth, when their sister, Anna Kloster, aged 85, who had cared for them, died suddenly, according to the theory of the police who yesterday found the bodies of the three in the building in which they had lived for fifty years.

They owned considerable property in the vicinity.

Why Girls Leave Home? Theresa Says She Fled Wickedness of the City and Found Happiness in Canadian Town

SYDNEY, N.S., March 25 (Canadian Press). — "I wanted to get away from the wickedness of the large cities, so with my girl pal came to Cape Breton, and I'm glad I'm here, too, because I am with lovely people, who can't do too much for me."

Briefly that is the explanation that pretty Theresa Manzola, a pretty brunette, gives for disappearing suddenly from her home in Mattapan, Mass., without going through the formality of notifying her parents.

Miss Manzola's disappearance has had the police of New England on the qui vive for over two weeks now, and Boston newspapers have printed her picture, together with stories of her unexpected departure in the hope that some trace of the missing girl might be found.

Theresa is now in Sydney.

On the morning of 5th March, so she says, she started for work with her girl pal Vivian Bellerd That morning the irls decided to leave Mattapan and to come to Cape Breton.

"I tried to get my wages at the safety razor factory where Vivian and I were employed," said Theresa to a local reporter, "but they would not give them to me then. I didn't have a cent to make the trip with, but Vivian said she would pay all the expenses and she did.

"Who wouldn't take a trip on that basis? My way was all paid and I wanted to get away from the wickedness of the big city."

FRANC REACHED NEW TOP PRICE

Mounted 27 Points to 5.63 Cents Before Flight Was Checked By Selling Orders—Cheap Money In New York Hits Bankers.

NEW YORK, March 25.—(Canadian Press). — Drastic measures to curb the upward flight of the French franc were taken Monday after the opening rates had mounted 27 points to a new high level for the year at 5.63 cents. Interests close to the French Government were credited with flooding the market with selling orders which brought about an abrupt decline, virtually cancelling the early gain.

With the currency under control, the rates held steady for the rest of the day around the previous closing level of 5.36 cents, falling a point below at one time, and closing at 5.37½. The erratic fluctuations of the franc was the feature of the foreign exchange market, other European securities holding fairly firm.

LETTERS THREATEN TO BLIND CHILDREN

Writer Arrested and a Confession Obtained by Police.

DETROIT, March 25. — Canadian Press. — The existence of letters, threatening that if Edsel Ford, son of Henry Ford, did not pay over $1,000,000 blackmail, his three children would be blinded in some unnamed manner, was disclosed yesterday by the police, coincident with the arrest of Waslov Simek, 23 years old, of Czecho-Slovakia, and Mrs. Annie Hladik, aged 25.

Three letters were received at Ford's office on March 5, March 8 and March 12. They were all crudely printed and vague in terms.

Francis B. Courtney, handwriting expert, has identified the letters as having been written by Simek. Simek who came to the United States four months ago, has confessed, the police declare.

He says he was forced to write the letters by Mrs. Hladik. The woman denies all knowledge of the plot.

C.N.R. MILLION IN HOME BANK

Deposit Broached By R. P. Gough Was Transferred Few Days Later to Bank of Montreal—Drayton's Queries in Commons.

OTTAWA, March 25 (Canadian Press). — The deposit of one million dollars by the Canadian National Railways in the Home Bank on 28th May last, which was subsequently withdrawn on 2nd June, was the subject of a series of questions put by Sir Henry Drayton, former Minister of Finance, in the House of Commons on Monday.

Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, told Sir Henry that the deposit had been made on 28th May, and remained in the bank util 2d June, when it was transferred to the Bank of Montreal on the request of the management of the Canadian National.

Sir Henry asked whether or not the books of the Home Bank were closed for the year on 1st June and submitted to the shareholders at the annual meeting as exhibiting the position of the bank resulting from the year's operations. No answer was given to this.

"On the showing so made, was a dividend on the bank's stock declared, and if so, what amount?" asked Sir Henry.

"The annual report of the bank as filed by the Government shows that the directors declared a dividend of 7 per cent. on the operations of the year ending 31st May, such dividend being declared on the profits and not determined by the deposit," he was told.

"Was the deposit authorised by the directors of the Canadian National Railways?" asked Sir Henry.

Mr. Graham said the authorisation would have been secured at the June meeting of the board had the deposit remained in the Home Bank. The matter had been broached by R. P. Gough then a director of the railway and also of the Home Bank, but did not come before the board.

BURNBRAE WOMAN HURT IN RUNAWAY

Had Arm Broken When Horse Kicked During the Mix-up.

BURNBRAE, March 25. — Mrs. Charles Hutcheon of Burnbrae, met with a bad accident while driving to Campbellford on Satrday. A dog frightened her horse, which her son, Murray, was driving. Mrs. Hutcheon made an effort to get the lines, and somehow fell out of the buggy, and the horse kicked her on the arm and broke it. The horse ran for some distance but Master Murray recovered the lines and got it stopped. Ms. Hutcheon went on to Campbellford and her arm was attended to by Dr. H. B. Longmore.

Went to Campbellford.

A number of members and adherents of Burnbrae Church, attended the services in St. Andrew's church, Campbellford, on Sunday night, to listen to Dr. Crawford Brown, of Toronto, discuss the Church Union situation, from the point of view of those opposed to a proposed merger of the three churches.

STRIKE DEMANDS EXCEED LONDON TRAM EARNINGS

Employees' Claim Is Not Seriously Questioned — London Crowds Getting Enforced Exercise While 'Busses and Street Jars Are Tied Up.

MINISTRY ACTIVE.

LONDON, March 25. — The third day of London's bus and tramway strike found the people still doomed to walking as a means of getting to and from work. There was however no extension of the strike to the other transport services.

The Ministry of Labor is displaying great energy in an endeavor to amicably settle the dispute between the workers and the employers. Its committee of inquiry yesterday presented an interim report, which was considered last night at a conference between Premier MacDonald and the Ministers of Labor and Transport. This conference followed a similar one held earlier in the day with Lord Ashfield, who represents the bus and tramway interests, and Ernest Bevans, representing the men.

Can't Afford Increase.

The interim report by the committee of inquiry admits that the claim of the men for increased wages is not seriously questioned, but that the tramways are not able to earn sufficient amounts to meet the claims. All were agreed, says the report, that the raising of fares would be impracticable, and that the only effective measure would be to place the metropolitan area under some co-ordinating control of passenger traffic to prevent over-lapping.

Minister of Transports Gosling announced in the House of Commons Monday that a "London Traffic Bill" would be introduced to-day and advanced as rapidly as possible. The chief provisions of the bill will be based on the report of the Government committee which discussed the subject last year. It would provide for the creation of a statutory committee, representing all the parties concerned, with the object of arriving at an agreement with the Ministry of Transport to restrict the number of vehicles operating on the streets to actual requirements, and effecting other necessary reforms. There is no idea, however, of extending municipal ownership or resorting to the nationalization of the transport services.

GREEKS DECLARE A NEW REPUBLIC

ATHENS, March 25. — (United Press.)—The National Assembly today voted to dethrone the dynasty and proclaim a republic.

The motion was carried by an unanimous vote and is effective at once.

Because of the possibility of a rupture in diplomatic relations with foreign countries whose representatives are accredited to the "Regent of Greece," the government has decided to maintain Admiral Coundoutiotis in the Regency for the present.

The cabinet during the day is expected to grand general amnesty to imprisoned and persecuted politicians and pardons to members of the military convicted for implication in the last counter revolution.

The government will expropriate as soon as possible all immovable property of the Glucksbourg dynasty

MORE STATUTES ARE COMPLETED

Twenty-One Bills Given Third Reading In Legislature — Tax on Nickel Mine Profits Reduced to Stimulate the Industry.

TORONTO, March 25.—Twenty-one bills were given third reading in the Legislature Monday and are ready for the statute books. These included bills to establish a separate ministry of health; to appoint a legislative secretary for northern Ontario; to license saw, pulp and paper mills; to prevent bonusing of industries by municipalities; and to amend the mining tax act. The others were private bills and minor amendments to statutes. The mining tax bill was the only one bringing forth discussion.

The mining tax bill reduces the tax on nickel mine profits to the same basis as that of other mines was opposed by Hon. Manning Doherty who stated that as there were no profits from nickel mines to tax now that the thought the bill could wait. He could see no need for a change when nothing was to be gained. Hon. Chas. McCrea, Minister of Mines, explained that war had provided the great market for nickel. Now the nickel miners were trying to find markets in the industrial world and the reduction of the tax would assist in securing a greater interest. The bill was passed.

Second reading was given a bill allowing cities to lower business tax on downtown lots used as parking spaces. A bill providing that counties shall take over cemeteries where owners are unknown also passed second reading The act amending the pharmacy act making matriculation standing necessary for entrance to the school of pharmacy and giving the pharmacy council greater action in dealing with those of their profession infringing the narcotic drug and Ontario temperance act also passed second reading.

Hon. W. F. Nickle introduced a bill giving police commissions of cities over 50,000 the right to appoint interpreters with salaries.

MONTREAL MAN HANGED TODAY FOR SHOOTING

Life Pronounced Extinct Twelve Minutes After Bolt Was Shot — Ellis Officiated.

WAS INDIFFERENT

MONTREAL, March 25.—(Canadian Press).—Wildrid St. Onge was hanged this morning at 7.50 for the murder of Nestor Gavrilvitch, a cobbler, whom he shot on the street near his shop on the night of April 1, 1922. The hanging was performed without a hitch.

"Good-day, thank you, good-bye for ever." With these words upon his lips, the condemned man walked to the scaffold, and the trap was sprung eleven seconds after he had left his cell. An attitude of indifference that he had assumed from the day that he was sentenced to die was maintained to the end.

St. Onge slept till midnight, and, arising, asked for his chaplain, Rev. Father Leonard, who spent the rest of the night in prayer with him, and accompanied him to the scaffold. Upon the trap, as the black cap was about to be adjusted by Hangman Ellis over his head, he was heard to say in steady voice, "God forgive me for any harm that I have done."

Life was pronounced extinct by the prison doctor twelve minutes after the bolt was shot.

Two minutes before the short procession started for the scaffold, St. Onge requested that his prayer book be given to the Governor of the jail, on which he had written on the fly leaf, "I leave this prayer book to the Hon. Nap. Seguin, as a mark of gratitude and affection, given March 25, 1924."

The writing did not show the least bit of nervousness and was scribbled in a round, boyish hand.

The boy's parents were unable to see him last night, owing to the mother of the condemned boy being prostrated with grief. St. Onge was twenty-one years of age.

FISHER TO BE MARKET CLERK

Tenders Opened and Appointment Made Last Night--Insurance for Firemen Discussed.

The subject of insurance for the fire department was broached at last night's meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, and discussed with Chief George Gimblett.

The Chief advocated a pension fund that would automatically run itself in a few years.

Mayor Turner said a straight life insurance would be better since the men would have estates, valued at the amount of the insurance. It will take time for a pension fund to grow.

The Mayor moved that an offer of the Prudential Company to insure the members of the department be accepted. The plan will provide $1000 for each of the nineteen firemen: $1500 for the assistant chief, and $2000 for the chief, at a total cost of $271 a year. The mayor's motion provided for the repayment of these premiums by the firemen.

An amendment proposed by Alderman Fife, that Alderman Stocker Mayor Turner and Mr. Adams interview the men as to their desires, was carried.

Big Bell to Toll.

Mayor Turner suggested cutting off the big bell in the town clock as an alarm, but Chief Gimblett said the system is a good one for conveying the alarm to men on the off-duty platoon.

Property Committee.

At a meeting of the Property Committee Mayor Turner was authorized to issue a proclamation asking the citizens to observe a clean-up campaign when he considers it advisable.

Tenders for the market tolls were opened and the committee acepted Walter Fisher's offer of $804. It was said he had held the position previously with credit. Other offers were B. G. Maloney, $870; Henry Crane, $750, and John Gillespie, $835.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

MONTREAL, March 25.—(Canadian Press).—With a constable by his bedside, John McRae, of this city, lies in a hospital making progress away from the end, he sought this morning, when he was found in his bedroom with his throat cut and a bloodstained razor by his side.

INSPECTOR IS HERE TO OPEN A TAX OFFICE

Income Tax Returns Are Almost Due Under Some Classes — Inspector Reports Improvement Probable in Business This Year.

EARLIER THAN USUAL

As a convenience to employers, corporations, trustees and others who must file their returns before March 31, the local Income Tax office is already open for business in the Customs House. In an interview today Mr. William C. Doyle Inspector of Taxation, of Belleville told The Examiner that special arrangements are being made to give excellent service to all enquirers regarding returns under the Dominion Income Tax Act. The office is in charge of Captain S. J. Gilmour who has administered the Peterboro branch so successfully for the first two years

The forms under the Income Tax Act are very wide and inclusive, embracing everything from capitalists' dividends to even approximate amount of the value of board and lodgings to chefs, cooks,, chauffeurs and other servants who receive board and lodgings as part of their pay. It also includes the stipends and honoraria of clergy together with the rental value of manses or rectories occupied by them as part of their income.

Mr. Doyle pointed out that returns T 3, T 4 and T 5 are due to be filed not later than March 31. These are the first returns to be filed, T 3 including reports by trustees, administrators or any persons acting in a fiduciary capacity or involving payment of income to any taxpayer or probable taxpayer.

The T 4 returns are made by employers, and must contain a list of all employees receiving more than $500 during the year, at the rate of $1,000 a year or over, anything less than that being exempt. This form also includes remuneration paid to directors, legal counsel and other professional men attached to any corporation or firm, regardless of the amount of such payment.

The T5 form covers dividends paid to all shareholders in Canada by any corporation doing business in Canada, and Mr. Boyle said that many American firms with Canadian connections were voluntarily furnishing these returns, although, being in the United States, they could not be compelled to.

This information, the Inspector stated, is required by the department in order to be tabulated during April, to enable the assessors to begin sending out accounts on May 1st. These forms are not sent out by the department, but must be secured in the usual way, from the Income Tax offices or from any post-offices. Failure to secure, fill in and file such forms on or before March 31 renders the delinquent liable to a penalty of $10 a day to a maximum of $50, imposed and collected by the department at Ottawa.

Showing Co-Operation.

Many of the larger firms and corporations, said Mr. Doyle, are assisting the department by filing these returns early, or filling them in part, to be completed by the end of the month. This, he said, was a great assistance to the department, and reduced the liability to congestion and delay to the companies later on.

"It may sometimes be overlooked" said the Inspector, "that institutions, not in themselves amenable to the Income War Tax Act, such as churches, fabriques, educational, charitable, religious and social institutions, have the same obligation to supply this information as any ordinary individual or business, and are subject to similar penalties. Included in this category are persons who employ chauffeurs, chefs and other servants where payment is $1,000 or more per annum. In the case of such employees who are paid weekly stipends with room and board, or allowance for maintenance, this must also be reported, with an estimate of the value of the food and accomodation supplied.

"The same rule applies to bank managers and employees living in bank premises, or clergy occupying manses of rectories as part of their stipend, clergy being subject to income tax just as everybody else."

As to the general individual income taxpayer, he is given until April 30 to make his returns, payments starting on that day, as in previous years, and the forms are already available at the tax office in the customs house or at the post office.

Personal Forms.

All single persons including widowers without dependents in receipt of $1,000 or more must make returns without being requested.

All married persons, widows and widowers with dependent children under 21 in receipt of $2,000 a year or more must also make returns without request. For each child under 18 a deduction of $300 is allowed as exemption from the normal tax, in the case of both single and married persons.

In addition to these persons all who are requested to do so must make returns whether liable to tax or not.

On further questions and problems that arise in preparing the returns, Mr. Doyle said today, the officers and staff of the tax office will give every assistance.

Conditions Good.

Asked as to the condition of business in this district Mr. Doyle spoke optimistically and said it is expected that the Income Tax Return will be fully up to the amount collected during 1923. The outlook for business in the future is brightening," he said, "and all indications are that 1924 will see an encouraging growth in general business."

CHARLEY DAVIDSON HAS NEW CATCHER

Proprietor of the Regent Theatre, Campbellford, Expected to Help Out In Backstopping This Season.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 25.—Manager C. H. Davidson, of the Northumberland League baseball team, has secured a valuable recruit for the coming season in the person of Capt. T. E. Hyland, proprietor of the Regent Theatre, who will officiate behind the bat. The Captain is much too modest to speak of his prowess on the diamond, but information as to his record has reached here from other quarters. He has had experience on Toronto and Belleville teams, and the report is that as a catcher nothing gets past him, wild pitches having no place in his lexicon, that he can get the ball down to second like a cannon ball to head off base-stealers, that he is a reliable hitter and a veritable sprinter on bases.

Another new member of the team, unless present negotiations fall through, will be George Richardson, a second baseman.

The annual meeting of the club will be held in a short time. Blakely, the left fielder, sought out the dry summit of a hill on Saturday and began getting in shape for the coming season.

Auto Licenses.

C. H. Davidson has up to date issued 300 auto licenses. There were 1,401 licenses issued in this district last year, so that it is evident that a large number of owners have not yet taken their cars out of the garage.

Teaching Children to Pray.

Rev. C. F. McIntosh, of St. Andrew's Church, at the weekly prayer service Thursday night, will give the first of a series of special addresses. Young parents are particularly interested in his topic for this week, which will deal with the teaching of children how to pray.

A Correction.

In the report of the Church Union sermons delivered by Rev. T. Crawford Brown, of Toronto, in St. Andrew's Church Sunday, a typographical error in the opening paragraph gives an entirely wrong meaning to what is generally regarded as the most outstanding statement made by the speaker in his mornig discourse. Quoting from a published address of Rev. Dr. Chown, the speaker represented the Methodist leader as saying that unless the three Churches interested unite, the fight now going on for control in Canada will be lost in a few years. The substitution of the word "when" for "unless" gives the quotation a meaning exactly the reverse of that intended.

In his evening discourse Mr. Brown said that in the first vote taken in the General Assembly on Church Union only two delegates were opposed to it, and that there were 142 adverse votes last year. In the Examiner's report the word "final" appeared instead of "first."

Cost to the Ratepayers of New Sewer Construction —Transient Traders.

CAMPBELLFORD, March, 25.—Sitting in special session last night the town council fixed the cost to the ratepayers interested of the construction of sewers on the west side of the river, the engineer's estimate for this work being $33,238. The sewers to be put in are as follows:

Sebastapol street from the town limits of the Hastings road to Canrobert stree, thence down that thoroughfare to the cove wall of Trent Canal.

Canrobert street from Tice to Garry streets.

Inkerman street, from Palliser to Canrobert streets.

Tice street, from Canrobert to the river.

The total length of these sewers is 6349 feet and for the sewers alone the estimated cost is $5.24 a foot. Property owners on these streets will be assessed $1.87 per foot front for the sewers and 84 cents additional for the water mains which will be put in at the same time. The necessary bylaw will be passed at a special meeting of the Council on Thursday evening at 7.30.

Cost of Water Mains

Councillor Redden raised the point that the water mains should be paid for not by a tax on the property owners but out of the surplus in the hands of the Water and Light Commission.

Mayor Meyers as a member of the Commission explained that there was at present no surplus.

Must Put in Drain

Deputy Reeve Dorie reported that Joel McArthur was filling in a lot on Sebastopol street and that Mr. McArthur had stated that he intended to fill in a drain on the property which carries water into a town drain nearly every month in the year. The deputy-reeve stated that this would back up the water on property in the rear of Mr. McArthur's lot.

On motion of Deputy Reeve Dorie and Councillor Kingston Clerk McGraegor was instructed to write Mr. McArthur advising him to put in a tile drain so as not to interfere with the natural course of the water.

Transient Traders' Licenses

Reeve Davidson brought up the perennial problem of transient traders' licenses, that "old thorn in the flesh," as Mayor Meyers dubbed it when the matter was mentioned. The reeve said that a citizen had told him that several such trades were ready to come to Campbellford but that they objected to the high price of the licenses charged here.

"There is only one way," said Mayor Meyers in which this bylaw can be improved. If a new man opening up a business here would come to the Council with a lease for say 12 months, properly signed, as a guarantee that he intended to remain it might be possible to lower the price of his license.

Councillor Redden: "We have had experience with these people, traders who came here stayed a month or two and then disappeared leaving their light bills and business tax unpaid. The town lost that much."

Councillor Cole: "It is not fair to our own merchants to allow these traders here. Local business men are having a hard enough time as it is."

"That is a question," said several councillors at once.

Councillor Redden spoke of the bankrupt moth eaten goods, generally sold by these fly-by-night merchants and Councillor Abernethy said that they had different prices for the same article, taking anything the customer was willing to pay. Reeve Davidson was also in favor of shutting the transient out and the matter was finally dropped.

New Road Machinery

Chairman Cole of the Committee on roads and bridges reported that at a meeting of that body the members were in favor of purchasing scarifiers for the grading machine at a cost of $120. The outlay was sanctioned on motion of Deputy Reeve Dorie and Councillor Abernethy.

Chairman Cole was also given authority to improve the roadbed on the hill on Napier street. The residents ask that the town furnish two teams for a couple of days and agree to furnish the rest of the required labor themselves. This offer was accepted on motion of Deputy Reeve Dorie and Councillor McDonald.

Bowling Club Taxes.

Mayor Meyers, who is president of the Bowling and Tennis Club, reported that in 1923 Assessor Mulhearn had assessed the club's green and court for $500 and that $23 was due for taxes. The club paid no taxes in 1922, the first year of its existence, but got free lights that year. They did not know that the land had been assessed until recently when the bill for taxes had been presented.

The Mayor said that the club is struggling for existence. During the past season the members erected a club house, the material for which alone cost $2,700. He believed that the club was a public benefit and an excellent advertisement for the town. A tournament is held every year and this attracts visitors from all parts of the province. All the club has ever received from the town was free light in 1922. The lighting bill last year was $40. He was of the opinion that the Council should make some concession, either remit the taxes or give the club free light for two years.

Since the club was organized $1,000 has been spent on the bowling green and tennis court.

No action was taken but there was some opposition to any concession being made. Councillors Johnston, Kingston, Abernethy, McDonald and Deputy-Reeve Dorie thought that the club should pay its way when there are so many poor people in town struggling to pay their taxes. Reeve Davidson, who is also a member of the club, had nothing to say beyond agreeing with the Mayor.

The ground occupied by the club is government land and Councillor Cole took the stand that the town for that reason could assess nothing but the building. He owns a summer cottage at Crow Bay standing on Government land and the building only is assessed.

No formal disposition was made in this matter.

Lighting Figures.

In reply to a question by Councillor Redden, Mayor Meyers submitted some interesting figures with regard to the municipal power plant. At present the Hydro is taking no power, and never does at this season of the year when the water is high, but pays the commission a service charge of $450 a month. About June the Hydro will take power again and the income from this source, the service and energy charge, may run up as high as $1200 a month. By a former contract the Hydro put the town on flat rate of $1,000 a month, irrespective of the power used. But a new contract had to be made, the town being able to furnish the power required by the Hydro on account of the increase in local consumption.

Councillor Redden's Ambitiuon.

Councillor Redden as a public servant cherishes one outstanding ambition —to see two parks established in Campbellford, one on each side of the river as he is not disposed to play favorites. Five vacant lots on Rear street belonging to the Misses Wallace are on the market and at the meeting last night the councillor suggested that these be purchased and converted into a park. The price asked for each is $650, $3,250 in all. When the two parks are in commission, Councillor Redden jokingly remarked, that he expects a grateful public will erect a monument in his honor.

The suggestion received no support, the other members of the Council being of the opinion that the outlay planned for sewer construction will be about all the taxpayer will stand.

GREYHOUNDS WON SEMI-FINAL GAME

Defeated Quebec Sons of Ireland 3 to 2 and Won Round 6 to 2—To Meet Selkirks.

OTTAWA, March 25. Canadian Press. — By defeating Quebec Sons of Ireland here last night, the Soo Greyhounds earned the right to meet Selkirks in the final series for the Allan Cup. The score was 3 to 2 in favor of the Soo, and their 3 to 0 victory of Saturday night therefore gives them the semi-final by a total of 6 goals to 2.

The contest was another battle royal from start to finish, and that the Sons of Ireland went down fighting is evidenced by the fact that both their tallies came with less than three minutes of regular playing time left.

Whether or not the Soo carry on to the Canadian amateur championship or are beaten in the finals with Selkirks it is almost certain that they will not encounter a gamer or harder fighting opposition than that which has faced them in this series.

The Greyhounds won because they have a goaler who is in a class by himself, and also because they carried a punch that sent three goals past Turgeon at a critical time of the game, in the second period, when it was do or die with the Sons. They had reserve power to hammer in their three counters, and then stand up in the final 20 minutes before the determined assault that was met half way with an offensive that held the Quebec team at a safe distance.

For two periods of the game four thousand fans were treated to some of the fastest amateur hockey ever seen here. Both team cut out and followed a terrific pace, particularly the losers in the opening session.

Going into the final period, both teams started to apply the body generously, and as long as they kept it legitimate. Referee Mike Rodden let them battle away. It was give and take but no deliberate fouls were committed and the only casualty was "Gloomy" Lessard, who was forced out of the game after being bodied into the fence by Dinan.

TUESDAY, MARCH 25 1924.

THE BOY SCOUT MOVEMENT.

The resolution passed at the annual meeting of the Ontario section of the Canadian Labour Party at Hamilton on Saturday opposing the Boy Scout movement because it developed the war spirit in the young, is a characteristic sample of the ill-considered, half-baked motions that not only labour organizations but many other gatherings are in the habit of passing.

Men who voted for a resolution of that kind must have done so without any real knowledge of the aims and objects of the Boy Scout movement.

There is absolutely nothing in the Scout routine or organization than tends to militarism.

It is not built upon a military foundation, and there is only enough drill to enable the Scouts to move about in unison, something that all bodies which take part in parade would be the better for having.

To say that the Boy Scout plan develops the war spirit in its members is to utter a falsehood.

It does teach loyalty, of course, as well as many other qualities which make its members better boys and causes them to grow up into better citizens.

The Canadian Labour Party is tilting at windmills when it goes to the length of a moral resolution against a movement of which it is evidently ignorant.

OUR NATURAL RESOURCES.

Mr. W. O. Sealey's remedy for the balancing of the Budget, which would extract all the revenue needed by Canada from people living outside of this country, as explained in his letter in another column, will cause some interesting discussion.

There are points in his communication that are worth much consideration.

Are we getting nearly enough out of our natural resources?

We have the world's largest supply of nickel and of asbestos.

Are we getting the advantage out of our good luck in that respect that we should be getting?

What would be the effect of an export duty on these products?

Or would it be more advisable to go further and put an embargo on their importation?

These are questions that are suggested by Mr. Sealey's communication, and there are many people who believe that not nearly enough attention has been paid to this matter in the past.

The advantage of almost a monopoly in nickel and asbestos has not been sufficiently capitalized in their opinion.

KEEP OFF THE ROADS.

Although the Provincial highway between Peterborough and Port Hope is far from being in good shape, in some sections, it is stated, that a number of heavy trucks are being sent over it, and the traffic is likely to materially increase this week.

The amount of damage done to the road surface by the passage of these cubersome machines at this season of the year must be considerable, and it is the opinion of many who know the conditions that the highway should be closed against such traffic until the road has had a chance to recover its normal surface after its winter dressing of snow and ice.

There does not seem to be much sense in spending large sums of money in building good roads if they are to be torn to pieces each spring by heavy traffic before the conditions are right for travelling.

Not only is there too much commercial driving at this season, but there is also too much motoring for pleasure.

There is a temptation, of course, when a warm sun beams down from the blue sky to get out the old "bus" and venture out into the country.

But it should be resisted until the roads are ready. They are far from that now, and if the unnecessary traffic does not keep off they will not be ready for some time—and then only at the cost of a heavy repair bill.

THE HUDSON BAY RAILWAY.

The announcement that a conference of Western Premiers, Opposition Party Leaders, City, Town and Rural Councils, Boards of Trade and organized economic service and commercial bodies to press for the immediate completion of the Hudson Bay Railway is to be held in Winnipeg early next month is interesting.

A politician across the line once said that the tariff is merely a local issue.

Sometimes it seems as if it might be said that an economy campaign is never a local issue—just something to be carried on anywhere else but at home.

It is only a few days ago that an economy conference was held in the West at which the representation was much the same as outlined in the first paragraph of this article.

Men came together, expressed horror at the burden of taxation Canadians are carrying, passed enthusiastic resolutions calling upon Governments and municipalities to swing the pruning hook vigorously wherever an opportunity to retrench presented itself, and then went home congratulating themselves that a shrewd blow had been struck for Canada and a valuable contribution made toward Canadian progress.

Some of those same economy urgers are gathering again around the council table next month, their pleas for retrenchment forgotten, to urge the Federal Government to sink millions of the money of the people of this country in a railway undertaking that at best is but a speculation, and at its worst an almost sure loser.

This country has about all the railway problems it can digest at the present time, and sympathetic as are the people of the East toward their Western brothers and anxious as they are that the difficulties that beset them may be removed, the proposal to complete the Hudson Bay Railway leaves the East cold.

HUGGING THEIR GRIEVANCE.

The small group of harvesters, now marching on to Ottawa, are reported to be so bent on reaching their objective that they refuse absolutely to be deterred by offers of suitable employment made to them on the way, says the Hamilton Spectator. There are 36 men on the hike, and 25 of them could have been placed on farms in the Bay of Quinte district; but with them the trek's the thing, and they flatly turned down the opportunity. It is difficult to sympathize with people ostensibly engaged in a protest against lack of employment in this Province, who at the same time decline work of the very nature they came out to this country to do. They will go to Ottawa and voice their grievances, and these grievances will be duly enlarged upon in the British press, and all the time the remedy for those grievances lies right at hand.

Canada has come in for a good deal more than its just share of notoriety through the activities of this discontented remnant of British workers, the majority of whom have made good by their willingness to profit by conditions as they have found them. It is said that two of the party will be deported, on the ground of physical disability. Others, we know, have demanded deportation, and one of their number has not hesitated to commit a criminal offense, deliberately breaking a plate glass window, in order to get free transportation back to England. What good this march to the capital will do it is hard to see; but the participants can scarcely hope to be regarded as a band of heroes in view of their action at Belleville.

FRENCH CANADA TO THE DEFENCE OF BRITISH CONNECTION.

Mr. Woodsworth's attack upon the British North America Act was one of the most valuable little debates that has so far been precipitated in this Parliament. Its value did not come from Mr. Woodsworth, of course. It came in spite of him. It was contributed by the French-Canadian members from Quebec who had the perspicacity to see at once that any proposal to undermine the British North America Act was tantamount to tearing up the constitutional guarantees upon which the cherished rights of this Province rest.

Mr. Marcil put it very clearly. The British North America Act is not only a constitution—it is a contract. And it is a contract which was most difficult to draw because it attempted to settle a number of very delicate questions. All the brains, sagacity and patriotism of the Sir John Macdonald-George Brown-Sir George Cartier generation of statesmen were needed to construct it and to see it through. And it is only the colossal and apparently impenetrable ignorance of the Woodsworths and their satellites which would so much as suggest to toss light-heartedly this greatest constitutional achievement of the Fathers into the discard, simply because they want to get at the Senate or coerce the Provinces.

Do these neophytes to our politics imagine that it would be a simple matter to re-write the British North America Act today if the job had to be done? Have we got a Sir John Macdonald who could successfully drive such divergent steeds in single harness? Have we got a George Brown who would nobly subordinate personal and party ambition in order to make such an exploit possible? Have we got a Sir George Cartier so fully commanding the confidence of this race that he could bring them contentedly into such combination? Are we prepared to take this risk in order that Mr. Woodsworth may filch from our Provinces some of the rights which, after the most careful consideration and prolonged bargaining, they were allotted as the price of entering Confederation?

* * * *

The great value of the debate provoked by Mr. Woodsworth is the significant fact that the first spontaneous rejection of his stirring demand that we assert our independence and rescue this oppressed country from the control of the British Parliament, came from the representatives of French-Canada. We had Mr. Lapointe—who has been pictured on two Continents as the Canadian "Gandhi" who will not even let British Ambassadors sign Canadian treaties—telling Mr. Woodsworth that, as between Canada and Great Britain, "there is no inferiority, no discrimination," and reminding him pointedly that the British North America Act is "a sacred treaty and not a scrap of paper."

This one achievement alone is almost enough to justify the presence of this "pocket" Danton in Parliament.

It is a good thing that we should be reminded occasionally of the birth-pangs, the highly dangerous antecedent conditions and the splendid success of Confederation. Confederation might easily have failed. It might never have been born. It was a miracle of statescraft that the Fathers performed. And we can imagine nothing more pregnant with disaster than that it should be put within the power of any chance majority in the House of Commons to take it to pieces and gaily repudiate the most sacred pledges to minorities which many of its clauses contain.

It is, of course, the most abyssmal nonsense—the most poisonous libel on the attitude of Great Britain toward us—to talk as if it were the intolerant hand of the British Parliament which prevented the amendment of our Constitution. No one has the smallest doubt that the British Parliament will promptly pass any amendment which we propose. There would hardly be a debate on the subject. They regard themselves over there as merely a registering instrument to legalize our desires in such cases. The check is here. We realize that it is a serious thing to amend "the basis of union" on which Confederation stands. So the trouble would be—not to get the British Parliament to act—but to get the Canadian Parliament to ask—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

We have been waiting for somebody to point out that the political game in the United States runs like a well-oiled machine.

The action of the Irish Free State Government in offering $50,000 reward for the arrest of the men who shot down unarmed British soldiers last Friday will help to clear the air.

Another woman across the line has shot her husband because "she loved him." It is certainly a rough way of showing affection.

Despite "safety first" appeals, people continue to pour coal-oil on fires, run motor cars at 50 miles an hour and try to race trains across a level crossing.

TWO CANDIDATES FOR PERCY DEPUTY REEVE

John Allen and Ex-Deputy Reeve Nelson Decide to Stand For Election — Polling Next Saturday—W. J. Baker Withdrew From Contest.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

WARKWORTH, March 25. — There is to be an election for the position of Deputy Reeve of Percy Township, all doubts on this point having been set at rest at noon Monday, when the time allowed the candidates nominated Saturday to resign or decide to stand, expired. Ex-Deputy Reeve Nelson and John Allen both decided to remain in the field. W. J. Baker, the compromise nominee, who qualified Saturday on the off chance that the other two would resign and save the township the expense of an election by permitting Mr. Baker's choice by acclamation, withdrew his name when it became evident that there was no hope that such a course would be taken. Both candidates have started their campaign, and an exciting contest, in a township in which such affairs are by no means rare, is promised.

No Chance for Divorce.

W. J. Baker, ex-Reeve of Percy, who was nominated as a compromise candidate, is in his seventieth year, and for 60 years has resided in what is now the outskirts of the police village. Mr. Baker was interested in the agitation for separation from the township and the incorporation of Warkworth as a village, with its own reeve and councillors. He believed that the idea was a good one as it would tend to save considerable municipal friction between the villagers and the residents of the township.

Mr. Baker, however, says that there is no chance for incorporation as the village lacks the population of 750 required by law before it can obtain separate municipal existence. He knows every house in the place, and recently made a mental census of the inmates in each. Allowing an average of two residents in every home the population figures out at something like 500. There are in Warkworth a number of retired farmers, whose children have all left home, and several widows who are living alone. A casual survey. A casual survey of the number of houses in the village would give the impression that the population is greater than it is.

WHAT DOLLAR DID IN 2 WEEKS

Was Spent 31 Times, But Missed Church and Theater.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Mar. 24.—The Waukegan Chamber of Commerce, which desired to find out just what sort of an experience a dollar bill would have in making the rounds of the commercial circles of the city, stanted a crisp new dollar bill out and attached a circular, requesting each person handling the bill to make a notation on the circular.

The dollar was spent thirty-one times in the course of fourteen days, but did not get into a church or theater and was not used for amusements. When the bill got back it was pretty much wrinkled and frazzled and told the following tale:

It was used five times for salary, five times for tobacco, five times for cigarettes, three times for candy, twice for men's furnishing goods, once for collar buttons, three times for meals, once for automobile accessories, once for bacon, once for garters, twice for shaves and once for toothpaste.

CARDINAL'S HAT CONFERRED ON TWO AMERICANS

Archbishops Hayes and Mundelein Elevated to Cardinalate at Secret Consistory—Number of U. S. Cardinals Is Now Four.

THE CEREMONY.

ROME, March 5.—The elevation of Archbishop Hayes of New York and Archbishop Mundelein of Chicago to cardinals of the Roman Catholic faith took place Monday morning at the moment of the delivery of the sacred "Biglietti" by special emissaries from Pope Pius after a secret consistory, in which these two prelates were formally raised to the purple of the cardinalate.

The United States' members of the Sacred College now number four, the two others being Cardinal O'Connell of Boston and Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia.

The Pontiff, in reading his allocution in which the prelates were nominated, pronounced an impressive eulogy on the people of the United States, especially the staunch Catholics who had given so liberally to charity since the war. The Pope gave as his reason for elevating Archbishops Hayes and Mundelein to the sacred purple, "their personal qualities, the importance of their respective sees and the zeal and merit of their pastoral ministry, which has already shed lustre on the hierarchy of the United States of America."

Many Sightseers.

Despite the unostentatious character of the ceremonies, large groups of sightseers gathered around the doors of the Vatican and the propaganda and American Colleges to obtain a glimpse of the scenes within. Promptly at ten o'clock a score of violet-garbed cardinals, resident in Rome, assembled in the historic consistorial hall and seated themselves in a semi-circle before the pontifical throne to await the appearance of the Holy Father.

The consistorial hall, constructed under Pope Clement VIII., is one of the most richly decorated rooms of the Vatican; its red silken draperies blended with the violet robes of the cardinals, setting off in striking contrast the pure white of the pontic's vestments as he strode in with slow and measured steps a few minutes later.

Nomination Announced.

His Holiness advanced to the throne accompanied by a select staff of Swiss Guards attired in yellow and blue uniform. The cardinals one by one approached the Pontiff, genuflected and kissed the Fisherman's Ring. A moment later the Master of Ceremonies pronounced in sonorous voice: "Extra Omnes," whereupon the Pope and the cardinals filed out of the hall. The Pope then read his allocution, nominating the two prelates as members of the highest senate of the Catholic church.

The approval of the cardinals was indicated at the end by the simultaneous lifting of their skull caps, whereupon His Holiness tinkled a little gilden bell, indicating that the emissaries might depart to deliver the "biglietti" to the chosen dignitaries. In order that there might be no confusion in the ringing of bells the entire electric bell system of the Vatican had been disconnected by papal order.

Emissaries Depart.

The consistory having been declared ended the three pontifical emissaries— Monsignor Gervasi, Cardinal Gasparri's Master of the Household, Monsignor Tani, Cardinal Gasparri's Master of Ceremonies, and Cavaliere Riggi, Secretary to the Apostolic Chancellor— departed on their sacred mission. They drove in a black closed coach drawn by two glistening black horses, simply decorated with black harness, the only touch of contrast being the highly polished nickel buckles. Two black-liveried coachmen sat erect on the box.

Pedestrians and Roman shopkeepers turned to gaze questioningly as the coal black steeds pranced through the squalid streets and broad avenues of the Eternal City. Finally the pontifical coach rolled up to the Piazza Di Spagna, upon which fronts the hall wherein Archbishop Mundelein with his friends waited in solemn silence.

The silence became even more profound as the papal couriers entered the hall. They advanced to where the archbishop stood. Monsignor Gervasi and the other two carriers bent the knee and handed to the archbishop an envelope enclosing the papal announcement. Archbishop Mundelein accepted it, bowed, and handed it over to Monsignor Marchetti Selvagiani, Secretary of the Congregaion of the Propaganda, who opened it and read:

"The Holy Father in secret consistory has had the benignity to elevate to the dignity of cardinal His Grace, the Archbishop of the Diocese of Chicago, in consideration of the great work he has done.

(Signed) "Gasparri."

The new cardinal then delivered a short address of gratitude; the emissaries withdrew and the ceremony was over. The emissaries then drove to the American College, where an identical ceremony was enacted with Archbishop Hayes playing the principal role.

Immediately after the ceremonies the official visits of congratulation began, lasting until twelve-thirty, and being renewed in the afternoon.

FINE OF $10 FOR ASSAULT UPON FATHER

Arthur Blodgett Found Guilty of Attack On His Parent—"Most Henious Case," Magistrate Said.

BROTHER ACQUITTED.

In concluding his argument in defence of Arthur and Clarence Blodgett yesterday afternoon, charged with assault on their father James Arthur Blodgett, Mr. Wearing claimed that in laying hands on the horse collar in dispute the father was the trespasser.

Magistrate Langley remarked that there were nice enough points of law in the case to be worthy a better cause and said the entire case was unfortunate.

Mr. O'Brien: "There has been a great deal written and said about the wife beater but we find very little comment on the child who beats his parent because it is so henious an offense that it is beyond almost the conception of a civilized human being. I submit there was an agreement between the two young men that they would "lick the old man" as one of them put it. Knowing he could get the collar peaceably I submit he went there solely to beat up his father. His talk about protecting his mother is all rot. There was no evidence at all that the wife had been ill-treated. He goes to the stable and picks up an article that had been used by his father for years and put it in his cutter.

We all know how they talk in this agricultural country. Johnnie may say 'that's my calf' and Mary may have a few pigs or chickens, but the chattels are legally the property of the head of the family. This collar had been purchased by the father's money and used in the father's business. He obtained it peaceably and sat with it on his knee in the kitchen. There is some discussion, the son claiming it with expressions that would disgust the average man, and the father saying in effect "that is my collar and I don't want you to take it away." The son pulls or trips the father so that he fell to the floor. He had no right to use force to take the collar.

Clarence when he went into the house went in with conspiracy with his brother to beat up his father and its a lie that he always took off his glasses. He took them off this time because he was afraid to be hurt. The young men were so confident they did not even take off their coats.

"It is in your Worship's power by his judgment to teach a great moral lesson that parents are entitled in this century to the same respect from their children that has been accorded throughout past generations."

An Unusual Case.

Magistrate Langley: "It is a most unusual case—it seems to me I am getting a great many these days. The case it not only unusual in the attack by the two young men on their father but also in the questions of the ownership and right to protect property.

It may have been that the father had something to do with the liquor and had been in hospital with delirium tremens but these are beside the question. Children certainly have no right to intervene between parents to cause separation or to use physical strength other than in protecting from actual danger. Nothing had occurred on that day, I find, to invoke such protection.

The taking of the collar by the father and his holding it are an asserting of his claim to the collar. I didn't find that his dare was a dare in the sense that it was an invitation to fight. I find that he was in peaceful possession of the property, and that when the son proceeded to take it from him he was doing what was wrong. In the course of what followed the father was injured and whether from a kick or as a result of hanging on to the collar makes no difference. I find there is an assault even if there was a mere falling back on the floor.

I find that Arthur Blodgett did commit an assault on his father. William Clarence Blodgett took a hand in the scuffle, was kicked by his father, and went back with expressions that were most improper for a son to use toward his father, but did not succeed in hitting his father. The evidence is not sufficient for me to find he kicked his father the first time. He had good intentions to get into the assault but I cannot find that he was guilty. I am going to dismiss the case against Clarence and find Arthur guilty.

It is to my mind a most henious thing even if the father is wrong and does drink, for a son to lay hands on him."

His Worship placed the fine at $10 and Mr. Wearing said so far as the father is concerned the case is only started, and that prosecution of him will follow.

At the close of the case Arthur Blodgett junior approached his father with outstretched hand and made an overture of friendship which was rejected.

WORKING WOMEN, WEAK, RUN DOWN SOON RESTORED

Home Treatment to Create Red Blood, Body Tissue and Vital Nerve Force Costs But Little.

Countless thousands of women must work day after day in stores, offices, manufacturing establishments or in their own homes who are really unfit for their tasks. With bodies and nerves overstrained, they get through each day by will power alone. At night, worn and exhausted, life holds little of pleasure for such women.

They should not be content to drag on, making their sacrifice of health, beauty and happiness. They should, instead, undertake at once the upbuilding of their bodies; the creation of red blood and flesh tissue that fills out hollow cheeks and wasted forms; that restores nerve resistance and brings back the bloom of health, strength and vitality.

When weighed down by worry and weakness, such women should begin at once a simple, inexpensive home treatment of Wincarnis, the restorative. They can obtain a generous size bottle of Wincarnis from any leading druggist. Wincarnis is the ideal body and strength builder and is absolutely harmless. More than ten thousand physicians have recommended it.

OPPOSITION

United States and Canada's share would be much less than the cost of the Georgian Bay Canal. The St. Lawrence scheme also seemed more feasible. He did not think that many ocean steamers would run up the Great Lakes even if the St. Lawrence went through, but lake boats would go down to Montreal and Quebec. Montreal stood to gain a certain amount of American traffic, Dr. Manion thought, and much of the Canadian wheat which now went by Buffalo would go to Montreal.

Georgian Bay Slower

John Millar (Progressive, Qu 'Appelle) made a comparison of grain rates and traffic via all rail and water routes, and showed that the Erie Canal route had not been able to attract more than an average of twenty per cent. of export grain travelling to United States Atlantic seaboard. The Chief difficulty as he saw it with the Georgian Bay Canal project was that boats could travel only about four or five knots through the canal zone and time lost thereby would detract much from its usefulness.

Mr. Millar said that he was not opposed to the St. Lawrence scheme but he was opposed to putting it into effect just now. He was pleased, he said, with the course the government was taking in the matter.

American Project

E. C. St. Pere (Liberal Hochelaga) was opposed to the St. Lawrence scheme, he said, as a business undertaking. It was an American project, he said, could supply all the necessary power much cheaper than the St. Lawrence scheme. He said that 100,000 horse power would be available to Eastern Ontario and Quebec if the Georgian Bay ship canal were constructed.

Ontario's Need Power

General A. E. Ross (Conservative, Kingston) said the problem of Eastern Ontario was not navigation but power. Power was urgently needed and the Province of Ontario was ready to provide it without cost to any other Government if given the opportunity. The danger to the lake levels through diversion of water from the upper lakes was serious and if diversion of water from the upper lakes was serious and if diversion continued, widespread epidemics were probable.

J. E. Fontaine (Liberal, Hull) protested against pressing forward the St. Lawrence waterway development on the ground of economy. Canada had never got the best of the United States in an international deal. He advocated the Georgian Bay canal project as a Canadian proposition and as just as useful to the west as the St. Lawrence waterways.

Lose Territory Right

Frank Cahill (Liberal, Pontiac) said the history of international canals had been that the small country which entered into an arrangement with a larger country lost its right to the territory through which the canal was built. This had been the case with the Suez and Panama Canals, and the same thing might happen to Canada. Mr. Cahill also advocated the construction of the Georgian Bay Canal and said that it gave the people bordering on the upper lakes connection with Montreal by a route three hundred miles less than by the St. Lawrence.

Quebec Opposition

The evening sitting of the House brought further debate on the St. Lawrence waterway scheme. From Quebec members, there came opposition to the project. A. J. Lewis, Progressive of Swift Current, felt that the Government was right in asking for further consideration. T. L. Church, Conservative of North Toronto, however, hoped the work of the commissioners could not be delayed as the scheme was most important to Canada.

Mr. Church read from a report made two years ago on the St. Lawrence waterways that pointed out the benefits in water power, and transportation that would be derived from the deepened St. Lawrence. It was one of the most important economic problems of North America.

Produce Correspondence

The resolution of Mr. Archambault, which was a request for the production of correspondence on the subject, was then carried, and the resolution of Mr. Church declaring that the Government should begin immediate negotiations with the Government of the United States, looking to the carrying out of the finding of the international joint commission on the St. Lawrence waterway was dropped, at Mr. Church's suggestion from the order table.

INSULIN CHECKING THE DEATH DATE

NEW YORK, March 25 (Canadian Press). — Insulin, the cure for diabetes discovered by Dr. F. G. Banting of Toronto, already is checking the death-rate caused by the disease, it was indicated by the figures made public yesterday by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

Among nearly fifteen million industrial policyholders of the company, the decline in the diabetes death-rate for 1923 was 6.4 per cent., as compared with an increase of 28 per cent. during the three preceding years.

"It is too early yet to say finally that the sudden check in the rising mortality from diabetes is due to insulin," said the Metropolitan Company's statement.

"As there appears to be no other outstanding cause during the past year, however, it is extremely probable that insulin was the chief factor."

MEXICO IS NEARLY AS BAD AS RUSSIA.

By BOB DORMAN.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, March 24 —Red Russia has little on "Bloody Mexico" today.

From up on the Rio Grande down to the Gulf of Tehuantepec federal troops are marching behind the red flag of Bolshevism.

Throughout central and southern Mexico—that is to say in the more densely settled sections—the Reds grow ever stronger.

In the north, where the population is more scattered, radicalism's spread is more gradual.

ADMIT RESERVATION INDIANS TO CITIZENSHIP

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(United Press).—The door of citizenship would be opened to nearly a quarter million Indians under the Snyder bill, which has been reported favorably out of the house committee on Indian Affairs.

The bill was introduced in the house by Chairman H. P. Snyder, of the Committee on Indian Affairs. If the measure become a law the Secretary of the Interior will be empowered to grant "citizenship certificates" to Indians now living, according to old customs, on reservations. Heretofore, Indians who were members of tribes which had not adopted the civilized mode of living were precluded from becoming American citizens.

Two-thirds of the entire Indian population of the United States now enjoy the rights of citizenship, and, should the Snyder measure be passed by congress, the entire population will be admitted to citizenship.

GERMAN THIEVES WHISKED TO JAIL.

BERLIN, March 25.—(Associated Press).—Wholesale reductions in the personnel of German courts for reasons of economy have forced the speeding up of many trials which formerly would have been long and involved.

Thieves and robbers caught in the act are arraigned immediately and, if they confess their guilt before a police commissioner, are sentenced without the delay and expense of formal trial and involved court proceedings.

CHARITY MONEY FOR WINE.

BERLIN, March 25.— (United Press).—The use of charity funds to buy oceans of champagne brought Lieutenant Hirchfield behind the bars for a nine months' sentence. The court found that he and his companions collected huge sums for children's welfare work, as well as other charitable and political purposes, but that none of his money found its way to the relief of the German needy.

HEARTY "APPLAUSE."

A single night's program by WJAX, Cleveland, brought in more applause than any large theater in the country can given in one night. The operators counted 3500 letters of appreciation for a single night recently.

ELBERFELD, Westphalia March 25.—(Associated Press).—A sports stadium for the exclusive use of the ribobn makers and workers in the textile factories of Elberfeld and Barmen is to be erected here. It will be one of the largest in Germany and will accomodate 40,000 spectators.

Other cities in which sports stadiums have been started or are contemplated include Frankfort on the Main, Hamburg, Leipzig, Munich and Stuttgart.

A memorial is to be unveiled at Camp Merritt, N. J., May 30, in honor of the 600,000 men who passed through the camp on their way to and from France during the World War. At least 50,000 people are expected to attend the ceremonies.

METHODISTS TO MEET IN MAY.

CHICAGO, March 25.—(Associated Press).—The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is to be held at Springfield, Mass., throughout the month of May. Approximately 850 delegates from all parts of the United States and from 444 nations and territories abroad will attend. The gathering will be representative of the 4,774,520 members of the eMthodist Episcopal Church around the world, and is the law making body of the denomination.

Among the important matters to be discussed is the question of unification with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; the status of the episcopacy of the denomination, and the reorganization of all existing benevolent boards.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS FAILED, USED LIGHT OF SPIRIT

Pupils Listened Eagerly in Darkness to Sidney Webb--Mother of J. H. Thomas Lived on an Old-Age Pension

IN the British House of Commons someone jeered at old-age pensioners as recipients of charity.

A member rose from the front opposition bench to reply. In a voice choked with emotion, he referred to "one to whom I owed more than to anyone else in the world, who drew her old age pension."

The reference was to his mother, and members of all parties—the House of Commons is the most human assembly in the world — cheered sympathetically.

That man was J. H. Thomas, now the colonial secretary in the new Labor government. He began his career at nine years of age, and rose to be the secretary of one of the greatest trades unions in the country (the N.U.R.), and has a genius for friendship. Lord and Lady Astor, Rockefeller and Earl Beatty are among his most intimate friends, says an anonymous writer of the Labor party, in an intimate series of vignets of the Labor government, in Pearson's Weekly.

Some time ago an advertisement appeared in a "highbrow" journal for a country cottage free from the distraction of "crowing cocks and barking dogs."

It was reproduced in the daily newspapers, and the advertisers, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Webb, were inundated with letters! Now they are safely ensconced in their Surrey cottage, whither they have gone to escape the time-wasting calls of unbidden visitors.

The Webbs are probably the most learned couple in Europe. Mr. Webb has an opportunity at the board of trade of applying his encyclodepic knowledge of political economy. He is a fascinating lecturer upon this subject.

Once, when he was lecturing at the London School of Economics, the electric light failed.

"We will proceed by the light of the spirit!" said the lecturer—and he went on, all the pupils listening eagerly in the darkness!

When Ramsay MacDonald came to London as a raw Scottish youth in his 'teens, he obtained a job at envelope addressing, which brought him in 12 shillings a week. His main article of diet was porridge and he found hot water, milk and sugar a satisfactory substitute for tea. "I even grew to like it," he said years later.

I met him first twenty years ago at his flat in Lincoln's Inn Fields, where, with the late Mrs. MacDonald, he held a kind of political salon which was the meeting-place for aspiring young politicians from all parts of the world.

His favorite recreation is walking. He recks nothing of a thirty-mile tramp in any kind of weather, and those who have accompanied him on these little rambles have good reason to remember the terrific pace he keeps up!

His favorite hero is Oliver Cromwell. There are pictures of the great Protector on the walls of the premier's homes at Hampstead and Lossiemouth.

The chatelaine of No. 10 Downing street, Miss Isbel MacDonald, is only twenty years old, and she is the youngest girl to have achieved the distinction.

SUCH IS FAME

THERE are many good tales concerning Charles Dickens, the great author. One of the best is told by the famous impersonator of Dickens' characters, Mr. Bransby Williams, and is concerned with a conversation he overheard between two gallery boys outside a theatre where he was appearing.

The two were studying the names on a poster at the door, and discussing the various artistes, when one of them suddenly asked:

"Say, Bill, who's this 'ere Dickens?"

"Wot, don't yer know?" said his pal. "Why, 'e's th' bloke wot writes the patter for Bransby Williams."

British Premier Put on His First Man-Sized Trousers at the Age of Six

NO pictures in the possession of Mrs. James Falconer, of Darby, in the outskirts of Philadelphia, are more prized than these of the early days of the British premier. Mrs. Falconer is the daughter of the premier's grandmother, Isabella Allan Ramsay, shown above. Another is of the Labor leader's mother, Annie MacDonald, as she appeared on the occasion of Mrs. MacDonald's first visit after her marriage to Ramsay MacDonald to see her husband's family at Lossiemouth, Scotland. The photo of MacDonald as a soap-box orator was taken on his twenty-first birthday by a London photographer. This was during the time he was pleading the cause of the workingman in the Hyde Park district.

Prof. Proves He's Peach By Pruning Dunlop

Sustains Reputation to Pun Anything, Anywhere, Anytime, Without Hesitation — Surpasses Himself

W. JAMES DUNLOP, B.A., director of the university extension at the University of Toronto, who will represent Canadian universities at the Empire Exhibition at Wembley, tells this one on himself.

W. J. Dunlop

At a recent university dinner Mr. Dunlop found himself seated near a somewhat boisterous "prof." (not all university professors are solemn and staid), best left nameless, who amused himself by "punning" with the cognomens of his companions.

During the course of the revelry "W. J." ventured to suggest that perhaps the "prof." could not pun his name. For a moment, but only for a moment, the "prof." was nonplussed.

"That's easy," he retorted. "All I need to do is to "lop" off the end and it is "dun"!

Padre Rents Dance Hall Makes Hay Before Lent

SOME denominations positively put the ban on dancing. Some ministers frown upon the semblance of a twirl or hop. Others tolerate it only as a necessary form of evil. But to Rev. G. H. Andrews, of Victoria, dancing is not only a recreation but a joy divine.

Rev. G. H. Andrews

Dr. W. N. Guthrie introduced the doubtful practise into the services of St. Mark's-in-the-Bowerie at New York and walked the carpet before Bishop Manning in the Ecclesiastical Courts. Rev. Mr. Andrews, less iconoclastic, hired a hall and led the orchestra himself. Dr. Guthrie stressed the "art", Rev. Mr. Andrews the "joy". While barefoot girls, tripping blithely, interpreted the festival of St. Nicholastide in New York, twentieth century costumed Canadian young people enjoyed the "Cats' Whiskers" at Victoria. Thus the Pacific Bishop, unlike his New York sacerdotal brother, did not have to write a wrathful letter that he "was greatly shocked and scandalized."

It was before Lent that the Victoria padre rented the hall for a professional dancing instructor to stage dances once a week. Minority critics attributed the strange inauguration to their minister's having been unsettled by the war.

But the popular padre went on increasing in speed and stunts. Relieving the lady pianist, his deft fingers rippled from bliss to sentiment, from "Last Night on the Back Porch" to the old Scotch melodies. "The padre can certainly put snap into a medley," the dancers said. Every night his entrance into the dance room was the signal for repeated rounds of applause.

VENIZELOS QUITS STAGE HIDES MORTAL WOUNDS

Except for His Skull-Cap, Looks Much Like Other People—Hides Lava of Words

ANOTHER of the great figures at the peace conference is gone out of the realm of active international politics. Clemenceau, Lord Balfour and Borden have retired; General Botha, Sir Henry Wilson, Mr. Bonar Law and President Wilson are dead; Lloyd George, Hughes, of Australia, and Orlando, of Italy, are out of office; and now Venizelos, of Greece, owing to ill-health, is compelled to relinquish his political career. Only Poincare and General Smuts remain in office.

Considered alone as a record of survival the career of Venizelos is unique. Between 1850 and 1906 there were some thirty revolutions in Greece, and Venizelos, who began his political career as a member of the Cretan Assembly at the age of twenty-three, in 1887, came through most of them, through massacres and assassinations, with his head still connected to the rest of his body.

E. Venizelos

His whole career has been the single devotion to a soaring policy for Greece. A greater Greece has been the motive behind the triumph and disaster of the story. The Balkan League that broke Turkey was his creation. Afterwards, when Greece was done with Bulgaria, Hellenic territory was nearly doubled. Premier of Greece when the great war came, Venizelos urged Constantine to throw in the whole weight of Greece on the side of the allies, but the king had other ideas. But Venizelos, in the long run, had his way. It was just the same as with Constantine's brother, Prince George, whom Venizelos expelled from the governorship of the island of Crete. "We have only the most loyal feelings towards Prince George and the whole royal family," he explained. "And we want George to stay. All we ask is that he do what he is told."

But Venizelos made one great mistake—a mistake that will rank among the great blunders of history. True to his policy of a greater Greece, he insisted upon a large share of the Turkish spoils, the greater part of Thrace, Smyrna with a part of the Hinterland, where Kemal Pasha was even then collecting the Turkish remnants which were to shatter the great dream. It was when Venizelos offered to enforce the division of the Turkish territories of Asia Minor that, in common parlance, Greece bit off more than she could chew.

"After the momentous meeting at San Remo," says Lord Riddell, in John O'London's, "Marshal Foch told me he foresaw 'an immense debacle.' And Sir Henry Wilson said the same."

Horrible events followed in Greece in the shape of wholesale executions of leading men. The country was ruined financially. A million Greeks became homeless refugees. The whole trend of events in the east was changed.

Even then Venizelos was recalled from exile to rescue his much-distressed country from ruin. But as the hymn says:

"Time, like an ever-rolling stream,
Bears all its sons away."

Apparently calm as usual, Venizelos is near the rapids of the ever-rolling stream. It is underneath the surface that he keeps his mortal disappointments. His appearance gives no indication of the turbulence of his spirit. Except for his skull-cap he looks much the same as other people. He was stouter than formerly when Colonel Repington talked with him in his exile at Paris in February, 1921. "I scarcely recognized him, with his fuller beard, when he came," says Repington. "But he has not lost his old volubility and fire, and poured out a lava of words. Like most great agitators, in private life M. Venizelos has quiet manners and a gentle voice, and a wonderful library in five languages."

Victim of Snake's Vendetta

SCIENTISTS are puzzled and laymen are keenly interested in the remarkable case of the boy, Clifford Scholes, 18, of Bungowannah, near Albury, New South Wales, who has been bitten by a snake five times in six weeks. He was working in the field when bitten first, soon after he had killed a large brown snake. His mother rendered first aid and the boy was hurried to a hospital. He was out in a few days, and had returned to work in the fields when he was bitten again. This time his recovery was slower. He had just returned home when, while walking along the verandah of his house, he was bitten a third time. Then he was bitten while working near a reaper. After this, every hole in the grounds around the house was stopped up, and young Scholes was constantly attended by a man with a stick, who also carried a light at night. Yet, while Scholes was getting chaff for a horse one night in the stable, he was bitten a fifth time, and again the snake escaped. After leaving the hospital on this occasion he was hurried to Sydney, as it was felt that he was not safe on the farm. The boy says that the snake "has the smell of him" and is avenging itself for the killing of its mate.

Bruin Brought New Furs In Answer to Prayers

Progressive Leader Saw Wife's Black Set Coming Across Fields — Took Advantage of Opportunity

ANDREW KNOX, the Progressive leader in Saskatchewan, member in the dominion parliament for Prince Albert, is a north of Ireland Presbyterian and an elder in the Colleston Presbyterian church. He lives eight miles below Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, a province where furs are a winter necessity.

Andrew Knox

One day his wife said she would have to have new furs before winter. The next Sunday at church time when he drove the family carriage up to the house which sits on a hill overlooking the flats and the Saskatchewan river, he saw his wife's new winter furs coming across the low-lying fields. A huge handsome black bear was wearing them.

Mr. Knox, with a reputation as a rifle shot, met the predatory animal behind the barns. Protecting his young pigs, he nailed bruin's hide to the side of the barn and Mrs. Knox had a beautiful set of black bear furs that winter.

Mr. Bear paid for not knowing that Mr. Knox is a man who not only knows how to protect his possessions but also how to take advantage of his opportunities, both those he makes himself and those chance throws his way. He is at present busily engaged at Ottawa, in an effort to nail the Hudson's Bay railway's hide to the granary of every prairie farmer to complete the government road to the great northern outlet.

NO FAVORITISM

AS most people are aware, Lord Beaverbrook was plain Mr. Aitken before he received a title some few years back.

His aged mother lives in London, and a friend of his meeting her for the first time, said:

"Mrs. Aitken, I have the honor of knowing your distinguished son."

Her reply was, "Indeed, I am very glad. Which son?"

"That," remarked Lord Beaverbrook in telling the story, "is the spirit in which mothers should bring up their sons."

A NEW USE FOR SOUP

SIR HENRY ROBERTSON, who spent forty years of his life on official work in Ireland, tells the story of how the Duke of Edinburgh, while cruising off the coast of Kerry during a famine year, distributed a quantity of tinned soup amongst the hungry peasantry.

Never having seen anything of the sort before, and not imagining for a moment that it was meant to be eaten, the people came to the conclusion that it was some new kind of lotion, and made use of it accordingly.

One man in whose cabin Sir Henry found an empty meat-extract tin spoke with bated breath of the marvelous properties of this mysterious preparation when applied in the form of a poultice for neuralgia.

Later on the ship's doctor found another man with his shirt off undergoing a vigorous application of tinned soup to his back for lumbago.

WHAT DID HE MEAN?

SIR THOMAS LIPTON the other day related a story which he seemed to think was against himself.

"I visited Burma some years ago," he said, "and happened to be present at a great religious function. Amongst the Buddhist priests was one who kept glaring at me until I became almost nervous. Suddenly he came forward and exclaimed: 'How the deuce did you get here, Lipton?'

"You may imagine my surprise when I found that the 'priest' was an Englishman I had previously known. He had been shipwrecked on the Burmese coast and had turned 'native.'

"I invited him to call and see me, but he refused. 'I never mix with Christians now,' he explained. 'But it is me you are coming to see,' I replied. 'Oh, well, that's a different thing,' was the startling answer.'"

Bomb in Mail for Coolidge Would Blow Up His Watch-Dog Letter-Opener, Ira Smith

Nothing is "confidential" to President's Sharer of Secrets — More Than 1,000 Letters Are Opened in a Day—Knows Writing of President's Family and Most Intimate Friends.

ABOUT the only prominent man whose autograph one may be absolutely sure of any more is that of President Coolidge. There is an inviolate rule at the White House that no one may imitate the president's signature, no matter how closely one might be able to do it, or how inconsequential the letter to which the signature must be attached.

Whether the president ever saw the letter to him or dictated the answer, however, is something else again. Often more than 1,000 letters reach the executive offices in a day—to say nothing of several hundred telegrams which come over the White House wire. On an average day, the mail contains something like 400 letters. By the time these have been sifted and hand-picked, there are not more than two dozen letters laid on the president's desk for him to read and answer personally.

The opening and sorting of this mail is a man-sized job. The human letter opener who holds it is Ira Smith, who has done nothing else day in and day out—year in and year out—for the last decade or more.

He opens everything that comes to the White House—sealed up or tied up—by mail, express or messenger. If a crank were to ship a bomb or an infernal machine to the president, the man blown up would be Ira Smith and not President Coolidge.

Mr. Smith can read the English language perfectly with the exception of three phrases, "Personal," "Strictly Confidential," "Siemp, Do Not Open." He does not know what these mean.

In other words, "Very Private" on a letter to the president has much the same effect as to hand a nut to a squirrel with the suggestion, "Do not open until Christmas."

"Supposing I wanted to write and tell the president something that I wouldn't want anybody else to see and that I knew he, himself, wouldn't want anybody else to see—something, maybe, that really oughtn't to be known except by him and me—how would I go about getting it to him?" Mr. Smith was asked recently.

The answer is it couldn't be done.

The only way yet discovered for a man not in the habit of writing to the president to get a letter into his hands without its first being opened and glanced through by some one else is to give it to the president himself.

While the White House letter-opener ordinarily pays no attention to "Personal," there are a few letters to the president that he does not open—those written by members of the president's family and by intimate friends. Mr. Smith is clever at recognizing handwriting.

Sometimes a writer encloses his letter in an envelope addressed to Secretary Siemp or to his private secretary, Mr. Clark, explaining that the letter is about something that the president wouldn't want even his secretary in on. Not infrequently somebody sends a letter to the president in care of Mrs. Coolidge.

None of these schemes work. The only result is to delay it. Anything addressed to the president's family must go to the White House first and then be sent over to the executive offices. A letter to the president inclosed with one to Mr. Siemp is opened and read by Mr. Siemp and if it were of much consequence it would reach him anyway as he would show it to the president if he thought it worth while.

FAIRY STORY METHODS OF KEEPING PUPILS IN

Staying In Was Just as Irksome to T. G. Marquis, Author of Real Fairy Story Now

T. G. MARQUIS, author of the new Canadian book, "The King's Wish," which is being so highly commended by reviewers, was for many years a school teacher. A former member of Queen's University football team and an enthusiastic out-of-doors man, the "keeping in" of pupils was as irksome to him as to the victims. He finally evolved a way of overcoming the difficulty which was mutually satisfactory as well as highly ingenious.

If it was a rainy day and pupils had been told to "stay in after four," Mr. Marquis would exclaim: "It's no punishment to keep you in to-day, for you don't want out, anyway"—and would let his charges go. If, on the contrary, it was sunny and fine, he would say: "Now, this is no kind of a day to keep you in, for you ought to be out enjoying the fresh air and sunshine for your health's sake. Run along."

The pupils "ran along." So did the teacher.

A MIND OF HIS OWN

MANY are the stories told of the childhood of King Alfonso of Spain, who was, of course, a king as soon as he was born.

One of these stories is so characteristic of the grim determination characteristic of his later years that it will bear repeating.

While still a child in the nursery his governess rebuked him for putting his knife in his mouth. "Gentlemen never eat like that," she said.

"But I'm not just a gentleman, I'm a king," remarked the child.

"Kings still less put knives in their mouths," said the governess.

"Well, this king does," was the quick response.

WILL AMERICANS EVER DRINK TEA?

British Tea Exporters Have a Hunch That There is a Fighting Chance.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Can Americans be induced to make tea their national drink instead of coffee? British tea exporters think there is a fighting chance. They will conduct a big advertising campaign in America.

The English use an average of nine pounds of tea a year apiece. In America, less than a pound a year.

We are a nation of coffee drinkers, consuming more than 12 pounds of coffee a year for every man, woman and child. This is almost a half more than in 1914. What caused the increase? Prohibition, largely. Such is the generally accepted explanation.

A pound of coffee, properly percolated and made "strong," yields 40 cups of beverage. The year's total is an average of 480 cups of strong coffee—more cups where the drink is weaker.

Even at that, we're not the greatest coffee-drinking nation. Sweden tops the list, Cuba second, America third. The Chinese drink less coffee than any other people, averaging a pound a year for every hundred people. Like the English, they are tea drinkers.

The American people spend over a million dollars a day for coffee. The milk and cream used in our coffee takes the entire yield of three million cows.

Coffee has been used as a beverage for more than 1000 years. Louis XIV is supposed to have drunk the first cup of it ever made in France. At that time, coffee sold for $29 a pound. The price may seem unbelieveable now. There are teas, however, that cost even more. Sixty dollars a pound is what you'll have to pay for a pound of Bak Woon (White Cloud) tea from China. It tastes weak.

As the British develop their advertising campaign to induce Americans to drink more tea and less coffee, there'll be much discussion about the relative merits and injuriousness of the two.

The average pound of coffee contains 85 grains of caffeine. A cup of strong black coffee often has from two to five grains of caffeine. But, for that matter, there is opium in lettuce. Yes, and the equivalent of alcohol in candy and all other forms of sugar. And tea contains the powerful drug, theine, similar to caffeine.

In a general way, the English seem to get about the same effect from a cup of tea that Americans get from coffee. In excess, either one is harmful to the health of the average person. It's a matter of taste—and so Americans have voted 12 to 1 for coffee and against tea. Will advertising shift the preference? That will be answered later.

A VERY PECULIAR KIND OF SLAVERY

John H. Patterson Became a Slave to Health Rules After Breakdown

This man became a slave to health rules—John H. Patterson, founder of the National Cash Register Co. His biographer, Samuel Crowther, tells about it.

Patterson's health broke down from over-work and strain when he was 60. He had always been a determined fighter, always gone after things hammer-and-tongs. That's how he went after new health.

Patterson was an admirer of Cornaro, the Italian, who believed that most people dig their graves with their teeth, and who fasted scientifically, living to well over 100 years.

So Patterson started by fasting 37 days, taking only a few sips of water a day. The fast made him feel so much better that he went on a scientific vegetation diet, chiefly baked potatoes and toasted crusts.

Full of enthusiasm, Patterson went to London and hired the strong man, Sandow, to train him.

For months Sandow worked with Patterson as if training a prizefighter. He made him ride 25 miles a day on horseback. Most of his other time was strenuously used in the gymnasium. A special trainer rubbed him down numerous times each day.

At the end of a year Parterson returned to his Dayton business "a new man." He employed a staff of doctors to watch him. They hovered nearby constatly—weighing him, testing his blood pressure, listening to his heart, charting his temperature. Food for his meals was weighed on delicate scales.

Patterson took five baths and rubdowns a day, a special doctor watching the temperature of his bath, every 30 minutes, a valet brought him a glass of hot distilled water.

He rose at 4 every morning, took a horseback ride, had bath and breakfast. Then to work for an hour, next a bath and rubdown and into bed for an hour in a special room at his factory. This programme was repeated through the day.

The result? Well, Patterson lived 18 years after his breakdown at 60, and was vigorous and happy to the end.

Patterson's experience demonstrates that man can reach almost any goal if he is willing to work hard enough and devote sufficient time to the quest.

Many will wonder if his 18 years of good health was worth the price he paid for it, financially and in time expended. Was the game worth the candle? It certainly was, for he enjoyed the whole process. He was a happy slave. All of us are slaves to some one or some system, job or hobby. As long as we enjoy it, why not?

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, March 22.—The funeral took place yesterday afternoon, at Frankford, of Mrs. Vandervoort, widow of the late William Vandervoort, who died at the home of her son-in-law and daughter here, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Coyle. Mrs. Vandervoort had been in poor health since last September, when she had a slight stroke. One side had since been partially paralyzed. In her maiden days she was known as Miss Alice Sharp, and after her marriage she and her late husband made their home at Frankford. He passed away about ten years ago. Mrs. Vandervoort is survived by five daughters and two sons—Mrs. Allen Latta, Sidney; Mrs. Edward Prentice, Frankford; Mrs. Leslie Elliott, Toronto; Mrs. James Coyle, Colborne and Mrs. D. W. Coyle, Cobourg; Mr. Dory Vandervoort, Frankford, and Mr. William Vandervoort, of Havelock. She was in her 78th year. A funeral service for the family was held at the residence here, conducted by Rev. Canon Sowers.

Mrs. Dorothy Thompson.

The funeral took place here yesterday afternoon of Dorothy M fifteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Thompson. The services were conducted by Rev. Canon Sowers. The young girl was the eldest daughter in the home. Six other children survive.

Presentation at Camborne.

A large number of the Camborne Methodist Church assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Lean one evening during the week to honor their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Merwin Grieve, whose marriage took place recently. Mrs. Grieve, before her marriage, was Miss Mildred Lean. The bride was tendered a miscellaneous shower and a nicely worded address offering congratulations and good wishes was read to the young couple by Mr. Ellis Snelgrove. It was signed by Rev. F. J. Horwood on behalf of the church; A. E. Snelgrove, for the Sunday School; W. J. Jebb, for the Choir; Nora Harpe, for the Young People's League. Mr. and Mrs. Grieve made suitable reply.

Finals in Inter-Church Hockey

In the final game of the Inter-Church Hockey League, played on Wednesday night, St. Peter's defeated St. Michael's by a score of 10-1. St. Peter's have thus carried off the League championship.

Soft Ball League.

A Cobourg citizen is suggesting that a soft ball baseball league be organized in Cobourg this year, composed of some light teams made up of men who else would not play baseball at all. The churches, the bands, the rotary club, the printers, men's wear merchants, the different industries, are all suggested as good foraging grounds for the different teams.

Injured Trimming Trees.

While trimming trees at Dongannon farm, Mr. Percy Bradley received a gash in the leg when he was accidently struck by a sharp paring knife.

Thumb Injured.

Mr. Jack Christie met with an accident on Friday at the Cobourg Matting and Carpet Coy. plant. He had thrown a belt off a slicing machine, when his hand was drawn into the knives of the machine and his thumb was painfully injured.

Moved to Toronto.

Mr. Reuben K. Scott, who has been residing at Wicklow, had a successful sale of farm stock and implements recently, and has moved to Toronto. Mr. Mackenzie Rutherford has purchased the form formerly occupied by Mr. Scott.

RADIO IS FACING FEDERAL CONTROL

NEW YORK, March 25.—Monopoly or government control?

This question will be answered sooner than expected, through the suit brought by the American Telegraph and Telephone Company against broadcasting station WHN, and through the action of the Federal Trade Commission in investigating the alleged radio trust.

It is the first big call for a show down in the radio broadcasting field.

Out of this fight, eventually, one of three results may be expected. Either

1. Radio broadcasting will be confined to a select few broadcasting stations licensed by a central monopolistic agency; or

2. Programmes will be broadcast generally by government licensed stations, under direct control of the government; or

3. The government itself will take over the entire broadcasting field and run it as it does the postoffice.

These are the probabilities in view, as deduced from interviews with men deeply interested in the court action now pending.

Lax Rules Now.

Not one of these exists at present. Under the lax radio law we have today, broadcasting, amateur transmission and commercial wireless have such broad liberties that they are beginning to interfere with one another to the dissatisfaction of millions of listeners.

The Dill-White bill now before Congress promises to relieve this condition by exercising a little more government control than [illegible]. It would assure all qualifying broadcasters freedom from encroachment by others, and would see to it that the radio listeners gets high-grade service.

It is the closest approach to any of the three probabilities mentioned.

But, according to independent broadcasters, if the government doesn't step in soon, the chance of a private monopoly is imminent. If the A. T. & T. wins its suit over WHN, it would have a good precedent to take similar action against all but 48 of the 561 broadcasting stations in the United States.

Few Immune.

These 48 stations use transmission sets made by the Western Electric Company, of which the A. T. & T. is majority stock owners and most of whose radio patents it controls, and comply with certain requirements laid down by their contract with the Western Electric and the A. T. & T. for broadcasting.

Thus the A. T. & T. would have a virtual monopoly in the radio broadcasting field, if the court upholds its contentions.

Government broadcasting, the third probability, is the last resort, Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, in whose hands the White Bill would put complete control of the radio field, thinks it inadvisable. He has expressed himself in favor of as much freedom in broadcasting as possible under government license.

But independent broadcasters maintain, if the A. T. & T. wins its suit and goes to the limit with the others, the four other large organizations combined with it in the radio field will force the entire broadcasting situation into government hands.

"For eight years I suffered from despondency and nervousness. Sometimes I could not sleep at night for worrying and the next day I would be so tired that my work was a burden to me. I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and can say I am now entirely relieved of the nervousness from which I used to suffer, and things do not worry me as they used to.

OSTRICH PLUME IS FANCIED BY PARIS

By MARIAN HALE.

NEW YORK, Mar. 25.—Birds of a feather ought to flock together and draw up a petition, urging Fashion to place some restriction on the use of their plumage.

For Paris has suddenly gone mad about feathers. And the way she is using them is going to make heavy drains on the winged population.

Gowns and capes are composed almost entirely of misty flues. And the way hats, frocks, parasols, lingerie, slippers, garters and even handkerchiefs are using it is alarming.

But it isn't only ostrich plumes. Even the gentle little pigeon is being stripped of his soft, opalescent feathers.

Pigeon breasts make a much handsomer and certainly a more novel collar for a gray silk or satin outfit than the fluffy skin of the wily gray fox.

And now that feathers are being used for costumes, fur is showing that it can be original and is appearing on hats.

CURIOSITIES ARE VANISHING QUICK.

Many Things You Used to See Are Now Out of Existence For Ever.

Say, what has become of the grind organ man who ground out his tinpanny tune? And where is the monkey who amused you when you were a kid? There once was the day when you gleefully ran to greet this duet, every June. But you don't see them now as, so often, you formerly did.

And where is the buggy and finely combed horse that mother and dad used to drive, the famed one-horse shay and the rickety, slow moving hack? Just relics of old that have traveled their course and in mem'ry are barely alive. They've been here and gone and we know they will never come back.

Recall from the bygones the old hitching post that stood in the centre of town, with crude little carvings and iron rings that hung on the side. And where are the slates of which kiddies would boast and the curfew that gained much renown? Through progress these relics of old days have gradually died.

How true is the saying, the world moves along; how quickly the changes are born. We have—and give up—and there's nothing that seems here to stay. What's priceless today we will sell for song and shortly we hold it in scorn. Now what would you guess will be missing ten years from today?

GEORGE R. HARRIS REVEALS HIMSELF

Was Able to Buy Bonds at Ninety and Sell Them at Par to Government.

TORONTO, March 25.—(Canadian Press).—Testifying last night before the Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature, George R. Harris, bond broker, of Hamilton, told of how, in 1921, he went into the office of the then Provincial Treasurer, Hon. Peter Smith, absolutely unknown, and negotiated a transaction whereby he sold at par succession duty free bonds which he knew at the time he could acquire at a price around 90.

Mr. Harris, under questioning by various members of the committee, also told the story of the Provincial Securities Company, which he said was himself, although it was supposed to be Charles Snyder. Snyder, he explained, was clerk in his brother's office, and Snyder gave Harris power of the Attorney to sign cheques in the name of the Provincial Securities Company. All letters written and signed "Charles Snyder" actually were dictated and signed by George R. Harris, witness said, and when asked how it was the signatures seemed to vary from time to time, he replied that perhaps he had used a different pen.

Harris said the profits of the Provincial Securities Company amounted to between twenty-five and thirty thousand dollars in the few months it was in existence. He had divided profits with no one, he testified, and Snyder had received, all told, only about $300 or $400.

None of his partners in Hamilton had received any of the profits, Harris said. Asked to produce various books and documents in connection with the Provincial Securities Company, Harris said he would if they were "available."

He said that the firm in Hamilton of Morgan, Dean and Harris, in 1921, was in a "state of disorganization," and that he had read in papers of dealings of bond houses in succession duty free bonds and he had decided to see if he himself could make any money. He made a visit to Toronto, he testified, and, calling on several assurance companies, he produced the card of Morgan, Dean and Harris, and asked for the price of succession duty free bonds. He was told, he said, that these companies would sell these bonds to them at the book price value, which was then below par.

Harris then told of visiting Queen's Park and calling on the Provincial Treasurer, Hon. Peter Smith.

He was introduced by no one, and Mr. Smith did not know him. Asked what the conversation with Mr. Smith was, Mr. Harris said he asked him if he "still was in the market for buying succession duty free bonds." Mr. Smith told him he was still open to offers, Mr. Harris said.

Returning down town, Mr. Harris then, he explained to the committee in answer to questions, wrote a letter to Mr. Smith, to which reference already has been made, with letterhead typewritten, and with no date on the letter. Mr. Harris explained to the committee that the omission of the date was an "inadvertence."

RUM-RUNNERS HAD TO JUMP IN WATER

Four Men Believed to Have Lost Their Lives

NEW YORK, March 25 (Canadian Press). — Four alleged rum-runners who refused to stop their fast 40-foot motor boat when hailed by Police Launch No. 4, are believed to have been yesterday drowned off Keyport, N.J., where they were forced to leap from their burning craft after a fusilade of machine gun bullets penetrated their gasoline tank and caused an explosion which left their boat a charred skeleton.

One of the four occupants was a mass of flames when he leaped.

THE HUMAN RADIO LATEST INVENTION

PARIS, March 25.—Man is a wireless transmitter.

The time may come when man also will be a wireless receiver, tuned in to receive the tiny radio waves that are emitted by other bodies and to communicate with others by means of these waves!

This is the prediction of Georges Lakhovsky, eminent Parisian scientist, who has solved some of the most delicate problems of radio. He has enunciated the theory that all living creatures emit tiny radio waves an that man already communicate with one another, or are attracted to others, by means of these emanations.

Radio Ears.

"Physiology teaches us that our sense of direction, of balance, of equilibrium is due to certain tiny canals in the ears," says Lakhovsky. "It suggests to me that these may play the part of wireless receivers. Many insects have antennae that are more than feelers. They are wireless receivers and senders in all probability."

Many birds and animals are guided by their fine hearing and sense of smell. But Lakhovsky says he watched them in Paris while the noise and odors of taxis filled the air. Yet the bats caught insects in the air, guided, he believes, by radiations of their prey.

Wave Talk.

"Professor Blondlot," he goes on, "has maintained that man emits radiations that he calls 'N-rays.' This suggests to me that man, too, some day may be able to communicate by means of his own waves, just as I think insects and other living things do now.

"When that day comes doctors may learn to distinguish between the waves emitted by a well man and those of a sick person. And by using contra-rays, the physciian may be able to cure the patient without medicine.

"When we learn more about the waves man emits and how these waves are affected in intensity and length by various microbes, we will pass out of the domain of uncertain diagnosis.

"We will be positive. We will have a table of wave lengths which will be exact. And we will know what to do in each case.

"The possibilities are limitless. But we have just reached the edge of the subject."

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

THE PIPE-CLEANER MAN

"How do you do!" he said politely.

Mister Fuzz Wuzz, the pipe-cleaner man, met the Twins at the door of Doofunny Land.

He bowed low, but sprang back instantly into place, and put on the high silk hat that he had quickly grabbed off his head upon their arrival.

Mister Fuzz Wuzz was quite a gentleman!

"How do you do!" he said, politely. "You're a little late, but it doesn't matter. The jury is all here but you. Now we can go on with the trial."

"What is a jury?" asked Nancy, "and what's a trial?"

"Were you expecting us?" Nick wanted to know.

Mister Fuzz Wuzz looked at his watch. "For the last half hour," he said. "But I'm surprised that you don't know what a jury is! It's 12 people who decide something. When somebody is blamed for doing something wrong, then they are taken to court, and 12 people are asked to come and hear all about it. They're called a jury! They decide whether the person is to blame, or not to blame. The whole thing is called a trial. Understand?"

"Yes, yes!" cried the Twins. "Let's go right away. It sounds very exciting."

"It is!" nodded Mister Fuzz Wuzz. "I'll tell you the facts of the case on the way."

So off they started.

"It's all about the peanut boy's nose," said Mister Fuzz Wuzz gravely. "It's broken!"

"Did he get into a fight?" asked Nick.

"No! The tin-soldier rode his tin soldier who has to be tried," said Mister Fuzz Wuzz. "It is very serious, because once a peanut person's nose is broken it never mends, and his appearance is ruined. But here we are at the courthouse."

The Twins followed the pipe cleaner man up the steps and through a hall and into a large room that was simply packed with people. All Doofunny Land was there to see the trial—most of the people in the audience being the rest of the tin soldiers in the box where the prisoner belonged. They had come to help their comrade.

The cut-out man and his wife and all their children were there, too, and the rag-doll and the pincushion lady, and the Humpty Dumpty clowns and the gingerbread man and Teddy Bear, and the wooden waddle duck and everybody!

"Go and sit down in those two empty chairs," whispered Mister Fuzz Wuzz. "I'm to be judge. Now begin, please!" he said, taking off his high hat and going behind a big desk, where he looked as important as the president.

"Where is the prisoner?" he said loudly.

In rode the tin soldier on his tin horse.

"But I did bring him in, sir," said the tin soldier. "No trouble at all sir! Besides, I can't leave him. He goes where I go. We're made in one piece."

Everybody laughed.

"Silence!" roared the pipe-cleaner man.

LAND SCRIPT DEALS AIRED IN THE HOUSE

Little More Law and Less Politics Suggests One Member.

OTTAWA, March 25 (Canadian Press). — Echoes were heard in the House of Commons last night of the 1921 controversy over the alleged fraudulent dealings in land script held by half-breeds, seven hundred miles north-east of Edmonton.

The question arose on the Bill by D. M. Kennedy, Progressive of Edmonton West, to repeal an amendment to the Criminal Code, made in 1921, an amendment uder which the limitation of three years is placed on offences arising out of half-breed script.

Mr. Kennedy thought there should be no limitation to the offence of forgery.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, said that it was the opinion of his Department that the amendment of 1921 had had no retroactive effects. He had no objection to the Bill passing.

Hon. Mr. Meighen did not oppose the Bill, but complained of the use that had been made of it to accuse the Conservative Government of 1921 of favouring the wealthy. There had been a malevolent campaign along these lines, and his friends to the left (Progressives) had been responsible for that campaign.

Hon. J. B. M. Baxter said that "little more law and less politics," and the House woud find itself in accord on the amendment proposed by Mr. Kennedy.

Next Delorme Trial May Be Held in Hull.

OTTAWA, March 25. — It is reported on what is considered reliable authority that the next trial of Father Adelard Delorme, for the murder of his half-brother, Raoul, will be held in Hull, probably as the last case of the present spring assizes, which it is expected will last about ten days more.

According to the information received at Hull, a change of venue has been decided upon, and Hull is regarded as the logical place for the trial.

Definite announcement on the transfer is expected immediately.

Mr. Justice Loranger is presiding over the session of the Court of King's Bench now taking place.

75% of disease avoided through internal cleanliness

Internal Cleanliness More Important Than Bathing

WHY run the risk of sickness? Keep clean internally. When you are constipated, poisons form in the accumulated food waste. These poisons, absorbed by the blood, attack all parts of the body. The first results, headache, biliousness, a feeling of "heaviness," etc., serve as warnings of a graver danger. If this intestinal poisoning continues unchecked, you become the victim of some serious organic disease.

This is why intestinal specialists state that constipation is the primary cause of three-quarters of all illness, including the gravest diseases of life.

Laxatives Aggravate Constipation

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Washing Cleans Only the Skin

Why Physicians Favor Lubrication

Medical science, through knowledge of the intestinal tract gained by X-ray observation, has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Not a Medicine

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water it is harmless.

Get rid of constipation and avoid disease by adopting the habit of internal cleanliness. Take Nujol as regularly as you brush your teeth or wash your face. For sale by all druggists.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

THE first experience I ever had with classified advertising was to seek a job through a Situation wanted ad. I got it, and a good one, so my experience was successful and I was very happy. Nothing could have commanded greater respect from me for the lowly Want ad, and my first experience certainly was a lasting one.

Every day now letters come from people who have advertised and have gotten results—people who have had their wants and needs supplied. As I read them I can hardly help recalling my own feelings when I got that job.

Only a few days ago a woman wrote: "Lately I had rooms to rent and they were rented the second day my ad ran. Then I had a stove for sale. I sold it the same day I put the ad in the paper and had a dozen calls after the stove was sold."

Another said: "We are getting excellent service, and are more than pleased with results from our small ads. The small Want Ad seems to be read as much as the news item in your paper."

And here is another: "Advertised 50 feet of iron fence two days. Sold it for $25 to the second caller. Thirteen people answered the ad. Advertised for a child's tricycle two days. Six answered my ad. Bought a dandy for $3. Advertised an overcoat two days, sold it to the first caller. Twenty-nine people answered the ad. You see, don't you, why I have used the Classified for the last five years."

Who could say after reading letters such as these that classified advertising does not render a genuine public service.

THE WAR BETWEEN SEXES HAS ENDED

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS

NEW YORK, March 25.—The war between the sexes is over, and it is now up to the women to go ahead and achieve things!

No less a brilliant writer and thinker than Sophie Kerr advances this opinion.

She contends that women now have equal chances with men in every field of endeavor, and have the edge on them in many.

"The bars are down and the roads clear ahead," says Miss Kerr. "Women have simply to go aheak and do.

"We can no longer call man a tyrant, for he isn't. We cannot call ourselves the downtrodden or the weaker sex, for we aren't.

"Sex antagonism is a superstition that is quite outgrown in these days when men and women work side by side as comrades.

And, a very good point that stands out in spite of equality, Miss Kerr believes, is that neither man's vaunted masculinity nor woman's traditional femininity has suffered in the struggle.

"Because woman wants to become a senator or a doctor doesn't mean that she doesn't want to be a wife and a mother," she says. "And she can fill both jobs.

"Men are convinced now that the future of the race isn't in danger just because women have been given the freedom of voting booths and office as well as of the kitchen.

"Women know the value of homes as they never did before and they want children, too, not as possessions, but as individuals."

Switching to the younger generation—the youth of to-day—Miss Kerr said:

"The crime of the younger generation is not that they are so wild, but that they are so boring. The young people of to-day are self-conscious about their youth. They make a profession of it which is tiresome. Youth should be spontaneous and casual."

Simple Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe, and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this, get two ounces of peroxine powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dirt and dust and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The peroxine powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

The GRESSMAN Company Limited

TRAPPING ON RICE LAKE

COBOURG, Mar. 25. (Special).—A case of much interest not only to citizens of Rice Lake but to trappers throughout the district came before Judge Ward this week and argument continued for two days, a mass of evidence being rolled up and many exhibits put in.

It was brought by the Rice Lake Fur Company in which are a number of New York capitalists against Mr. Daniel McAllister, a well-known Rice Lake citizen.

The company is desirous of obtaining a declaration restraining all parties from trespassing or trapping upon certain propeties which they took over last year. These include what was formerly an isle in Rice Lake at the mouth of the Otonabee and some lots on the Monaghan shore, now partly a marsh. It is alleged that when these lands were partially flooded by reason of the levels of the lake being changed because of the construction of dams, etc., the government reimbursed the owners of the property at that time for damages.

These lands are stated to have been used for many years by Indians, and others for trapping.

The defendant, Mr. McAllister, claimed that they might belong to anybody, by reason of the government having reimbursed the original owners at the time that the lands became damaged. He further denied that he had done any trapping upon them since they were taken over by the company, who purchased from Mr. Harris, Rice Lake, who is also a mamber of the company, and from others. The company also asked for nominal damages with costs, as well as the declaration restraining from trapping and trespassing.

When the trial opened quite a length of time staken up in tracing ownership of the lands. The first survey it is stated was made in 1818, and the first grant was made that year to Charles Fothergill, the patents covering the lands with all woods and waters thereon. It is further stated that although there might be a considerable amount of water upon the land that this did not take away the right of ownership of any part of it from the patentee. On accounts of the levels of the lake having been raised there is stated to have been a considerable shrinkage of the lots on the Monaghan shore, but the plaintiff's claim that there drowned lands are their property and no one has a right to trespass or trap thereon.

The defence claimed that lands over which it was possible to navigate a canoe, allowed the privilege of trapping and fishing. The plaintiffs on the other hand claimed the exclusive right to hunt and fish within the precincts of what they claimed was private property. It was further contended that the point had been settled in court on previous occasions, and decisions wereq upted to this effect. It was also contended that the claim brought by the defence that the waters being navigable gave trapping rights, referred to such water highways as were fit for commercial transportation, and in this case the only boat that could navigate over there submerged lands was a canoe.

The two parties put in about fifty exhibits and a great array of evidence. The case is an important one, and has awakened a great amount of interest and especially among hunters and trappers. Judge Ward reserved judgment as he required time to go over the different exhibits and documents submitted to him. The first day of court was taken up in hearing the evidence submitted and the second to hear the argument by counsel. Judge Ward's decision is being awaited with interest.

SKIDDING THE ALPS ON SLIPPERY SKIS!

BY MAY CHRISTIE.

The Winter Sports in Switzerland! Skidding the Alps on slippery skis.

What visions do these phrases conjure up of blue, blue skies and snowy slopes! And haven't we all—trudging in winter slush and gloom—metaphorically flung off the ubiquitous skirt and drawn a romantic picture of ourselves, complete in breeches of the snappiest cut, entrancing woollies that would make Joseph's coat of many colours look like nothing, pert little headpiece at a saucy angle, and the spirit of the Young Crusaders in our hearts?

What mountains we have scaled, and with what a swan-like grace we glided down them!

Swan-like? Glided?

The flapping penguin is a monument of grace compared to the unsuspecting novice who sets off on skis!

As for the azure skies which blaze above us, you can take it from me the skies have no monopoly of blueness . . . as the many bangs, aches, bumps and bruises which adorn various portions of oneys anatomy bear reluctant witness!

To recount the tale:—

A twenty-four hour trip from London—(How that wretched little Channel boat did rock)—terminated in a two-hours' sleigh-ride through magnificent mountain scenery, with the sleigh-bells jangling "Sweet Hortense" into the enormous silence of ravine and towering crag and frozen waterfall.

Ah me; those precipices!

And oh, how skittish was our horse!..

Personally I enjoy high spirits; but you'll agree with me there is a time and place for everything, and the frozen edge of a precipice is no fitting stage for a four-footed exhibition of the two-step!

However, reach our cheerful Swiss inn we did, high on the mountain side . . . dined . . . danced till the dawn . . . then rose all fresh and optimistic for the Great Adventure.

Breeched, booted, putteed and complacent we sought the nearest ski-ing slope—such a gentle, innocent young slope it looked, in all its virgin whiteness—and a Swiss young man, with little feathers in his hat, clamped my enormous boots to six-foot plans of wood (why is it that ski-ing boots are so enormous), pushed a couple of Harry Lauder staves into my hands and gutturally observed:

"Push out ze feet, please! Off you go! Ach so!"

The "Ach so!" was a warning, for—silent and swift and treacherous as serpents—those skis shot off under me, gaining momentum every second.

"Bend ze legs! Wide apart! Ze toes turned in! Stop! stop! Ze beeg ditch!"..

The "beeg ditch" stopped me right enough—wrong side up—with one of the heartiest bumps it's ever been my good luck to receive!

To add to the cheeriness of the occasion, it was impossible to rise or move, as one six-foot plank with leg was round my neck in a cute acrobatic stunt that would certainly prove a "sure fire hit" on the Keith's circuit, but was a wee bit disconcerting to a novice!..

"Do not move or you will break ze ankle!"

Move, indeed! Such irony! Like Sweet Lucy Gray, I was only too glad to lie peacefully amid the snow and die!

But the Swiss young man had other views for me it seemed. He pried me up and out like a Brazil nut from its shell, and away we went together, hell for leather, down the mountain slope.

"Do you call this pleasure?" I bellowed above the wind that whistled past my ears at forty miles an hour. A kind of yodelling noise that might have been a chuckle was the only answer I received. He had my elbow in a vice-like grip as I twisted sideways, wobbled, strained and groaned at every muscle like a ship in a terrific storm!

"Stop it! Put on the brakes!"

But it was futile to implore. I might as well have saved my breath, for we were now rushing down that hillside, ricocheting off the bumps and rattling with the speed of an express railroad train!

At the bottom was a neat brown chalet, with the usual sloping roof. We would hit that roof, I knew, and bound to high heaven . . . whichever way you looked at it, my goal would be the angels!

I closed my eyes—there was a swirl of snow—and, miracle of miracles, the race was over! I was still right side up, intact, with the Swiss young man's cast-iron arms about me, like a python with a rabbit.

"Ach, so! You did enjoy it? Yes?"

I was too weak either to rebuke or argue with him. I sank down in the snow and watched the other victims

The antics of a stout German lady in a pair of birght green breeches fascinated me. How cruelly did those breeches reveal all curves, both fore and aft!

She careered down the hillside like an avalanche...

I envied her the cushions with which Nature had so generously equipped her!..

Her equally stout husband, most of whose past was well before him, capsized, and landed very nearly in my lap. His Frau flung him a suspicious look, as though to say:

"You will hear of this anon, Fritz!"

Skating is child's play, after ski-ing. So I skated all that afternoon.

And now to tell of "tailing":

Five or six small sleds are tied, the one behind the other, and the whole contraption harnessed to a horse. Eight or ten poor simpletons (one of whom I am which) sit astride those sleds, clinging tightly to the one in front.

The horse sets off at a canter on the icy road, and off you go, bumpety-bump, skid, bang, round the corners, till the merry animals gets skittish, runs you up the bank, and the entire caravan-serei upsets. I took no fewer than six tumbles into the middle of the road.

A mighty ravine is on the other side and you all lean out so hard that the horse himself is nearly pushed over the edge!

But you get accustomed to it all—in time. You eat and sleep magnificently. As the sage old proverb aptly puts it:

"It's a great life if you don't weaken!"

LAKEFIELD BASKS IN THE SUNSHINE

Spring Fever Grips the Old and Young in the Village.

LAKEFIELD March 24.—Spring has appeared in the village and the huge piles of snow are disappearing as if by magic. Queen street is quite bare of snow and one enjoys the sensation of walking minus rubbers or goloshes. Motor cars were to be seen on Thursday last and the faithful horse so much in evidence all winter is disappearing again. Messrs. Hill and Sabatino motored to Peterboro on Wednesday, the first trip of the season. Dust is flying in many places and if the old saying " a peck of March dust is worth a king's ransom," there is a certainty of good crops.

Juvenile Lakefield has awakened to spring and its possibilities and the skipping rope and the agile little maiden are now seen in the streets, as is their custom in the early days of spring. Another sign of spring is the popular spring game of "barbaree" is resumed and the village streets echo again with the mysterious signals of that old but still popular game—the joy of the small boy and the aversion of the grown up.

Dr. Chant Elected.

One is always glad to hear of honors won by Lakefield boys and girls who, having left the old town have taken up their residence elsewhere. A case of this kind came to our notice recently. Dr. Russell N. Chant was elected by acclamation the first mayor of the newly made town of Foam Lake, Sask. Dr. Chant is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Chant and has many friends in the village who are glad to hear of his success. Dr. Chant paid a visit to his parents about four years ago and was accompanied by his wife and little daughter.

The Busy Assessor.

R. J. Webster is busy on his annual spring task of making the assessment. In spite of the bad walking Mr. Webster, has made the rounds of the village.

Mah Jongg Craze.

Mah Jongg has taken hold in Lakefield and quite a number of people have learned the game, and are playing it, the list of enthusiasts appears to be growing rapidly.

Church Services.

Lenten services are being held in St. John's church on Friday afternoon at 4.30 and in the evening at 8 o'clock. At the latter services the rector is giving a series of addresses in the church. Last Friday the subject was the font and on Friday next the subject will be the lectern and the part Holy Scriptures play in our services.

On Sunday evenings the sermons deal with the story of the prodigal son. The awakening was the subject on Sunday evening, next Sunday the Reconciliation will be the subject.

Rev. Dr. Laird of Toronto was the special preacher in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning. He made a special appeal for the mission funds of the church.

Miss Jones, a returned missionary from China will give an address to the Mission Circle of the Baptist Church on Thursday afternoon at 2.30 in the school room of the Baptist Church. All those who are interested have been invited to be present.

This makes a most attractive dish for the small luncheon. Have loin lamb chops skinned and trimmed and then dip in egg and cracker. Fry in deep sweet drippings. Cook spinach as usual, but chop very fine before serving. Lay it in the centre of a hot platter and garnish with sliced hard-boiled eggs. Drain the chops and lay them around the spinach.

THE MISSION CONFERENCE

Yesterday afternoon, in connection with the World Missions' Conference, a mass meeting of women was held in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, attended by over five hundred women from the various evangelical churches of the city. Miss Martha Dickson presided over the meeting, which was featured by two addresses by foreign missionary workers: Mrs. J. T. Taylor of the Presbyterian Board in Central India, and Rev. S. Soper, of the Canadian Methodist Missions, in West China. A Scripture reading was given by Mrs. W. D. Scott, prayer offered by Mrs. E. Coon, and Mrs. W. A. Logan presided at the organ.

Miss Dickson explained the object of the conference as being an effort to quicken interest and stimulate endeavor in the sacred trust of missions.

Mrs. J. T. Taylor, who has spent many years in Central India, spoke in pleasing, earnest fashion of the work there, and of the "Distinctive Opportunity of the Church in India Today." She spoke chiefly of the great mass movements towards Christianity manifested throughout Central India by the in-gatherings of the outcasts of the land, those natives who were outside the pale of the great caste system, the laborers and scavengers and leather workers who were coming in in greater numbers than could be accommodated. Quoting Dr. Fleming, she took up the consideration of his declaration that these mass movements mean for the church in India, "her greatest opportunity, her most pressing problem, and her most glorious proof of power." The outcasts constitute fifty millions, or one-sixth, of India's population today, and the "greatest opportunity" of the church was apparent in their eagerness for the Gospel, the speaker referring to the spread of the Gospel throughout the Roman Empire by its slaves. "The most serious problem" involved the condition of these people, living in isolated communities, apart from the mission stations, illiterate, and, in the majority of cases, shackled by debt. Burdens of debt incurred by fathers were handed down to following generations, the money-lenders preferring to exact their fifty and sometimes seventy-five per cent. interest rather than demand payment of the debt.

"The church's most glorious proof of power" was in the willingness of its converts in India to suffer, sometimes in insidious ways, for the cause of their new religion. And their belief in the power of prayer was marvellous.

"What does this mean to us? There is one thing that it means. Our fathers and mothers prayed for open doors and doors are opening everywhere today. Those outcast peoples are ready to come in and here in Canada, we have workers ready to go out to them, but somehow, we can't seem to get them together. We have upon us a tremendous responsibility. We can send those who are ready to go to those who are ready to hear, if we will."

Rev. Mr. Soper gave a graphic and very interesting review of the status of womanhood in the Celestial Kingdom. He sketched briefly the outline of the ancient belief, which considered the earth, dark and weak and ignorant, as the female principle, and the heavens, full of light, strength and life, as the male. The decree that every man should have a son was responsible for the inclusion in the household of the secondary wife, because the ancestors of the man were dependent upon him for the constant worship demanded before the ancestral tablets. The social order which made women absolutely inferior to men in China, and placed them on a definitely lower scale of existence, not only in time but in eternity, was responsible for much of the suicide among women in that land. Women were considered as inherently evil, and a burden on their families from the moment of life. Only when a woman became old and had borne many sons, was she in a position to become the vindictive tyrant of the household which a long lifetime of repression had made her. In the next world, it was believed that women would be sentenced to wade in a lake of blood. Only the performance of special services ordered by her family or clan after her death could pull her out of the quagmire in which she floundered. In special cases, where a woman had borne many sons and had been unfailingly obedient to her parents-in-law was it thought that the ferry-man in the lotus boat would come and ferry her over the lake. Even Confucius, the great sage of China, said, "Women are different from men as earth is different from heaven. The aim of the woman should be perfect submission." The greatest hope entertained by the woman was to be born again as the very lowest sort of man, but she could only look forward to being born as a snake or rat or remain forever entombed in the lake of blood. A system of demerits and merits surrounded the women with torturing minutiæ. For obedience to her parents-in-law or subjection to cruel treatment at the hands of her father-in-law, the woman gained merit, but she was liable to demerits for such things as playing cards or wrapping her needles in a piece of paper on which was printed any of the characters of the sacred classics.

"There is another side, of course. There are women in China today who have reached a place of real power and influence," but the majority of them still wait in hope for the day when their men, moved by the Christian influence, will endeavor to have their lot alleviated. On the Christian schools, where boys and girls alike are taught, must be placed the onus of helping the women of China, in the future.

Denominational conferences of ministers and laymen took place during the women's mass meeting, in various rooms of the church building. The Baptist members met in their own church, under the leadership of Rev. Dr. Rose. Rev. Mr. Pogue led the Presbyterians, and Rev. S. T. Tucker, of Millbrook, the Methodists. At the supper hour the Presbyterian members were entertained at tea provided by the members of the Ladies' Aid Societies of the three Presbyterian churches of the city.

Figures received from Dr. F. C. Stephenson at the conference regarding givings to missions of the charges in the Bay of Quinte conference show a total of $7,535.03 from the Young People's Leagues, and $8,808.37 from the Sunday schools. The Young People's Leagues contributed as follows: Belleville, $602.60; Napanee, $519.15; Picton, $300.60; Brighton, $370.61; Cobourg, $864.66; Bowmanville, $1,432.42; Whitby, $426.81; Cannington, $654.95; Lindsay, $487.16; Peterboro', $661.50; Campbellford, $617.18, and Madoc, $597.41. From the Sunday schools contributions were: Belleville, $773.43; Napanee, $851.61; Picton, $529.68; Brighton, $405.31; Cobourg, $720.72; Bowmanville, $1,855.32; Whitby, $514.11; Cannington, $254.12; Lindsay, $839.86; Peterboro', $1,126.92; Campbellford, $588.54, and Madoc, $348.75.

Easter Styles

By HEDDA HOYT

NEW YORK, March 20.—(United Press).—

"A kiss is just a stolen sweet," said Bill,
"Come on, let's try it,"
"Look here! No sweets for me," quote Marge.
"You know I'm on a diet!"

Everyone is dieting these days of boyish forms. An ounce of added flesh turns into a veritable Shylock, determined to take off a pound of flesh to spite the ounce. Many women have found rolling and dieting of no avail and they are turning to clothes that slenderize as a means of making two pounds look like one.

Already the stout woman is turning her thoughts toward the Easter outfit, as ready-made garments always need adjusting and altering for her. Everything in the clothes lines is in the stout woman's favor this season, for from the corset out every garment is made with straight, slenderizing lines which reduce the size of the hips and eliminate the puffy appearance of the shoulders.

Corsets of today are woman's strongest weapon against fat. A properly fitted corset is the first requisite for the Easter frock. One that confines the hip with elastic restrictions over the back to prevent bulging is essential. Next in importance comes the brassiere, which is made of strong material that confines the surplus shoulder fat.

Straight-Line Silhouette.

There is but one silhoutte for the plump woman to follow, and that is the straight-line! Low waistlines straight-line skirts, augumenting their straightness by panels, vertical trims and flowering draperies, tend to minimize the size of the stout woman. Materials of soft texture that cling to the figure, such as crepes, satins, lace and chiffons are more becoming than taffetas and stiff-surfaced materials. Printed materials providing they are of soft textures, tend to reduce one's size. Where the slender figure may depend upon vivid colors and bizarre styles for chic, the stout woman pins her faith upon silhouette and material. She must select a frock that best conceals her flesh, rather than one that is simply modish.

Many stout women have lovely necks when viewed from the front, but at the nape of the neck the flesh is too apparent. In this case the square or V-shaped neck, which is cut high in the rear, is far preferable to the batteau-shaped one. Where the upper arm is over-fleshy there should always be some sort of an arm drapery. Large armholes are essential both for comfort and appearance? Skirt lengths should never be extreme on the stout woman. Two or three inches above the ankle is a good standard length.

For Plump Ankles.

Here I might suggest that the woman whose ankles are plump confine her tastes to dark hosiery that matches the shoe. Flesh-toned hosiery emphasizes size. Shoes that come up over the instep are more becoming than those that permit the flesh to bulge at the instep.

One of the prettiest new frocks designed for the stout woman is made with a black satin foundation and has an overdress of black chiffon, printed in various colors. The overdress is omited in front, leaving a panel of black satin. The girdle, which is of crushed satin, is placed low at the hips, and its line is broken by a huge black satin rose at one side. The sleeves are somewhat narrow at the top and fall in bell shape at the wrist. The neckline is high in the rear and square in front.

Another satin frock follows the beltless idea ,with panels four inches wide extending from shoulder to hem, where they droop under the skirt. These panels fall in front and rear of the frock and eliminate the severity of the beltless mode.

Frock and Coat.

The frock and long coat combination is the one best suited for the plump woman this Easter-tide. Suits, though popular, tend to cut the silhouette in two. The three-quarter length coat is also taboo for for this reason.

The long coat, fashioned on straight line with bell-shaped sleeves and this season's narrow version of the shawl collar, is admirable for the rounded figure. Sleeves and coat bottom often have a decorative note of embroidery or braid trimming. Dark colors, such as putty, brown, blue, black and graystone are being exploited by houses that cater to large sizes.

Extremities of style should never be overdone by large women. The severe hair-does, though becoming to some faces, are not as a rule becoming to plump features. Tiny, headshaped hats augument the size of the body.

NIGHTGOWNS.

The newest nightgowns have ribbon girdles and are cut very much on the line of the chemise frock. They have less lace and trimming than have been considered smart and seem to have followed the lead of the tailored costumes.

SUPER-PLIODYNE A NEW RECEIVER.

Only Two Controls on Complicated, Highly Selective Nine-Tube Set.

By ISRAEL KLEIN

Unlike the super-heterodyne in incipie, yet equal to it in simplicity control and in wide range, degree and fectivity of reception.

A nine-tube receiver, using six stages tuned radio frequency and two of dio-frequency, with only two controls! No howling, no re-radiation, yet fine fectivity.

Successfully operated on a 12-foot rial!

These are the characteristics of the w "Super-Pliodyne" receiver designed by C. L. Farrand, New York nsulting radio engineer, who exbited his set recently before the Radio Club of America at Columbia University.

Farrand, in his receiver, has overcome the difficulties met in construction of even two or three-stage tuned radio-frequency circuits. The controls are so intricate and the balance so delicate that it is almost impossible to tune them.

On the Dial

This intricacy has been avoided in the super-pliodyne by the simple method of creating a bank of variable condensers, all tuned at the same time by a single dial working the condensers by means of worm gear arrangement. The condensers are electro-statically shielded from one another and are adjusted beforehand for greatest efficiency under the single control.

The only other control on the set is the dial for the antenna inductance.

Farrand's design is such that from three to ten stages of radio-frequency may be used.

Oscillation is avoided by use of a new principle, by which any number of radio-frequency stages may be employed. Between the grid and the plate of each tube Farrand has connected a non-inductive, low capacity resistance, which changes the phase of the coupling current flowing between the grid and plate circuits, nullifies most of the feedback caused by the capacity of the circuit and the tube, and absorbs what remains as it is fed back.

Resistances

Says Farrand:

"The value of resistance necessary to nullify the grid to plate coupling is dependent upon the design of the tube, as well as the circuits, and is not critical. For storage battery tubes now in commercial production a resistance ranging between 25,000 and 35,000 ohms gives satisfactory performance for multistage operation. One hundred thousand ohms is a satisfactory value for the present dry cell tubes and may vary between 90,000 and 120,000 ohms."

Describing his hook-up further, Farrand goes on:

"A condenser is inserted in series with the resistance between grid and plate to prevent the plate battery from flowing through it to the filament. It is purely a blocking condenser and may range between .1 microfarad to .001 microfarad and is only needed to permit the amplifier tubes to be operated on common plate battery.

Transformers

"The transformer windings should preferably be tightly coupled. A suitable design consists of 100 turns of No. 26 B. & S. wire on a tube, two inches in diameter and 2¾ inches in length, comprising the secondary. The primary should be wound with about 25 turns of the same wire on a concentric cylindrical tube of about 1¾ inches in diameter.

"The primary is wound in opposite direction to the secondary. The end of the primary winding directly under the grid end of the secondary should be connected to the plate battery. The other terminals follow as usual.

"The secondary tuning condenser should have a capacity of .00025 mfd."

Coupling these condensers together involves such hard work to adjust each correctly in relation to the others, that this is the most difficult part in hooking up the receiver.

Three-Stage Radio

Farrand gave a hook-up for three stages of radio, a detector and two stages of audio-frequency amplification, equal in increased volume to two stages of audio, may be obtained. This is done by omitting the nullifying resistance of the third radio stage and controlling the feed-back by means of a potentiometer on the grid of the same tube.

Equal results may be obtained by use of a variometer in the plate circuit of the detector tube. But if this is done the nullifying resistance on the third radio tube must remain.

"In the use of three stages of radio-frequency amplification without regeneration," Farrand says, "it is not necessary to take any particular precautions, except disposing the transformers at right angles, and using care to provide for short grid leads, and that the grid lead of one tube does not run close to the grid lead of another."

Farrand's receiver has been successfully operated on an aerial only 12 feet long.

Tested out recently, Farrand reports he was able to tune out, without resignation, a 492-meter station in New York to receive the signals of a 509-meter station in Philadelphia.

He has made further improvements on the set, to improve its selectivity.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Prudence Page—a charming country girl, has fallen in love with

Bert Traymore—a fascinating philanderer, whom a chance meeting brings into her quiet life.

Janet Mercer—Prudence's dearest friend, an older woman, plain but clever, is masseuse to the delicate child of

Mrs. Vansittart—a pleasure-loving woman-of-the-world, owner of Winston Towers, a beautiful summer home.

Virginia Dale—her ward, is a blase beauty, who counts Traymore among her many swains. She is genuinely interested in

Peter Armstrong—a brilliant young inventor, clever and ambitious. His marked attention to Prudence at a ball at Winston Towers leads Virginia to call on the girl the next day in order to ascertain just how far things have gone. Traymore, who has put off meeting Prudence's mother, until the young girl comes to doubt his professed love, choses this day to make his call. He is embarrassed at finding his two sweethearts together, and the situation is awkward, until Peter appears on the scene.

Virginia contrives so that Prudence shall see a love-letter to her (Virginia) from Bert.

Janet, the sensible, has long been madly in love with Will Ogilvie. Now he comes to tell her that he is going abroad. He must say good-bye.

CHAPTER XXVII

Blessed Jealousy

"I don't think there's time for you to come in. I'm a little late already for my appointment at the Towers."

Janet's voice, to her own consciousness, seemed to come from very far away.

But she must not let him know this agony. She . . . must . . . not . . . . let . . . him . . . know! It was awful enough to feel this way, without the added pain and humiliation of letting him into the secret . . .

"I won't stay but a minute, Janet." Was it her fancy, or was there a disappointed gleam in his dark moody eyes?

But—if there was—it was just because she was taking the news so calmly (outwardly).

"No, Will." She must have air to breathe. She'd suffocate inside the little house, inside the little room that was full of memories of his presence.

He spoke again, unsmiling.

"I'm sorry I called, since you think my visit so unimportant. But I might have known it."

There was bitterness in his tone, and resentment.

She contrived to shake out a tremulous laugh. Pride! Pride! She'd make it win the day.

"One's duty has to go on, even if friends must go away. Be sensible Will."

He regarded her, sullenly.

"Oh, I've come to my senses, right enough. Don't worry."

"Then—just wait till I get my cloak and case, and walk with me to the trolley, will you? I—want to—to talk to you——"

She prayed that he hadn't heard the catch in her voice as she turned away from him and hurried to her bedroom. To the last, she'd keep her flags flying, even though it killed her.

Going away! The whole sunshine of life to be removed from her! It was incredible! Impossible!

But Janet Mercer, in her uphill life, had trained herself by stern necessity, to a stoic calm.

The stoicism was for outward seeming. Inwardly, there was chaos . . .

Will Ogilvie walked beside her to the trolley. In his own way, he was plain as she, but the homely, sallow face was redeemed by fine dark eyes.

Unfortunately, they were nearly always moody. Fate 'had a down' on him. The good things of life didn't come his way, he thought.

Janet Mercer loved him with a love that had a tremendous amount of the maternal in it. He was ever the little boy to be consoled and mothered, and alas for her!—at times to be lectured and corrected.

There was woman's love in it, as well, Will Ogilvie little realised the depth of it.

Now, as she walked beside him to her trolley, an analytical passerby who caught her 'off-guard' for a moment, might have seen a picture of the heartache and the loneliness and the tortured bravery of every discarded sweetheart, every neglected wife, the world over.

"When do you leave, Will?" In Janet Mercer's small grey-green eyes there was nothing but sheer anguish, had the man beside her only seen it, though her voice was calm enough.

"Oh, the first moment the bank will let me go."

"A—ah!" The ejaculation escaped her. So there might be hope, one tiny grain of hope . . .?

"You—you haven't given in your—your resignation—yet?"

(Pray heaven there was no tremor in her voice! To show one's feelings was not only sheer humiliation, but it would kill that tiny speck of hope, if Will but heard it, thought the woman.)

"No. I—I decided I'd tell you first. Not that you care, Janet, what becomes of me. But—with rising passion in his tones—"a place that can't do any better for a fellow than keep him tied down as a bank clerk till the age of thirty-two—well—it's no good to anyone! I'm through! I'm off!"

"And what about your mother, Will?"

His mother had been a fruitful source of controversy, hitherto, for the older woman was bitterly jealous of her son's 'friendship' with the younger, and had done her best to come between them.

But now Janet snatched at this tie that might detain him.

He turned resentfully on her.

"Why should I ruin the whole of my life for women?"

"It'll break your mother up, Will . . . your going away . . ."

"Little you care. You and she never did hit off. Mighty uncomfortable it's been for me, many's the time."

Janet reddened in humiliation, and flared up.

"You needn't flatter yourself that I'd ever fight over you. Your mother's welcome to the whole of you, and you can tell her so."

He answered, moodily:

"Oh, I always knew that well. It's one reason why there's no need of my staying. Your not wanting me."

The anger died down quickly. Did he really mean those words? Did he want her to 'want him'? Was it possible . . .?

"Oh, Will, how can you say such things? Doesn't our . . . our friendship mean anything to you? Don't you understand?"

"Frankly, I don't pretend to understand any woman. No man ever does." His tone was mollified, all the same.

They reached the trolley, and, to Janet's surprise, Will got in beside her, announcing that—as he would be leaving so soon—he might as well take this opportunity of talk with her.

He was strangely silent, none the less. And when the trolley deposited them at the cross-roads about a mile from Winston-Towers, and they walked along together, it was Janet who perforce had to do most of the talking.

Her heart was still heavy in her breast. What pain love brought with it! That was love's penalty.

Perfume of spring flowers floated towards them from the meadows, and in the trees there was the drowsy twittering of birds.

"It's little Lucia's bed-time. I must hurry." Reluctantly Janet quickened her pace.

Will Ogilvie walked along in silence by her side. Several times, he seemed on the verge of bursting out with something, but bit his lip to silence.

As they neared the lodge gates, they saw the tall figure of a man walking down the drive.

"Thank goodness! it's Peter Armstrong," cried Janet, relieved. "He's been up at the house, with Lucia, telling the child stories, and keeping her amused. That man's an angel!"

"He is, is he! Well, if you'd like to hear the reason why I'm clearing out, it's because you think like that of him. There's no room for failures like me beside men—like—like—"

"Will! Will, my dear boy!" A light of astonishment, huge relief, and almost comic bewilderment shone on the face of Janet Mercer. So this . . . this was the explanation . . . heavens! Will—Ogilvie, the man who stupidly, adorably, blessedly jealous. . . of another man!

In Tomorrow's Instalment Janet Becomes a Coquette.

UPPER GRAND, Mira, N.B., March 24.—(Special)—"I have suffered for ten years with kidney trouble," says Mr. A. McMullin, who lives in this place. "I tried all kinds of medicine, but they did me no good. I was laid up for three months. I couldn't move only with crutches when I got up from my bed.

I used seven boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and I am now able to do a considerable lot of work. I think by the time I have taken a dozen boxes I shall be in good health again."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely and simply a kidney remedy. They strengthen the kidneys and enable them to do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood. Healthy kidneys make a healthy body.

ACID IN STOMACH SOURS THE FOOD

Says Excess of Hydrochloric Acid is Cause of Indigestion.

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion are nearly always due to acidity—acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation; then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acid fluids and gases, which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, while it is effervescing, and furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief often follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of stomach sufferers with excellent results.

NUMBER CHILDREN MISS SCHOOL AND FOLLOW THE CROP.

Unattached to Any City or Town, They Know No Permanent Homes Save the Autos in Which They Live.

By A. H. FREDERICK.

SACRAMENTO, Calif., March 24.—California's sunshine has betrayed an army of children into crop bondage.

The year round these tiny workers traverse the state, crossing and crisscrossing their own paths.

Unattached to any city or town, they know no permanent homes save the autos and auto camps in which they live.

There are some 20,000 of them. And the majority receive little or no education, because the crops demand too much of their time to permit attendance at school.

The age of these children who go into the fields is from a few weeks to 18 years. Babies can be found swaddled in bundles on the ground, while their parents gather the crops. Children of 5 and 6 labor beside their their parents.

These youngsters who have forgotten how to play, speak a language a language of their own.

"Where are you from?" asked one 12-year-old girl of a new arrival.

"From cotton," answers the other.

"I've been in asparagas," states the first.

This is their country and their life—cotton, asparagus, cherries and so on through the state's 24 crops.

They have forgotten how to play because playtime vitality is consumed in the fields. They stoop and gather until their backs ache and their whole being cries for rest.

With the day's work finished, they are only too glad to throw themselves down to sleep on beds consisting usually of quilts or blankets of uninviting appearance.

Within the state runs this hectic, aimless whirlpool of second-hand cars, auto trucks, farm wagons, anything which will carry a man and his family. The father drives, the mother sits beside him, the luggage is piled into the car or strapped to running boards. The children perch wherever they can find hold.

The whirlpool extends through 38 of California's 58 counties. The crops mature at different times. The conveyances follow.

Outside the state two great feeding streams supply whatever workers are needed.

Up through southern California comes a second stream, the cotton workers. Many families in this current have worked in cotton from the Old South through state after state until they have reached the cotton fields of southern California. Here they strike the whirlpool and are absorbed among the 50,000.

All nations, except the Chinese and Japanese, are represented in this child labor problem. There are Italians, Americans, Mexicans, negroes, Russians, and all the heterogeny that makes up California.

But nationality is rapidly lost in the new race into which they are being builded—the race of children who don't fit in.

Many of them seem to sense that they are "different," and feel great anxiety to "conform."

"The migratory child of today resents the situation because he had known better times and different conditions," says Miss Georgiana Garden, of the state Department of Education, who has made extensive inquiry into the situation.

"But the problem is more difficult when we consider the future 'cropper.' The child born in the crops, knowing nothing else, will not care. He will adjust himself to conditions and become an habitual drifter, a spendthrift and a man or woman of no ties to make him or her a better citizen."

In one camp a girl who had passed through the first six grades had established a school. It was free, and attended by every child in the camp voluntarily. The teacher was 13 years old!

Instances are not infrequent where a child has asked the teacher of a school to lay out a course of study "because I'm going to citrus, where there ain't no school," or some other crop.

In 1921 the state Department of Education introduced into the Legislature a migratory school law. An appropriation of $10,000 was made to establish temporary schools, where the little nomads gathered. Also penalties were provided for parents who did not enroll their children in the new district to which they moved.

But later it was found more practicable to place emergency teachers in the regular district schools, and to absorb the influx there.

"We have made great progress in overcoming illiteracy among child laborers in rural districts through these provisions," says Will C. Wood state superintendent of education.

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

The highest class of brokers do not call strangers on the 'phone and solicit business any more than do good doctors.

Did any one ever call you on the phone and try to sell you Standard Oil of Indiana? If so it was probably a member of the bucket shop who did it.

Of course all brokers who call strangers on the phone and attempt to sell securities are hot bucketers, but it is pretty good evidence against them. The favorite trick of the shop which operates over the phone is to offer to buy some standard well known stock.

The average broker considers his business a profession and would not think of soliciting business with our an introduction any more than would a good lawyer or doctor.

Though a man intends his will to provide for certain of his relatives, often they do not share in the distribution of his properties because he was not familiar with the law.

Debts are always paid, if possible, out of personal property. Stocks, bonds, bank deposits, and the like are personal property, and if you are anxious that these be left to certain loved ones, or for certain purposes, take care that you have made ample provision for the payment of your debts in some other way.

If you do not provide in your will to the contrary, those you have cared for with bequests of personal property may get nothing; for before any property may be distributed, debts must be paid.

It will likely be cheaper for your family for you to pay for legal advice at the time you make your will, than for them to pay the expense of litigation trying to break it, in an honest effort to accomplish what you really intended.

Your Health

By DR. CLIFFORD C. ROBINSON

MIXED DIET.

There is every opportunity in the world for a healthy, satisfactory, mixed diet.

First, learn the real quantity of food that is needed to nourish your body properly. Do not eat more than the necessary amount.

Learn how many calories, or heat measures for energy the body requires. Have at least 15 per cent. of the total amount required in protein foods. You remember the different kinds of foods and the work each accomplishes for the body—proteins, fats and carbohydrates.

Don't eat the same foods every day. This is all right for a while, when on a severe diet, but for satisfactory results, a change in the programme is necessary.

For the proteins, change the necessary amount of meat about a quarter pound daily for adults, in order to facilitate assimilation, and balance the daily change in both proteins and fats.

In breads, corn bread, muffins, and pancakes, always change as often as possible. This kind of food, with the varieties of green vegetables and fruits, gives necessary third of food supply.

For the remaining portion, which will supply the last third of the content, remember the glass of milk, some kind of cheese, an egg, or some kind of beans.

AVOIDING FAT.

The day of guesswork in regard to diet is past. A careful study of your case by a real physician will determine your standing in the health column.

If you are fat or getting fatter, he will be able by food tests and the X-ray, to direct your daily dietary habits, so that real food satisfaction may be obtained without increasing the belt line.

There is no need of getting fat except possibly through disease. If you are not lazy, if your habits conform to the rules of health in regard to proper diet and your exercise programme is carried out the way you carry out your eating or business programme, a normal body with fat, muscle and weight properly distributed will result.

In the desire to be what you are not lies the danger of doing the thing for which you will be sorry. Do not under any consideration be tempted to indulge in any fat faker's nostrums.

Common foodstuffs may be divided into certain groups which in a measure correspond to the needed chemical elements in the body. There are food chemical companies which advertise their foods supply all these natural elements, so your life processes will be fully complete by using their compounds.

But I do not advise any such treatment. Science has solved the digestive problem in a most conclusive manner. You can avoid being fat by an intelligent understanding of proper food values and how to govern your life and its digestive system.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

(Unless otherwise specified these recipes are planned for four persons.)

Oysters are perhaps as easy to prepare and serve for a Sunday evening supper as any food.

Dill pickles or gherkins, piquant sandwiches, a fruit salad with cheese straws and tea or coffee might well accompany either of these oyster dishes.

Oysters en Brochette

One quart of oysters equals about 24 large oysters. There should be 24 pieces of bacon cut the same size as the oysters.

Clean and drain oysters. Alternate an oyster and a piece of bacon on a skewer. Baste each oyster with a little melted butter. Put skewers across a narrow dripping or baking pan and cook in a hot oven or under the flame for fifteen minutes.

As the bacon cooks the oil from it bastes the oysters. Arrange oysters and bacon on narrow strips of toast and garnish with slices of lemon. Pour drippings in the pan over oysters and serve at once. Allow four oysters and four pieces of bacon for each person.

The skewers may be removed or not as the cook prefers. If you have enough skewers for each service it's rather more satisfactory to serve the oysters on them. o

Oysters With Rice

One-half cup rice, 1 quart boiling water, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 pint oysters, 1 cup white sauce, salt, paprika, mustard, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 3 tablespoons grated cheese.

Wash ice through several waters. Drain and add slowly to rapidly boiling salted water. Boil twenty minutes. Drain and pour boiling water through rice. Drain again. Melt butter in a pan with a tight-fitting cover, add rice and shake over fire. Cover and let stand in a warm oven until needed.

Clean and drain oysters. Put a layer of rice in a well buttered baking dish, add half the oysters, sprinkle with salt, paprika, a dash of mustard and lemon juice. Pour over half the white sauce.

Cover with another layer of rice, add remaining oysters, seasonings and white sauce and cover with rice. Sprinkle with grated cheese and bake about forty minutes in a moderate oven.

The first recipe will serve from four to eight persons, depending on the rest of the meal.

The second recipe will serve four or six persons.

EVERY MAN

Every man travels a trodden way—
Toils and toils till his task is done,
And turns him home with the setting sun.
Tomorrow does what he did today—
Every man travels a trodden way!

But every man holds in his heart a dream—
Every man's dream takes him far away . . .
Away . . . and beyond . . . to the rim of day—
Every man glimpses a rush-light gleam
That lures and beckons him on . . . in dream!

Every man, every man hears the call
If far, high mountains . . . of strange, deep seas . . .
Of dim old forests with giant trees,
Where the foot of man has not trod at all—
Every man, every man hears the call!

Every man harbors a strange, wild man
Who tears and tears at the heart of him
Who would cast away all his garments trim,
Who would take and keep what his bare hands can—
Every man harbors a strange, wild man!

Every man, every man would be free,
Free of his ties . . . and free of his loves,
Free of the things that the world approves—
Every man dreams he will some day be Free of his chains, of his fetters free!

Every man knows he will never go—
He knows, he knows he must always stay . . .
He must hide the dream in his heart away . . .
He must keep the wild man deep below—
Every man knows he will never go!

Assistance Sent to Disabled Schooner.

NORFOLK, Va., March 25.—The schooner Florence B. Phillips, commanded by Captain Weigandt, and with a crew of seven men, was reported to-day as in distress off the New Jersey coast.

The Coast Guard cutter Kickapoo has been ordered from New York to her assistance and the cutter Manning, which left Norfolk to-day to destroy the derelict barge Francis O'Boyle off the Virginia coast, was instructed by wireless to render what assistance she could.

WOMAN'S HEALTH RESTORED

She Claims Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did It After Everything Else Failed

Milwaukee, Wis.—"I feel that I ought to let you know about my case.

I was ailing and could barely do my housework and washing I was so run-down, just from having one child. I took a lot of medicines and had doctors. Then I gave them all up and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I feel wonderfully good now. I do every thing that comes along, and we all take your medicine as a tonic when we don't feel just so. I am thankful for what the Vegetable Compound has done for my health and for my family."—Mrs. MARY SAIECHECK, 944 28th St., Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Letters like these testify to the value of the Vegetable Compound. These women speak from the fullness of their hearts. They describe as correctly as they can their conditions: First, those symptoms that affected them most conspicuously; and later the disappearance of those symptoms. They are sincere expressions of gratitude. For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been so praised by women.

Let this Test Tell How

People get those whiter teeth

Do you admire the whiter teeth you see everywhere today? Do you realize that they signify cleaner teeth and safer?

Then make this free test, as millions have done, and learn how people get them.

By combating film

Those prettier teeth come from combating film—that viscous film you feel. Under old methods of tooth brushing, much of it clings and stays. It becomes discolored, forming dingy coats, then teeth lose their luster.

Film holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Modern research has found two ways to effectively fight film. One disintegrates the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.

These methods have proved themselves remarkably effective. A new-type tooth paste has been created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Leading dentists everywhere, in late years, have advised it. Now careful people of some 50 nations employ it every day.

Benefits you see

Pepsodent, in several ways, brings a new conception of what clean teeth mean. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, which is there to neutralize mouth acids. It multiplies the ptyalin in saliva, which is there to digest starch deposits on teeth. These combined effects bring a revelation to new users.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

You will never forget the delightful results. Cut out coupon now.

Into the attic

FEW youngsters to-day ever saw a horsehair sofa. They wouldn't know what to do with a fire taper, carpet stretcher or coal oil lamp. They couldn't braid rags into a rug, or wind yarn without tangling. But they know the how and why of typewriters, phonographs, telephones, automobiles; what happens when a push of the button gives light, or a kodak's flash fixes their image on paper.

Their education is as modern as the advertisements they see. They have no more use for the lamp and chimney of yesterday than you for the wick and tallow of the day before.

Advertisements induce such progress. They urge wide use that means improvement. They help you lift the out-of-date into the attic—rid you of the water buckets and soap kettles of slavedom. They bring late improvements within your reach.

Read the advertisements regularly. Keep alert to the new.

Without advertising, you would never know a product's worth until you had bought it.

POSTAL CLERKS AIR GRIEVANCE

Delegation Reported Satisfied With Government's Action — Ask Upward Revision of Salary — Minor Points Unsettled.

OTTAWA, March 25.—(Canadian Press).—The grievance of the postal clerks from the loss of their cost of living bonus which they have been bringing before the Prime Minister and members of the Government for the last week is now in a fair way of being satisfied as a result of a meeting between their representatives and the Acting Postmaster-General, Hon. Charles Stewart, on Monday afternoon.

At the conclusion of the audience Mr. Stewart stated that the delegation seemed satisfied with what the Government is doing. The conclusion he drew from the discussion was that the postal clerks would be content if the salary revision announced by the Prime Minister were put through without delay.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Dear Sir,—It is with interest that I read in your issue of Saturday 22nd instant, Mr. Brethen reasons for his accredited herd or pasteurized milk bill. Reading as I do between the lines we would think Mr. Brethen has his eye on the Norwood milk supply. Now, Mr. Brethen must not forget that the Norwood citizens and the farmers and their wives have their eyes on him for if his theory is right on milk it is also right on butter and cheese. Now, it is utterly impossible to make commercial cheese out of pasteurized milk as the germs of fermentation are killed and the necessary acid will not develop also the highest temperature required in the manufacture of cheese is 98 to 100 degrees the very temperature that bacteria develops the fastest and I have never heard of any great calamity from chees, eating. I have eaten butter from pasteurized cream and it appeared to me that it was filled with that awful oleomargarine that someone saw the picture of and could not vote for the manufacture of it. Congratulations to the Womans Council. Keep busy.

Thanking you, I remain
Yours truly,
W. H. MERRILL

March 20, 1924.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Congratulations to the King Government and the Acting Minister of Finance, upon the disbursements side of the budget, showing a reduction of 46 millions for the year, which of course is an excellent step along the right line. And if his receipts side of the budget shows something about as follows:

Export duty on pulpwood and other forest products at ¼c per lb....	$125,000,000
Export duty on wheat to the U.S. at 30c per bus.	25,000,000
Export duty on nickel and other ores	100,000,000
Export duty on gold quartz, etc.	50,000,000
Export duty on fish	25,000,000
Dif. on Int. on savings bank deposits	50,000,000
Int. on note circulation..	12,000,000
Export duty on sundry other natural resources	25,000,000
Grand total	$412,000,000
Disbursements total	400,000,000
Surplus balance	$ 12,000,000

Ford, McLaughlin and all other autos and trucks made in Canada at fixed prices, and all others prohibited.

Income tax abolished.

Sales tax abolished.

Most other internal taxes abolished.

This would balance the budget nicely by people outside of Canada, who make fabulous wealth from our natural resources, paying our entire taxes. Leaving us a tax free Dominion, to where all peoples would flock in countless numbers, as a mecca for all those the world over who are living on their incomes.

For all those industries people, who would like to enjoy the fruits of their own labor, without paying the greater part of it away in taxes. For all those who enjoying farming, and living close to nature. Surely this would be a balanced budget, that every man, woman and child could unanimously support.—Yours truly,

W. O. SEALEY.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir: There are few more am using and at the same time tragic things than the complete breakdown of the Protestant clergy. That remark does not apply to all but must include ninety per cent. They neglect the inspiration of the Bible, the deity of Christ, the theory of the atonement, the morality of the Old Testament and anything else I.supp that does not suit them. In fact, will not have anything from G man which they do not approve o the worst of it is that they are deter other people must think and do they order and proclaim. There many lay people like these other rulers of the people. The revelation of Scripture may not yet have reached its full condemnation with the laity but the basis of morality and of religion has done so. The remedy for sin in their minds is Force, not forbearance, not persuasion, and above all, not the entire regeneration of men and women through religious belief and turning from their wickedness to live. They think that because they themselves have decided what is best nobody else should be allowed to have a look in or a word to say. This, of course, involves the abandonment of religious teaching and secular education, of churches and colleges. These expensive concerns did not deliver the goods, so they must be discarded, these new reformers say. The policeman is their ideal angel, appearing when necessary and the gaol It must be a mighty clever people that knows enough to decide where perfection trails from and that it is seated in themselves—or a mighty foolish one. but think of the wreck that it is producing, just think what this cave-man doctrine of force-in-reform is doing for the world. It means the enthronement of the ghastly figure of war. It means the revival of the ungovernable hatred by freemen of oppression and dictatorship. It means that when the policeman is withdrawn from their protection these poor creatures of force will beg for help against the very whirlwind which they are now sowing. It is coming, and their bootleg allies can't save them.

Now your readers will ask, "What is the amusing part of it all?" The absolute contempt which scientific men show for them. When scientists see these poor creatures going about proclaiming that science says this and science says that and that, they must building anew upon the new foundations, scientists look at them in amazement. That is the amusing part. The trouble is we all have to pay for the circus whether we want to or not.

DE LA HUERTA FREE TO LEAVE MEXICO

Obregon Not Anxious to Catch and Execute Him Because of Sentiment.

NEW ORLEANS, March 24.—The Obregon Government will afford Adolfo de la Huerta every opportunity to escape from Mexico, it was learned in official Mexican circles here. This decision is said to be based on sentimental reasons.

The rebel chieftain was considered the "boy" in the Obregon-Calles-de la Huerta triumvirate, the Mexican President and his chief adviser, Calles, who are many years his senior, having "brought up" de la Huerta.

Because of this, Obregon is not anxious to apprehend de la Huerta as it would be necessary to execute him. Orders have been issued, it is understood, that the gunboat Bravo is not to touch at Frontera until de la Huerta has escaped.

Mrs. de la Huerta and her two sons arrived here several days ago.

ARMS TRAFFIC PARLEY OPENS

Advocates of Disarmament Drafting Treaty Designed to Meet United States Objections to Direct Control By the League of Nations.

PARIS, March 25. — (Canadian Press). — The League of Nations' efforts to bring about an agreement between all the Powers for the control of private manufacture and traffic in arms and munitions was resumed here yesterday, when Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, representing Great Britain, M. Lebrun, France, and other active advocates of disarmament grappled with the task of drafting a treaty which might be submitted to all the countries to take the place of the St. Germain convention signed along with the Austro - Hungarian peace treaty in 1919.

PASSION.

Passion is the lowest level of human life. None can descend lower. In its chilling swamps and concealing darkness, creep and crawl the creatures of its sunless world. Lust, hatred, covetousness, pride, vanity, greed, revenge, spite, retaliation, slander, back-biting, lying, theft, deceit, treachery, cruelty, suspicion, jealousy—such are the brute forces and blind unreasoning impulses that inhabit the underworld of passion and roam, devouring and devoured, in the rank primeval jungles of the human mind. There also dwell the dark shapes of remorse and pain and suffering, and the drooping forms of grief and sorrow and lamentation.

In this dark world the unwise live and die, not knowing the peace of purity, nor the joy of that Divine Light which forever shines above them, yet shines in vain so long as it falls on unseeing eyes which look not up, but are forever bent earthward—fleshward.

But the wise look up. They are not satisfied with this passion-world, and they bend their steps toward the upper world of peace, the light and glory of which they behold, at first afar off, but nearer and with ever-increasing splendour as they ascend.

None can fall lower than passion, but all can rise higher. In that lowest place, when descent is impossible, all who move forward must ascend; and the ascending pathway is always at hand, near, and easily accessible. It is the way of self-conquest, and he has already entered it who has begun to say "nay" to his selfishness, who has begun to discipline his desires, and to control the unruly elements of his mind.

The inner world of selfishness is rooted in ignorance—ignorance of Divine Law, of Divine Goodness; ignorance of the Pure Way and the Peaceful Path. Passion is dark, and it thrives and flourishes in spiritual darkness. It cannot enter the regions of spiritual light. In the enlightened mind the darkness of ignorance is destroyed; in the pure heart, there is no place for passion.

The first step toward the heights of wisdom and peace is to understand the darkness and misery of selfishness, and when that is understood the overcoming it—the coming out of it—will follow.

The way from passion to peace is not by hurling painful charges against others, but by overcoming one's self. Frequently the man of passion is most eager to put others right; but the man of wisdom puts himself right. If one is anxious to reform the world, let him begin by putting himself right. The reformation of self does not end with the elimination of the sensual elements only; that is its beginning. It ends only when every vain thought and selfish aim is overcome. He only has conquered himself self can subdue others; and he subdues them not by passion but by love. The mental energy which men waste in the pursuance of dark passions is all-sufficient to enable them to reach the highest wisdom when it is turned in the right direction. In conclusion, when ignorance is, wisdom is possible; where passion abounds, peace awaits; where there is much suffering, much bliss is near; sorrow is the negation of joy; sin is the opposite of purity; evil is the denial of good. Where there is an opposite, there is that which is opposed. The adverse evil, in its denial of the good, testifies to its presence. The one thing needful, therefore, is the turning round from the negative to the positive—the transmutation of the passional forces into moral powers.

Railway Employees' Convention Opens at Montreal—Had $18,405 In Wrecked Bank.

MONTREAL, March 25.—(Canadian Press).—Two years' hard pulling against the current of returning normalcy whose general sweep was to bring about a termination of many of the extra advantages won by organized labor during the war times and thereafter, were reviewed in the presidential report of R. J. Tallon, president of Division No. 4 Railway Employees' Department, American Federation of Labor, copies of which were distributed among the 150 delegates attending the opening day's session of the fifth biennial convention of the division held here yesterday.

Mr. Tallon's report declares that "we were never in better shape numerically but our membership is suffering from that general feeling of apathy which prevails in the ranks of labor on this continent."

a VIVID Illustration of the Effectiveness of Snyder's Mothproofing Process

A WOMAN asked this question: "How do you know that the process you use to make Snyder's 'Sani-bilt' Furniture mothproof is positively effective and will keep moths away?"

The answer was, "Because, in repeated tests conducted in leading research laboratories, the process has proved its effectiveness in absolutely mothproofing all materials treated. In addition to these official laboratory tests, we have ourselves made many simple tests that have proved the worthiness of our product."

For instance, we cut a piece of woollen material into two pieces. One piece was treated by the "Sani-bilt" mothproofing process; the other was not. The pieces were put in a bottle. Numerous moth worms were then placed in the bottle. After several months, the container was examined. The untreated piece of cloth was chewed to fragments and the moths had multiplied. But the piece treated with our preparation was absolutely untouched.

The piece of cloth shown on the left above, shows the effect of moths on fabric not treated with our mothproofing solution; the piece of cloth shown on the right above was treated by our process and then exposed to moths and was absolutely untouched by them.

Repeated tests of this kind have proven the "Sani-bilt" process to be mothproof beyond shadow of doubt. That is why we back Snyder's "Sani-bilt" Upholstered Furniture with such a sweeping positive guarantee.

Does Not Alter Fabrics in Appearance or Wearing Qualities

Another wonderful thing about our process is that it does not alter the materials in appearance, feeling, color or durability. It is, furthermore, absolutely odorless. And it is non-poisonous, containing no arsenic or bichloride of mercury. Our process renders wool and animal matter impervious to the attack of moths, without affecting its valuable properties in the slightest degree. Our fillings and coverings are thoroughly treated.

Snyder's "Sani-bilt" Furniture, alone, is treated by this process. Beware, therefore, of other so-called "mothproof" furniture, which is merely seeking to imitate the inimitable "Sani-bilt".

Priced to Suit Your Purse

"Sani-bilt" Upholstered Furniture, guaranteed mothproof, is sold at prices ranging up to where you want to go, according to the quality of material, design, finish, etc. But every piece is solidly built, honestly upholstered with clean, new sanitary fillings and every piece is mothproof inside and out. Our well-known guarantee tag is attached to every genuine "Sani-bilt" Chair and Chesterfield. The "Sani-bilt" trade mark is under every cushion. Make sure they are there before you buy.

WOMEN'S ART ASSOCIATION

A meeting of the Women's Art Association was held in the studio at the Conservatory of Music on Saturday afternoon, when a paper on "Handel," prepared by Mrs. N. D. Seaton, was read by Mrs. Adrian Macdonald, and illustrated by songs given by a pupil of Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, Mr. Standley Willis, who sang in fine voice several numbers from "The Messiah," including the recitative: "Thy Rebuke," and "He was Cut Off," and arias: "Behold and See," and "But Thou Didst Not Leave." At the conclusion of the programme, tea was served by Mrs. R. W. Cormack and Mrs. A. Moir, assisted by the Misses Edith Murphy and Geraldine Glover. The tea table was prettily decorated with daffodils and mauve stocks.

Mrs. F. C. Neal, the president of the society, announced the next musicale, to be held on Saturday afternoon, April 5th, when a paper on "Great Painters and their Pictures," will be given by Cecil Cragg. Mrs. W. McKee Bingham will sing and tea hostesses will be Mrs. G. N. Gordon and Madame Masson.

The announcement was also made that the Little Theatre Club will produce Miss McCarthy's one-act play, "Melange," at the Capitol Theatre on April 7th, 8th and 9th, and the members were asked to support the production by attending.

Mrs. Seaton's paper dealt in interesting fashion with the life and work of the great composer, George Freidrich Handel, born in 1685, at Halle, in Saxony, the son of a well known barber-surgeon, in the days when the profession of surgery was nearly always combined with that of barbering. Handel had great vitality and strength, even as a child, and in manhood attained to the height of six feet one inch, with a weight of nearly two hundred pounds. He was a man of enormous appetite and great vitality.

Handel's father, who was 63 years of age when the child was born, wished him to become a lawyer, but at seven years of age the boy displayed such precocious talent for music that on the advice of friends, the father resolved to give him the proper instruction to develop his budding genius. Young Handel had an excellent appetite for hard work and at the age of 17, was not only well versed in the theoretical and abstract side of music, but could play the organ, the harpsichord and the violin most proficiently. At the same time he was developing character and resourcefulness which stood him in good stead during later years.

For some years Handel acted as conductor and composer for the Hamburg opera, and saved enough money, although, through teaching at that time most musicians received only from nine to 18 shillings a month to go to Italy to study opera. Here he acquired that characteristic which caused his work to be called that of the Italian school. On his return to Germany, he was attached to the court of King George of Hanover, but went later to visit England where he found so much encouragement that he decided to remain. Queen Anne extended her patronage to him and later ,when George of Hanover became King of England, he also established him as court musician.

In the course of his English career, he had many ups and downs, however. "He made and lost many fortunes, won some friends and created many enemies." Besides operas, he composed many works for the piano and organ, for orchestra, and for special occasions. He was imperious in the extreme in his dealings with those who carried out his ideas, and on one occasion he threatened to throw one famous prima donna from a third story window.

It was not until after his fiftieth year that he began to compose the oratorios which were destined to make his name. He experimented first with "Esther" and "Deborah," eventually making his great masterpiece in "The Messiah," which he completed within three weeks' time. Handel had the habit of boldly taking any tune suiting his purpose and using it without giving the composer credit for it. The late Sir Frederick Brydge said of him that "he was the most genial old musical pirate that ever lived, knowing no appreciable difference between mine and thine. Of course we must acknowledge that Handel treated his booty well, changing it and beautifying it, and thus making it his own."

Although Handel and his contemporary Bach lived not far from each other, they never met. Bach was twice married, and had an enormous family, living and dying in poverty. Handel never married, although he narrowly escaped twice, and died leaving a comfortable fortune, bequeathing it mainly to charity, and for the furtherance of the great cause of music. Bach was mild and retiring, and Handel quite the opposite, although when he became blind, as did Bach also in his later years, he was fortitude itself. Handel, through his sweeping and bold method in music, has been likened to a landscape painter of music in contrast to Bach, who might be considered a painter of minatures, in the polished, finished quality of his music.

Samuel Butler said of Handel: "He was a greater man than Homer, at least equal to Shakespeare, and much superior to Bach." Although we may not agree with that, we at least know that he was a giant. Sir Arthur Sullivan always spoke of him as "Father Handel, who led the way for them all." He was a man who took time from his busy days to write long and kindly letters to his family and friends. "He gave us a school of oratorio just as truly English as the literature of the Elizabethan era of that peculiar pointed arch which typifies Early English architecture. He is easily the greatest musical glory of his adopted land and when he died at the age of 74 he justly deserved his resting place in Westminster Abbey among England's immortal sons."

CHOIR CONCERT

The third annual choir concert since Mr. V. Boorman took charge of the organ and choir, was given in Mark Street Methodist Church last evening, with a good attendance. A choir of over thirty voices rendered several pleasing selections, in a manner that reflected great credit on their energetic conductor. The programme commenced with prayer by Rev. R. Bamforth, after which the choir in excellent voice, and with careful attention to phrasing, rendered "Praise Ye the Father." Other choir numbers were "The Crusaders' Return," a full-voiced number, and the finale, "Good Night, Beloved." A Ladies' Chorus sang "Evening Chimes."

Vocal solos by the Misses F. Stenton, I. Black, B. Cain, B. Patyon and Mr. James Browne, were much enjoyed, and received heasty encores, which were accorded also the other numbers on the programme, including several well-played trombone selections, by Mr. A. Thorpe, accompanied by Mr. E. Smith; a violin solo by Mr. D. Eldred, a pianoforte number by Mr. E. Smith and readings by Miss M. Reynolds and Miss A. Throope. Accompaniments for the vocal numbers were played by Mr. George H. King.

At the conclusion of the programme, the ladies of the church entertained the choir and assisting artists at supper, during which speeches of congratulations were extended to Mr. Boorman by Mr. Geo. Leader, who acted as chairman for the occasion, and Mr. G. H. King, and Mr. Boorman expressed his thanks for the assistance afforded him by those helping in the programme, and particularly to Mr. King for his kind cooperation.

GROOMING.

At an Ohio college recently, it was reported that sophomore men had decided not to shave during examination week, and women students not to use cosmetics. The idea being, that they could concentrate better if they didn't devote any mental effort to beauty.

Now, that might be all right theoretically with a Hindu hermit delving into mysticism. We can't vouch for women and the personal effect they get from beautifying.

But we believe that a shave and a haircut, in addition to stimulating self-respect, also stimulate the processes of the brain. That's where our last dollar would go, if "broke."

GASOLINE.

Nearly a billion gallons of gasoline in storage, here in the United States. An enormous figure. But Americans are using that much "gas" every 60 days.

Production still exceeds consumption by about 100 million gallons a month. That should act as a brake on prices for some time.

BIRTHS.

The best news from France in many a moon is word that births have been exceeding deaths at the rate of over 100,000 a year. Not a big increase in population, as we reckon things in America. But it's important in France, where the chief fear is a growing population in Germany and a shrinkage in France. The cradle situation over there is the real key to politics between the two countries.

FUTILE

Sing Sing has a prisoner, serving a life sentence, who has a fortune of about $160,000. Like the man all dressed up and no place to go.

However, the money does this "lifer" about as much good as in the case of the average person of great wealth after their riches pass a certain point. When wealth exceeds $300,000, it begins to be a nuisance. At least, we imagine so—never having had the money to try out the theory.

MOTHER

The mother of the baby that weighed 22 pounds at birth is 46 years old. She already had had 10 children. In all, 11.

Almost a marvel, that figure, in our generation. Turn back in a family album and you find that the mother of 11 in former times was not exceptional enough to attract any attention.

There'd be just as big average families now, if parents had the money. High cost of living is the real reason for race suicide.

Farmers Still Crossing the Lake —Young People Held a Meeting.

BAILIEBORO, March 25.— The South Monaghan U.F.Y.P.O. Club held a St. Patrick's social evening in their hall at their regular fortnightly meeting, on Friday evening last.

Considering the bad roads, there was a splendid crowd present, and several new members were enrolled.

The business of the meeting took up considerable time, after which two contests were enjoyed. The first was a car contest, Miss Rose Kidd and Charlotte Barnard tied for first place, the latter winning the draw, while Mr. Jno. Kinsmen won the men's prize. Miss Kathleen Isbister and Mr. H .Campbell won the consolation prizes.

The next event was a musical contest ,composed of Irish songs. Miss Grace Johnston and Mr. Wilfrid Johnston also added to the programme by rendering several piano and violin duets.

Lunch was served by the programme committee, and afterwards the young folks enjoyed themselves in card playing and dancing. The music for dancing was provided by Miss K. Isbister, Misses C. and L. Barnard and W. Johnston.

Drive Across Lake.

Travel continued on Rice Lake up until Saturday last. The ice on Friday began to get very white looking and the cracks that had been visible during the beginning of the winter, begin to show up very prominently again. Still the farmers continue to haul their logs and lumber to and from the saw mill. Several cars were also noticed last week travelling at a swift speed down the lake.

Syrup Season Poor.

The maple syrup season so far this spring has been very poor. A lot of trees have been tapped in this district and some of the maple syrup men state that it looks as though there might not be very much syrup made this spring, as there seems to be very little frost in either the trees or the ground.

The fall wheat and clover are looking the best this spring that they have looked for years. They have wintered well and were well covered with snow during the entire winter. Strong hopes are held by the farmers for a big crop again this season.

THE CHURCH UNION BILL

An invitation to those people in Peterborough who are opposed to the passing of the Church Union Bill now before the Ontario Legislature to attend a meeting of the Private Bills Committee of the Ontario Legislaure in Toronto on Wednesday and Thursday of this week was received in the city yesterday from Rev. J. W. Macnamara, the secretary of the Presbyterian Church Association. The case for and against Church Union will be argued on both days, the case for the anti-unionists being presented Thursday morning. An effort is being made to have anti-Unionists from all parts of the Province present. It is proposed to lay before the committee the results of votes on Church Union that have been taken in Presbyterian Churches during the past few months.

The knowledge that the Church Union Bills are now before Parliament and may be passed appears to be arousing those who have been opposed to Church Union, but who in many cases have not taken an active stand in the matter and leading them to assert their opposition. It is stated that within the past few weeks requests have been received from approximately 150 Presbyterian Churches for speakers to discuss the Church Union question. As the result of a canvass of the Anti-Union sentiment of St. Paul's Church, Peterborough, which has been made during the past few days, there is reason to believe that St. Paul's congregation which voted in favour of Church Union in 1915, is opposed to it to-day as a large number of cards expressing opposition to church union have been signed and sent in and a considerable number of additional signatures are yet to be sent in. Approximately 95% of the signatures are from adults. The cards thus signed are being sent to the Presbyterian Church Association where they are tabulated and will be used to demonstrate to the members of the Legislature, and later of the House of Commons, the great increase in Anti-Union sentiment. Thousands of such cards are being sent in from all over Canada. About 2,000 were sent in to the Nova Scotia Legislature on one day this week. They ask for a revote on Church Union.

TOWN NOT RESPONSIBLE BECAUSE OF ICY STREET.

TORONTO, March 25.—(Canadian Press).—Mr. Justice Orde has dismissed the action brought by Mrs. Roena L. Cockers, wife of the manager of the Bell Telephone Co. at Belleville, to recover $2,000 damages from that city for a broken wrist sustained through a fall on an icy sidewalk a year ago. The judgment holds that the failure of the town to sand all its miles of sidewalks within a five-day period is not such "gross negligence as would render the municipality liable."

English Author Doesn't Fancy Our Language.

LOS ANGELES, March 25. — (United Press).—The race is growing up to be one-syllable conversationalists, warns Pierce Lawton, writer, of London and Paris, seeking diversion in California. Lawton declares that progress in literary pursuits in America cannot survive unless the "studied carelessness" present in American writings is eliminated.

What he means is something like this, a common conversation among flappers:

"Hello, this you Claudia? It's Pearl on this end of the wire. Lissen, hon, I've got an act on with a dashing Bolivar this P.M., and there's nary a shouting garment in my whole wardrobe. What's the chance to put you on the cuff for a stepping-out front this eve?"

A new language? No, a telephone conversation between one young lady to another in which Pearl is informing her friend Claudia that she has an evening engagement with a handsome young man, is caught short of the proper dress and wants to borrow some clothes for the occasion.

"While it is true that the American press is without doubt the greatest in the world so far as ingenuity and power is concerned," Lawton said, "it is equally true that many of your revolutionary newspapers exert a destructive influence over readers.

"I have noticed while touring the United States that many of these newspapers actually make it a policy to present their reading matter in plain, "public highway" English, that is to say, they attempt to construct their phaseology so that the moron may understand thoroughly every phrase of it." Lawton said.

"While this may be what you Americans call 'good business,' it certainly will tend to drag down the advance this country has made along literary lines."

G. B. BOUCHER ELECTED PRESIDENT OF CURLERS

Succeeds W. J. Oke at the Close of Highly Successful Season--R. F. Downey Is Vice-President and J. T. Howden and G. H. Duncan New Members of Executive Committee.

Walter Oke's presidency of the Curling Club terminated with the annual meeting last night, and as he moved up to the honorary position and joined the galaxy of past presidents, he handed the gavel to George B. Boucher, who was elected in a contest with R. F. Downey.

The Club closed the season with an increment in the treasury, the balance as reported by John W. Mayneord, secretary-treasurer, being $313.50 as compared with $236.92. And on the financial side W. D. Campbell reported $244.58 to the credit of the open bonspiel committee.

Last night's meeting was largely attended, and was marked by a pleasing innovation at the close with the serving of refreshments by the Ladies' Club in the "roof garden refectory." The concluding discussion devoted to general business brought out several suggestions for the scheduled games next season, involving a recommendation for a change in the method of selecting the Tankard and District Cup rinks.

The inter-rink games of the departed winter were reviewed in the customary felicities attaching to the presentation of prizes to the successful rinks, the burden of the speeches emphasizing the consensus of satisfaction with the winters' sport and with the flourishing condition of the club and the game itself in Peterborough.

The New Officers.

The officers elected were as follows:

Hon. President—W. J. Oke.
President—G. B. Boucher.
Vice-Pres.—R. F. Downey.
Management committee — Ira D. Moore, G. Copping, J. J. Howden and G. H. Duncan.
Sec.-Treas.—J. W. Mayneord.
Auditor—C. H. Pennefather.
Delegate to O.C.A.—W. G. Morrow, with A. C. Kay, alternate.
Open Bonspiel committee, re-elected by acclamation: W. G. Morrow, convenor, R. Hicks, H. F. Foote, J. W. McDermid, W. D. Campbell and G. B. Boucher.
Umpire—Angus McIntosh.

The Prize Winners.

The prize winning rinks were:

For the scheduled games—

First prize, the Jas. Kendry Cup and silver candle sticks presented by John Brightman to Skip Harry Foote's rink, composed of J. E. A. Fitzgerald, vice-skip, J. W. Richmond, second and F. J. Overend lead.

The second prizes, boudoir lamps, were won by Dr. H. D. Langford, Ben Stacey, J. R. Marshall and W. R. Widdess, skip, and were presented by E. S. Martin.

R. G. Sturgeon's rink won the third prizes, pyrex casseroles, presented by R. M. Hamilton, as follows: W. R. Cormack, Geo. Gimblett, J. Wiley and R .G. Sturgeon.

The Peterborough Cup, which Ross Dobbin salvaged from the open bonspiel, was presented with the individual prizes of military brushes, by W. D. Campbell in a humorous speech that recalled some of the incidents of the mid-winter tournament. The recipients were J. H. Connal, H. F. Foote, R. P. Best and R. L. Dobbin, skip.

The Vice-Skips' bonspiel was won by J. Sedgwick's rink, composed of J. N. Bacon, vice-skip, Jas. MacDonald, second and R. Mackey lead. The E. G. Patterson trophy and the individual prizes of twelve sherbet glasses to each of the four winners were presented by W. R. Widdess.

Felix Brownscombe conveyed the club's congratulations to the runners up, R. Haddow, H. K. Clifton, A. C. Kay and C. R. Larmer, skip, each of whom received a steel fishing rod.

Thanks to G. N. Gordon.

A resolution of thanks was extended to G. N. Gordon for the gift of a silver trophy for the junior club whose first annual meeting is called for Wednesday night.

W. J. Oke's motion, seconded by R. Hicks, by which the Peterborough curlers become affiliated with the Royal Caledonian Curling Club of Scotland was unanimously adopted.

J. W. Fraser gave notice of a motion for the appointment at the next regular meeting of a committee to revise the constitution and by-laws of the club.

The Tankard Question.

Gray Copping directed the discussion to the scheduled games with a proposal that the rinks be divided into four groups, instead of three as last season, and that one of these groups be comprised of four rinks of Tankard contestants and four for the District Cup competition. Mr. Copping contended that this arrangement would, by a series of elimination games, produce two Tankard rinks and two District Cup with the probability of developing strong fours to represent Peterborough in the provincial competition.

J. H. Connal's plan was somewhat similar and was likewise predicated on the general desire to evolve a scheme that would redeem the club in the big matches. If four rinks were selected by a committee and played aaginst each other with the committee as judges the best players from that company could be reduced to two Tankard cup contenders. The same plan applied to the District Cup rinks.

Mr. Kay quoted the constitution which empowered the Tankard and District Cup skips, appointed by the skips of the club, to fill up their respective rinks.

Mr. Connal pressed his request that some departure from the prescribed and established order be attemtped in the hope that the Peterborough Club might win the Tankard. He emended his motion and his recommendation that the skips of the club endeavour to put his scheme into effect was adopted. J. E. A. Fitzgerald seconded the motion.

HEART WAS SO BAD HAD TO SIT UP IN B_D

Mrs. O. E. Fitzgerald, 106 Ross St., St. Thomas, Ont., writes:—"In the Fall of 1921, I was taken ill with my heart, but I did not pay much attention to it. I kept on with my household duties, but seemed to become worse and worse, and finally had to call in a doctor. He said I was all run down and was a nervous wreck. I had a severe pain in my chest which would move over to my heart and it became so bad I could not lie down, as when I did I had such a smothering feeling I would have to sit up in bed till it passed away.

I tried several remedies, but with no good results. Finally, I was induced to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I took 7 boxes, and I am now as well as I was 30 years ago, and I am now 65 years old."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box at all druggists or dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CAMPBELLFORD INTO SOCCER

They Will Play in Cup-Tie and Exhibition Games.

SOCCER NOTES.

During the past few weeks many communications have been received from Campbellford and last evening the P. and D. F. A. gave a hearty welcome to Mr. M. H. Sergeant, a representative from Campbellford, who reported that soccer was making progress in that district.

He intimated that they have from 18 to 20 experienced players, and all are very anxious to develop soccer.

The executive decided to admit Campbellford into the cup tie games, and arrange exhibition games, but find it impossible to let them participate in schedule games at present.

The following members were appointed: Messrs. Anderson, Whatley and Sutcliffe, to get together, so as to assist the new club in every way.

On Thursday evening, the Campbellford club are holding an organization meeting when all the details will be discussed with the representative sent to Peterboro to get information necessary so as to become affiliated.

All the first round cup tie games wil be played in the first half of the League Schedule, and it was suggested that a five-aside tournament be started which will include Senior, Junior and School boys.

The Thistle F. C. will hold a practice game on Saturday afternoon at King Edward Park.

Mr. Harry Mann, who was suspended last year by the executive, apologized to the association for his conduct and was immediately reinstated into football for the coming season.

The Association desire that all referees or prospective referees send in their applications on or before the 7th days of April. Old referees will not have to be examined, but new applicants will have to be examined according to the C.F.A.

A number of soccer players were out practicing on Saturday afternoon last at King Edward Park and report that the ground was in good condition.

According to the reports on "signing up" players, a great number of last year's footballers will have changed their quarters. Wait and see! Canadian Woollens have 15 players signed; the Thistles 13; Vets 10 or more, and Quakers making progress with their signing up. In fact, great excitement prevailed when one representative asked for 8 more forms—twenty-six altogether.

ANNUAL MEETING OF LAKEFIELD CURLERS.

Last Game of the Season Was Played on Thursday Evening.

LAKEFIELD,D March 25.—The Curlers enjoyed what is likely the last game of the season on Thursday night and judging from the sounds which came from the rink, it was as keen a game as any of the season. the ice was in fair shape and game was a good one. As the schedule games, bonspiels. President and Vice President games are all past there have been some very good games played between picked rinks.

The Council and School Board played last week a game which aroused keen interest. It resulted in the score of 14-9 in favor of the learned gentlemen of the Board of Education

A notice was posted on the bulletin board of the Curlers' Room stating that a rink of Irishmen were challenging a rink of foreigners to a game. Evidently the Irishmen were too strong as no one took up the challenge.

The annual meeting of the Curling Club will be held in the rooms over Leonard's store on Thursday evening of this week at 8 o'clock. The election of officers, presentation of prizes and other business will occupy the evening. It is particularly important that every member should

PETERBOROUGH TO ENTER TEAM IN CENTRAL ONTARIO JUNIOR LOOP

Belleville, Oshawa and Peterboro Strongly in Favor of This Three Group League, Consisting of Twelve or Sixteen Teams From Surrounding District.

The Central Ontario Junior series that was talked of last fall has been considered by a number of surrounding towns and it is most likely that this scheme will be carried out. By this means the younger players will be brought along much faster than in the City League when they are facing the same pitchers most of the time. The expenses of this league would be very small as all the trips to the surrounding towns could be made by car, which is very cheap compared with travelling by train. The expense of a trip from here to Cobourg or Port Hope would not cost more than $30 which would be covered easily by the gate receipts. Peterboro, Belleville and Oshawa are strong in favor of this series and it is most sure that the league will be formed. If so the team representing Peterboro will be the Lakeviews, Junior Ontario Champions of 1923. There are some of these boys ready to make the jump to senior ball but they are going to stick together for another season and go out and endeavor to win the championship once more. In addition to last year's team they have several other players to pick from who will strengthen some of their weaker spots.

Belleville has already formed two groups in this loop. These two groups consist of four teams, one each from the following places, Belleville, Trenton, Napanee and Picton, the other is comprised of Marmora, Stirling, Tweed and Madoc. While Peterboro and Oshawa are trying to form a six team group consisting of Oshawa, Port Hope, Lindsay, Cobourg, Bowmanville and Peterboro. The winner of each group to play off and the winner of these to go into the O.B.A.A. finals. This is no doubt a great idea and it is hoped that it is carried out. If this league is a success a great number of the players taking part in it will be seen with some of the higher teams next season. Peterboro was figuring on having six teams in this group but since the Lindsay Greybirds have taken to Intermediate ball it is not likely that Lindsay will enter a team. Port Hope is also doubted but it is hoped that they will enter a team and help make up the group.

Central League Gossip

OSHAWA, March 25.—Manager Daly of the Kingston Central Ontario League team has sent out an S.O.S. call for ball players to come out and try for a place "only those who make good, with no favorites hanging to the ropes, will get berths in the senior inter-city league team."

E. R. Bates who worked behind the plate for Bowmanville in the Central Ontario League the last two seasons is back in his home town of Lindsay and will likely be doing duty for the Scugog town in the Tri-County Intermediate league this summer.

Danny McPhee, the left hander who worked for St. Thomas in the Southern Ontario League of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association series and turned pro to go with the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League, did not get away to a good start in his first game in the per month class. After his opposition had chased across six runs on three hits and as many walks he was given the gate. Manager Robinson expressed himself as confident that the St. Thomas boy with a little experience in big company would make good as he has much natural ability.

Lol Mingeaud who last year lined up with Bowmanville has attached his John Henry to a Osler certificate and Manager Hamilton expects to make on of the best third corner boys in the Hampden Park league of Toronto out of the elongated ex-Central leaguer.

Jack Evans who did the receiving for Oshawa two years ago and worked the same place for Kingston last year, is reported as going to Ottawa in connection with his medical studies.

Secretary Frank G. Chester of the Oshawa team believes in getting an early start and has asked the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada to forward blanks for the application of amateur cards. This would be a good move on the part of other teams, as it will save a lot of time and worry just before the season opens.

"Billy" Snyder, of Hamilton, will likely be elected to the President's chair of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association by acclamation at the annual meeting in Toronto, on Saturday, April 5th, and he merits the compliment, as having worked from the bottom up, and proven himself a capable officer.

Rumor has it that Morley P. Duff, President of the Central Ontario Baseball League has received the honorary appointment as a representative of the A.A.U. of C. in Eastern Ontario.

The time for all amendments to the constitution and nominations for the different offices of the Ontario Baseball Association expired on Saturday last and the Secretary of the local league forwarded the annual contribution for changing the residence rule "from January 1st to March 17st" and along with it was the nomination of J.J. Solomon, of Peterboro for first Vice-President.

According to Secretary Mark Dulmage of the O.B.A.A., who is now residing in Owen Sound, the following nominations for O.B.A.A. offices had been received when the time closed for receiving same: J. J. Solomon, of Peterboro for first vice-president; executive members, J. Turner, Toronto; George S. Martin, London; Charles R. Penfeld, Guelph.

Oshawa is to open the ball season on Saturday, May the 10th, in exhibition game with the Strollers of Toronto, the team which will carry three or four of last year's Leaside team. This will be a good opportunity for the motor town management to look over some of its rookies.

The latest in baseball gssip is that R. O. Patten the right hander who worked for Oshawa in 1919-20-21-2-223 and left for Pittsburg has located in Western Ontario.

CITY TEN PIN LEAGUE

Last night at Solomn's Alleys the C.P.C. took three straight from the High Rollers in the first game of the new City Ten Pin League.

Big league rolling featured this meeting, eight men rolling well over the 500 hundred mark. This is great rolling for ten pins. Dedman was the high man of the evening with a beautiful score of 617, and average of over 200 a game. Firth was next in line with another nice score of 587. Hayes was next with 547. Dedman had the high single of 235.

TIE FOR BLIND SCORE

There were over 37 bowlers last night rolling for the blind score prize for the Mercantile League. Some of the scores were close, most of them within one or two pins of the 150, but the honor of rolling the even 150 goes to Geo. Cairns and H. Ballard. Both these bowlers rolled 150 even. Cairns bowls for the Examiner and Ballard for the Nashua Paper.

TORONTO TEAM HERE ON FRIDAY.

A crack ten pin team from Toronto will be here Friday to play Geo. Dedman's all-star aggregation at Solomon's Alleys. The Peterboro team will be composed of five of the best ten pin bowlers in the city and will be picked personally by Mr. Dedman. A great game is assured and the bowling fans will likely turn out in large numbers to witness this fixture.

BIG GAME TONIGHT!

The play-off for the championship of the Mercantile Five Pin League takes place tonight betweer the Bell Telephone and the Examiner. This game is for the championship of the Mercantile League and the winner besides getting the valuable prizes which are given also takes possessions of the Gordon Cup. This cup was donated last year by Mr. G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., and is now held by the Westclox who were the winners last year. The Westclox defeated the Post Office two out of three last year to gain possesion of the cup.

Tonight's game should be the best game of the Mercantile League. Both teams will be at full strength for tonight's big battle. The Bell Telephone will bowl the strongest team from their office, selecting five of the strongest men that has bowled in their league. The Examiner will also pick the five strongest men from their league to send in action against the Bell Telephone. It might be stated that this is the first time since the second half began that the Examiner will send their regular outfit into action.

A great crowd of fans will be out to-night to see the greatest battle of the season in five pins.

CITY LEAGUE MEETING ON HURSDAY NIGHT

The City League has not yet been decided upon but there will be a meeting on Thursday night in the Holy Name Rooms to elect officers and see what will be done for the coming season which promises to be a good one for baseball in this city. There is plenty of material in the city for several Juvenile, Midget and Bantam teams and the Maple Leafs will be back again with a more strengthened team than last season. The Sacred Heart team who last year played Juvenile were going to make the jump to junior this year but if the Junior Central Ontario League is formed it is not likely there will be any Junior City League and the Sacred Heart may drop back to juvenile again.

As a special honor to the region of Tuscany, Premier Mussolini recently selected war-maimed former soldiers as candidates for the House of Deputies in Tuscany, Italy.

OFFER DEMPSEY BIG CONTRACTS

Carl Laemmle Dangles Million For a Motion Picture and Two Championship Bids Also Held Out.

NEW YORK, March 25 (Canadian Press). — Jack Dempsey has a million dollar motion picture offer and two championship fight bids from which to select in mapping out his 1924 programme of action.

This was disclosed yesterday by the heavyweight titleholder's manager, Jack Kearns, who said he would leave to-day for Los Angeles for a final conference with motion picture interests and also with James J. Coffroth, California promoter, who has renewed his bid to Dempsey for a title bout with Harry Wills at Tia Juana, Mexico, in September.

The motion picture offer came from Carl Laemmle, head of a large producing company, Kearns said.

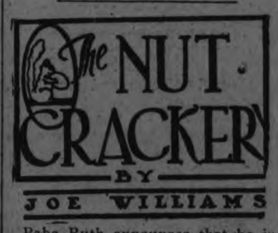
The other fight bid was made by Tex Rickard for a title match in or near New York in September, with the "best available contender."

Rickard intimated he preferred to stage a return bout between Dempsey and Luis Firpo, but if the Argentine held to his present intention to retire, the promoter would seek an opponent from other contenders, including Wills, Jack Renault, Quinti Romero-Rojas of Chili, and Erminio Spalla, European heavyweight champion.

Rojas and Spalla both are on their way to the United States to fight under Rickard's direction.

Kearns declared he had given no definite answer to any of these propositions, but expressed a hope that he could combine the screen offer with one of the fight proposals, adding that he would not sacrifice Dempsey's fistic activity this year for movie work if he could avoid it.

The offers of both Rickard and Coffroth, it was understood, involved in excess of $500,000 for Dempsey, so that by accepting one of these and a movie contract, the champion's 1924 earnings would approximate a million and a half, more than he has made from all of his ring engagements since becoming titleholder.



Babe Ruth announces that he intends to cut the scientific stuff in his batting. Interesting, since no one ever accused Babe of straining the gray matter.

Pitch high and inside to stop Ruth, says Speaker. Low and outside, says John McGraw. Intelligent pitching will stop him, opines George Sisler. Just pitch, but be sure to duck, says One Punch O'Goofty, the traveling expert.

Base running due for a revival, is the word from all southern training camps. Base running is to be the deciding factor, say the managers. Which brings us back to the old baseball, truth, you can't steal first base.

The Irish who celebrated on St. Patrick's Day because of Jack Delaney's victory over Paul Berlenbach are due for a rude awakening. Delaney's real name is Chapdelaine.

Firpo says he intends to retire from the ring. Itt might be added, not until the U.S. mint quits turning out real dollars. Firpo has a tighter grip than Harry Lauder.

Farmer Lodge, who went to South America to assume a horizontal position in his bout with Firpo, is back in the states. He says, 'I'm not yellow and I'm not kicking, but I've learned it's a good idea for American fighters to do their fighting in America." It also might be a good idea for farmers to stick to farming.

Pitcher Luque has finally reported to the Cincinnati team at Orlando, Fla. Cincinnati headline says team is now ready to start the season. That may cause Eddie Roush to ask for more salary.

News item says Babe Ruth lost $1000 bill at New Orleans the other day while on the way to the bank to send Mrs. Ruth four times that much. The same day Black Gold won the Louisiana Derby and Babe didn't pick him. "Attention of Mrs. Ruth.

Pure "hokum", says Jack Dempsey with references to Firpo's retirement. 'Being in the same business and having retired himself, Jack is certainly competent to pass an opinion.

Since all our star athletes are also literary men it looks like out Olympic team would be largely made up of substitutes if the rule against writer-athletes is enforced. Possibly several typewriter events can be schedule for the stars.

CALGARY HOPE TO TIE ROUND

Fast Ice In Ottawa To-Night Will Be to Their Liking, the Westerners Declare — Meighen to Face Puck.

OTTAWA, March 25 (Canadian Press). — For the professional hockey championship of the world and the Stanley Cup, the Montreal and Calgary teams will meet here to-night at the Auditorium.

The Calgary Tigers under the command of Manager Lloyd Turner, reached the Capital on Sunday and held a practice late yesterday afternoon.

Perfect ice conditions are promised. Art Ross of Montreal will officiate and as a compliment to the Prairie League players Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Opposition, who formerly represented Portage La Prairie, a Western constituency, will face the puck.

It is likely that their Excellencies Lord and Lady Byng will also attend, as well as Hon. Dr. S. F. Tolmie of Victoria, and several other prominent Westerners.

The Calgary Tigers made a good showing at their practice, and will no doubt give the Canadiens a battle royal.

"We didn't get a break in the match at Montreal," said Lloyd Turner. "They got the first goal on a fluke and then added several others. Give us a fast sheet of ice, and we will tie up the series."

Turner is very optimistic, and he states that Calgary will win the round and take the battered mug West.

Dandurand telegraphed that his team is in the best of shape, and expects to make it two straight to-night.

OWEN SOUND LOST GAME--WON ROUND

Kenora Juniors Put Them Down 5 to 4 Last Night—Round Was Won 15 to 12.

KENORA, Ont., March 25.—(Canadian Press.)—Though Kenora juniors defeated Owen Sound here last night by 5 to 4, the lads from the shores of the Georgian Bay won the O.H.A. Memorial Cup semi-final round by 15 to 12. The locals showed real improvement in form and battled all the bitter way to overcome the visitors' four goal lead, but the task was too great and the plucky lads could do no better than win the game despite their herculean efforts. Unlike the first game of the round, when Owen Sound dominated the play, the locals took the upper hand and battered away at the Owen Sound citadel with a courage born of desperation. Goaler Smith, for the invaders, was the determining barrier in the game and his excellent performance turned Kenora back time after time. He stopped 21 shots while Ferguson at the other end turned aside 18. Owen Sound played a more or less defensive game and their six man defence worked to perfection. Keeling opened the scoring for Owen Sound with his team's only counter in the first period, while Bird and Pittman tallied for Kenora in that session. Weiland and Graham were the visitors' successful marksmen in the second session and Sanderson counted two for the locals. Wright and Pittman each scored one in the last chapter.

WESTERN ORANGES GROW WELL IN LATITUDE OF PHILADELPHIA

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25.—(Associated Press). — "Farthest north" for the commercial production of oranges in the United States is at Orland, Glenn county, California, 200 miles north of San Francisco and at virtually the latitude of Philadelphia, according to figures on the production of citrus fruits in America.

In this district, just south of the fortieth parallel, the first of California's orange crop is harvested. In the Oroville orange district, 20 miles south of Orland, the oranges are harvested each year early in November, at just about the beginning of real winter in the territory beginning east of the Sierra Nevada mountains and ending at Philadelphia.

HOCKEY STICKS LAID AWAY IN MOTH BALLS

Lakefield Would Like to See More Interest In Baseball.

LAKEFIELD, March 25—Hardly has the hockey stick been put by in moth balls or whatever hockey sticks are stood in for the season, than the call of baseball is in the air. A meeting to re-organize the baseball club will be held shortly and it is expected that an effort will be made to rouse greater local interest in baseball this season.

Lakefield has always taken a keen interest in hockey and there is always a crowd at a hockey match whereas a crowd at a baseball game in the village has become a rarity. Probably the motor car accounts for this as it is an easy matter to drive into Peterboro and see a big game at least once a week and once the taste for big games comes there is less interest in the smaller games. However we all must admit the value of small games and of local sport. While one may see better baseball in big league games there is nothing quite like running the boys in the team by name.

About eleven or twelve years ago there was a local baseball league in the village which aroused keen interest and drew large crowds. The trophy was a handsome silver cup and it was contested keenly. Teams which entered included the Canada Cement Co., High School, Clerks, Odd Fellows and Cavendish Lumber Co. Could the interest in local baseball be revived by a local league?

JAPAN WILL MAKE THREATS OF CONDEMNED BATTLESHIPS

TOKIO, March 25.—(Associated Press).—Hulks of the battle craft condemned in consequence of the Washington naval treaty will be used as objects for target practice. The old battleship Iwami will be a target in April for a new triplane bomber recently completed by the navy. Two-thousand pound bombs will be used.

A few weeks later the battleships Aki and Satsuma, on which the first stages of scrapping has been completed, will be used to test the effectiveness of the 16-inch guns of the superdreadnonghts Nagota and Mutsu.

EAST MEETS WEST IN THE FINAL TILT

Greyhounds and Greys Have Brilliant Season Behind and Only Finals With Westerners Before Them.

TORONTO, March 25. — (Canadian Press.)—There may be nothing in nicknames, but in stories that have been flashed across the wires of the Greyhounds and Greys have been linked in a steady upward climb to two championships.

From the obscurity of a group campaign the teams from the Soo and Owen Sound flashed out into group and league play-offs, displaying a brilliancy that commanded attention. One by one they dropped their opponents along the wayside until now they stand just two games from the Dominion titles. The history written in their fights for places in the sun has welded the sentiment of the east into a solid background of faith and encouragement which will stand whole-heartedly behind them when they enter the lists in the final grim struggles with the champions of the west.

Until last night the allegiance of the east was divided. To-day the east has united and with the faithful fans of the Soo and Owen Sound stands ready to face a common foe, the best that can be produced from the Pacific Coast to the Ontario boundary.

The Greyhounds of the north will meet Selkirks of Manitoba, on Toronto ice on March 27 and 29 to battle for the Allan Cup, emblematic of the Senior Hockey Championship.

"Steamer" Maxwell, coach of the famous Falcons, Olympic champions in 1920, has been recommended by the west as its official for the final tilt, while Mike Rodden of Toronto, will probably be the eastern man to handle the bell in the series.

Owen Sound disposed of Kenora on their brief stop over on the way to Winnipeg, where they will meet Calgary Canadians in the final series for the O.H.A. Memorial Cup, which goes to the winner of the Junior Championship of the Dominion.

WILL EXHIBIT DRAW ONE FOURTH OF POPULATION

Up to date, 3,742 of the citizens of Peterboro and vicinity have visited the Social Hygiene exhibit. The impression from seeing the scientific but simple truths brought out in the exhibit, and the fact that right living and healthy living will be the only corrective force to combat this public health menace, should assist a large number of Peterboro's most thoughtful citizens in paving the way towards making Peterboro an ideal community to live in.

During the afternoon yesterday, Miss Edna Moore, whose services with her film, "The Gift of Life," have been loaned to the Peterboro Social Hygiene Council after showing the film, spoke to the many mothers present on the danger of infection especially to their little children of the school age. She told some most interesting stories gathered from her varied experience not only from visiting the Provincial Clinics throughout Ontario, but from talking to the mothers of children. Her address was probably one of the most effective given during the exhibit, dealing as it did with a most practical side of the problem, which every mother present could help correct.

Mrs. Pankhurst spoke both afternoon and evening, and is deeply impressed with the splendid attendance at the exhibit and the interest local citizens are manifesting by joining the Local Council here to help carry on this educational propaganda.

Mrs. W. R. Morris spoke during the evening of the work that might be accomplished by Peterboro citizens and urged each right living and progressive citizen in Peterboro to assist in this work.

Women have come in from the rural routes, driven over the very bad roads, and walked long distances in to the cars to attend this exhibit, and have returned only to send in the other members of their family that they might be properly instructed along these lines. It is an opportunity that is most valuable to all mothers who are anxious that their children get the best information. Doctors and nurses are in attendance at each showing and have given most willingly of their time and efforts to explain the problem and assist in giving any information desired.

To-night is the last chance that women will have to see the exhibit and hear Mrs. Pankhurst. Miss Moore is returning to Toronto after showing the film to-night.

Men will have another chance to get in to the exhibit to-morrow and Thursday, when it will be open from 2.30 to 6 and from 7 to 9. There will be a new film shown to men this week, so that many of the men attending last week may have an opportunity of seeing another film which deals with the beginning of life.

Adjutant Smith of the Salvation Army will be the special speaker at the exhibit on Wednesday evening at eight o'clock. Help Peterboro go over the top with the exhibit and it is fully expected that by Thursday night, when the exhibit will close, to be dismantled and returned to the Canadian Social Hygiene Council in Toronto, the attendance will have reached 5,000.

FINAL MEETINGS CONFERENCE HERE

Mass Meeting for Young People Last Evening

The concluding session of the World Missions Conference took the form last evening of a mass meeting of young people, which filled St. Paul's church to capacity. Capt. T. F. Best, Y.M.C.A., Toronto, acted as chairman, and brief addresses on "The World Call" were given, voicing the "Call of India," by Dr. J. M. Waters, of the Presbyterian field in Central India; the "Call of China," by Rev. S. Soper, of the West China Methodist missions; the "Call of Japan," by Mr. Shiro Takizawa, a Japanese student at Victoria College, Toronto, and by Rev. D. G. Rideout, of Toronto, of the Methodist church, speaking on the "Call of Canada," in place of Rev. A. Lloyd Smith, whose presence was prevented by illness. In answer to these addresses, "The Response of Youth" was voiced by two young men from Toronto, Don Haud, a medical student at McMaster, and Hugh McMillan, of Knox College. The latter has already volunteered and been accepted for the foreign missions field. The closing address was given by Rev. Dr. J. Lovell Murray, Director of the Canadian School of Missions. The full-robed choir was in attendance, and sang several times, accompanied by Mr. Martin B. Chenhall, who has acted as organist for the Conference.

Dr. Waters spoke of the 'ferment' of India at the present time, and of the wide dissatisfaction with economic and social and political conditions. "These two hundred and seven millions of Hindus are our own Aryan brothers and sisters. The call of India to-day is the call of men created in the image of God, who lost that God over twenty-five hundred years ago, and have been trying ever since to slake their thirst at broken cisterns.'

Rev. Mr. Soper, speaking of the sixty-six million people in one province in his field, said that each Christian dentist in thaft district had a clientele of thirteen million people and each Christian doctor was called on to minister to one million, three hundred thousand patients. There was not one Christian nurse for the three hundred thousand mothers of the community, and twenty thousand lepers were wandering about, uncared for. There were thirty thousand rifles in that district alone, and there were German officers at one centre, drilling the soldiers in militaristic ways. "If the church of Christ is recreant to this trust, we have no other organization that will step into the breach. Are we asleep at the switch? Is the manhood of this nation that responded in 1914 only capable of responding to the material things?"

Mr. Shiro Takizawa of Japan, in a carefully-prepared little speech, thanked in formal terms the missionaries for the help they had given his country, and prophesied a greater field of endeavor yet to come in Japan.

Rev. Mr. Rideout spoke of Canada, and visualized against the background of the eight hundred millions of people in the foreign fields the eight millions of Canadians at home, with the heterogenous mixture of race that made up the population of the Dominion .He spoke of the many foreigners in the west who know nothing of Jesus, and of the countless stream of immigrants pouring into the country, many of them awaiting the opportunity of knowing something of the Saviour and His love.

"The Response of Youth" found two youthful, eager exponents of their individual conceptions of the answer to "The World Call."

Mr. Don Haud spoke briefly of the desire of Jesus for unity in all things, in endeavour and purpose, and of the necessity of unity of mankind in fighting the common foe. The answer to the difficulties of divided armies in the Great War was Foch, declared the speaker, and the answer to the divided forces of the present day was Jesus, with whom "there was no east or west, but, one fellowship of love throughout the whole wide earth."

Mr. Hugh McMillan spoke with passionate emphasis on the longing for Jesus which animates the world to-day, and the love of Jesus which should inspire every effort in His behalf. He quoted the Scriptural verse which speaks of the grain of wheat, "and if it spring up, it abideth alone, but if it die, it bringeth forth good fruit." "Frankly, the calls made to-night would never make me a missionary or the sort of missionary that Jesus would want me to be. I must know the way of life and go out to the foreign field to tell people of Jesus and what the way of the Christian means."

Rev. Dr. J. Lovell Murray gave one of the most inspiring addresses of the Conference, in his summing up of the evening's contributions to the call of Missions. Speaking of the "unparallelled opportunity" awaiting workers in the mission fields at the present time, he went on to amplify the assertion that "he that loseth his life, shall find it," instancing examples that had come to his own personal knowledge of workers in the foreign fields, giving up home and family and sometimes even life itself, in an apparent useless sacrifice that yet had its fruitage in the renewed inspirtion and energy afforded followers in the footsteps of those who had given so much for their Lord. "This is the law of the harvest, which is inevitable, that we go from death to renewed life." The speaker asked for redoubled prayers and for the fields which are white with the harvest, that may fall and rot in the ground unless we gather it in."

Benediction was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Pogue, and Mr. Best voiced a general measure of thanks to all who had taken part in the Conference and helped in any way.

The committee of arrangements for the Conference was composed of Rev. Dr. C. W. Rose, chairman, Rev. M. C. Mackinnon, the energetic secretary, Dr. J. E. Middleton, treasurer, and assistants in Rev. J. D. Richardson, Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, Dr. W. T. Holloway, Mr. L. J. Pettit, and Mr. A. Mowat. The Laymen's committee was composed of Mayor J. J. Turner, and Messrs. E. B. Fowler, W. R. Breyfogle, Andrew Brown; the Ladies' Committee, Miss Charlotte Dickson, Miss Amy Halliday, Mrs. James Kendry and Mrs. W. D. Scott; the Young Peoples' Committee, Messrs. Elmer Frost, Neil Porter, A. McLeish, A. Hope, C. H. Roper, Mrs. P. S. Fitzgerald and Miss L. H. Brownscombe; the Children's Meeting Committee, Mrs. L. J. Pettit, Mrs. Geo. Robertson, Mrs. M. C. Mackinnon, Miss Margaret English; and the Publicity Committee, Rev. R. Pogue, Rev. W. H. Young and Rev. M. C. Mackinnon.

BROKE UP HIS OWN FUNERAL.

Startling Incident of the Yellow Fever in a Southern Town.

"I had the pleasure of reading my own obituary notice," said a Western man, on a visit to Chicago, the other day. "I was so sick that I thought I would surely die one night, and the doctors gave up all hope of me a little after midnight. The reporters who came up to see how I was made up their minds that I would be dead about the time their papers went to press. They did not say Mr. H. died early this morning; but they said the doctors had given up all hope at midnight, and they penned a fifty-line sketch of my important career, never thinking that I would be in a position to point out a few trifling errors in it. You will never know, though, how queer it seems to read what people say of you after you are dead, till you've tried it."

"I suppose not," replied a Southerner, "but I had a curious experience with death myself in Texas some years ago. Yellow fever had got into our town and was playing havoc with us almost before we realized it. As usual a panic set in, and almost all who were able to move away, without sacrificing everything they had, did so. I decided to stay, and we set to work to rig up a temporary hospital for the victims. Before long Yellow Jack struck me, and I lay in a cot in the hospital I had helped to build. I was pretty bad, but not too bad to feel worse when a rough coffin was brought in and put under my cot to be handy for me. We lost no time in burying the dead; that was dangerous.

"Pretty soon I became unconscious—I learned this afterward—and, being taken for dead, was rolled into my handy coffin and put into the hearse. The driver was a negro who had been condemned to be hanged, and was taken out of jail and put at the job of burying the dead under promise of pardon if he survived. There were no mourners to follow the body to the grave. The mourners were busy trying their best to keep out of the graveyard.

"The jolting brought me back to consciousness, and your feelings at reading your own obituary were nothing. I take it, to mine when I realized I was going to my own funeral. The coffin had been made in such a hurry, of rough boards, that the cracks were wide enough for me to see through, and one nail at the foot and another at the head were all that held the lid down. A couple of kicks sent the lid up, and I got out of my coffin without much trouble, the excitement of the occasion lending me strength. Another kick threw the doors of the hearse open, and I stuck out my head and yelled to the driver to stop.

"With a yell of terror and horror the negro leaped from the hearse and started to run away. The mule that was pulling us stopped gladly enough, and I got out as best I could and started after the driver. We were a long way out of town, and I felt my strength giving out. When the negro saw me following him he fell to his knees paralyzed with fear, and began to pray to God, the devil and my ghost for mercy. I soon reassured him that I was real flesh and blood, and persuaded him to drive me back to town. The coffin we took out of the hearse and put it on top, as I might want it yet, I argued, and I lay down inside, with the negro's coat for a pillow, and we drove slowly back to the hospital in that style.

"You may imagine the stir we created there, but that was only one little incident in the plague, and it was soon forgotten. I recovered, after a while, but I shall never forget my sensations as I woke up to find myself nailed in a coffin."

BLANK RACE DAY

NEW YORK, March 25.—(United Newsj)—Nobody won and nobody lost in the United States on races Monday because there were no races to bet on. Even in Mexico not a hoof beat sounded. This was the first blank day in the year around racing schedules since the death of President Harding caused a day's pause in the whirligig.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL

A WHALE OF A STORY; YOU'LL NEVER FORGET "THE STRANGER."

We found just what we expected at the Royal Theatre yesterday—a great motion picture.

"The Stranger," Joseph Henabery's favorite short story, is the finest picture that prominent producer has ever brought to the screen, which the author, John Galsworthy, call "The First and the Last, Mr. Henabery wanted to put it into picture form. And here it is.

You'll never enjoy anything quite as much as "The Stranger." There's everything in it a really big picture should have—a whale of a story, action, thrills, appeal, and what a cast!—Betty Compson, who has been absent from these shores for a considerable time, is featured as are Richard Dix, Lewis Stone and Tully Marshall. Robert Schable has a heavy role, and Frank Nelson and Clarence Burton also appear in support.

If you are one of those who are beginning to believe that motion pictures are the "bunk"—that one picture is but a repetition of another —that all of the stories are but a series of impossible situations—that there is nothing new on the screen—we say, "The Stranger" will make you sit up and take notice. It's real. It's different. It will grip you as no picture has ever done before, and when you leave the theatre, if you're not converted, then we go on to say that you're about the hardest-hearted individual that ever paid the price of admission.

MORE THAN 2,000,000 FEET OF FILM FOR "THE HOTTENTOT."

Horse racing scenes in "The Hottentot," which is coming to the Royal Theatre on Thursday, were so difficult to photograph that the cameraman who "shot" the picture took more than 200,000 feet of film in making the production.

When the film was edited, it was cut down to 7,000 feet, with a laugh or a thrill in every foot. The action pictures are said by horse-lovers to be the most superb ever shown on the screen.

"The Hottentot" is the story of a man who is mistaken for a famous turfsman of the same name. He falls in love with a girl who adores horses, and rather than admit he is an imposter he rides the fiery "Hottentot" in spite of the fact that he is terrified of horses. The endless funny situations into which he gets make one of the cleverest comedies on the screen.

AMATEUR NIGHT AT ROYAL, WEDNESDAY.

A new list of local talent has been arranged for at the Royal for Wednesday night. Substantial cash prizes will go to all taking part. Names of entries will be published in to-morrow's Examiner.

CLASSY, CLEAN VAUDEVILLE AT ROYAL.

We have with us this evening at the Royal, the Barney O'Mara Co of Irish singers. It is some time since we have seen (or rather heard) a vaudeville offering that leaves the same impression as this clever Irish baritone. The romantic Irish character, portrayed to perfection by Mr. O'Mara, is of the old school, made popular by Jos. Murphy in "Kerry Gow," and later by Chauncey Olleott. Mr. O'Mara has just finished an Australian tour and the larger theatres in the United States. His reception everywhere proves that the old Irish songs will live for ever. Evidently last night's audience was Irish, as Mr. O'Mara was forced to make a speech and respond to an encore. He is accompanied by Jeanne Palowa, contralto, previously with Red Path Lyceum Bureau. The other novelty on the bill is Billy De Armo, the best juggling act to play the Royal since they have added vaudeville to their programmes. With apparent ease, De Armo juggles anything from a "toothpick to a tombstone." Both offerings have class, and are absolutely clean and refined.

AT THE GRAND

THE MAID OF THE MOUNTAINS

On the return and final appearance in this city of "The Maid of the Mountains," at the Grand Theatre on Saturday, March 29, for matinee and evening, the same company intact which appeared here last autumn, under Stanley T. Vermilyea's name, the well-known producer, which is a guarantee of everything that is highest and best our the musical-comedy stage, has with it Miss Ethel Walker, the Australian prima-donna who was so warmly welcomed by the music lovers of this city on her last visit here.

Miss Walker, an Australian by birth, began early training at a very tender age and whilst at the Albert Street Conservatory, London, studying under the tutelege of Dame Nellie Melba, the world-renowned artiste, was chosen by Oscar Asche, probably the world's greatest producer of musical successes, to play the leading role in the Australian company which he was about to send to this far-off Antipodes Dominion.

Arriving in America from her exceptionally successful Australian tour Miss Walker was at liberty to accept Mr. Vermilyea's offer, and further as she had always dreamed of passing some time in the snows of Canada, an ambition she thought was about to be realized, accepted at once, and while owing to the very mild winter, experienced in this country, this season, Miss Walker has, nevertheless, enjoyed and feels very thankful for the way in which the musical clubs and music lovers all through Canada have received her. Recognized now as one of the finest artistes on the British musical-comedy stage, Miss Walker can always be sure of a very warm welcome on any future appearance she may make in this city.

This is positively the last time "The Maid of the Mountins" will ever appear here, those who would enjoy seeing and hearing a great artiste in a stellar role should not fail to see Miss Walker's characterization of "Teresa," the Mountain Maid.

Popular prices will prevail at this engagement which will enable everyone to see this offering on its farewell visit.

AT THE CAPITOL

The Capitol Theatre has an unusual feature for the first three days of this week, in "The Rendezvous," produced by Marshall Neilan. It is an odd and striking picture, with a unique background in the Russia of the turbulent days when the Czarist regime was overthrown by the forces of the people. There is a somewhat extraordinary treatment given to the theme ,which involves many personages in its unfolding. A Russian prince, banished to Siberia by the autocratic Czar, builds in that desolate land a shrine to the memory of his beautiful wife, who dies, leaving him with a baby girl. Then the story proceeds with the life of the girl, separated from her father when he escapes from Siberia, and brought up as a peasant. She acts as custodian for the shrine of her unknown mother, and this shrine is the "rendezvous" where later she meets her American lover, and where finally Red Ivan, her husband, meets a horrible death. Stone deaf, the girl is unable to hear the cries of the man who has persecuted her, and the picture progresses to a satisfactory ending.

The conflict between the Bolsheviists and Communists and the natives of the Great White Land, at the time of the Revolution, is brought out in striking fashion. The picture shows the splendor of the Emperor's reign and the topsy-turvy conditions after its overthrow. Siberia is presented in all the squalor and suffering of the prison camps, and there is an element of Russian atmosphere also in the unexpected and savage breaks in the story. Red Ivan is the brute of the picture, and the British sergeant is the comedian, lending a touch of humor to many of the scenes. It is an interesting and unusual picture, with a cast that includes many new faces. Conrad Nagel is Walter Stanford, the American soldier hero, and a newcomer to the screen, Lucikke Ricksen is the heroine, Vera. Sydney Chaplin, a brother of the famous Charlie, is seen in the comedian's role.

A Ben Turpin comedy, one of his best, "Where is my Wandering Boy This Evening?" is a cross-eyed affair where the innocent hero gets into a peculiar mix-up, by being out with a young lady after nine o'clock in the evening. He is haunted by the vision of repeating the inglorious leave-taking of his father, a cross-eyed gentleman also who departed this world by way of the hangman's rope.

LATEST WARNER PICTURE COMEDY

RAPID-FIRE HUMOR CHARACTERIZES PLAYING IN "CONDUCTOR 1492."

There can be no doubt but that the latest Warner Brothers' Classic which opened for a week's run yesterday at the Regen Theatre, was an instant success. The reason for it is no secret—nothing more or less than the super-acting of Johnny Hines, whose electric personality saturated the entire production.

It is the same Johnny, but it seems to us he is better than ever in "Conductor 1492," is such a thing is possible. For Johnny is always so full of pep, jazz and rapid-fire humour that it hardly seems possible he can improve on it. Yet in his latest picture he once more proves that even though practice may not make perfect, it certainly goes a long way in that direction.

"Conductor 1492" is the tale of an ambitious young Irishman just arrived in this country and bent on making his way to fame and fortune—no matter how. Johnny Hines seemed to be made to order for the part of Terry O'Toole, the young hopeful.

With a ready smile and a willing hand he got along well in his own way. Terry was not the man to dodge a fight and many and furious were the ones he fought with people who could not agree with his views.

He finally realized one of his boyhood ambitions when he was hired as a conductor by the Loteda Traction Company, and donned the blue uniform with the shining buttons. The legend on his new cap read "Conductor 1492, and thus was he known.

Johnny Hines made good his reputation as a comedian of the highest rank in his role. The laughs were loud and long as he went about his duties, collecting fares, disposing of refractory passengers, assisting ladies to board and leave the car, and various pleasantries he indulged in to make the time pass in his own delightful manner.

The success of this film is in no small way due to the admirable support given by the supporting cast, which includes such well known players as Doris May, Dorothy Burns, Michael Dark, Ruth Renick, Robert Cain, Dan Mason, Fred Esmelton and Byron Sage. Direction is under Charles Hines, a brother of Johnny and Frank Griffen.

JACK H. WILLIAMS MEETS WITH SUCCESS

BELLEVILLE, March 25.— Ray Carr received a letter today from Jack Williams, who is now rounding into shape at Savanah, Ga., having recently moved from Haddock. Jack is in high spirits according to the tone of his letter and likes his work and surrounding fine. At Haddock the weather was very warm, and Jack states that he lost weight during the stiff workouts there.

He stated in the letter that he will be used again the Yankees in the five-game series which will be played presently, and from time to time he will inform Carr of his progress.

Of the staff of twenty pitchers, six were recently chosen as top-notch prospects on their merits, and it is reported that Williams was the "daddy" of the six.

LIFE INSURANCE BEFORE MARRIAGE.

Judge John C. Karel, of the State of Wisconsin, recently attacked one of the State laws regarding human development and improvement which requires every person who marries to present a certificate of good health.

Instead, he advocated a law requiring every young man who gets married to present a life insurance policy. This, the Judge stated, would be adequate proof that he is of sound health and also that he is in a position to accept some of the responsibilities of married life.

Canadian Stock Exchange and Mines | New York Stock Exchange and Curb Prices

TO-DAY'S QUOTATIONS AND OPINION AND REVIEWS OF THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, March 25.—(Special).—Floor brokers reported the biggest crowd in months in the stock loan group in the stock exchange yesterday. Central leather preferred and rubber preferred were commanding a premium and a heavy demand had to be satisfied in Steel Baldwin and other speculative issues.

This evidence of an oversold condition in the industrial group, induced some short covering in the early dealings to-day. Studebaker, American Woollen and other issues recently under pressure secured fractional recoveries; American Cans movements were closely watched as the directors assembled for dividend action.

After opening unchanged at 113 5-8 this stock gained more than a point in the first ten minutes. Tremendous activity in American Can was the principal feature of the first hour. As foreshadowed by the break in the stock at the previous close, the directors took no action on an extra common dividend authorizing only the regular 1 1-4 per cent quarterly payments.

Can dropped to 111 off more than eight points from last week's high when it ran up sharply on short covering induced by intimations in speculative circles that an extra distribution of $1 would be authorized: As a matter of fact, officials of the company have made it known since last December that the company's policy with regard to special payments would not be decided until the end of the year when the results of period operations could be determind.

Traders for the decline seem to be more worried over the steel situation than the manufacturers. United States steel is opening around 96 per cent of ingot capacity which is about as high as it can go. In view of this, a moderate falling off in production later on would be natural.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH ASSOCIATION MEETING

New Minister Accepted the Position of Chaplain.

The regular meeting of the Men's Association of St. Andrew's Church was held last evening in the Sunday School, with a very large attendance of the men of the church.

After supper, which was served by the Ladies' Aid, Mr. G. A. Gillespie, president, addressed the meeting, introducing the pastor, Rev. Mr. Gordon, who in a very neat speech accepted the honour as chaplain of the Association.

Mr. T. F. Best also gave an address on "Peptomism," which was greatly appreciated.

Mr. John I. Allen gave a report as chairman of the Finance committee.

Musical numbers of the programme were supplied by Messrs. Carlisle, Humpage, Brown and Nevin.

Mr. Vernon S. Foster, Vice-President, made a most acceptable chairman.

The Association is shortly to undertake work of great importance to the church and is already proving itself a great factor in St. Andrew's.

G. P. GRAHAM ENTERS TWENTY-SIX BILLS

OTTAWA, March 25.—(Canadian Press).—Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways, intends to bring down twenty-six separate bills for the branch lines programme of the Canadian National Railways. Last year they were all covered in one bill, which was rejected by the Senate. By bringing down a separate bill for each branch line, there will be an opportunity for Parliament to discriminate between the different branch lines, if so desired. In all bills, it is intimated a three-year provision of last year will be included.

NO PUBLIC DESIRE TO STOP DEATH SENTENCE

LONDON, March 25.—(Canadian Press).—"So far as my long Parliamentary experience goes there is very little evidence of any general public desire to abolish the death sentence," declared Home Secretary Henderson to a deputation to-day, urging the abolition of capital punishment.

Mr. Henderson's dictum was a surprise to the deputation, which had felt encouraged in its appeal by the fact that in his short term of office he had exercised his prerogative of clemency in more than one case.

AVIATOR MAY LAND NORTH BAY DISTRICT

NORTH BAY, March 25.—(Canadian Press).—Mayor McDonald has been advised that Major MacLaren, British around the world aviator, will take on supplies of three hundred gallons of petrol and a quantity of oil. The town council has instructed the town engineer to receive the supplies when they are sent from Montreal and to arrange to give every assistance to the aviator.

McGRATH RETAINS POST ON DAIL ANOTHER DAY

DUBLIN, March 25.—(Canadian Press).—Joseph McGrath, former Minister of Industry and Commerce, will not resign from the Dail Eireann to-day as he had expected, but will postpone his action until to-morrow.

Mr. McGrath, in making this announcement, added that other deputies who were to resign to-day had also postponed their resignation until to-morrow.

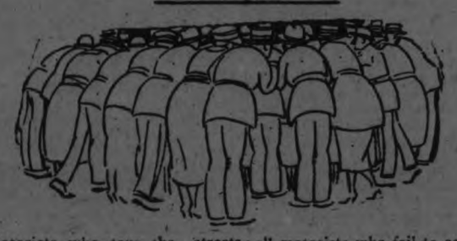
To Struggle Midst the Crowd, the Shock of Men to Have, to See, To Feel, and to Possess--a Tag



Motorists who tour the streets after to-day with last year's decorations in the way of license plates will have a sorry outing, Chief Newhall told The Examiner. Everyone has now had sufficient time, he thinks, to obtain an up-to-date license, and in fact the final date for carrying last year's markers was two weeks ago. A little leeway has been allowed, but men on the force have now been instructed to take note of all motorists who fail to conform to the law, and the Chief declares these informations will be acted upon without parley.

There is likely to be a rush on the Motor League Office in the Dominion Bank building when the checking up starts, and while there are sufficient license plates in stock to supply all of the 3,000 motorists in the city the man who looks to his comfort will avoid the rush by getting there early.

LEGISLATURE UNITED IN REJECTING SEVEN PER CENT. BEER BY 84-6

J. A. Pinard, Leading the Minority, Argued That a "Kick" in the O. T. A. Beverage Would Satisfy Demand For Referendum — Premier Objected to Changing the Act Until Public Opinion Had Been Sounded.

HYDRO AMENDMENTS.

TORONTO, March 26. — By a vote of 84 to 6 the Legislature Tuesday afternoon defeated the amendment to the Ontario Temperance Act proposed by J. A. Pinard, (Lib., East Ottawa) whereby seven per cent beer could be sold instead of the present 2½ per cent. beer. Those voting for the amendment besides Mr. Pinard, were E. Proulx (Lib., Prescott), A. Belanger, (Lib., Russell), Z. Mageau (Lib., Sturgeon Falls), M. Lang (Lib., Cochrane) and James McCausland (Con., South West Toronto.)

Important amendments to the Hydro Act were passed second reading, and in speaking on the second reading of the bill enabling the province to borrow $40,000,000, the Premier announced that the Provincial Treasurer had yesterday accepted the tender of the Bank of Montreal on the sale of $3,000,000 treasury bills at 100.29, and also the tender of the continental Trust and Savings Bank, Chicago, for $3,000,000 at 100.29403, making $6,000,000 in all.

Forestall Liquor Demand.

Mr. Pinard in moving his amendment to increase the beer strength sold under the O.T.A., said that if it passed there would be no demand for a vote of the people on the liquor question. Seven per cent. beer, he said, would not be intoxicating and was much milder than that sold in Quebec.

Mr. McCausland said that people were entitled to a glass of beer as much as people were entitled to tea or coffee. He was satisfied that the government would give a vote on the liquor question but he was in favor of beer as quickly as possible, and would therefore support the bill.

Mr. Proulx said he would support the bill because he thought it was a temperance measure. If there was a good beer provided there would be no demand for a vote on the liquor question. He contended that 2½ per cent. beer was injurious because it was made of chemicals.

Sincerity Doubted.

The Premier said he doubted if Mr Pinard was sincere in bringing in his bill. The present law as far as the government was concerned, would not be interfered with until public opinion was sounded. "The government is opposed to the bill and hopes the House rejects it," said the Premier.

W. E. N. Sinclair (Lib. Leader) said it was not often that he rose to support the premier but on this occasion he did. The bill was introduced without his knowledge, he said and he was opposed to it. The attitude of the Liberal party was well known, and he was staying by that attitude.

No Mandate for a Change.

Hon. Manning Doherty also said he was opposed and if there was to be a change in the O.T.A., it must be after the people voted for a change.

Harold Fisher (Lib., West Ottawa) opposed the bill but stated that the Liberals were different from the Conservatives in that they did not hide wet and dry people under one skin.

F. W. Wilson (Windsor) opposed the bill, saying Mr. Pinard was not sincere in introducing it. He withdrew the charge of insincerity on request of the Speaker. He pointed out that under this change there would be no government control and no government revenue.

Pinard's Resentment.

M. M. MacBride (Con. Brantford) described it as a joker bill, as did Col. J. A. Currie. Mr. Pinard closing the debate said that if his being whip of the Liberal party was involved he would give his party his resignation. He resented the charges that he was insincere.

For a time it was doubtful if there was to be a formal division. The Premier said it was a waste of time to have a vote on a bill so hopelessly defeated. However, J. A. Currie, Mr Pinard, Mr. Proulx, Mr. Mageau and Mr. McCausland, demanded a vote and it was taken.

O. T. A. Amendments.

The amendments introduced by the Attorney-General to the O.T.A. contain clauses whereby the Provincial Board of Health may make an analysis of medicines to see that they do not contain more than the legal

Armed Launches "Dry" Navy Nucleus

NEW YORK, March 26.—(Canadian Press).—Six swift launches, equipped with one-pound guns, will comprise the nucleus of a new dry navy that went into operation on Rum Row yesterday prohibition officials announced last night.

The fleet will be under the direction of P. J. Sullivan, special Treasury agent, from Washington.

The launches will be manned by seamen transferred from the United States Coast Guard, it was said. On each boat will be several trained Customs men, who will direct the pursuit and seizure of rum craft.

The little fleet is now secreted somewhere along the New York waterfront.

C.N.R. OFFICIALS VISIT LINDSAY

The Quarterly Conference Emphasized Courtesy, Economy and Safety First Precautions — Thornton Unable to Attend.

LINDSAY, March 26.—One hundred and fifty members of the staff of the C.N.R. central office Montreal division, gathered at Lindsay Tuesday in quarterly conference the officials coming from as far east as Portland, Me., and Toronto on the west. Disappointment was expressed on the non-arrival of Sir Henry Thornton, president, who wired his regret from New York City, as did vice presidents, Hungerford, Robb, and Vaughan. The assembly of railway notables included Mr. C. J. Bowker, general manager and Mr. W. R. Davidson, general superintendent, who presided.

Many important matters were under discussion including, "Handling passenger trains," handling of freight trains, Brown system of discipline, overtime, closer relationship between local agents and shippers, freight claims prevention, summer program, fire hazards, safety first, first aid, efficiency of torpedoes good feeling between employees and passengers, courtesy, improvements in long freight service, handling of long local trains, and many other topics.

Stress Economy

Stress was laid on the matter of economy and it was pointed out that operating expenses in various departments had decreased during the past year, especially in the maintenance of way, the transportation and motive power departments.

Great importance was placed on the matter of courtesy and many commendatory letters, were read from passengers, who were snow bound during January and February of the excellent service rendered by train crews.

The summer program for the central region includes extensive building of tracks, over some 800 miles, more ballast trains, etc.

Fire Prevention

Extra precaution has been urged in the matter of fire prevention and safety first methods. Greater efficiency was also stressed to the operating of stores and supplies. Incidentally it was stated that it cost the company some $37,000 to handle the cases in Montreal during the winter.

Speaking at the luncheon in Rotary headquarters Mr. Bowker assured the town of Lindsay that the grain line through Lindsay would increase in its activity and that some day, perhaps not in the far distant future the engine house ond machine shops would be enlarged.

The speakers at the banquet included Mr. R. Kylie and Mr. F. R. Wilford while last night at the banquet tendered to the officials by the board of trade the speakers were Messrs. T. B. Stinson K.C. and C. E. Weeks.

The special train for the east did not leave until after one o'clock this morning, the entire staff attending a dance given in the armouries by the C.N.R. employees of Lindsay in honor of the visitors.

TRAM WORKERS REFUSE OFFER

Demand Eight Shillings a Week Increase—Negotiations Broke Down Over Employers' Compromise of Five Shillings.

LONDON, March 26.—The negotiations looking to a settlement of the dispute between the striking bus and tramway workers and their employers, which were in progress throughout the day at the Ministry of Labor, under the chairmanship of Minister of Labor Shaw, broke down last evening.

The deadlock came in consequence of the refusal of the bus and tram way men to accept their employers' offer of a five shilling increase in wages weekly, instead of the eight shillings demanded, leaving the question of the additional three shillings to arbitration.

Minister of Transport Gosling last evening in the House of Commons introduced his "London Traffic Bill," the chief provision of which calls for the creation of a statutory committee, representing all parties concerned in the strike with the object of reaching an agreement with the Minister of transport to restrict to actual requirements the number of vehicles operating on the streets.

The bill of Mr. Gosling is to be rushed through the House. The second reading of the measure has been fixed for Friday.

GOT DIVORCE FROM ANOTHER MAN'S WIFE.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 26 (United Press). — Seems like men can't confine their divorces to their own wives, for here is the story of Max Mazor, who sued another man's wife for divorce and got it.

Mazor's tale began in Russia, where he married a girl named Clara. They could not get along on his salary, so Mazor came to America, and Clara secured a divorce from the village priest.

Later she married another man.

When Mazor came to divorce Clara he found the Russian decree was not legal in the United States.

Thus he divorced another man's wife.

BRITISH PLANE FORCED TO LAND IN FRENCH FOG

Hopped Off Tuesday In Globe Circling Race With Four United States Planes That Start Next Week In the Opposite Direction — Competition Is Unofficial

KING'S BEST WISHES.

CALSHOT, England, March 26. —Great Britain entered the air race around the world against the United States at 12.10 p.m. Tuesday when an amphibian plane manned by a trio of Royal Air Force men rose from the water at Southampton and turned its glistening nose toward coast of France.

Officially, of course, there isn't any race. Three British fliers of long experience in the air merely wanted to try to fly around the world "on their own" and he Air Ministry gave them leave. Officially, it is merely a coincidence that a group of United States airplanes happened to be trying to accomplish the same thing at the same time. Unofficially, however, everyone in Great Britain who cares anything about flying looks upon the venture which began here yesterday as a race against the United States planes, which left California, flying in the opposite direction, last week.

Trust in Phrase

With a single plane "on its own" in competition with four United States ships, the British are putting their trust in the Kipling phrase—"He travels fastest who travels alone." Squadron Leader A. Stewart MacLaren, a modest Scotsman of 33 years, who is navigating the plane is acquainted with his route from here to India, having been first to make an air voyage between the home country and its eastern empire. But from India, through the Orient and across the Pacific, Canada and the Atlantic, he will be flying over strange lands and water.

MacLaren expects to complete the voyage in four months. In Tokio he intends to replace the 450 horsepower engine which roared off toward France yesterday morning with a new one of the same kind for the trans-pacific flight. Another motor and another plane will await him in Ottawa.

The British fliers, rushing counter clockwise around the earth, expect to pass the United States air armada going in the opposite direction somewhere in the Orient.

Wife Places Mascot

Before beginning the long voyage this morning MacLaren took his wife for a spin in a short trial trip over the airdrome. She fixed on the fusillage the expedition's mascot—a little brass aviator holding two "joy sticks" in his hands. It is similar to the mascot MacLaren used in his pioneering flight to Egypt and India MacLaren left behind him three children, the eldest six years and the youngest four months old.

Just before arising from the water the pilot received a telegram from King George wishing him success and assuring him that he will follow the progress of the trip with keen interest. Thompson, the Air Ministry, then bade the airmen Godspeed in a short talk. Flying Officer Plenderthait then took his place in the machine, and Sergeant Andrews, who is making the trip as mechanic gave the propeller a spin and in a few minutes the plane was on its way.

Descend in Fog

Havre, France, March 26.—The MacLaren airplane, which began its world flight from England yesterday, descended near here this afternoon, owing to the fog.

Yanks Wish Success

Seattle, Wn., March 26.—Best of luck to British fliers is wished by the members of the American World Flight Expedition here. Major Frederick L. Martin, in command of the United States aviators, pointed out that the British aviators are at a disadvantage, having only one plane.

"They have but one chance of getting around," he said, "while we have four. They're fine fellows. We all wish them success."

The American expedition will leave next Sunday or Monday if weather conditions are favorable, for Prince Rupert, B.C., on the fifth leg of the world journey.

Italy's Air Fleet Unafraid of Foes

ROME, March 26.—(Canadian Press).—Italy's air force has been built up to a point that gives her authorities confidence of her ability to hold her own defensively in this field of military activity, it was declared by Under-Secretary of State Acerbo in a speech at Aquita, according to the Messaggero Tuesday. The newpaper quotes the under-secretary as saying:

"The new arm organized under the direct supervision of our leader has today reached an efficiency which will permit us henceforward to face an attack from any other fleet that might venture in our sky."

The Messaguro expresses gratification that "next October four times as many airplanes as last year will participate in the Italian air manoeuvres.

DRAFT SKULKER MAY SURRENDER

Grover Cleveland Bergdoll Departs From Eberbach and Is Assumed to Be Quitting Germany--May Return to United States.

Eberbach, Baden, March 26.—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, the American draft evader, left here Tuesday morning for an unknown destination. As he carried considerable luggage, it is generally assumed that he is quitting Germany.

Bergdoll motored out of Eberbach in the direction of Frankfort, where it is believed he will take a train for Hamburg and sail for New York on the new liner of the Hamburg-American Company, which begins its maiden trip on Thursday.

The United States draft evader was accompanied by Eugene Stecher, his chauffeur, who was with Bergdoll when the attempt was made to kidnap him last summer, and who is said to be under indictment in Philadelphia for having aided Bergdoll to escape from the United States. Stecher, in keeping with his previous loyalty, to Bergdoll pretended to be ignorant of the draft evader's destination after leaving Eberbach, or regarding his present plans.

At the Hotel Krone-Post, which has been Bergdoll's home, and which was the scene of the attempted kidnapping, it was said the famous guest had left no word behind which would indicate his early return. On the contrary, it was declared, from the amount of luggage Bergdoll carried away with him it seemed apparent that he was saying his final goodbye to Eberbach.

MILLION PAID IN SUBSIDIES

Fifty Shipping Companies Receive Grants From the Government For Serving Canadian Ports — Paid $1,129,625 Last Year.

OTTAWA, March 26 (Canadian Press). — Steamship companies serving Canadian ports received a total of $1,129,625.66 in subsidies from the Canadian Government in the fiscal year just ending. Figures tabled yesterday at the request of J. S. Woodsworth, Centre Winnipeg, show that more than fifty companies are being subsidised to maintain a service between Canadian ports on the Pacific and Atlantic coasts, while several are giving a trans-oceanic service.

The Royal Mail Steam Packet Line receives $340,666.66 annually to maintain a service between Canadian Atlantic ports and the West Indies and South America.

The next largest amount is paid to the Elder-Dempster Line, which plies between Canada and South Africa.

The Union Steamship Company of New Zealand is paid 130,509 a year to preserve a service from Canada to New Zealand.

Of the remainder, $93,600 is paid to various companies plying between Canadian ports on the Pacific Coast and the balance to coastwise companies on the Atlantic.

COMPLETION OF COMMONS TOWER IS AUTHORIZED

Appropriation of $600,000 Approved By Parliament After Sharp Debate--Work Was Urged Because of Contract and Advantage of Having Plant Ready—Several Amendments Defeated.

Miss McPhail Opposed.

OTTAWA, March 26.—(Canadian Press.) — The House of Commons yesterday appropriated $800,000 to complete the tower of the Ottawa Parliament Buildings. Discussed before the vote again gave rise to sharp debate. Hon. W. M. Stevens moved to reduce the amount by $75,000, but his amendment was defeated by 98 to 16. Then J. S. Woodsworth, Labor member for Centre Winnipeg, moved to strike the vote out altogether. This was defeated by 124 to 14.

Another amendment by Sir Henry Drayton to make the vote read "for the completion of the tower and memorial chamber," was ruled out of order. Sir Henry had a further amendment to reduce the vote by $30,000. It was defeated by 84 to 44. Robert Forke, Progressive leader, voted with the Government in all the divisions.

Hon. J. H. King, minister of public works, made a statement as to what would be involved if the contract for the completion of the tower should be cancelled. The architect, he said, would be entitled to payment amounting to three per cent. on the completed cost of the tower. The completion of the tower was one of the most difficult parts of the work of the whole building and Dr. King doubted whether, if it was decided to postpone the work, a contractor could be secured later on to undertake it under the same arrangements as that with the present contractor. This provided for a payment of seven per cent. of the cost.

Cost of Delay.

If it was decided to postpone the work for five or six years the grounds around the buildings must be cleared up, buildings which were used for construction purposes removed, and a large amount of resodding done. The cost of this was estimated at $20,000. In addition a large building on Sussex street, which was used for cutting stone and in which the machinery for this purpose was still stored, would have to be torn down and the contents put somewhere else. It has been found that the timber foundations of this building were rotting. The cost of this work was estimated at about $82,000.

Altogether, it had been estimated by officials of his department that a delay of five or six years would cost $172,000. Dr. King pointed out that the stone used in the building darkened with the weather, if there was a delay, of several years, the new part of the tower would stand out most conspicuously from the part which was now built. The estimated cost of completing the tower in every respect was $564,000.

Agreed to Complete It.

As a member of the committee which conducted negotiations with the architect and contractor, J. F. White, Conservative, London, stated that the settlement arrived at provided that the contractors should finish the tower. Their commission was to be at the rate of seven per cent. He pointed out that it would be wise to have the work done by the contractors who had built the main body of the building. The tower was a very weighty structure, and there was always the possibility of its not being perfect because of faulty construction. If any trouble developed later on it was desirable that the responsibility be on the shoulders of the contractors who had built the whole building. Otherwise, a new contractor might blame old contractor for any trouble that occurred.

Hon. H. H. Stevens, Conservative, Centre Vancouver, was of the opinion that some of the details provided for in the vote before the house might well be allowed to stand and he thought that the minister could very well reduce the item by $100,000 to $125,000.

Robert Forke, Progressive leader, was satisfied that it would be economic to finish the main work on the tower at the present time, but he, too, thought that a reduction of $100,000 in the vote was possible.

The minister said that if it were not found necessary to spend the whole amount, it would not be spent. The original estimates by departmental officials had been $800,000.

Farm Work Didn't Appeal to Hikers

BROCKVILLE, March 26.—(Canadian Press).—"The Recorder and Times" published yesterday, an Ottawa despatch, stating that every one of the British harvesters who were expected here to-day on their hike from Toronto to Ottawa, had been offered work by the farmers enroute, but had refused the proffered assistance.

It further states that James Law, the leader of the party, who has been in Canada on several occasions, arrived in this county, the last time during the closing months of last year. He registered with the department of soldiers civil restablishment on November 19, 1923, and held a position for a short period in the Toronto postoffice. He did not again apply for assistance until March 3 last and on the 12th inst. he was again given help. He commuted his pension in 1920 for $600.

MINERS ACCEPT NEW AGREEMENT

Salaries and Working Conditions In Bituminous Industry Will Be Maintained For Three Years — Referendum of 5,000 Local Unions.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 26.—(Canadian Press).—The rank and file of the United Mine Workers of America ratified the new wage scale agreement securing peace in the bituminous industry for three years by an overwhelming vote, it was announced here yesterday afternoon. The vote was 164,858 to 26,253.

The new agreement, which was negotiated at Jacksonville, Fla., last month will continue present wages and working conditions in effect for another three years beginning April 1. While the contract embraces only the central competitive field, composed of Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania, all other coal mining contracts are based on it.

At the expiration of the last two preceding wage agreements, the bituminous miners went on strike for a time.

The referendum vote was taken among the 5,000 locals of the international organization and the tabulation was completed in the union headquarters here. Almost half of the vote was completed in the union headquarters here. Almost half of the vote, 13,032 opposing ratification, was polled in Illinois, District No. 12, which also had the largest vote in favor of the agreement, 43,180.

CADETS DRILL AT ARMOURIES

First Workout of Season—Sergeant Gilbert in Charge

Cadet drill has been resumed at the P.C.I. Yesterday in the armouries the boys "quick marched" and "right-wheeled" to the snappy orders of their young officers. The interior of the armouries appeared dark and dusty when compared to the line of the clear spring sunshine without. But the boys were training with a will in preparation for the day, sometime in June, when they shall march past to the beat of drum and blast of bugle for inspection.

Sergeant-major J. Gilbert of the quarter staff at Kingston is up to give the battalion the benefit of some drilll. Sergeant Gilbert is a veteran, experienced in cadet work, and already the drill is taking on a snap that was lacking before. He is also training the students of the Normal School. His stay is short but he will return in time to give the boys a final "brushing up" just before inspection day.

Sergeant Gilbert remarked that the P.C.I. have gained an enviable reputation for their high record of shooting. The mark made by the Peterboro team in winning the Laura Secord Trophy, he said, has amazed the staff at Kingston. He hopes the battalion will also gain credit for their drill.

DAIL'S SYMPATHY SHOWN VICTIMS BY ADJOURNING

Brief, Quiet Session of the Free State Parliament Presented No Sign of Ministerial Crisis — Expectant Visitors Filled Galleries — No Friction Exhibited.

RESIGNATION RUMORS

DUBLIN, March 26 (Canadian Press). — Yesterday's session of the Dail Eireann was brief and peaceful, an early adjournment being taken out of sympathy with the victims of the Queenston outrage, without any of the airing of ministerial differences or resignations from the Cabinet that had been anticipated.

The public, with the idea that the session might be exciting, filled the visitors' gallery at an early hour, but when the Ministers appeared, including President Cosgrave, who looked somewhat pale after his illness, there was no sign of friction and the only change from the usual was that Minister of Defence Mulcahy, having resigned, sat among the private members.

Met Privately.

Dublin has been buzzing with rumours of the resignation of other ministers, even including President Cosgrave, but whether there is any foundation for them is not as yet known.

As has happened previously when a critical situation arose, all the members supporting the Cabinet met privately in the morning so as to facilitate discussions which would not be possible in the open Dail.

President Cosgrave attended this meeting, as did Joseph McGrath, the former Minister of Commerce, who, it had been said, was, with others, preparing to resign from the Dail.

After the meeting the situation which has grown out of the Army troubles brought to light by the recent "mutiny" was described as much easier.

The adjournment of the Dail was inevitable in the circumstances, whatever business might be called to its attention, but indirectly it benefited the ministers, who now have another clear day before presenting to the legislators the Cabinet solution of the existing crisis in the Army and the ministry.

Cosgrave's Humiliation.

President Cosgrave, who himself moved the adjournment, said with reference to the shooting:

"In its deliberation and savagery it has no parallel. It is almost inconceivable that any civilised country could produce four men who could plot and carry out such a foul, callous deed. All the annals of savagery may be searched, but I doubt if any worse instance can be found. It made our people at home and our friends abroad hang their heads in shame."

Woman Shop Manager Made London Freeman.

LONDON, March 26.—(Associated Press).—Among the names of England's most illustrious men which are inscribed on the roll of Freemen of the City of London now appears that of Miss J. D. Banbridge who is only a tea-shop manageress.

The honor has been conferred on Miss Banbridge because she has served as a waitress and manageress in London tea rooms for thirty-eight years and because she is known to everyone who amounts to anything in the city as the most efficient pleasant and kindly manageress in the city. She is a gray-haired, middle aged woman and gave a motherly smile to the Lord Mayor as she accepted the usual casket containing the scroll.

Miss Banbridge has seen many changes in tea shop life since she first became a waitress.

"I think the most striking is the disappearence of the 'bun and glass of milk' lunch," she said. "Girl clerks now sit down to a square meal of meat and vegetables at midday."

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Special Services in the Churches — Personal Mention.

MILLBROOK, March 25.—Rev. Dr. Strang, superintendent of missions in Southern Saskatchewan, a personal friend of Rev. G. S. Gervan's when the latter was in pastoral work in the west, preached in Grace Presbyterian church on Sunday morning and evening. Dr. Strang has come east to attend the meeting of the general board of missions of the Presbyterian church, which is held in Toronto annually, and also was in Peterboro on Monday in connection with the World Mission Conference in session in that city.

Dr. Strang is a very pleasing speaker and in both his discourses gave a concise outline of religious conditions in the territory for which he is responsible and which has a population of 365,000 people. Approximately 70,000 of these are Presbyterians, 66,000 are Anglicans, 45,000 are Methodist, and 11,000 Baptists. Many sects are also at work, the followers of Russellism making great headway. The speaker emphasized from peronal, experience, the errors of this form of religious propaganda and urged the immediate destruction of any of their literature coming into the homes.

The fact that there is no overlapping in the mission work being carried on in Southern Saskatchewan particularly in relation to what is being done by the Methodist and Presbyterian church, was clearly developed, as was also the great need of more workers. In a total of 129 townships the Protestant population numbers about eight thousand, and fully twenty-two per cent have only summer supply, and so are without any pastoral care for the winter months. In one entire community the total number of Protestant Sunday Schools conducted with any degree of regularity does not exceed thirty, and most of these are summer schools. Last year the statement was unchallenged that of 1300 school districts in Southern Saskatchewan settled by Anglo-Saxons, 30 were entirely untouched by the church. Children in the widely-separated rural districts, forty or fifty miles from a railroad, are retarded in their progress by no schools, or closed schools, and worse still by having no churches, and no Sunday Schools. Failing Bible instruction in the home, which with many is sadly lacking, they are growing up in entire ignorance of the Christian religion. Even a kindly Providence cannot do much with a people cursed with ignorance—"My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge."

These "builders in lonely places," constitute an appeal to church and State which must not go unheeded. Who will respond, cheerfully considering country superior to comfort, and patriotism higher than profit, that our nation may be built up in peace and righteousness?

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Johnston and Rev. G. S. and Mrs. Gervan sang a quartette at the morning service, and Mrs. Gervan and Mr. Johnston a duet at night, both numbers adding greatly to the enjoyment of the service, and being much appreciated by the congregations.

Miss Ethel Richardson contributed a solo, "The Plains of Peace," at the evening service in the Methodist church on Sunday evening, to the great enjoyment of the congregation. The pastor, Rev. S. T. Tucker, preached an able discourse from First Corinthians 1:21: "For after that in the wisdom of God the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe." The wisdom of the world was contrasted with wisdom in spiritual things, and to be "wise unto salvation" was shown to be the true wisdom, the though also being developed that happiness in its truest sense is not increased by the enlargement of the possesions, but of the heart.

Miss E. C. Hawken, missionary representative of the local Woman's Auxiliary will speak in the Methodist Church on Easter Sunday morning, the members of the Circle, Band and Auxiliary attending in a body ,according to their usual custom, and occupying the centre front pews. Either on Easter Monday evening, or the latter part of the preceding week, Miss Hawken will give an illustrated talk on her work among the Ruthenians in Alberta, with special reference to he pupils in the Kolokreeka Home and Boarding School at Smoky Lake. As Miss Hawken was for some years principal of the public school here, and has many warm friends in the village and vicinity, doubtless a large number will take advantage of the opportunity of hearing from her personally of her life work.

INFANTS DELIGHT

TOILET

Roads Bad Condition.

The roads being in a very bad condition the rural mail carriers have had great difficulty in covering their respective routes recently, Mr. Jas. Eastcott not making his round, south of the village, at all on Saturday. Rev. Mr. Gervan could not reach his appointment at St. Enoch's Church, Garden Hill, on Sunday afternoon. Rev. Dr. Strang of Saskatchewan, who was preaching on the Presbyterian circuit in the interests of missions, taking the Bible Class in the Sunday School instead of his usual afternoon service. Rev. S. T. Tucker walked to his afternoon service at the Zion appointment, the roads being unfit to get through with either buggy or cutter.

Epidemic Continues

Scarcely a week passes without Millbrook being still visited by occasional fire-extinguisher agents, since the council has already ordered from the local agent the two extinguishers which it was their original intention to buy, much persuasive eloquence is wasted in relating the merits of each particular make as "the best on the market." Business men and private housese are called upon but apparently few are persuaded to purchase. The reeve and concillors continue to have their dail mail augumented with circulars and other descriptive material emphasizing the value of these safety-first appliances.

A. J. Fallis, M.P.P., came down from the city on Saturday and spent the week-end at his home on the Fallis Line.

Dr. B. C. Whyte, of Raybrook Hospital, N.Y., was the guest of his mother, and also of Mrs. A. Wood, for a brief visit the last of the week. He and Mrs. Whyte left for Montreal on Friday evening.

Rev. S. T. Tucker went to Peterboro on Monday to attend the World Mission's Conference. As chairman of the district Mr. Tucker will preside at a missionary banquet to be held in the Methodist Church, Lakefield, on Tuesday evening. Two of the leading speakers at the World Conference are remaining over and will address the gathering at Lakefield which will be representative of the entire northern district.

Rev. G. S. and Mrs. Gervan, Mrs. H. W. Johnston, Mrs. C. Thorndyke and Mrs. W. E. Ball attended the World Missions' Conference at Peterboro on Monday. The mass meeting of all Women's Missionary Auxiliary workers in the afternoon, and addresses at night by denomination representatives from the foreign field were of especial interest to the delegates from Grace Church, Mrs. Gervan being president of the local Auxiliary. Mr. Gervan and Mr. Tucker went on the morning train in order to attend the ministerial session.

WILL CONSIDER RADIO LECTURES IN FURTHERANCE OF AMERICAN EDUCATION

MADISON, Wis., March 26.—(Associated Press— Establishment of national standards and uniform credits for extension departments of all American universities and colleges will be one of the chief topics to be discussed at the convention of the National Association of Extension Division Directors and Workers here May 8-10.

Of outstanding interest also will be the question of inaugurating radio classes in extension work. The convention will discuss methods of broadcasting extension courses by radio, as well as methods of sending lectures and statements of extension authorities.

KING ALBERT IN PLAIN STREET CAR

BRUSSELS, Belgium.—(By Mail to the United Press).—King Albert of the Belgians has endeared himself further, if such a thing was possible, by showing his democracy by riding in an ordinary street car and paying his 3-penny fare like a plain citizen.

The King was in the royal motor car when ice made progress impossible. When the driver convinced himself that progress was impossible, King Albert hailed a passing street car and jumped on. He did allow the conductor to break one rule by stopping in front of the palace instead of at a crossing.

Whether the King was able to get a seat or not the Belgian journalist failed to record.

BAKED BANANAS

Baked bananas are a tasty dessert if served with lemon or some tart sauce. You prepare them by removing the skins, laying the pulp in a baking dish sprinkled with granulated sugar and a little water, and bake in a hot oven until tender.

CHANDOS COUNCIL TO IMPROVE ROAD

News of Apsley and District--Several Log Drives From the North.

APSLEY March 25. — The Chandos Municipal Council is going to make some improvement in the roads of the township this summer. At a recent meeting it passed a bylaw to provide for the spending of $1700 for this purpose. Mr. Dave Wease is the new municipal clerk in the place of Anson Andrus, who is leaving Glenalda to live in another part of the province.

A Box Social.

On Friday evening a very successful concert and box social was held at Owenbrook school, the whole affair being organized and carried out by Miss Viola Prouty, the indefatigable teacher, with the object of raising money to purchase equipment for the school. The Rev. C. Spence of Apsley was expected to preside, but owing to the sudden break up of the roads, he was unable to make his trip and his place was filled by Mr. Chas. Woodbeck. In addition to the concert an autograph quilt containing 150 names, was a centre of attraction. The quilt was auctioned off during the evening and was knocked down for $6 to Mr. Sherrett. The total proceeds of the evening amounted to $42. Miss Prouty is to be congratulated on the success of the evening, and also for the meritorious work of the school children in the rendering of the programme, which was as follows. Opening, O Canada, by the school; recitation, Mrs. Walk; recitation, Morris Woodbeck, motion song, school; recitation, Jack Rosebush; dialogue, recitation, Alex. Daniels; recitation, Hilda Woodbeck, doll drill, school; recitation, Leslie Walk, dialogue, Taking the Census, flag drill, school; Song, Up with the Union Jack, Boys, school; recitation, Hettie Winters, Pearl Winters, Judd Daniels; physical training, school; recitations, Morris Woodbeck, Kenneth Mac; Dialogue, The Minister's Mistake; song, Pearl Winters; recitation, Edna Woodbeck; drill, Grandma's Day; recitation, Chas. Winters.

The Log Drives

No less than four "drives" will go down Eel's Creek this spring, and still there is an abundance of timber in this county. In addition to the drives, mills at Loon Lake, Owenbrook, and other places north of here are busy cutting lumber.

Radio News.

On Thursday last for the first time Mr. Spence succeeded in tuning in on his radio set the Toronto Daily Star. Some time ago he caught the Northside Aid Service, Sudbury, Ont. So far these are the only Canadian stations heard in Apsley. An elaborate receiving set has been installed at Coe Hill by Mr. Rolands, it is reported.

Roads Breaking Up.

The sudden break up of the winter has made the roads in this vicinity practically impossible to travel. The only way to navigate them at present would be with a combined cutter-buggy vehicle so that wheels could be used on the bare stretches and the runners in the shady spots, where the snow is still a few feet deep.

A number of butterflies were noticed on Saturday and Sunday.

Another unmistakable sign of spring is the quantity of milinery boxes every mail brings to the post office.

Sap Running.

Maple sugar making will become general this week. Indeed so keen are some to take advantage of the ideal weather for this process, that they started "tapping" on Sunday.

Personals.

Mr. Knox has moved from the village to Jack Kilborne's, to be near the new sawmill, which he hopes to have in operation by June 1st.

Rev. E. and Mrs. McTavish are away for a few days.

RELIGION BY RADIO.

The International Bible Students Association of Brooklyn, N. Y., is going into the radio broadcasting field to transmit not only Bible talks and lessons, but educational and other helpful features. It will have two equipments, one in Class A, to be station WBBR, and the other in Class B, not yet named.

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

Here's an easy way to save $2, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 16 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for $2.50.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Celebrates Third Birthday.

The members of L.O.B.A. No. 351 held their third anniversary in the L.O.L. Lodge rooms on Tuesday, March 18. The evening commenced with a good program of vocal solos, recitations and piano solos.

One of the most pleasing features of the occasion was the presentation of a jewel to the P.M., Sister Mrs. F. Nevin, by W.M. Sister Mrs. C. H. Story on behalf of L.O.B.A. No. 351.

Euchre was indulged in, ten games being played. The prizes of the winning players were also given out: Ladies' first, Miss Marjorie Andrews; ladies' booby, Miss Elsie Neale; gents' first, Mr. Harden; gents, booby, Mr. W. Jenkins. Afterwards a lunch was served.

The success of the evening was due to the splendid efforts of the committee in charge, and it certainly proved to be an enjoyable and memorable occasion.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of Examiner:

Sir,—The people of Canada and the U. S. had better take stock of themselves and their doings before we are utterly ruined. The celebrated oil scandals have now been followed with exposure of the evasion of taxes scandal, in the U. S., with other sensational exposures around the corner waiting to be heard. In Ontario we are passing through a similar era. What is the matter? The answer is a very plain and simple one. This Continent has devoted itself to the absurd idea that laws can reform and protect it. The old idea that we must exalt honesty, sobriety, self-control, honor and respectability was thrown to one side, in the belief that the policeman, the magistrate and the gaol were better than the church, the school and public opinion as citizens and reformers. The consequence is that laws and policemen have been increasing in number and severity, while respectability, individual honor and the proper pride of a true man and woman have been disappearing. How could it be otherwise? How can you exchange the appeal to reason and conscience for force and expect to make a better people by it? No one with any thinking power worth calling such could expect such a thing. The collapse has come. Corruption is rife. There is not only no honor any more—there is no pretence of it. People no longer say, "That is surprising. We did not think he would do such a thing." They say, "Do you think the police will get him? If he can escape the law by hook or by crook he will be all right. No one cares now or sets value any longer upon the respectability of the individual. Can he escape the police? That is the question." The immense weight of public opinion, which used to be more effective than all the police in the land in preventing crime, if not in punishing it, is no more. It has been thrown over for a different remedy, and we cant' have the coercion of the respectable man or woman and his loyalty, too. If you do not give him credit for his good conduct by giving him liberty and responsibility he will turn on you. Why not? When a man finds that decent conduct no longer counts, and that it has been displaced by law, that he might be a model and yet he is treated as if he were a criminal, what can you expect? You can't sow tares and get wheat. You can't ignore the self-esteem of respectable people and expect them to retain it. People will be just what you make them. If you treat decent people as criminals you will get criminals; and that is just what is happening on this Continent. Respectability and individual honor were ignored in favor of force, and you have the result—no honor, no pride in respectable conduct, but every species of lying, corruption and robbery known to the worst people in history. You ignore Christianity, civilization, education and all the arts of peace in favor of the arts of war and of criminality—and you have got them. If you do not soon learn better and see your mistake you will have an utterly ruined people whose rising generation will know nothing of personal self-respect and responsibility, of conscience and public opinion, but only of a law that considers them criminals to begin with and which it is their sole object to avoid. Surely the fruits of folly are providing an ample harvest.

Floating Specks Before The Eyes Means Liver Trouble

When specks start to float before the eyes, when everything seems to turn black for a few seconds and you feel as if you were going to faint, you can rest assured that your liver is not working properly.

The essential thing to do in all cases where the liver is slow, lazy or torpid, is to stir it up by the use of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and clear away the accumulated mass of waste and poisonous matter from the system.

Mr. Chas. Ayland, Frankville, Ont., writes:—"I used to be awfully bothered with floating specks before my eyes, headaches and sickness to my stomach. I took just half a vial of your Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and ever since I have felt as well as I ever did. Now I always keep them on hand."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Cutler explained that the dinosaur relics were unearthed by the Germans in what was then German East Africa, at a spot in Tendargaru, Tanganyika Territory.

"The skeletons are of enormous size" he said. "These reptiles were about 22 feet high and from 6 to 80 feet long, and it has been stated that the African specimens were even larger. They flourished from eight to ten million years ago."

It is also expected to discover human fossils, from 500,000 to 1,000,000 years old.

PREFERRED SUICIDE TO A DOUBLE MURDER

Dumortier, still conscious when the police found him, explained that he went to Lille from Paris to kill two persons who had caused his brother to be arrested as a spy during the war. Dumortier sought vengeance, but he found that his intended victims were an old man and his wife.

LONDON OFFICE FOR DOMINION APPROVED

Caustic Debate in Committee Followed by Vote of Approval, 37 to 32.

OTTAWA, March 25. Canadian Press. — With all but some eight or nine of the Progressives absent from their seats, Parliament at 10 o'clock this morning approved in committee by a vote of 57 to 32 an item of $1,300,000 covering the cost of the purchase of the new Canadian office in London. The Conservative members voted to a man against the appropriation. The Government drew support from a few Progressives who remained for a division.

For two hours preceding the division there was a scene unequalled probably in the life of the present Parliament. The usual wide limits of committee discussion were extended to include charges and counter-charges, allegation and denial, the culmination of which came in the angry retort of the Prime Minister to Mr. Meighen:

"The Prime Minister has the right to ask from any member of this House, let alone from the leader of the party, that he stick to the truth."

The inability of Ministers to provide details of purchases coupled with differences of opinion among them as to the exact state of negotiations at the moment, committed the administration to a defense of the action of committing Canada to the purchase of the Union Club site. Fuller explanations by the Prime Minister came too late to make up for an apparent lack of knowledge on the part of his chief lieutenants, and left the way open for a slashing bombardment by the opposition.

MEXICAN CHILDREN ARE LIKE FATHERS.

Thousands of Men Have Fought Six Major Revolutions and Many Minor Ones In the Last 13 Years.

By BOB DORMAN.

TEJERIA, Mexico, March 26.—Born in a box car. Raised in a box car. Life a succession of box cars. And cartridge belts for playthings!

Mexico is breeding a race whose only outlook on life is formed by a soldier's environment.

Thousands of men have fought six major revolutions and many minor ones in the last 13 years.

And with them were their wives and children.

From Cradle to Grave.

Babies were born in box cars—the Mexican troops' mode of transportation. They grew up, are still growing up, surrounded only by the things of war.

Their education is the daily life of a Mexican soldier. Their horizon is bounded by the laws of military necessity. Their playthings are the tools of war.

The only trade they can learn is how to make war. And their only view of a natural existence is war.

Children whose playthings were cartridge belts in the revolution of Madero in 1911, today shoulder rifles as soldiers.

Thousands of others are learning by example the same grim trade.

Soldiers Like Fathers.

Take Rafael Mendoza. He is 25, and a soldier in the Federal army. His father was a soldier of Diaz.

Rafael was raised in a box car. He was 10 when Madero revolted. He went—in a box car—with his father and mother to help put down the rebellion.

Today he is married. Two healthy boys—born in a box car—ride with him and their mother in a box car, to put down another rebellion.

Two healthy boys—one a year old, the other six—play with cartridge belts.

"Won't they make fine soldiers?" asks proud Daddy Rafael as he fondly gazes at two babies playing with cartridge belts in the bright sunshine—two babies learning the trade which has well-nigh ruined their native land.

THAW AND HIS MOTHER

Harry K. Thaw, slayer of Stanford White, is in the limelight again. Aided by his mother, whom he has just visited in Pittsburgh, he is launching another fight for his freedom. If successful in obtaining his release from the Pennsylvania State Hospital at Philadelphia, he plans to take a trip around the world.

CHURCH UNION AND THE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND

The claim is made by Unionists in the Presbyterian Church of Canada in connection with the present discussion on Church Union that the polity of the United Church is Presbyterian, and, hence, that the only thing which the Presbyterian Church when entering the Union will lose is the name "Presbyterian." It is claimed that the Church will not lose the thing itself, and that the United Church will be Presbyterian in its polity and its doctrine.

It is interesting to note the interpretation put upon the "Basis of Union" by a member of the Church of Scotland, Professor W. A. Curtis, D.D., D.Litt., of the University of Edinburgh. One so far removed from the scene of controversy with the "Basis" before him ought to be able to give an unbiased interpretation of what it means. The following paragraph will make clear the position of this distinguished Professor in the Church of Scotland. He says:

"It had been hoped there, as in Australia, that the Anglican and Baptist Churches would join in the movement, and though that action proved impracticable, the second sentence in the 'Basis of Union' now agreed upon by the conferring churches maintains the same hope: 'It shall be the policy of the United Church to foster the spirit of unity in the hope that this sentiment of unity may in due time, so far as Canada is concerned, take shape in a Church which may fittingly be described as national.' Only in one of the conferring churches is there a dissenting minority. Such Presbyterian ministers and congregations as may elect to remain outside the Union are to receive their share of the property of the Church. It is easy to understand their concern lest they should lose their identity and their place in world Presbyterianism, but a perusal of the 'Basis of Union' makes it clear that the United Church will maintain a definitely Presbyterian polity and a form of doctrine in harmony with the Presbyterian consensus. One may therefore hope, with all consideration for the scruples of loyalty, that the threatened schism will not take place, and that this impressive experiment, the counterpart in the Colonies to the Union movement in the mission field, will be given a fair opportunity to succeed. If success crowns this bold enterprise, as well it may, since each of the uniting denominations has manifestly been brought nearer to the others during the course of its own development, an example will have been set which cannot but influence the Old World."

HELPING HAND BIBLE CLASS GAVE CONCERT

"Out in the Streets" Was Well Presented by Good Cast.

There was a large crowd in attendance last evening in Victoria Hall, for the presentation by the Helping Hand Bible Class of Park street Baptist Church of an enjoyable concert, which included a series of instrumental and vocal selections, and the presentation of a short drama, "Out in the Streets." Mrs. A. Nicholls, teacher of the class, had charge of the programme, and directed the play. Rev. W. E. Morrow occupied the chair. During intermissions, the orchestra of the Park street church gave several well rendered selections.

Vocal contributors to the first portion of the programme included Mrs. H. Doig, Mrs. E. Kitney and Mr. J. Browne. Readings: "Fallen by the Way," and "Mrs. Brown Goes to the Play," were given by Mrs. A. Nicholls and Miss Katherine Taylor gave a violin number.

The drama, "Out in the Streets," was presented in splendid fashion by the class, under the direction of Mrs. Nicholls. It dealt with the rascality of Solomon Davies, a plausible gentleman, who acted as agent for Colonel Wayne, an irrascible old man, and in the course of his villainous career, turned the colonel's sister and her child out on the streets. The eviction scene was a thrilling affair, with a policeman in attendance, and there was an element of comedy interjected by the Colonel's old darky servitor. The finale shows a reunion of the colonel and his sister, and a foiling of the villain's plans.

The little play was well enacted and well staged, and the crowd present responded in enthusiastic fashion to the efforts of their entertainers.

Roles were taken as follows: Col. Wayne, an irascible old gentleman (Mr. George Stobo); Solomon Davies, a plausible rascal, (Mr. J. Beckerman); Matt. Davies, his dissolute son (Mr. George Nicholls); Dr. Medfield, Nina's lover, (Mr. Alf. Thompson); Pete, Col. Wayn's saucy darky, (Mr. Neil Porter); Policeman, one of the finest, (Mr. W. Saunders); Mrs. Wayne, the Colonel's wife, (Mrs Batley); Nina Wayne, their daughter, (Miss Gwen Nicholls); Mrs. Bradford, Colonel Wayne's sister, (Mrs. A. Nicholls); Minnie, Mrs. Bradford's child, (Miss I. Killenbeck.)

HER CHILDREN HAD WHOOPING COUGH

This is one of the most dangerous diseases of children. It starts with fever and cough. The cough is at first short and sharp, but gradually increases in severity and occurs in sudden spasms, vomiting follows, and sometimes there is nose bleed; the child turns livid in the face, the eyes appear as if they would burst from their sockets, and suffocation seems emminent till relief is brought on by the "whoop."

Dr Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will clear the bronchial tubes of the collected mucous and phelgm and in this way ease the racking cough, and in a short time make is disappear.

Mrs. L. Ambrose, Sarnia, Ont., writes:—"My little ones were both sick with whooping cough. I read where Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup was good, and I only used two bottles and they were better. I had chronic bronchitis for three years and tried everything until, finally, I got 'Dr Wood's'. I would not be without this remedy."

Price 35c. a bottle; large family size 60c.; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE STREAM OF LIFE SHOWN AT ST. JOHN'S

A very fine picture, entitled "The Stream of Life," was shown in Pathescope form in St. John's Parish House last evening, under the auspices of the Sunday School of the church. This picture is one of a series of four of the same type, another, entitled "From the Manger to the Cross," being scheduled for showing at St. John's in the near future.

"The Stream of Life" depicts the career of a young farm boy who goes to a big city and eventually becomes successful, amassing wealth and happiness until the death of his only child, a little girl, brings to him and his wife a realization of their empty manner of life, in its absence of any form of religion. How the two turn to God is illustrated beautifully, and the final scene shows the death of the man and his meeting his wife and child on a little lake, where a boat takes them to a far, peaceful horizon. The beautiful coloring of many of the scenes and the attractive manner of the theme's handling made this a memorable picture.

STARTS AS SAILOR ENDS AS A JUDGE.

He Made Frequent Visits to the Boys He Had Sentenced At San Quentin Penitentiary.

By A. H. FREDERICK.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 26.—The "middies" used to call him "Magic."

And among his old cronies at Annapolis—most of them rear admirals today—Curtis D. Wilbur still wears that monicker.

The name has meant considerable to him. Something almost magic finally has sent him back to the life he's always loved.

"Magic," the mathematics shark at the naval academy and left tackle on the Navy eleven in the 80's, is returning to the service, not as a green ensign, but as the navy's boss.

"My earliest dreams," he says, "were of a sailor's life. But who could have guessed my career as a lawyer and jurist was fitting me to return to my first love?"

Lawyer and Judge.

Wilbur left the navy four months after his graduation from Annapolis. His father was a lawyer and wanted his son to be a lawyer, too.

For a year he taught school in Los Angeles, studying law at night. In 1890 he was admitted to the bar.

Nine years later he became district attorney. And another four years saw him elected superior judge.

He inaugurated the first juvenile court in Los Angeles and drafted bills that formed the basis for California's juvenile laws.

Followed his transfer to the criminal courts. The same thoroughness marked his work there.

Verdict and sentence did not close a case for him. He made frequent visits to "his boys" at San Quentin Penitentiary. More than one ex-convict owes a fresh start in the world to Curtis D. Wilbur, the judge who sentenced him.

Wilbur was named a supreme court justice in 1919. Four years later he was chosen chief justice.

The year before he entered the district attorney's office, Judge Wilbur married Miss Olive Doolittle. The wedding was the culmination of a romance begun in the high school at Jamestown, N. D.

At "C. E." Convention.

Wilbur's departure for Annapolis and Miss Doolittle's matriculation at a boarding school in Fairbault, N. D., interrupted their courtship—save for frequent letters. It was renewed when Miss Doolittle came to San Francisco to attend a Christian Endeavor convention. Wilbur met her at the depot.

The Wilburs have four children. They are Edna May, a teacher in the Chico (Calif.) high school; Lyman D., a civil engineer at Redwood, Calif.; Paul Curtis, a senior at the University of California, and Leonard, 17, in high school here.

Judge Wilbur's chief hobby is his home. He's never passed the responsibility in rearing his children to his wife.

Wilbur likes camping trips, hikes, radio and the movies now and then. But he's never played golf.

Teaches Bible.

Until recently the Wilburs found much pleasure in their auto—"the same car we've had for seven years," Mrs. Wilbur explained. Now one of the boys away from home is using it.

The judge is a regular churchgoer. He also teaches a Bible class.

Mrs. Wilbur is president of the parent-teacher's association of the school her youngest boy attends. She's a director of the Board of Missions of the Pacific, a director of the Y. W. C. A., and a member of the Y. M. C. A.'s Mothers' Club.

Her household duties, however, occupy most of her attention.

"Yes, I do my own housework," she confesses. "The children, of course, help me a great deal.

"In Washington, though, I suppose I'll have to get somebody to help me."

Mrs. Wilbur says the judge leaves all the home financing to her.

"We've had to be careful," she says, "for it's no easy matter to do as we've done and put four children through college on $6,000 a year"

The judge is an author, too. He's written several books of bedtime stories.

Now, he's writting one about the navy.

Speculation in Francs Caused Vienna Panic.

VIENNA, March 26. — Canadian Press Cable via Havas. — A panic occurred on the stock exchange here on Tuesday, and securities dropped 15 per cent. The newspapers admit that the fall in quotations was chiefly due to unsuccessful speculation on the franc. They suggest the temporary closing of the stock exchange.

Big Oak Tree Gives Texas Boy Good Business Start

DALLAS, Texas, March 26.—(United Press).—One of these days, within the next twenty years, certain magazines that feature successful business men's careers may have occasion to point with pride to the achievements of Thomas Haggard of Dallas.

Just now Thomas is 11 years old, but already he shows the foresight of the successful man of finance. For Thomas has capitalized his brains and a big oak tree into a thriving business venture.

The venerable oak, with large, spreading branches, stands just outside the fence surrounding the Dallas Texas League baseball park. From these branches Thomas, who is an ardent baseball fan, and his playmates, have watched all the games played in the park and cheered their favorite players.

Suddenly Thomas conceived the big idea. Why not nail short planks in the branches thereby affording fairly comfortable seats, take over the oak tree concession and charge 10 cents admission, or rather, ascent?

This Thomas did. Seats are accessible by means of a long ladder. Thomas cleared away the hiding branches and nailed up the planks for the choice seats. His own "office" is a board at the lower fork of the tree, where the ladder reaches. Each youthful fan pays Thomas a dime and then scrambles for the best available seat in the tree.

During the baseball season Thomas does a good business, averaging a dollar or more a day. On Saturdays, when the boys don't have to attend school, the big tree is dotted with shrill-voiced fans.

Thomas' success has not been easily acquired. His two good fists have prevented other boys from taking over the unusual concession. If any boys attempt to "crash the gate," Thomas from his perch hauls up the ladder and because the tree trunk is slippery, with no friendly limbs, it is next to impossible to scale the oak. Thomas' battles are frequent, but so far he remains the sole magnate in charge of the big tree.

Lead is largely used in glazing pottery and porcelain.

WH 'S WHO IN THE STORY

Prudence Page—a charming country girl, has fallen in love with

Bert Traymore—a fascinating philanderer, whom a chance meeting brings into her quiet life.

Janet Mercer—Prudence's dearest friend, an older woman, plain but clever, is masseuse to the delicate child of

Mrs. Vansittart—a pleasure-loving woman-of-the-world, owner of Winston Towers, a beautiful summer home.

Virginia Dale—her ward, is a blase beauty, who counts Traymore among her many swains. She is genuinely interested in

Peter Armstrong—a brilliant young inventor, clever and ambitious. His marked attention to Prudence at a ball at Winston Towers leads Virginia to call on the girl the next day in order to ascertain just how far things have gone. Traymore, who has put off meeting Prudence's mother, until the young girl comes to doubt his professed love, choses this day to make his call. He is embarrassed at finding his two sweethearts together, and the situation is awkward, until Peter appears on the scene.

Virginia contrives so that Prudence shall see a love-letter to her (Virginia) from Bert.

Janet, the sensible, has long been madly in love with Will Ogilvie. Now he comes to tell her that he is going abroad. He must say good-bye.

From Ogilvie's outburst, Janet suddenly realises that Will is jealous of Peter Armstrong.

CHAPTER XXVIII

Janet Coquettes

Will Ogilvie . . . jealous of Peter Armstrong!

Janet's breath was completely taken away!

It was so utterly ridiculous. So entirely stupid.

And yet—and yet—her heart was hammering in her bosom with relief, a blissful, almost incredible hope!

For jealousy cannot spring into being in conjunction with indifference. Jealousy implies love. Yes, even although stern moralists and idealists assure us that true love casts out jealousy as unworthy and degrading.

"Will loves me after all!" rang in Janet's brain like bells of music.

Meantime, Peter Armstrong, all unknowing the storm he'd caused, was striding down the drive towards the approaching pair.

"I won't come any further, Janet. You—you'll want to be alone with him, I'm sure." Despite the gruff, surly utterance, Janet caught a boyish break in Will's voice that completed all she wished to know. "I'm off."

"You're nothing of the sort, you silly creature!" In full view of the unwitting 'disturber of the peace,' she caught Will's arm, and hung on for dear life. The temptation to burst out laughing over the bare idea of Armstrong being 'interested' in her, must, at all costs, be withstood.

For it wouldn't do her cause the least harm just to let Will feel there might be another rival in the field . . .

"I never did have enough feminine arts and wiles," thought Janet, humorously, suppressing an almost uncontrollable impulse to giggle heartily over the present 'impasse'. "But if I laugh at Will—and dear knows the best of men hate to be laughed at!—I'll not only make him angry, but I'll put myself outside the pale of the women who keep their lovers just a teeny bit uncertain of them by having an occasional 'other admirer'. My goodness! Didn't I tell Prudence Prudence Page how stupid she was to give her whole heart openly to anyone? And now I'm ready to make the same blunder a second time, when a perfectly good weapon has turned up to help me!"

Not that Janet had the least intention of deceiving Will. Oh no! Nor would she make a fool of herself by attempting coyness with young Armstrong! She had commonsense, and used it.

Still, there was nothing to be gained by assuring her sweetheart that no other man had ever looked in her small grey-green eyes and found them beautiful as he had done.

"Oh, is that you, Miss Mercer? Lucia's waiting for you." And Peter Armstrong's breezy voice cut into the strained silence that had fallen on the lovers.

No greeting could have been more matter-of-fact or unemotional.

But love is blind. And indeed Will Ogilvie imagined that the inventor had only hung about the big house in the hope of a meeting with little Lucia's masseuse.

"Sorry, I'm late," cried Janet, not stopping on her way. "I hope the child isn't in much pain today?"

"Oh, so-so." Then, vehemently: "It's a blot on the world that children ever have to suffer pain!"

"Queer chap!" commented Will Ogilvie, when Armstrong had passed on. He gave Janet a quick, sidelong glance. Had she encouraged him?

"A very fine fellow!" was her ready answer.

"Oh, I know you've thought that, for some time."

"Well, who wouldn't? Hasn't he worked hard, and earned his meed of praise? Look what he's doing in the interests of science! Look at the fame he's already got!"

Will muttered something about others working just as hard, more so, and getting no recognition.

"Oh, we all work hard," said Janet, airily, fighting the temptation to assure him that—success or failure—she was his always, and wanted nothing more from life.

The young man's face had a look of sullen pain about it.

"If I had my way, you wouldn't have to work at all, Janet."

She contrived a little laugh, although her voice had a tremble in it as she said:

"My dear, I'm not born to be an ornament, or a lily-o'-the-field. I'm not decorative enough. So don't take the only thing that's left away from me."

He grabbed her hand.

"Oh, Janet——"

"What is it, Will?"

"If you only cared in the least little bit about——"

"About what?" (Dear heaven! he did love her, after all! Pain had slipped away forever, and only a great gladness reigned in the wide world tonight.)

"About my going away. You—you take it so—so gaily!"

"Well, as Shakespeare or some other writer-person has it, isn't that the only way to take the 'slings and arrows of outrageous fortune'.?"

"'Outrageous'? You—you mean it would hurt you—my going away?" That finest feature of his homely face . . . his eyes . . . dark, rather tragic orbs they were, and moody . . . were filled with the light of hope and eagerness. "You'd really miss me, Janet? Would you?"

She tossed her head exactly in the fashion of a pretty, much sought-after woman. Risky, these tricks were, but Will had hurt her so frequently of late, that he didn't deserve to be reassured too son!"

"Oh the grand old world 'ud keep on turning, just the same, even though you were on the other side of it, and fourteen thousand miles away!"

"Then you have got someone else? I knew it!" he flung at her. "Oh Janet . . . and . . . and . . . oh, it's unbelievable!" His voice broke.

Then he added, passionately:

"I'm through with women. I'll never look at another one again. Tomorrow morning I'll hand my resignation in at the bank, and go right ahead with my arrangements, and nothing—not even you—will stop me—"

He looked so like a little boy at that moment—an angry, pathetic, disappointed little boy—that Janet had great ado to maintain her present role of cool detachment.

She managed it, however.

With widened eyes she asked:

"But didn't you tell me that all made? What's been keeping you?"

He stopped at a bend of the avenue, branches made an eery sighing, almost like a sob.

"You, Janet! I—cared for you—and I—I thought you reciprocated—"

She faced him, hidden from the big house by a thick wall of trees.

"Do you think when a man is always doubting a woman, and keeping away from her, and making her unhappy, that she wouldn't be rather a fool to let herself go on caring?"

He caught her hand so tightly that, had she not loved him so, she would have cried aloud in pain.

"You—you did care, then, Janet?"

Her control snapped. Tears brimmed over.

"Will, you—you goose! The thought of you going away, hurt so—so terribly—that I just couldn't speak about it! And—and let me tell you this——"—a smile glimmered through the tears just like a rainbow—"if you do go away to the ends of the earth, you won't get rid of me! I'm coming with you!"

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Clive Roberts Larton

THE TRIAL OF THE TIN SOLDIER

"You may go on with the trial," declared Mister Fuzz Wuzz, the pipe-cleaner man, in a loud voice.

Nancy and Nick wondered who was to go on with the trial, but by and by the patent-leather cat got up, pulled down his red jacket and stroked his whiskers, and said soberly: "Ladies and gentlemen, I am here to take the part of the tin soldier. He didn't mean to run over the peanut boy and break his nose."

"I object!" barked the rubber dog, "and please don't get me excited or I shall whistle through the top of my head. Perhaps he didn't mean to do it, but he did it just the same and I demand that he be punished."

Mister Fuzz Wuzz took a hammer and rapped loudly. "Order!" he called.

The cat and the dog and all the rest of the Doofunnies became quiet at once.

"I just wanted to say," said the cat switching his long tail, "that the tin soldier never touched the peanut boy. It was his horse."

"Then," spoke up the rubber dog quickly, "Let's punish the horse. I insist that somebody be punished for breaking the peanut boy's nose."

"We shall call witnesses," said the cat with dignity. "I can show you that neither the horse nor the soldier were to blame. Will you please to tell your story, Mr. Tin Soldier."

MORE THIS

"Certainly, sir!" said the tin soldier, riding up on his tin horse. "But if you please, I'm a general, sir!"

"Tell your story, please, general," corrected the cat seating himself with dignity and smoothing his white neck ruffle.

"That sound smuch better," said the general. "It was this way. I was riding along Candy Street in Doofunny Land, when, without a bit of warning, the wooden waddle duck came rushing along as though he had been shot out of a gun. My horse shied to one side and then I heard a crunching. That's the first I knew of the peanut boy being anywhere near me. It was his nose that was being crunched."

"Hear! Hear!" cried the patent-leather cat, springing up. "It is the wooden waddle duck who should be on trial. It was all his fault!"

"Please call the duck!" ordered Mr. Fuzz Wuzz.

"Good!" said the dog, and he sat down and everybody else sat down, and the wooden waddle duck waddled up with a great clatter.

"Quack! Quack!" he declared. "What do you wish me to say?"

"Tell how you happened to scare the tin-soldier's, ahem, the general's horse," commanded Mister Fuzz Wuzz.

"Sure I will, your honor," said the duck. "But if anyone could have been more scared than I was, he was a dandy."

"Don't say 'dandy' here," ordered Mister Fuzz Wuzz.

"Beg your pardon. I'll say he was in a bad way then," said the duck.

"Don't say, 'I'll say' in this court," thundered Mister Fuzz Wuzz. "No slang is allowed."

"Is this a trial or a grammar class, please?" mewed the cat.

Nancy and Nick forgot where they were and laughed.

"Order!" thundered Mister Fuzz Wuzz so loudly that everybody jumped.

LONE LOGGER'S LEG FRACTURED

Ezra Goodrich of North Marmora Struck By Log When Chain Slipped Off—First Robin Reported.

MARMORA, March 26.—A serious accident took place last week when Mr. Ezra Goodrich, North Marmora had his leg broken. He was getting out some logs, and had his team hitched to the end of a long slender pole. The other end was frozen solid to the ground, and the chain slipping off, the log flew back with great force, badly crushing Mr. Goodrich's leg. He was alone at the time, and before being found he had made several efforts to get on the horse's back or ride the whiffletrees.

Mr. Goodrich's friends are very anxious about his condition.

The teams of Mr. Wm. Flynn, which have been working in the lumber camps near Sudbury, were brought back to town on Saturday. They were all in good shape after the long winter in the woods.

Lenten Service

On Friday evening last, a special Lenten service was held in St. Paul's Anglican Church, taken by the Rev. Albert Redding, of Bannockburn. As it was almost the first anniversary of the death of the late Canon Harris, the service was also a memorial service in his memory.

The lessons, which were read by the Rev. W. H. Towle, of Rawdon, were chosen from passages of the Wisdom of Solomon 3 and 5, and Phillipians 3.

The Rev. A. E. W. Smart, of Tweed, spoke on the text, "It we live in the spirit, let us also walk in the spirit," Galatians v. 25.

In speaking of the late Canon Harris, he said that all who knew him felt that he fulfilled this condition in his life. His life embodied the holiness and power of God.

In the present times it is very easy for Christians to fall away and become as the world instead of "walking in the spirit." Rev. Mr. Smart emphasized this point during his whole discourse.

The anthem, "Behold the Lamb of God," was splendidly given by the choir. This selection was chosen for the occasion, because Mr. Harris had selected it for the use of the choir shortly before his death.

The hymns chosen were also very suitable for the occasion: "Hark, the Sound of Holy Voices," "Oh paradise, oh Paradise," and "The Saints of God," were those sung.

Next Friday, the Rev. W. H. Tawle, the incumbent of Rawdon, is the preacher at the Lenten service at St. Paul's.

Owing to the Rector fulfilling a preaching appointment, there will be no evening service at St. Paul's this forthcoming Sunday.

Instead of the regular evening service in the Methodist Church Sunday night, slides showing the life of Christ were given. The slides were remarkable for the beauty of the scenes depicted altogether aside from the value of the knowledge of Christ's life which was given.

HEALTHY FOOD POISONS MANY

Excellent Meal Turns to Poison Causing Poor Digestion, Constipation, Sick Headaches and Nervous, Run-Down Condition.

Eating too much and too rapidly clogs the liver and weakens it. When in this condition the liver fails to supply the juices so vital to proper digestion and elimination—and it fails to filter and purify your blood.

The result is self-poisoning which makes you feel dull, tired and run-down.

This explains why a sluggish liver is attended by such symptoms as constipation, biliousness, sick-headaches, sourness and gas on a weak stomach, loss of appetite, pains in the back and sides, and a nervous, run-down condition—symptoms that lead to the dangerous and expensive sickbed unless corrected in time.

Dr. H. S. Thacher, noted medical practitioner, perfected a wholesome vegetable prescription to keep the liver healthy. It is giving quick relief and renewed strength, energy and vigor to numbers here. This prescription, known pharmaceutically as Dr. Thacher's Liver & Blood Syrup, doesn't cost much, pleasant to take and contains only ingredients that are known to physicians for their corrective and health-building properties.

Try this great prescription, yourself. Notice the quick difference in the way you look, eat, sleep and feel. You will be completely satisfied; otherwise, there will be no cost.

Dr. Thacher's Liver & Blood Syrup is sold and recommended by J. P. Bond, McDermid & Jury and The Warne Drug Company, Ltd., in Peterborough; The Tanner Drug Company, in Lakefield, and by leading druggists in every city and town.

Motor Bandits Held Up and Bandits Take Car.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., March 26. — Three men in a closed automobile held up Burt Willett, his sister Edna Willett, and another woman, Edna Wilds, all of Medina, on the Gasport-McNalls Road east of this city early on Tuesday, and after forcing them form their car at the point of revolvers, robbed them and escaped, taking with them Willett's machine.

The bandit car, according to Willett, followed them for more than a mile, attempting to pass, and one shot was fired. Willett finally turned out and the machine shot by, and then stopped, forcing Willett to bring his car to a standstill. Only meagre descriptions of the bandits were obtained.

Your Health

By DR. CLIFFORD C. ROBINSON

HEALTHFUL REDUCING.

To anyone who is seriously considering the job of taking off from 50 to 100 pounds of non-working fat it must seem a herculean task.

But healthful reducing is just as easy as any other routine work faithfully carried out.

All of you considering any reducing programme must thoroughly understand one very important thing. How much are you to reduce and still be healthful and strong for your daily tasks? I advise a careful health examination by a real physician before any reduction is attempted.

No one diet will suffice for all. The diet of a fat person of 25 or 30, who is doing inside light labor or housework, must vary from the diet of a person 50 years of age, weighing 225 pounds and employed in outside work.

Any reducing by boys or girls under 19 or 20 years of age should not be attempted without the careful advice of a dietary expert or your own physician.

In all attempts at reducing the amount of calories demanded by a normal working body should not fall very far below the average 2500 or 300 per day. A reduction of 1000 calories a day would be excessive except in unusually strong bodies.

HEALTH OF THE MIND

Health of the mind and health of the body are bound together in a strong union. The healthy mind can do wonders for the physical body. It determines what intellectual feats can be entered into without undue exertion or serious strain upon our physical constitutions.

Mental hygiene is responsible for certain bodily conditions, which are the outgrowth of anger, grouchiness, lack of ability to apply one's self to industrious habits and loss of respect for life's success.

If mental hygiene can determine one's emotional and intellectual capacities, we have a most interesting problem in the health of the physical body.

If you allow certain occurrences to influence or upset your mental poise, producing worry, poor digestion, lack of proper sleep, irritability and false ideas in sizing up or judging others, you are starting your physical body down hill at a rapid pace. Loss of weight through these emotional tendencies will cause a great letup in your strength and working power and you are dangerously near the rocks of physical breakdown.

In adjusting the individual through mental hygiene, to a better environment and happier state of affairs, one is without doubt increasing his usefulness and physical fitness to marked degree.

The human race is slowly learning that a poor mind will cause the body to go wrong and that health of the mind is the true factor of success in producing a healthy body.

ROSENEATH GIRLS' VARIED PROGRAM

Celebrate Birthday of the Honorary President of the C.G.I.T.—Interesting Contests Were Feature.

ROSENEATH, March 26 .—A very enjoyable evening was spent on Wednesday last when the Canadian Girls in Training met at the home of their leader, Mrs. Andrew Brown, to celebrate the birthday of the honorary president, Mrs. Walsh. All the members were present, and as each one was allowed the privilege of inviting a friend, there were about forty persons present.

While waiting for the later ones to arrive, the hostess planned a bean contest. Each one was given five beans to start, and were supposed to ask the others questions, and on receiving the answer "Yes" or "No," won a bean as forfeit.

Then the regular programme commenced and tickets were drawn to get partners for progressive crokinole. About an hour was spent this way, and the winners were Miss Ella Campbell and Mr. J. Gray.

The baby picture contest came next. This was in charge of Miss Vera Varcoe, and proved very interesting as it was quite original. Each girl member brought her baby picture and numbered it. They were divided into groups of threes, and were each given a chance to guess the names of the babies. The winners of this contest were Misses Irene Brown and Gladys Blodgett and Mr. Meredith Brown, who received a box of home-made candy. The booby prize, a lemon, was won by Messrs. Jim Gray, Clifford Brisbin and Bruce Arthur.

The drawing contest, in charge of Miss Irene Brown, created much laughter. Each one was given a slip of paper with the name of an animal on it and was required to draw the picture of it. The two considered the best were the stork and the mud turtle.

Mrs. Walsh gave a contest called the "Picture Gallery." Each picture was represented by some articles on the table. As sixteen candies stood for "Sweet Sixteen," it required a lot of thought and skill to guess these answers, but Miss Eva Thompson and Mr. Egdar Braithwaite found most of the answers.

Then all were divided into families of six for the contest of a floral love story. The Brown family were winners of this contest.

During the evening, the president, Miss Ella Campbell, read an address, while Miss Irene Brown presented Mrs. Walsh with a sterling silver, ever-sharp pencil as an appreciation of her help and interest in the Group. Mrs. Walsh, although altogether unprepared for the surprise, made a very suitable reply, thanking the girls for their splendid co-operation.

To get partners for supper, postcards were cut in two pieces in various shapes. A very sumptuous lunch was served, provided by the girls, consisting of sandwiches, tarts, cake, pie, home-made candy, and lastly, a birthday cake. This created much excitement, to see who would get the articles in it. The ring went to Mr. Clifford Brisbin, the money to Miss Mary Braithwaite, and the button to Mr. Harold George.

It was moved by Miss Ella Campbell, and seconded by Mrs. Walsh, that a hearty vote of thanks be given Mr. and Mrs. Brown for their hospitality.

DEADLOCK BETWEEN MINERS AND OWNERS

(By Lloyd Allen—United Press).

LONDON, March 26.—Following the announcement of a deadlock in the negotiations between the miners' leaders and mine owners, the British Cabinet met at 10 Downing Street to-day to consider an impending crisis in that industry, the third time the Government will have been called upon to face in its brief tenure of office. At the same time, a national miners' delegates conference, representing 800,000 workers, met.

The existing wage scale in the mining industry expires April 17, and conferences have been under way for some time, seeking to adjust differences regarding a new scale. The Board of Trade announced officially early to-day that these have broken down completely. The employers suggested a court of inquiry which the miners rejected unqualifiedly. It was forecasted that to-day's delegate conference would recommend a nation-wide ballot of the miners to ascertain whether the workers are willing to strike to force the acceptance of their terms.

The Minister of Mines will take a hand in the controversy to-morrow.

If his intervention fails, there is said to be the alternative to save the introduction in the Commons of a minimum wage bill for the industry as promised by the Government.

If the House should defeat this bill, it would mean a debacle for Premier MacDonald's Government.

WHY CONTINUE TO SUFFER?

From Stomach Complaints, Rheumatism, Kidney, Liver or Bladder Troubles, Lumbago, Piles, Female Internal Disorders, Eczema?

Have you tried every form of Patent Medicine and Medical treatment imaginable without obtaining relief? Instead of an improvement in your condition, you find that the affliction is steadily gaining a firmer hold—your system is gradually becoming weaker, and generally, life is a burden to you.

It is an established fact that there is no substitute or artificial preparation that the genius of man have ever been able to invent that can successfully take the place of plain wholesome food or pure water as provided by Nature. Then does it not stand to reason that Nature has provided in like manner for the alleviation of human suffering? No thinking man or woman can refute the soundness of this argument.

Lang's Mineral Wonder is not a Patent Medicine or Quack Nostrum. It is not a man-made preparation. A study of its analysis shows beyond a doubt that it was specially designed by Nature for the purpose of keeping the human body healthy strong and vigorous. Because it contains the exact vital mineral-salts with which the blood and human system must be supplied constantly to maintain health, strength and energy. This has been proven repeatedly by the men and women who have used it.

For the various ailments mentioned above, there is no artificial treatment that money can buy that will produce such marvelous healing action and renewed vitality as this genuine product of Nature. It removes the cause of the trouble and completely renews the whole system by building up new, red blood corpuscles, replacing broken down tissues and revitalizing every organ of the human body. In the language of a gentleman just the other day who had proven the wonderful healing qualities of this Nature product, he said:

"IF THE PUBLIC COULD ONLY KNOW WHAT THIS MINERAL WONDER WILL ACTUALLY DO FOR THOSE WHO SUFFER, YOU WOULDN'T BE ABLE TO SUPPLY THE DEMAND. I NEVER EXPERIENCED ANYTHING LIKE IT IN ALL MY LIFE."

This is exactly what Lang's Mineral Wonder offers you—renewed health and strength in every sense of the term which you have failed to obtain through any other source. The length of treatment necessary to accomplish this varies to some extent. But in the majority of cases no matter of how long standing, from two to three months treatment will make you feel like a new being—with renewed health and spirits and a new enjoyment of life.

Your condition will show definite improvement in a few days after commencing to take this Mineral Wonder, but it would not do justice to either the patient of the product to stop there. Because the action of the Mineral Wonder is directly through the blood which is naturally a slow process. Consequently it must be used for a reasonable length of time to enable it to perform its good work thoroughly. A full two months' treatment will cost you just eight cents a day. Then why suffer longer?

If your druggist hasn't got Lang's Mineral Wonder do not accept any substitute as there is nothing "just as good." A regular treatment will be mailed promptly by the distributors on receipt of $1.50, or 4 for $5.00. Take advantage of the special quantity price. You will find it will be the best investment you ever made.

THE CHURCH UNION QUESTION

In a recent issue of the Examiner there appeared an article entitled, "Growing opposition to union of Church," in which article reference was made to Knox Church, Peterboro. As minister of Knox church and in the happy position of moderatrr of a session in which obtain harmony and unanimity concerning our church policy in the present controversy, I write to say that the writer of the above-mentioned article is in no way connected with and has no authority to spea kfor Knox church. He is an agitator and a busy body playing the contemptible part of meddling with the affairs of a congregation of which he is neither a member nor adherent, and that in spite of definite warning from me. Similar warning was given to advocates of church union.

Our policy is to retain Christian harmony and peace among our people, and for this reason we desire no outside interference from any source whatever, Unionist or anti-unionist. This policy is in line with a recommendation unanimously adopted, supported by unionists and anti-unionists, at a recent meeting of Peterboro Presbytery held in St. Paul's church. his recommendation follows: "That this Presbytery expresse disapproval of any method of approach to a congregation which is a violation of Presbyterian proceedure, and which interferes with the constitutional right of a minister and session to supervise the internal affairs of the local congregation. And furthermore, we would respectfully request sessions and congregations within our bounds to seriously consider before signing pledge-cards or petitions presented to them in this irregular way by any person whatsoever."

I would respectfully suggest to the agitator in question, who took upon himself to speak for Knox church through the columns of the Examiner that his methods tends to alienate sympathy from the cause he represents. Instead of seeking to disturb the peace of a neighboring church let him devote his time to physiognomy and horticultur. His religion will then be more effective. "t is an honour for a man to cease from strife: but every fool will be meddling."—Proverbs 20:3.

M.C. MACKINNON,
Minister of Knox Presbyterian Church.

CHINA AND RUSSIA NOT SATISFIED YET

Russia's Hope Has Been Realized and Now China's Politicians Are Fighting Amongst Themselves.

(By Ray G. Marshall, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PEKING, March 26. — The Soviet emissary, Karakhan, to-day delivered note to Dr. Wellington Koo, the new Chinese Foreign Minister, insisting that China sign a preliminary agreement drawn up by Karakhan and former Minister Wang or begin all over again at the bottom and recognize unconditionally Russia, before negotiations are resumed.

The Russian note states that Russia has no intention of exceeding conditions contained in the original agreement and indicates little hope of the resumption of the negotiations.

It is learned that a strong Chinese element opposing the recognition of Russia depended upon the developments in the internal political situation to break down the negotiations. Their hope has been realized, and now China's politicians are fighting among themselves.

PETERBORO AND INDIAN RIVER HELD A DEBATE

At the regular meeting of the Peterborough U.F.Y.P.O., held last evening in the rooms on Simcoe street, a debate between Peterborough and Indian River clubs took place on the resolution: "That intemperanc causes more misery in the world than war." The decision went to the affirmative ,taken by the Indian River club, thus putting Peterborough out of the running for the District Debating Cup, which goes to Centreville this year. If Peterborough club had won the decision last night, it would have had a chance to meet Centreville in a final round, the latter club standing highest in the district. Peterborough debaters were Harry Huston and Roy Sanderson, the contestants for Indian River being Cecil Boulton and Alex. Carlow. Judges were Miss Lynch from Indian River, Miss McCouie, of Peterborough, and Mr. A. J. Madill of the Normal school teaching staff.

SAYS PROVINCE NEEDS GOOD MAN

Ontario is Without a Deputy Treasurer Today

TORONTO, March 26. Canadian Press. — Ontario is without a deputy provincial treasurer to-day.

It is understood that the government will shortly make an announcement following the suspension at midnight of Charles A. Matthews, the deputy treasurer since 1920, and formerly secretary to the Treasury Department for many years.

Matthews was notified by Hon. W. H. Price, Provincial Treasurer, not to return to the Department offices, after the startling evidence before the Public Accounts Committee last night.

Commenting on the situation today the Toronto Star says editorially that the operations of the Provincial Treasury require the supervision of a capable financial man, and that the province never has had in its service an employee with the necessary financial qualifications.

"Premier Ferguson will face a heavy responsibility some day," says the Star, "if he allows the treasury office to blunder along in the same old way."

Disclosures are subject of all corridor gossip at Parliament Buildings. It is rumoured that further disclosures will be made on other transactions, although the next meeting of the committee has not been fixed.

Hon. W. F. Nickle said he had not yet considered the institution of any proceedings against anyone in connection with the sale of bonds to the Government. It is the intention of the committee, however, to bring everything to light if it can and to keep at work as long as it thinks there are any financial transactions which need explanation.

UNION BILL WAS UP AGAIN TODAY

Three Leaders Presented Argument in Favor of Measure.

TORONTO, March 26.—(Canadian Press).—The Private Bills Committee of the Legislature started consideration of the Church Union Bill this morning by hearing the chiefs of the three Churches, C. R. McKeown, M.L.A., Dufferin, who is sponsoring the bill in the House, introduced the speakers, who were: Rev. Dr. Gandier, Presbyterian; Rev. Dr. Chown, Methodist, and Rev. Dr. Gunn, Congregational.

Because of the huge attendance of interested people, the committee could not meet in the regular committee room, and adjourned to the reception room. Hon. W. F. Nickle is chairman of the committee.

Rev. Dr. Gunn said that 96 per cent. of the Congregationalists in Canada were in favor of Union, and that some of the four per cent. were foreign churches.

Rev. Dr. Gandier, who spoke 50 minutes, said he would be longer than the others, as there were some Presbyterians opposed to the Union Bill. He pointed out that over one-half of the Protestant population was asking for Union. They were not asking the Legislature to decide upon the creed or form of worship nor on the merits of Union. They were simply asking recognition in civil law of what had already been accomplished by the churches themselves. He said there were 3,000 congregations in Canada now which had some form of union. "Church Union," he said, "is not a theory. It is a situation in Canada we are facing as a fact. The present overlapping in home missions was one of the chief reasons for Union."

Regarding the Presbyterian Church, he said that the decision was no snap verdict. Presbyteries had shown themselves recently more determined for Union than ever.

In dealing with the right of the minority, Dr. Gandier said it was impossible to go below the congregations as a unit. He admitted there might be some hardships, but these would be on both sides. Churches that wanted to stay out of the Union might find themselves technically in the Union for a few months but that was all. They could then secede, according to basis.

He concluded his address by stating that three great Churches had given up their pride and their ambition to make one great Church for the greater aim of furthering the work of God. In the new Union Church there would be three great Church histories and three great traditions combined.

"The hour for re-union of Christendom has struck," said Rev. Dr. Chown, who declared that the Methodist Church was solid and unanimous to see that union was carried out. Union ,he said, was not sought to save money, but to prepare for the greater Christian work."

Thomas McMillan, president of the Presbyterian Church Association, opposed the Bill. He said the body he represented had no quarrel with the Methodists, but thought church work could be better carried out in Canada by co-operation than by organised union.

Criticising the basis of union, he said that there was no clause to compel a congregation to take a vote to get out of the union If the session board was favourable to union, they could prevent a vote in a congregation which was opposed.

He claimed that Dr. Gandier had no right t. appear as representing all Presbyterians,

M. MURRAY-DAVEY.

English-European Basso-Baritone.

Mr. Murray-Davey is one of the most picturesque singers ever seen on our stage. He somewhat resembles Louis Graveure; same sort of beard, hair rather long, an air of dramatic distinction, with a voice big and resonant and luxurious enough to make any programme he chooses to give, a continuity of changing interest

Mr. Davey has the art of making his voice do a great variety of things ,dramatically, with no suggestion of stridency or effort. He never overdoes a top note for the sake of being brilliant, and he gives his low tones the full energy of vitality. His recent introductory public recital in Toronto simply packed Massey Hall, and he was the recipient of very gratifying expressions of enjoyment and appreciation.

Mr. Davey was born in the Island of Guernsey, Channel Islands, and holds the distinction of being the first Englishman who ever appeared in leading roles at the Paris Opera or the Royal Opera in Brussels.

Monte Carlo was another operatic centre to count him amongst its lumigaries. He has sung all the principal bass roles in Covent Garden with Caruso, Scotti, and others. He has also appeared with Melba and Tetrazzini, and with Maggie Teyte, sang the role of Arkel in Debussy's "Pelleas et Melisande" after studying the part with the great composer himself.

Many more brilliant performances could be quoted to the credit of this distinguished artiste, and Peterborough is indeed fortunate, through the efforts of the Peterborough Male Voice Choir, in having an opportunity to hear Mr. Murray-Davey at their annual concert in the Grand Opera House on Friday next, 28th March.

With Mr. Murray-Davey will appear Miss Nellye Gill, a distinguished soprano, Mr. Gladstone Brown, the renowned provincial concert tenor. All three make up a wonderful galaxy of talent for this organisation's fourth annual concert.

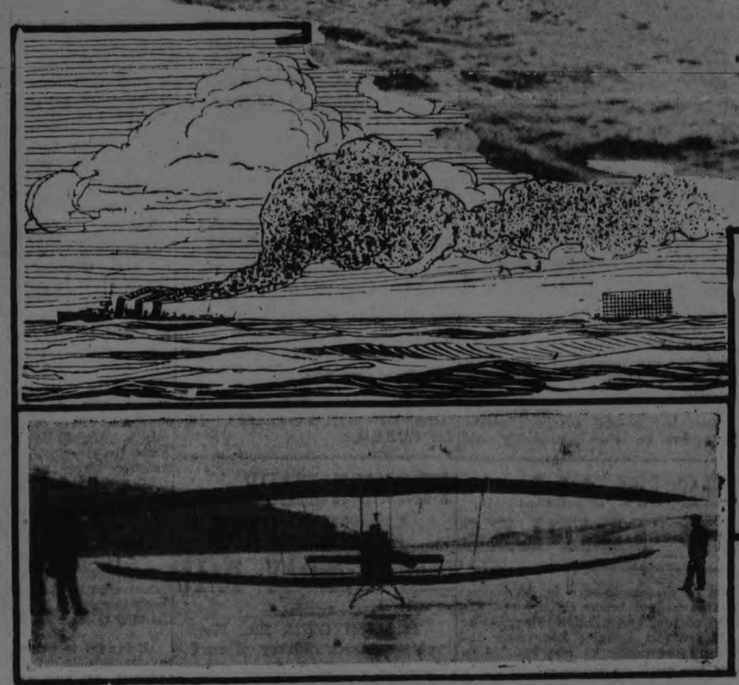
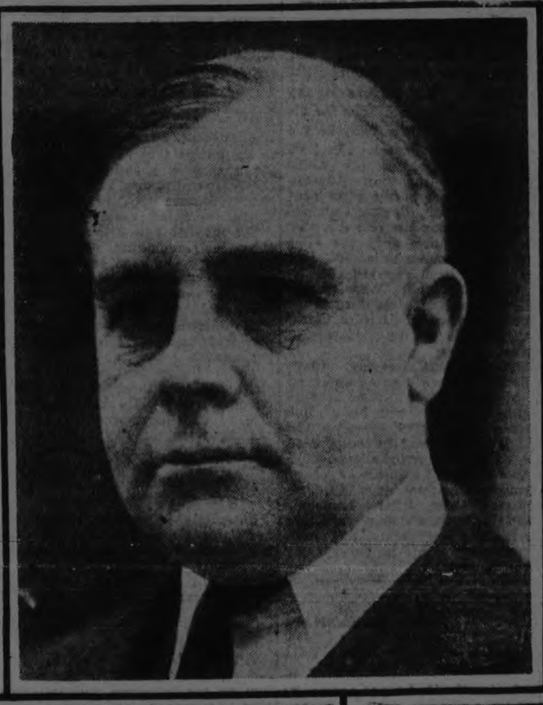
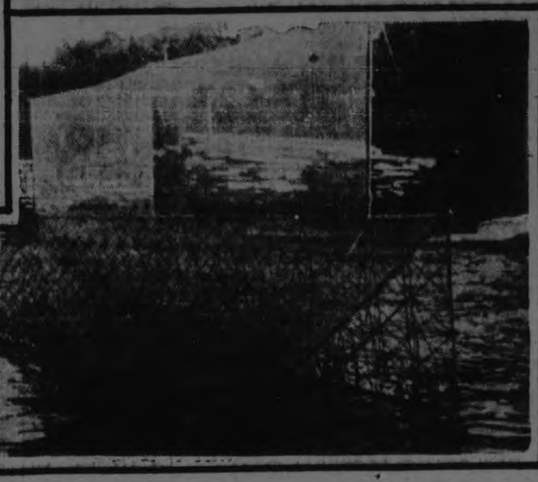
Canadian Revolutionizes Naval Battle Practice, "Casey" Baldwin Invents Amazing High-Speed Target







It was the Canadian destroyer, Patriot, that performed the first essential experiments that led to the high speed battle target. Above is shown H.M. C. S. Patriot towing the torpedo-shaped H.D. 4 at 30 miles an hour. Hitherto no boat had been towed at a greater speed than 10 miles an hour. It was from this experiment that Mr. Baldwin was sure that hydrofoils would solve the problem of speed for battle targets. In the centre diagram the Patriot is shown again towing Mr. Baldwin's model target in Baddeck bay, Capt Breton. Below is Red Wing, on the ice at Hammondsport. It was in this plane that "Casey" Baldwin made the first public flight on this continent in 1908.

Above is shown "Casey" Baldwin, famous Toronto University rugby captain, associate of the late Dr. Graham Bell and inventor of the high speed battle target. Below is a view of the rear hydrofoil of the H.D. 4, strange steel stepladder affair structures attached under the boat which, combined with high speed, keeps the hull entirely out of the water with only the two lower steel plates under water.

After the firing. Commander Reid of the Canadian destroyer, Patriot, is examining one of the 58 hits on the model target. Mr. Baldwin's first target, a multitude of sticks, covered with a wire mosquito netting sheath, resting on hydrofoil pontoons, is seen below just before the Patriot made its tests.

Famous Toronto Sportsman Applies Hydrofoil Principle to Hull of Target and It Can Be Towed at Any Speed Without Drag

By C. R. GREENAWAY

IT will be a sensational heading. Some day soon you will see it in the papers, maybe from England, maybe from the United States. It will look like this: Battle Practice Revolutionized, Navy at Last Has High Speed Target."

Canada did it. F. W. "Casey" Baldwin—the famous "Casey" of Toronto University rugby fields—designed it—the same old adventurous Casey who sailed across to England on the 45-foot yawl, Typhoon, in the fall of 1920.

This is the story of the high speed target in advance, because the other one is sure to be wrong when it comes. Somebody, as usual, will get Canada mixed up with the United States navy or an English firm now making a model.

Even the Canadian navy played an indispensable part in the first critical tests. This, too, will astound a great many people who always thought of the destroyer Patriot as a fascinating pink tea shop.

It was one day last spring that people heard the Patriot firing in Baddeck Bay. Cape Breton people, as a matter of fact, don't pay much attention to what goes on in that vicinity, where the late Dr. Graham Bell's laboratories are situated conspicuously on the shore. One day, in the spring of 1918, it had been a weird-looking glider, a sort of aeroplane torpedo, that had shot down a track from its hangar and began tearing about the peaceful Bras D'Or lakes at the terrific speed of 71 miles an hour. Anything was apt to happen there, where Dr. Bell and "Casey" Baldwin were always building boats that seemed to sit on steel step ladders that mysteriously lifted the hull out of water to permit them to skim through the air.

Almost five years afterwards the Canadian Destroyer, then Canada's Atlantic fleet, slid into Baddeck Bay one morning, and took this same torpedolike hull, dismantled of its engines, in tow. Around the bay it zigg-zagged, circled and turned sharp corners, with the big cigar-shaped thing at the end of a line.

That was the beginning of the high speed battle target. There had never been a target that could be towed at more than ten miles an hour. Now they had pulled the old glider on steep step ladders, more technically known as hydrofoils, thirty miles an hour without any real drag.

There were busy scenes in the laboratory on Baddeck Bay for the next few months. Although Dr. Bell was dead, Mr. Baldwin had kept the staff together; and he now turned all his efforts to designing a model naval target on the hydrofoil principle embodied in H.D. 4, as the terrific speed boat had been called.

It was a strange V-shaped trestle affair that the H. M. C. S. Patriot took in tow in Baddeck Bay a few months later. It rested on two pontoons, each of them a miniature H.D. 4. Mosquito netting covered the whole roof-like structure, made up of a framework of wooden rods radiating from connecting metal joints. Crowning the whole structure was a sort of garden fence. Almost like a jump in a steeplechase it looked as it tore behind the torpedo boat without effort and the guns began to send up great spouts of water as the shots struck close. Punctured by 58 projectiles, the frame work still held solid even against the tremendous towing strain.

The HD 4 Idea

THE United States navy was interested. Two targets were ordered from Mr. Baldwin. Then one day, on June 18, 1923, to be exact, an interesting "show" was staged at Hampton roads naval operating base. Two tugs towed the strange roof-like structures out to sea in a thick fog. Naval board, camera and moving picture men, and reporters, followed in the U. S. S. destroyer Reuben James. Then the sun came out soon after noon, and the Reuben James, instead of the Patriot this time, began to tear through the sea at 25 knots, firing at the target in its wake. In brief reports that night a few American papers spoke of the wonderful new targets which had been built by the navy at Hampton roads.

Naval men were impressed. It could be called almost a glowing report compared with the usual run of such naval affairs. Not only did the target offer possibilities for torpedo defense, but solved the problem for aircraft bombing and torpedo gun practise. Hitherto nothing had been towed at a speed of more than ten knots. Here was a target that could go as fast as the fastest torpedo boat, a comparatively inexpensive frame work that might be driven by motors, that might in countless realistic guises be controlled by radio to imitate enemy torpedo boats or submarines.

The new targets will simply be the Baldwin twist to the successful development of the H.D. 4 idea of lifting the hull of a pontoon or boat clear out of the water by a system of submerged planes not a part of the hull itself. In other words, it uses the denser medium of water to obtain the lift, and takes advantage of the far lower resistance to propulsion offered by the air.

You will notice from the detailed diagrams of the H.D. 4 and the model target that the steel planes are arranged in sets like the rungs of a ladder and graduated from large rungs at the top to small ones at the bottom. The faster the craft travels the more of the planes rise out of the water until only sufficient surface to carry the load remains submerged.

When looking at these planes for the first time, your impression is that they are ridiculously small to support such a large hull. But it must be remembered that the specific gravity of salt water is nearly 800 times that of air. This means that the area of the submerged hydrofoils need be only one eight-hundredth the size of wings of an aeroplane to lift the same load. It is almost incredible to the ordinary person, though true, that at 60 miles an hour every square foot of hydrofoil surface of the H.D. 4 supported a weight of approximately 2,000 pounds. At this speed the entire machine used to be carried upon about four square feet of steel blades under the water.

William Washburn Nutting has described the whole miraculous business in a report for the Smithsonian Institute of Washington. "If you want to hear anything for the rest of the day, stuff some cotton into your ears before the engines are started. Over goes the starboard motor with the crackle of a machine gun and those on the dock scurry from the cyclone caused by the whirring propeller. Baldwin gives the air to the port motor and the exhaust becomes a continuous roar. At 15 knots, you feel the machine rising bodily out of the water, and once up, clear of the drag, she drives ahead with an acceleration that makes you grip your seat to keep from being left behind. The wind on your face is like the pressure of a giant hand and an occasional dash of spray stings like birdshot."

"Baddeck, a mile away, comes at you with the speed of a railway train.

Differs From Racing Hydroplane

"THEN you notice that you are traveling over waves a foot and a half high—waves that would take the bottom out of an ordinary hydroplane traveling at such a speed. There is no pounding or jolting with which anyone who has ridden in a racing hydroplane is familiar. A slight undulation like that you feel in a Pullman car is the only sensation.

"As you get accustomed to the speed your confidence grows, and soon you find yourself out of the cockpit, lying over the edge of the deck on your stomach, to see for yourself what is really going on below. Save for the tip of an occasional wave, all the main sets of the hydrofoil are out of water except for the two lower ones on either side. It is true that each square foot of submerged steel is carrying a load of 2,000 pounds.

"Baldwin designed the H.D. 4 to demonstrate the possibilities of the type for carrying loads at extreme speed efficiently in fairly rough weather," says W. M. Nutting. "I simply applied the idea to the battle target," Mr. Baldwin explained, very diffidently, to The Star Weekly.

Away back to the early days of aeronautics extends this idea of the steel hydrofoil to lift a boat out of the water to make speed. "I thought then, and I still think," says Baldwin, "that it is the only rational way of getting high speed over the water. It is a far better way than the flat bottom boat skimming over the surface. The idea is to go over the water, rather than in it."

It was in an attempt to develop a submarine chaser that the H.D. 4 was designed and launched. And for speed compared with horsepower it has never been excelled. Compared with the C.M.B.'s, the faster British submarine chasers making 35 miles an hour, the H.D. 4 was like an eagle racing a crow.

Naval targets are even worse than that. At the present time, they are deep displacement boats, built on the principle of a plank on edge.

"We designed a form of truss to go together like a child's meccano outfit and to be supported on a series of hydrofoils," Mr. Baldwin explained. Instead of the old, heavy structures, this was a light one.

"Always, too, the idea of replacing portions knocked away was kept in mind. It was, therefore, built on a unit scheme. Floats, hydrofoils and sticks were all of a standard pattern. To make a larger target you simply put together more units. To repair the parts blown away you screw in more units. It is like a Ford car with standard parts. Besides, when all unscrewed, it can be shipped in a very compact form. It is a very easy matter to assemble or knock it down in haste."

Bombing with the new target can become an exact science. No longer is it necessary to wait for long intervals until old ships going out of commission afford the only realistic objects approaching battle speed for the bombing planes. Timing bombs in relation to height of planes and speeds of objects with the hydrofoil target can be worked out in detail.

Biggest Navies Interested

FOR zigzagging ships and torpedo practice the new fast target is unexcelled. As Mr. Baldwin observed, "The only way to hit is to get a fast moving object and hit it. Sometimes the navy will shoot at a destroyer with a dummy torpedo. But that is full of danger, for, with plating of only one-quarter to five-sixteenths of an inch, a destroyer is like a tin can that even a dummy torpedo may seriously dint. Sometimes they shoot between two destroyers. But here, again, the trouble is that they can't observe the result with any accuracy. Sometimes, again, they tow small boats astern of a destroyer, from which some poor unfortunate spray-soaked observer tries to see where the torpedoes pass."

For torpedo practice with the new hydrofoil target a man can be put on the structure itself. He can see whether a real hit has been registered by the wake of the torpedo which passes under the target six to ten feet below the surface.

It was in 1907 that Mr. Baldwin became associated with the famous inventor of the telephone, an association which lasted until the death of Dr. Bell in August, 1922. Graham Bell was the moving spirit of the Aerial Experimental Association founded in 1907 to make a machine that would fly in the air. Associated with Dr. Bell were Glen Curtiss, Thos. Selfridge (later killed in a Curtiss machine), John McCurdy and Casey Baldwin. It was at Hammondsport, in January, 1908, that "Casey" Baldwin, piloting Red Wing, made the first public flight in America, rising from the ice of the lake for a distance of 319 feet 11 inches. "The thing was to get the machine up into the air," Mr. Baldwin recalled. "You generally got down in a heap." In the second flight, as a matter of fact, Red Wing was absolutely smashed.

From that experimentary flight, however, Baldwin got the idea for the ailerons, or wing controls, as they are known to-day.

CARPENTIER MATCHED WITH TOMMY GIBBONS

Frenchman Guaranteed $70,000 For Ten-Round No-Decision Bout On July 4 — Carpentier Is Coming Early In June.

CHICAGO, Mahch 26. — Tom Gibbons, of St. Paul, challenger for the world's heavyweight championship, and Georges Carpentier, ring idol of France, were matched last night to meet in a ten-round, no-decision contest, either at Michigan City, Ind., or Benton Harbor, Mich., on July 4.

Carpentier was guaranteed $70,000 with a privilege of 25 per cent. of the receipts, while Gibbons, waiving all claims of a guarantee, accepted a flat 30 per cent. Jack Curley, representing the French light heavyweight, received a certified check for $15,000 guaranteeing the match.

The match will be promoted by Floyd Fitzsimmons, who owns arenas at Michigan City and Benton Harbor.

Fitzsimmons reserves the right to wait until May 10 to name the scene of the contest, but it is probable that he will select Michigan City, which is less than 50 miles from Chicago and very accessible.

In the event of the contest cannot be decided at either city, Fitzsimmons has arranged to transfer it to several local cities in the Middle West, among them being St. Paul.

The Michigan City arena has a seating capacity of about 27,000 and Fitzsimmons plans on increasing this to 35,000 or 40,000 if necessary. With the price of seats ranging from $5 to $25, Fitzsimmons figures the gate receipts will run between $300,000 and $350,000.

Carpentier has arranged to reach this country on June 1, ready to start training in the city where the contest will be staged. Gibbons, through his manager, Eddie Kane, agreed to accept no more contests after filling two engagements against minor opponents. The St. Paul light heavyweight will receive $5,000 for expenses, the same amount given Carpentier.

BELL TELEPHONE WIN MERCANTILE LEAGUE

The Bell Telephone by virtue of two straight wins last night against the Examiner won the championship of the Mercantile League. The Bell Telephone not only win the championship of the Mercantile League but they win the Gordon Cup and the first prize.

There was no doubt as to the outcome. The Telephone gang took the lead at the start and were never headed. They had it over the Examiner team in both games. They started off strong and finished that way. Only two games were rolled as the Telephone aggregation took the first two not necessitating a third game to be played.

Geo. Cairns and Leonard Hayward of the Examiner team tried hard to keep their team in the running but they could not overcome the handicap of the other small scores. Cairns rolled 420 and Hayward 386 for their two games. Hayward had the high single of the evening of 251 and Cairns the high two of 420.

The Bell Telephone boys were all in form and Gray was their best with 413 and Brown was next with 399.

The Bell Telephone finished in first place, the Examiner in second, and the Nashua Paper in third. All three teams figure in the prizes.

Three of the bowlers rolling last night figure in the other prizes. Lush has the high average for the league, Hayward has the high three games and Lush also has the high single. Cairns is one of the two in for the blind score. Every one of the prizes fell to either of these two teams except the blind score, and Ballard of the Nashua Paper has a chance to win that.

Following are the scores:

TORONTO BOWLERS HERE

The crack Toronto team which will be here Friday evening to bowl Geo. Dedman's all-star Peterboro aggregation at Solomon's Alleys are the Harris Dairy Company team. They are the same team which played in Montreal a couple of weeks ago for the McCallum Trophy. That they are strong team there is no doubt. But they will have their hands full defeating the Peterboro aggregation for Mr. Dedman is selecting the strongest ten pin team that can be secured in the city.

A great game is promised the fans and that a large crowd will turn out to see this battle there is no doubt. Fans know that a great treat is in store for them and they will be on hand in large numbers.

St. Louis Pitcher Out of Game For Season.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 25. — Vernon Clemens, star catcher, of the St. Louis Nationals, probably will be out of the game for the rest of the season, as a result of a dislocated cartilege in his left knee, suffered recently. The backstop was sent home by Manager Rickey, and after an examination by Dr. Robert Hyland, the club's physician, was ordered to an hospital. Dr. Hyland announced he probably would be there "for a long time."

Haddock, president of the United States Amateur Hockey Association, left to-night for Toronto, where he will confer with the officials of the Ontario Hockey Association regarding the differences between the two leagues, centered mainly upon the migration of players. From Toronto he will go to Boston to witness the championship hockey games between the Boston A. The schedule for the games to be played here has been protested by the Boston team.

BASKETBALL TEAM IN TORONTO TO-DAY.

The local Intermediate basketball team left on the 3.50 for the game with the Broadview "Y" in Toronto tonight. This Broadview team is a fast outfit but the Petes hope to make them step, and at least hold them to a close score and then win here by a large margin.

Doug. Loomis carried the strongest lineup he could muster to the big game. Following are the players: De Graw, Pogue, Stuart, Darling, Elliott, Hardill, Young, Kirn, McLeish and Fleming.

BOXERS FINED FOR STALLING

Delaney and Clarke Lose Part of Proceeds Because the Bout Was Stopped—Money Given to Charity.

TRENTON, N.J., March 25.—Both Jack Delaney and Jackie Clark have been penalized by Commissioner Newton A. K. Bugbee of the State Athletic Commissioner for alleged stalling in their bout in the Newark Armory March 17, last, which was stopped in the ninth round by Chief Inspector Adams. From the reports of the show presented to him Mr. Bugbee concluded that Clark was the real offender Had the exhibition gone the limit of the twelve rounds scheduled, Delaney would have received $1,850, and Clark $650, but Commissioner Bugbee lopped off one-third from Delaney and two-thirds from Clark, which amounts will be donated to charity.

Beginning next Tuesday, Commissioner Bugbee also announced that Mickey Walker, the welterweight champion, will be eligible to again box in New Jersey. On April 1, the six months' suspension imposed on Walker for alleged stalling in a bout will expire.

From information which Mr. Bugbee has received from Inspector Adams, the Commissioner says that Tex Rickard is contemplating staging three big fights in New Jersey during the year.

JACK WILLIAMS WRITES FROM SAVANNAH.

More late news of Johnny Williams, now with the Rochesters of the International League, came to Belleville in a letter received by Mr. Raymond Carr, from Williams himself. He is feeling fit and is getting along fine, he writes. He has has been working hard every day and is one of twenty pitchers the Stallings team has tried out. He has been told that he has all the requirements of a pitcher except experience and Rochester will give him that for it is expected that he will be one of the second string pitchers carried by the team. He said in the letter that the Rochester team were to play a series with the New York Yankees right away, and he expected to have something to send home in his next letter. Williams said that he was getting along fine with the rest of the players, and even Stallings seemed to have taken a notion to him. The letter was written from Savannah, Georgia.

IRISH BOUNDARY LINE EMBARRASSES RAILWAY

DUBLIN, March 26.—(Associated Press).—The recent meeting of the Great Northern Railway revealed some conspicuous embarrassments caused by the partition of Ireland, which the chairman said is now two countries. Sixty percent of the railway is in Northern Ireland and forty percent in the Free State. The line crosses the border 14 times, and at each of these points there is a customs barrier delaying travellers.

The company is also embarrassed by the question of double income tax, and it requires a tedious readjustment before the shareholders get their returns. It is urged that a friendly modus vivendi between the two Governments in such a matter which affect both parts of Ireland is of more importance than a readjustment of the boundary.

HEAVY FRUIT CROP COMING EAST.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 26.—(Associated Press)—The Pacific Fruit Express announces that it has ordered 3,775 new refrigerator cars to carry fresh fruit and produce from California to eastern consumers. In 1923 the company owned an operated 30,000 refrigerator cars. In 15 years it has increased its equipment by 345 per cent.

Sisler's Eye Trouble Forces Star to Change Entire Style in Field and at Bat

SISLER IS BETTER BUT NOT CURED—STILL BIG PROBLEM AS TO PLAYING.

By JOE WILLIAMS.

MOBILE, Ala., March 25. — George Sisler, gifted first baseman and youthful manager of the St. Louis Browns, has come back from the darkness—but he is not yet basking in the bright sunshine of perfect vision.

While the condition of his right eye, affected by sinus a year ago to the extent that he was unable to see a thrown bbaseball all during the 1923 season, may be said to have improved amazingly, it is still several degrees below normal.

Six months ago Sisler had difficulty in recognizing you. Sisler could not see to read or write. His situation seemed to be at a standstill. He wore heavy, amber glasses. He avoided meeting people, and kept to himself, watching the Browns play from an obscure box in the upper stands.

Today Sisler recognizes you instantly. He no longer wears glasses on or off the field. A small mountain of sporting pages lay on his reading table the day I called and he was elbow deep in correspondence. "I didn't know a manager had to write so many letters," he smiled.

Seemingly he wants people to know for themselves that his eyes are better. A total stranger accosted him in the lobby of the Battle House and, with less discretion than decency, asked the usual question. Sisler took off his hat and answered, "Take a good look and see for yourself, old man."

All this notwithstanding, Sisler is not yet the Sisler of old. Watch him on the ball field and you note that he favors his right eye—the affected one—and places a major burden on the left. Going after a high ball in the infield he cocks his head to one side and makes what might be called a "left-eye" catch.

At the bat his position reveals the same tendency to follow the flight of the ball with the left eye. Where formerly he faced the pitcher squarely, now his head is turned to a point where the right eye is almost on a line with first base. Yet he hits the ball solidly and in the field is as dexterous as ever.

Sisler Merely Improved.

"You are a better first baseman with one eye than anybody else in the league," argues Tobin, the right fielder.

Granting that Sisler will continue to get better—and everyone seems to believe he will—it probably will take him at least six weeks after the race starts to climb back to the height of his form.

For one thing that year's layoff will be a handicap, which must be overcome.

Another thing, Sisler's eyes are merely BETTER, not COMPLETELY CURED.

BOSTON TEAMS IN ALL UNASSISTED TRIPLES

Paul Hines Made First Three-Ply Killing at Providence In 1878 — Only Five Recorded In All Major League History.

When the first unassisted triple play in baseball history was sprung at Providence on May 8, 1878, in which Paul Hines entered the Hall of Fame by erasing the Boston team in the twinkling of an eye, there was such excitement and confusion among spectators, reporters and players alike that few of them realized just what had happened until they thought it all out overnight. There are many persons still in Boston who remember the play distinctly and always recall it with a thrill.

That play stood a towering monument of that kind. In the National League it was never duplicated until forty-five years and five months later, when Ernie Padgett, a Braves "rookies" was recalled from the minors just in time to bound into fame with a "sudden death" performance against the Phillies on Braves Field.

Two In A Season.

Padgett's play came, unfortunately, at the last gasp of the season, October 6, when the Braves were closing their schedule for the year with a double-header. It was the second game of a double bill, and the play came as nearly the last one of the game—the fourth inning—the contest being called at the end of four and a half innings. For that reason Padgett has never received the credit he was entitled to for his great performance.

George Burns, first baseman for the Red Sox, had also become the hero of a similar play less than a month before in a game against Cleveland, the season of 1923 having thus been the first in baseball annals to register two of these record achievements.

Out of the Air.

In all major league history of forty-eight seasons, only five unassisted triple plays have been recorded. Strangely enough, Boston teams have figured in every one of the four made in regular seasons, the fifth having been pulled off in a World Series battle. In the American League Cleveland has had a hand in all three of the plays.

Boston teams had an even break in the results, victims in the first and beneficiaries in the second. Cleveland was a winner in two and a loser in one. Two shortstops are numbered among the heroes—Neal Ball, of Cleveland, and Ernie Padgett, of the Braves. Paul Hines was the sole outfielder in the hero list; while George Burns was the only first baseman, and "Bill" Wambsgnass the solitary second baseman to annex the honors.

The rare unassisted triple play comes with such startling suddenness that spectators rarely have time to sense its importance until they see the players walking off the field. But two of the plays supplied genuine thrills to the fans. Hines' play was in this class. With runners on second and third, he ran in from deep centre field for a high, twisting fly, caught it at shortstop's position and raced on to third, which both runners had passed, and had only to touch the bag to effect his three-ply killing.

Burns' play was even more sensational, in that it gave the fans a chance to yell while it was being accomplished. With runners on first and second, he plucked a high liner out of the air, touched the runner off first, then engaged in a sprint with a fast runner for the second bag. Burns slid into the base and completed the third out by an eyelash.

Boston Not Ready For Professional Hockey.

BOSTON, March 25. — Boston will not exercise its franchise in the National Hockey League of Canada next season, the directors of the Boston Arena announced after a meeting to-day. Recently Charles F. Adams, a director of the Arena Company, purchased a controlling interest in a franchise of the National League.

"It was the sense of the meeting that owing to the financial condition of the company it would not be expedient to try to put on professional hockey at least for the next season," the statement said. "If there is an opportunity to obtain a franchise in the National Hockey League for the season following it would be seriously considered."

PROMISE MADE MOTHER BANS SUNDAY BALL

BRADENTOWN, Fla., Mar. 26. — Branch Rickey doesn't manage his Cardinals on Sunday, as everybody knows.

It isn't that Branch has any scruples about Sunday ball, as captious critics frequently claim.

Rickey made a promise back in the old, old days to a certain beloved member of the family that he'd never play ball on Sunday.

When that promise was made Mother Rickey—still with great reluctance—gave her consent to his ambition to become a professional ball player.

Go ahead and let 'em kid, you, Branch, about Sunday baseball. You weren't the first boy to make a promise to his mother nor yet the first one to regard it as sacred.

HOLD BOWLING FETE THURSDAY EVENING.

Thursday a bowling fete will be held at the Y.M.C.A. A picked team consisting of the twelve high lady bowlers of Belleville, will make the trip here to play the twelve best rollers that the Y.M.C.A. Burgess, M. Ross, E. Nicholl, H. Crowe, E. Coulter.

Belleville has a strong ladies' league composed of twelve teams wwho have been bowling all season. The local girls have been bowling for the past four months so are now adept at "knockin 'em down."

The tournament will start at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and will consist of six games in all. The representatives will be divided in two teams.

After the games a banquet will be served to the visitors and all the Y.M.C.A. lady bowlers.

The NUT CRACKER

BY JOE WILLIAMS

BRADENTOWN, Fla., March 26. —It's easier to count the raindrop in a March shower than the ball players in this village.

St. Louis, Syracuse, Houston and Fort Worth players are here. The Spalding Guide has replaced the Gideon Bible in the hotel rooms. You sleep on catchers' mitts instead of pillows. The bellhops wear sun glasses and the hotel manager bosses the joint from a dugout.

Branch Rickey is interested in more different leagues than Hughey Jennings has freckles. Most of Rickey's players are different too.. Much different from those you see on teams like the Giants and the Yankees. Maybe that's why you don't see pennants fluttering in St. Louis.

Mr. Rickey still declines to run his National League on Sunday ...Sunday is a day of rest. In this respect, Mr. Rickey has a decided advantage over the St. Louis fans. They get no rest.

Across the bay in Palmetto the Milwaukee team is training. With Milwaukee this year is Dixie Walker, the belligerent pitcher. Walker is slow rounding into form this spring. We saw him today and he only has one black eye.

A sign on the bridge crossing Manatee river reads, "Plenty of fish Here." It is suggested another be posted reading, "Beware of Orange Grove Salesmen."

Baseball is called the great American pastime. You get a splendid idea of how thoroughly Americanized the game is by studying the Cardinals' roster. Your optics collide with such fine old Continental names as Gransbach, Pfeffer, Sherdel, Wigington, Niebervall, Bottomley, Freigau, Torporcer, Mueller and Schultz.

Our cup companion, Mr. One Punch O'Goofty, is quartered at a tavern adjacent to the local railroad yards. Mr. O'Goofty finds it very hard to sleep. At intervals trains saunter hither and yon on the tracks, amid much clanging of bells. Mr. O'Goofty, through force of habit, leaps from his bed every time he hears the clanging bells and begins shadow boxing.

MONTGOMERY, AlA. — Connie Mack says he is liable to surprise the boys this year . . . By that he means he may take on a little weight.

* * *

It is easy to believe that Mack was a crack catcher in his day. .. Indeed, he still resembles a crack somewhat.

* * *

The Athletics' training camp here is a natural bowl, so the pitchers have very little trouble with their soup bones.

* * *

* * *

The Athletics were in second place at one time last summer, and then slumped to sixth. Mr. Mack assures you this will not happen again. . . . The inference being, we suppose, they will never be second again.

* * *

A Rookie pitcher with the Athletics is named Bannister, and it is presumed he keeps in condition running up and down stairs.

* * *

Eddie Rommel's knuckle ball has made him famous, which proves what you can do if you knuckle down to business.

* * *

The Athletics will have three new regulars next summer, not to mention the number of irregulars who will be hanging around

* * * * *

We have yet to hear of a rookie ball player who pulls away from the plate in the dining-room.

* * *

Mister M'Graw is teaching his Giants how to slide. As a matter of fact they began to slide in the world series last fall.

* * *

It is said that squirrels are surprisingly bright, and yet you'd never know it to watch them in the bleachers.

* * *

We read that clov r grass makes contented cows. Still, a the average wrestlers demands is an occasional match.

* * *

The French have lifted the ban on German prize fighters. The rest of the world should demand either an apology or an explanation.

* * *

The news that Battling Siki has gone on the wagon is interesting. Most of the time he is in it.

* * *

Jess Willard says nothing can lure him into the ring again. And we say every possible power should be used to see that he keeps his promise.

* * *

In announcing a third political league, Mr. LaFollette will do well to remember what happened to the third major league.

HOCKEY TROPHY STAYS IN EAST

Calgary Defeated By the Canadiens In Thrilling Game — Score of Final Game Was 3 to 0.

OTTAWA, March 26. — (Canadian Press.) —In one of the most thrilling hockey matches ever seen in Ottawa, Montreal Canadiens last night shattered the Calgary Tigers' hopes of winning the Stanley Cup emblematic of the worlds' professional hockey championship, when they defeated the westerners by the score of three goals to none. Leo Dandurand's flying Frenchmen were too good for the western invaders, who, however, treated the fans to a sparkling battle for the full sixty minutes. Realizing that it was do or die Calgary threw everything they had into a desperate attempt to pull the series out of the fire, but it was of no avail and Canadiens marched off with their second straight victory of the series.

It was hard, almost vicious, hockey, played at blinding speed throughout and the fans had not a dull moment from the time Right Hon. Arthur Meighen faced the puck until the final bell clanged the death knell of western hopes. The body-checking was terrific, both teams handing out avoirdupois without mercy and numerous penalties were inflicted by Referee Art Ross.

Canadiens jumped into an early lead ,tallying in the first period. This goal was the result of a heady play by Howie Morenz, who scooted down the left wing and flipped a knee-high shot out of the corner that Reid was not expecting. It found the corner of the net in 4.55.

The feature play of the whole game, however, was the scoring of the third and final goal by Joliat. He stole a pass in his own defence, winged through the Calgary front line and tore in from wrong wing. Gardiner crowded him to the fence, and he swooped around the end of the rink, slipping the puck into the cage as he came out again on the other side. The time was 10.20, and with this goal Calgary's light went out.

Howie Morenz, star of the Canadiens, was seriously injured in the second period, when he was stopped up by Dutton. The ligaments were torn in his right shoulder and chest, and it was feared that he had also suffered an internal injury.

Billy Evans Says

About 13 years ago a New York newspaper syndicate conceived the idea of having the star ball players, who were to take part in the world series of that year, to lend their names to baseball articles on the series.

The syndicate signed most of the players up for a flat sum of money, detailed a newspaper man to interview the athletes after the game and then turn out a signed article for them.

The feature got a big play. In a few cases it stirred up considerable trouble, when a writer would insert something into the story to give it a punch that stepped on some other athlete's toes.

* * *

The memory of the happenings of the 1911 world series is still fresh in the minds of most of the present day fans.

* * *

Rube Marquard and Christy Mathewson were the star pitchers of the New York Giants in that series, which was waged with the Philadelphia Athletics.

These two players were signed to write the series. In one of the games Rube Marquard put one where Frank Baker liked 'em, and Baker responded with a home run that broke up the ball game.

The next day, Mathewson was quoted under his name as taking Marquard to task for pitching badly to Baker, at the same time telling how to make Baker look foolish.

It is said Marquard raved at the criticism, and he could hardly be blamed.

* * *

Then came a peculiar break in the next game Matty pitched, that made the player-author look bad. Baker also him him for a homer that decided the ball game.

* * *

Enjoying a 1 to 0 lead, with Baker up in the ninth, Matty put one in Baker's "groove," and he hit it into the right field stand at the Polo Grounds for a home run. That tied up the game, the Athletics won in extra innings.

The writing craze by the star athletes has since extended to the other sports.

Recently tennis put a ban on the player writer after 1925. Bill Tilden and Vincent Richards, two of our tennis stars, insist they will keep on writing and quit playing.

The Olympic committee has placed an even more stringent rule on the athlete writer. The ban takes effect as soon as the man is chosen for the Olympic team.

CHRISTIAN ALLIANCE CONVENTION IN CITY

Rev. A. W. Roffe in Charge Assisted by Rev. William Hay--A Colored Quintette.

On Monday afternoon the seven-day Missionary Convention of the Christian and Missionary Alliance opened in Bethany Tabernacle, with Rev. A. W. Roffe, superntendent for Canada of the Alliance, in charge, assisted by Rev. Wm. Hay of Winnipeg, an evangelist and Bible teacher, who was formerly president of the Baptist convention of New Zealland, and chairman of its Foreign Mission Board, and in that capacity made official visits to the mission fields of Japan, Korea and China. Miss Nellie Jones, a worker in the mission fields of China, also assists. The convention is marked by the presence of a colored quintette of Gospel singers, who have been one of the main attractions at the Tabernacle during the past two days, when the small building has been filled to over flowing at night with the crowds attending. This group of singers is one of the best quintettes heard in Peterboro in a long time. They have all the rich mellow timbre that is associated with the vocal music of their race. By reason of the consecration of their music to evangelistic work exclusively, their Gospel songs are delivered with a force and sincerity that makes their music thrilling and inspiring. Possessed of five excellent voices that blend beautifully, with the inspiration of their cause behind their voices, they make a striking impression. Yesterday afternoon, they held and charmed their audience with a beautiful rendition of "He Lifteth Me," a spirited singing of "I'm Living on the Hallelujah Side," "The Vineyard Time is coming bye and bye," and one of the negro spirituals, "I'm Pressing On," sung as only such men of their race could sing it, with martial, majestic, religious fervor.

Meetings were scheduled for this week in the Tabernacle, but last night's crowd was so large that it was decided to hold to-night's meeting in the Salvation Army Temple, at 7.45. Afternoon meetings are at three o'clock. On Sunday, afternoon and evening meetings will be held in the Capitol Theatre. The addresses given during the series are strictly evangelistic, devoted to inspirational Gospel messages, with one day at the close taken up with the consideration of work in the foreign mission fields.

Yesterday afternoon, the subject of "Prayer" was considered, with special reference to the power of prayer in every aspect of life. Miss Jones spoke of conditions among several of the Chinese converts in her particular field of endeavor, referring especially to one Mr. Lee, who come to the mission and then became interested, through literature, in Modernistic doctrine. Prayer by the missionaries finally influenced him back to Christ. This man, owner of a soap factory, where, according to the Chinese custom, workers were employed on Sunday as well as other days, became so imbued with the spirit of Christianity that he would pay his men on Sunday, as Chinese custom demands, and then bring the forty workmen to church with him.

Mr. Hay, quoting the saying "we advance on our knees," and speaking in with forceful eloquence, said "none of us know all that we might know about prayer, and some of us know very little indeed." In a recent conference of ministers held in a big city, a question regarding hours of prayer brought the frank admission that fifty per cent of the gathering only spent as much as fifteen minutes daily in prayer, and only one man prayed for as long as half an hair an hour each day.

Prayer, declared the speaker, would enable its devotee to look into God's eyes and would bring the peace of heaven to his soul.

"Ask and ye shall receive, seek and ye shall find, knock, and it shall be opened to you," was applicable to prayer in increasing vigor, and importunity in prayer was recommended. In intercession for others, we become most like our Lord."

Mr. Roffe spoke briefly at the conclusion of the two addresses, remarking on the present-day tendency to stop praying. "Daily, we are tempted to cease from praying and substitute work, lots of work." Through prayer we may prevail with God and wrestle against the powers of darkness. "But you have to be clean before God to prevail in prayer. You can't pray and be unclean or selfish or unlike Jesus."

BUCHAREST, March 26.—Coincidently with the gathering at Vienna of the delegates to the Russo-Roumanian conference, a manifestation in favor of Roumania was staged Monday at Kishinev, participated in by more than 100,000 from all parts of Bessarabia.

The meeting addressed a telegram to the Roumanian government requesting that it affirm publicly that Bessarabia had thice expressed its absolute will to return to the motherland.

THE ADVANTAGES OF A SPECIAL DELIVERY LETTER.

The business man of to-day is only partially awake to the "hurry-up" influence and importance of the special delivery stamp.

The special delivery letter arrives, it may be true, but a few minutes before the one regularly mailed. It, however, is delivered by a special messenger, and, by that fact alone, compels attention.

If hundreds of letters are in an office being opened and have to be routed through various channels, a special delivery letter will take precedence over them all on the theory that "it must be important or it would not have been sent special delivery."

There are few business houses that will not place the special delivery letter ahead of those coming in in the ordinary manner.

Special delivery letters cost 20 cents in addition to the regular postage.

DUST OF THE EARTH WAS REPEATED AGAIN

The drama, "Dust of the Earth," presented some time ago by the Dramatic Club of the Young People's League of Trinity Methodist Church, was repeated last evening in the Conservatory of Music Hall, with a fair attendance. The production was given in admirable style, every member of the cast receiving hearty applause for excellent acting. There were no flaws in the presentation, which was a credit to those taking part, and to the directors, Mrs. Morley Lyle and Miss Flossie Derry. Between acts, the Conservatory orchestra played several pleasing numbers.

The play, which tells the story of a girl looked on as the "dust of the earth," and the gradual change of heart of her critics, was enacted by the following: Mrs. G. H. King, Mrs. Waterworth, the Misses Mabel Carter, "Babs" Carter, and Messrs. D. Fleming, Gordon Ham, Osborne Smith, Wilfred Derry, A. L. Lighthart and H. Langford.

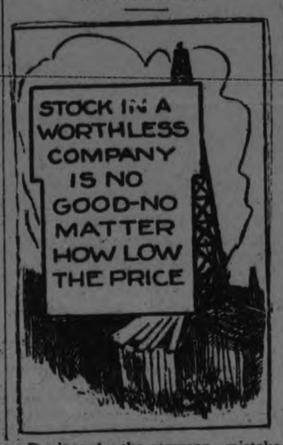
MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.



Don't make the common mistake of buying securties just because the price is low. Consider the value.

A low priced stock or bond is not necessarily cheap. In fact it is usually expensive, when earning power and assets are considered in relation to the purchase price.

Of course there have been examples of stocks and bonds making a phenomenal recovery, and these examples are always published widely. However, little is heard about the countless number of cases where a stock dropped to almost nothing and then "passed out."

The mere fact that a stock is "cheap" is usually evidence that the men who know the most about the company, do not believe it has any future, and are selling their holdings.

An outsider who is probably no judge of values should not come in and buy the stock which they are selling just because the price is low.

ONE TONE.

Gowns of beige or grey lace are frequently made over crepe slips of the same shade and kept entirely in one tone. The hat and pumps worn with such a costume may be any bright color.

PLEATS STAY.

Many of the newest skirts of flannel, serge or silk have pleats only at the side. These skirts are much more practical than those pleated all round as there is no strain on the pleated sections and consequently the pleats stay in.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL

WILLIE COLLIER'S FAMOUS STAGE SUCCESS, ROY THURS., FRI., SAT.

"O-oh, you Hottentot! Come on, boy! Ride 'em, Sam!"

"He's refused the first jump. He's going back. That's the end of him. No it isn't. There he comes faster than greased lightning. He's gaining on them. He's caught Wayward . . . past him. Go it, boy!"

"The Hottentot wins! Hottentot! Hottentot!"

It would take a whole set of hieroglyphics to do justice to the steeplechase in "The Hottentot," at the Royal Theatre, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. A modern typewriter is totally inadequate.

As a laugh-maker, the picture is a record-breaker. It is even funnier than the stage play of the same name, and that is saying a whole lot. Wm. Collier and Victor Mapes wrote the play, and then Collier starred in the vehicle so successfully that he played Broadway for more than a year, finally taking the play on tour throughout the country.

Douglas MacLean has the part which Collier created, and has done the finest bit of comedy work in his career. Madge Bellamy, as the pretty heroine of the tale, is all that could be desired, while Raymond Hatton, as the eccentric butler, is so funny that he's a menace. He makes you laugh until you're helpless.

The fun of the play grows out of a case of mistaken identity. Sam Harrington is a yachtsman who has braved the Cannibal Isles, laughed in the face of raging storms, and snapped his fingers at typhoons. Fear is unknown to him except when there are horses within reach of him. He is deathly afraid of horses.

Invited to a country home for a house-party he becomes the accidental hero of a runaway, and is mistaken by the girl he saves for a famous rider of the same name. He promptly falls in love with her, but hesitates to shatter her illusion as she loves horses. He gets into endless trouble, and finally has to ride the fiery "Hottentot" in a steeplechase. The race is a stunning piece of photography, and the play provides solid entertainment.

AMATEUR NIGHT: ADDED ATTRACTION AT ROYAL TO-NIGHT

The best vaudeville shown in some time, and a photoplay production that the whole town is talking about, closes its engagement at the Royal to-night. Both Barney O'Mara and company of Irish singers and Billy De Armo, with his novelty juggling are excellent examples of clean, classy vaudeville, and the picture, "The Stranger," is a radical departure from the plot of conventional dramas. The above programme, with the addition of local talent, should more than satisfy lovers of good entertainment to-night.

AT THE GRAND

THE MAID OF THE MOUNTAINS

Many thousands of local theatregoers and music lovers will welcome the announcement that "The Maid of the Mountains" is to pay this city one more visit before closing a very successful tour—a tour which has been a continuous stream of record-breaking successes—of Canada from coast to coast.

The same great cast of musical-comedy stars with Miss Ethel Walker, the Australian prima donna, in the title role who made such an everlasting impression in the minds of all those who were fortunate enough to witness a performance during the last engagement of this company last autumn, will return with the production intact for this farewell engagement of undoubtedly the most popular of all musical comedies.

The supporting cast includes Walter Greaza, Mona Desmond, Louis Templeman, Sam Burton, Herman Birshberg Mary Angell, and the same great singing chorus which is easily one of the features of the engagement.

The musical numbers seem to increase in popularity each time this musical offering comes here and many years will elapse before the musical numbers from this production will be forgotten.

Stanley T. Vermilyea, the producer, will follow this offering next season with an entirely new attraction and all may rest assured that it will be of the same high order as this company, which has had liberal praise paid to it all over Canada.

A special matinee will be given at popular prices as will also the evening performance be popular prices. The first time this attraction has ever charged under $2.00 admission.

AT THE CAPITOL

CHANEY TAKES REAL THRASHING TO PUT REALISM IN BIG SCENE

Given a big part and the varied trappings of the theatre is not so difficult for an actor to play upon the emotions of his audience, but when he can move his fellow-players to tears and cheers on a motion-picture lot, with all the artifices of the land of make-believe right in sight, he has really accomplished something. Lon Chaney, star of the Universal production "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," which come to the Capitol Thursday, Friday and Saturday, scored this honor during the filming of the Hugo masterpiece.

Two thousand "extras" were gathered in the huge area, before the towering replica of Notre Dame. From the shadows of the quaint mediaeval buildings they silently watched Quasimodo (Lon Chaney) going through the pillory ordeal. The executioners dragged and bound the misshapen figure to the revolving wheel. One of the giants raised his whip and the lash whistled through the air. Actual sobs broke from the audience of players. They were picture folks, part of the illusion themselves, but still as impressionable to really fine acting as laymen.

With the end of the scene came such an outburst as never before hard on a motion picture lot. They applauded, they wept and cheered. Chaney astounded, tried to speak, but couldn't. As he faced the cheering host—his own people—he actually wept. And he is not ashamed of it. Incidentally, the scene cost him a painful beatin for a lashing cannot be faked in a close-up, but the star says he was amply repaid for the pain that he endured.

Chaney, besides studying for months to sense the soul of the misshapen man-brute, had the aid of Victor Hugo's own sketches and the conceptions of all the distinguished French illustrators who had expressed the form of "Quasimodo" —Brion, De eBaumont, Steinheil, De Rudder and Le Lemund. Chaney's make-up is the mystery of the theatrical world for he always demanded and obtained absolute privacy when donning the trappings.

Chaney is five feet, nine inches tall, but when he issued from the dressing room ad faced the camera he was a squat, distorted creature, not much more than four feet in stature, and, as the story describes the character—nearly as broad as he is tall. To preserve the exact semblence throughout down to the finest detail, "still photographs" were taken at the end of each day's work work and at the beginning of the follow day's labours. In this manner the tinyest flaw in make-up was readily detected.

How well he succeeded in making the character a living, breathing personality is now a matter of history. The Huncback of Notre Dame is attracting capacity crowds in half a dozen cities from coast to coast, but it is the great production that it is, largely because of the excellence of Lon Chaney's work.

DETAILS OF COSTUMING IN "THE HUNCHBACK IS ARTISTICALLY CORRECT.

Spit curls and short skirts in the court of King Louis XI, along about the year 1482, sounds a little bit incredible perhaps, notwithstanding the reputation of milady of Paris for first showing to the world new things of fashion. But, nevertheless, history settles the matter, which became of current interest when costuming for the characters in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," the film classic coming to the Capitol on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, was occupying the attention of the Universal art staff.

Gladys Brockwell, who plays the part of Sister Gudule, and other feminine characters wore coiffures and gowns that are more generally associated with the Middle Ages, it is true, but had they appeared in the considered-to-be-modern short skirts and wearing spit curls, history would have vindicated them.

The story of the origination of the spit curl is none the less interesting than the fact that it actually was worn 500 years ago. It came into vogue soon after the hennin, the three-foot-high millinery masterpiece worn in the court scenes of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," took Paris by storm, as now styles do even at this day.

A queen of France, Isabel of Bavaria it is recounted, was bald-headed. A force of the hennin, or high-peaked hat, worn in one of the other European countries, completely covered the head. Subtle Isabel, it is said, introduced this monstrosity of head-gear in court circles to hide her own baldness. It was soon generally adopted, and hair for a time was as completely covered by elaborate and uncomfortable hennins as ears have been by hair in this era.

It was a court lady, whose tresses, perhaps, had been her greatest charm, who had the temerity to allow just a whisp of hair to stray from beneath the front of her hennin, sort of proof that she at least was not wearing a cornucopia hat to hide a bald head. This visible lock looked out of place to others, perhaps, and there may have been those who believed the lady had put her hat on hurriedly and that the visible whisp was an accident. She probably realized such to be the case, and curling it, as an indication that it belonged there, unwittingly invented the spit curl.

As to skirts, they have had their ups and downs so often it is hard to tell just where and under what circumstances the abbreviated style originated. In fact, there are those who contend that the whole skirt was evolved from some sort of girdle and that it was short before it was ever long. There is historical record, however, that in the fifteenth century another Queen of France was proud of her shapely calves, shortened her skirts, and the court ladies followed suit.

A LAWN BOWLERS' MEETING FRIDAY

The annual meeting of the Lawn Bowling Club will be held in the Curling Club Parlor, Charlotte Street, on Friday evening, March 28th, at 8 o'clock, for the election of officers and any general business for the coming year. The prospects for this season's bowling are exceptionally good, and one of the best year's since the club was formed is expected. All the old boys will be seen in action again this summer along with a number of new members. Friday night's meeting is one of the main meetings, and it is hoped that a large number of members will be present and help to get the season started off in the right way.

Leo Kid Roy Regains Featherweight Crown

TORONTO, March 26.—(Canadian Pdess).—Leo "Kid" Roy, of Montreal, former featherweight champion of Canada, regained his title last night at the Coliseum, when he clearly outpointed Benny Gould, a local boy, who now has his mail addressed to New York, in a ten-round bout. Roy lost the title to Curly Wilshur nearly a year ago, and nearly five months ago Gould moved the mythical crown to New York when he obtained the referee's decision over Wilshur. Roy has been hot on the trail of the champion ever since he lost the title, and on his showing last night he should retain it for some time to come.

NEXT TWO DAYS TO BE FOR MEN

A New Film at the Social Hygiene Exhibit

A new film will be shown to men during the last two days of the Social Hygiene Exhibit, which explains much more forcibly and clearly the story of reproduction, together with the terrible ravage that follows venereal diseases and its effects on the reproductive organs and other parts of the human body.

Mr. W. R. Breyfogle, manager of the De Laval Mfg. Co., will speak at eight o'clock this evening on Industrial Relations to Social Hygiene, and every employer and employee interested in industrial life should attend this evening's showing.

Doctors will be present to explain the exhibit to those present and it is hoped that every man and boy over sixteen who did not avail himself of the opportunity of visiting the Exhibit last week will do so during the coming two days and extend their knowledge on this constructive and educational work.

The last showing for women last night brought out 276 and Mrs. Pankhurst gave her last address, appealing to every woman present to help this movement by making themselves shining examples by leading upright, healthful and useful lives, and teaching their children the sacredness of their bodies and the truths of life, and also by demanding higher morals of the opposite sex and assisting them to hold them.

Over forty-one hundred have been checked through the doors since March 17th when the exhibit opened.

The Exhibit will be open Wednesday and Thursday afternoon from 2.30 to 6 and both evenings from 7 to 9.30.

How to Stop Sour Stomach

Chronic With Many People—Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Bring Quick Comfort—Sweeten and Stop Acid, Sour Risings and Such Dyspeptic Distress.

When the fact is considered that even careful people, those who follow diet rules, get attacks of indigestion, no argument is needed to recommend the best means of relief. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used by lawyers, doctors, teachers, by business men, high livers, society women, industrial workers, clerks, and the worst abused stomachs in the world, those of a host of travelers.

For thirty years people have learned that they may eat what they like or what is set before them, and no matter what the condition of the stomach, if due to dyspepsia, these wonderful tablets stop gassiness and sour risings, they give the stomach the alkaline effect which overcomes acidity and thus they either avoid distress after eating or else they quickly relieve it. Be fortified. Get a 60-cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store and arm yourself against indigestion.

Stubborn Coughs
Stop Quick With Home Made Cough Mixture

Not until you make your own cough mixture—a half pint of it for a small sum—will you know how easy it is to stop any bad persistent cough as if by magic.

It's pleasant-tasting, but that don't stop it from knocking out a cough quicker than anything else in the world. Children love it.

Get from any druggist one ounce of Parmint (double strength)—to this add a litle granulated sugar and enough water to make one half pint—that's all there is to it.

This loosens the phlegm, stops the irritation, allays the inflammation, cleans out clogged nostrils, and causes sore throat and hoarseness to disappear.

With speed almost beyond belief this home made cough mixture stops the toughest hang-on cough, and all because in it there is a substance (too costly for ordinary cough syrups) that immediately covers the membrane like a soothing healing poultice and blessed relief comes at once.

And it is always worth while to bear in mind that any remedy that overcomes catarrh, partially or wholly, is bound to be of benefit to those who are troubled with head noises and catarrhal deafness.

Get Parmint and get better.

OBITUARY

ELIZABETH TAYLOR.

The death occurred this morning, at 580 Bolivar street, of Elizabeth Taylor, in her 76th year. Her husband predeceased her about a month ago. She was well known in the city and highly respected by her many friends.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon, from the late residence, 580 Bolivar street, and proceed to the Little Lake Cemetery for interment.

THOMAS C. SHEARER.

From a Mannville (Alberta) paper comes the following account of the death of a native of this district, Mr. Thomas C. Shearer:

The sudden and unexpected death of Mr. Thomas C. Shearer late on Saturday evening, March 8th, at the Municipal Hospital cast a gloom over the whole district. Mr. Shearer (or Tom as he was generally known) was sick only a few days, although he had not looked well for some time, being admitted to the hospital on Saturday a few hours prior to his death.

Tom was one of the old-timers of the district, having been here since August, 1906. He homestended north of Mannville in the early days but moved into town later and for several years past was engaged in business as a carpenter and wheelwright.

He came here from Peterboro, Ontario, but was born at Lang in the same province on September 13, 1859, and was 65 years of age, his parents being Mr. and Mrs. James Shearer.

Deceased was of a very quiet disposition, being a bachelor, and was generally well liked and well-known in the district.

He was attended during his illness by Dr. Heaslip, his death resulting from heart failure following diabetes.

The funeral took place on Tuesday, the service being held at the Presbyterian Church and was conducted by the Rev. A. R. Nash. The church filled as it was by intimate friends and citizens generally, showed the respect in which deceased was held. The service at the graveside was also conducted by Rev. Mr. Nash followed by the ritual service and last rites of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, of which deceased was a member. The latter service was conducted by the Minburn Lodge with N. G. Bro. J. Thresher presiding. The casting of a sprig of evergreen into the open grave was solemnly observed by the brothers as a fitting tribute to the memory of deceased.

He will be missed by a host of friends in Mannville and quite a few relatives among whom he leaves five brothers and two sisters: George, Richard and Frederick N., all of Peterboro, Ont.; Albert of Syracuse, N.Y.; Robert of Toronto; Mrs. Jno. McGregor of Toronto, and Mrs. Joseph Harrison, Lamont, Alberta.

The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the deceased's relatives during their hour of bereavement.

FRANK MURRAY.

The death occurred yesterday afternoon at St. Joseph's Hospital, after a short illness, of Frank J. Murray of 254 Reid street. He was born in Lindsay, but for the last 30 years has resided in Peterborough and was employed as foreman in the Peterborough Lock Company. He was a faithful member of the Knights of Columbus, Holy Name Society and the Catholic Order of Foresters, in which he was well advanced. He was well known in this city and the surrounding district and highly respected by his many friends.

There are left to mourn his loss, besides his sorrowing wife, Mrs. Emma Kearns Murray, five daughters and two sons, namely, Loretta, Florence, Francis, Stella and Genevieve, Joseph and Richard. Three brothers, Bernard of Downeyville, P. J. of Flint, Michigan, and Thomas of Portland, Oregon. Four sisters, Mrs. K. M. Lynch of this city, Mrs. Thomas Clancy and Mrs. John Fox, of Downeyville, and Miss Anna Murray of Rochester. The funeral will be held to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock from St. Peter's Cathedral and proceed to St. Peter's cemetery, where interment will take place.

BIRTH.

SMITH—To Mr. and Mrs. McGregor Smith, of St. Catharines, on March 13th, a daughter, Clarice Elaine Shirley.

Canadian Stock Exchange and Mines | New York Stock Exchange and Curb Prices

TO-DAY'S QUOTATIONS AND OPINION AND REVIEWS OF THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, March 26. Special.—Over-night news was constructive including the determination of the Senate Committee to put the Mallon schedules in the tax bill despite the opposition of Senator McCormick and car loadings for the week ended March 15th, which showed railway traffic was still running at record levels.

But the movements of prices among the industrial stocks was still under the previous day's influence. American can descended to a new low on the movement at 108 1-8 and heaviness continued to characterize the action of Baldwin, steel and other speculative leaders.

Further professional drives against Baldwin and American Can forced these issues to new lows on the movement toward the end of the first hour. But the selling failed to affect the main body of stocks, which held steady, while individual stocks were under fire. Special weakness cropped out in American Agricultural Chemical preferred, which broke three points to 26 1-8. But this decline was directly connected with unfavorable conditions in the fertilizer industry which have not been improved any by the recent sharp decline in wheat prices.

As a whole the market apeared to be more impressed by the strength of Norfolk and Western than by the persistent bearish efforts to keep the general list from rallying.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent. against the recent low of 3. But brokers are not worrying about the money rates.

Few expected call funds to remain as low at 2½ per cent. But everyone knows there is a plethora of money awaiting investment, and that reasonable rates will prevail throughout the greater part of the year. Opening prices on the stock exchange included.

Mr. G. B. Cunningham left yesterday afternoon for Sault Ste. Marie where he will take charge of the interest of the Canadian Packing Co., in that territory.

A very pleasant evening was spent by friends and relatives recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Lane, Patterson street, to celebrate the occasion of the 83rd birthday anniversary of their host. The evening was spent in playing games and in partaking of excellent refreshments.

Although in his 84th year, Mr. Lane is still very active and, as a friend observed of him, "can still be seen daily around his home with his staunch friend, the bucksaw." Mrs. Lane is also hale and hearty. The aged couple recently celebrated the 60th anniversary of their wedding.

A TAX ON GASOLINE MAY BE ENFORCED NEXT YEAR

TORONTO, March 26.—(Canadian Press)—A deputation from the Ontario Municipal Association waited upon Premier Ferguson this morning with several requests for changes in the legislation and regulations. The deputation asked that the municipalities be given a share of the amusement tax now collected by the Ontario Government. The request was based on the argument that the municipalities had to provide protection for the amusement buildings against fire, provide police protection inspection etc.

The deputation also asked for a share of the revenue derived from the motor licenses same request was made for municipalities in which there are race courses for a division of the revenue from the tax on wagering etc. The deputation expressed itself as favoring a tax on gasoline.

The Premier said nothing could be done this year but next year the government might move in the direction asked and possibly put on a gasoline tax.

OFFICE BUILDING MAY BE ERECTED BY GOVERNMENT

Premier Ferguson Said Rents Now Paid For Departmental Quarters Would Pay Interest On New Building In Queen's Park — Farm For Boys Bought at Bowmanville.

NEW HOTELS ACT.

TORONTO, March 27. — The Legislature spent Wednesday afternoon in discussing dozens of different subjects on the estimates. A. Belanger (Lib. Russell) speaking on English-French training schools for teachers of French schools thought that students should be kept in their home school sections for fifth form work if it was available instead of being sent away from home to the model schools where their board was paid. Fifth form work in the local schools he said should be encouraged. The Prime Minister as Minister of Education stated that the percentage of qualified teachers in French English schools was increasing gradually but greater progress was desired.

Hon. F. C. Biggs asked if the government had anything in mind about the construction of a large office building. The Premier said there was nothing immediate decided but that it was in the minds of the government to erect a large building on a Queen's Park site. It had been figured he said that the amount now paid in rents would pay the interest on the cost of such a building. Mr. Biggs said that plans for such a structure on a unit plan were already in the department.

Farm for Boys.

A new item of $100,000 appeared in the estimates for a boys home at Bowmanville. It was explained by Hon. Lincoln Goldie, Provincial Secretary, that J. H. Durie of Bowmanville had presented $10,000 for the purchase of a farm for boys. The government supplemented this and 308 acres had been bought for the home. Work would be started in a day or two. Already one private family had agreed to erect a church, and it was expected that several societies would erect cottages. Later a girls' farm would also be established. The government will not control the farm directly. A board of management will be appointed upon which the government will have a representative. The home is to be modelled on the Shawbridge school in Quebec.

Hon F. C. Biggs pointed out that in public works engineering estimates there was no reduction made although the minister had stated some time ago that he would save $100,000 in reducing the highway engineering staff. The Premier replying said that the engineering staff cost was cut in half and more would be saved in the department by the eliminating of 75 motor cars used by the various officials.

Deputy Paid Bonus.

Mr. Biggs did not think that the Deputy Minister of Highways, S. L. Squire, should be a member of the Canadian Good Roads' Association as well as being deputy. The Premier could see no reason why he shouldn't be an officer in the association. Mr. Biggs complained about the increase in grant to the Canadian Association claiming that they had so much money that last year they voted their officers a bonus. He also claimed Mr. Squire accepted his bonus at the time he was deputy minister of roads for Ontario. The Premier said that he would inquire.

On health estimates Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey said that Dr. Box's discovery was being made known to dentists and that it would work out for the benefit of the people. Hon Mr. Biggs spoke in commendation of the medical inspection in the rural schools claiming that it would do much to improve the general health of the province.

Hon. James Lyons, Minister of Lands and Forests announced that the department was considering opening up two reforestry stations in Northern Ontario, one to be in Muskoka.

Ontario Hotels Act.

Before the House adjourned several government bills were introduced. One is a new bill to be known as the Ontario Hotels Act, which defines what an hotel is as distinct from a boarding house. It will also classify hotels but leaves most of the features to regulation rather than legislation.

An addition is made by a new bill to the workmen's compensation act, whereby the board may assist in getting injured workmen back to work

Lindsay Woman and Maid Were Gassed

LINDSAY, March 27.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Chas. R. Christie, Bond street, and her maid Emma King had a very narrow escape from being suffocated by coal gas fumes yesterday afternoon.

Mr. George Drake, a neighbor had occasion to make a call at 3.30 o'clock and on opening the door found the house full of gas and Mrs. Christie and the maid lying helpless. Mrs. Christie recovered quickly but it was some time before Miss King regained consciousness. Attending physicians state that another fifteen minutes delay and both would have expired. Defective furnace pipes are said to be the cause of the escaping coal gas.

Moscow Representatives Receive Encouraging Reply From Premier King — Held Out As Basis of Trade Negotiations.

OTTAWA, March 27. — (Canadian Press.)—Complete recognition by the Canadian Government of the Russian Soviet Republic is implied in an exchange of correspondence between Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King and Alex Yasikoff, of Montreal, agent in Canada of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. M. Yasikoff who heads a trade commission from Moscow, now established in Canada, was received by the Canadian government recently. Following his interview with the government, M. Yasikoff wrote to the prime minister as follows:

"Referring to the conference I had with you yesterday and wishing for a more definite basis for trade negotiations and for the performance of my other functions, I would ask you to be good enough to inform me whether the De Jure recognition of the union of Soviet Socialist Republics proclaimed by His Britannic Majesty's government on the first of February last comprehends recognition by Canada."

Replying under date of March 24, the prime minister said:

"Following up my conversation with you a few days ago with a special reference to your letter of March 20, I have the honor in the best interests of both countries, to represent that Canada is prepared to recognize the union of Soviet Socialist Republics."

OTHER SIDE OF SQUIRE'S CASE

Dominion Steel Company Is Guilty of Tendering Bribes, English Writer Points Out in the Daily Herald.

LONDON, March 27 (Canadian Press Cable). — A correspondent of the Daily Herald, alluding to the Newfoundland grait revelations, says that while it is up to the people of that Dominion to deal with Squires, it is up to the people of Great Britain to realise that there are two parties to that offence, and that if the Premier of Newfoundland is guilty of taking bribes, the Dominion Steel Corporation is guilty of tendering them.

The correspondent proceeds to enumerate who are the British directors of this concern, and it is shown that they are also in the front rank of Britain's coal and steel barons. "One of their companies has been found guilty of bribing a Prime Minister. They owe us a full and frank explanation," writes th ecorrespondent.

The Canadian Press invited one of the directors in question to comment on the foregoing, but he declined. Neither could he say if the British directors would make any statement.

The British directors mentioned by the Herald's correspondent are Lord Invernairn, Lord Furness, Sir Newton Moore, and Benjamin Talbot.

FRENCH EXPECT POINCARE WILL RESUME OFFICE

Opinion of the Public and Press Against Any Other Premier In Present Stage of the Nation's Affairs—Government Defeated On Minor Question.

PATRIOTIC APPEAL.

PARIS, March 27.—Premier Raymond Poincare, with his entire cabinet, resigned from office yesterday, and when he announced his resignation he declared that his decision was final.

But last night there was every reason to believe that he would acquiesce to-day in President Millerand's request that he resume office at the head of the ministry. M. Poincare's acceptance in principle of the President's earnest plea that he continue to direct French public affairs practically brings to a close the ministerial crisis, which broke like a thunderclap over comparatively serene conditions. M. Poincare's official acceptance of President Millerand's request is regarded as a foregone conclusion by the vast majority of those identified with French political affairs.

Is Indispensible.

The adivce emphatically tendered to President Millerand by both Mm. Dougmergue and Peret, presidents of the Senate and Chamber, rspectively, that M. Poincare was indispensable as premier in the continuance of the work undertaken in the past two years, and the conviction of M. Millerand himself that the "surprise" vote in the Chamber did not reflect lack of confidence of the Parliament in the premier personally, caused the President to dispense with the usual consultations in such cases with other prominent statesmen, and send for M. Poincare immediately and ask him to carry on.

Minor Question.

The defeat of the Government in the Chamber was on a quesion on minor importance. The Premier himself was not present, being engaged at the time with the Foreiegn Affairs Commiteee, and there were few deputies in the Chamber. The vote against the Government was 271 to 264, and many of the votes were cast by proxy.

In the conference which President Millerand had with Mm. Doumergue and Peret, all agreed that public opinion, as overwhelmingly expressed by a great majority of the press, made it impossible for any other leader to assume power at this stage. M. Peret declared to the correspondents he did not consider that the Poincare Cabinet had been placed in a minority. No other French statesman was even considered at this conference as a successor for M. Poincare.

Touching Scene.

The conference between the President of the Republic and the Premier was a touching one. M. Millerand is reported to have greeted M. Poincare effusively as he earnestly impressed upon him that it was a public duty and a matter of patriotism that he continue his "magnificent work to its conclusion for France."

An appeal to patriotism also finds responsive chord in M. Poincares' heart ,and, although the Premier's face, which remained absolutely stolid during the momentous events of the day, showed no trace of emotion as he emerged from the room where he himself for seven years had received many men in similar circumstances, those close to him said he was highly elated at the great confidence the President had shown in him.

M. Poincare returned to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs directly from the Elysee Palace. There, General De Castelnau and Deputies Isaac and Chassaigne-Goyon, representing and delegated by the Republican Entente group of 170 deputies, Republicans of the Left, 56, and the Democratic Left 86, reiterated M. Millerand's request that the Premier remain "as a patriotic duty in the face of Germany."

Deputies Stunned.

The Chamber lobbies were in a high state of excitement, being crowded with deputies until late in the evening, although the afternoon session lasted only a few minutes.

PARLIAMENT DEMANDS ACTION ON DIVERSION OF WATER BY CHICAGO

Protests By Members of All Political Parties In Commons Over Breach of Boundary Waters Treatment — Previous Representations Had Been Ignored — Lake Erie Might Be Reduced to Duck Pond If Diversion Continued.

Will Produce Papers.

OTTAWA, March 27.—(Canadian Press.) — The diversion of water from Lake Michigan by the Chicago Sanitary District was the subject of a protest by members of all political parties in the House of Commons yesterday As member after member rose to speak it became clear that there was a division of opinion on th matter.

T. L. Church, Conservative member for North Toronto, brought the matter to the attention of the House by moving for "definite and immediate action to prevent the illegal diversion of the waters of the Great Lakes through the Chicago Drainage Canal, and that action should be taken to prevent further waste and to secure specific enforcement of the treaty between Canada and the United States as to this matter."

The opinion of an eminent authority that the St. Lawrence river and Lake Erie might be reduced some day to the level of a duck pond if thediversion continued was cited by Mr. Church. Other members stressed the importance of preserving the lake levels for the movement of freight and the preservation of harbors. The boundary waters treaty between Canada and the United States was being used as a football to the detriment of Canada's commercial development, it was argued.

Situation Serious.

That the situation was serious was admitted by Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior. Canada had never admitted the right of the Chicago Sanitary District to divert the water and had made repeated protests to the Government of the United States.

On the motion of Sir Henry Drayton, former Minister of Finance, the debate was adjourned until all papers concerning the negotiations between the United States and Canada on the question of water diversion at Chicago could be laid on the table at the House.

Governments Lax.

The present and past Canadian governments had been lax in protecting Canada's rights in this matter, and because of the failure of the Dominion authorities to act some Canadian municipalities had had to send representatives to Washington to look after Canadian rights. Mr. Church stated that the amount of water being diverted illegally by Chicago was equal to all the water flowing over the American Falls at Niagara. He recognized that the Federal authorities in the United States had taken steps to protect other American cities against the demands of Chicago. Protests against the diversion had been made by the states of Michigan, Wisconsin and New York, as well as by the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. The member for North Toronto claimed that under the boundary waters treaty no diversion could be made without the consent of both the Canadian and American governments and he demanded that this treaty should be carried out.

Mississippi Navigation.

That the diversion of water by the Chicago Sanitary District was partially for the purpose of aiding navigation in the Mississippi River and also for developing electric power was the statement of J. F. White, (Conservative, London). Mr. White said that it was time that this "modern buccaneering" should be stopped.

Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior said that Mr. Church's statement of facts in regard to the Chicago diversion of water was a very fair one. It was a most serious thing for navigation and power that 10,000 feet of water should be diverted from the Great Lakes to the Mississippi. He stated that in 1902 permission had been granted to Chicago to divert between 4,000 and 5,-

Legal Argument Turned to Blows

MONTREAL, March 27.—(Canadian Press).—An argument between lawyers which began in the police court here yesterday during the hearing of an assault case, developed into a real bout. E. W. Westover shot over a neat right cross to J. H. Migneron's jaw, and the latter threw his hat on the floor and pulled off his coat to make the weight and retaliate. One of the high constables' men stepped in and called the fight off.

FAVOR RAILWAY MEN UNITED IN ONE BIG GROUP

The Amalgamation of 16 Standard Railway Organizations on American Continent Favored In Principle at Montreal Convention — Debated All Afternoon.

Previously Proposed.

MONTREAL, March 27.—Amalgamation of the sixteen standard railway organizations on this continent was favored in principle by the 160 delegates attending the fifth biennial convention of Division No. 4 Railway Employees' Department, American Federation of Labor held here to-day. A resolution to the above effect was passed after the whole of Wednesday afternoon had been spent in debate on the subject and officers were instructed to work to that end.

The organization involved cover all phases of railroad employment. Some are in the American Federation of Labor and others operate independently.

No information was obtainable at convention headquarters to-day as to the significance of the action favoring amalgamation in principle or the objects to be gained by such consolidation. It is understood that the project has been in the air for some time and that other brotherhoods of railway employees have gone on record as favoring amalgamation.

Ice Moving Fast Out of Richelieu River.

MONTREAL, March 27.—(Canadian Press).—Reports from Sorel, Que., to the office of the federal department of marine and fisheries for the district of Montreal, that ice on the Richelieu river is going fast, gave rise to hope in shipping circles today that there would be no delay in the opening of navigation.

BREAD PRICE REDUCED.

PARIS, March 27. — An order reducing the price of bread for Paris and the department of the Seine from 1 franc 30 centimes to 1 franc 25 centimes per kilogram, was signed by the Prefect yesterday. The new price will go into effect on 1st April. The reduction amounts to about 1 cent on 2.24 pounds of bread.

KILLED BY FALL.

QUEBEC, March 27. — Alfred Dutil, first mate of the Quebec Harbour Commission floating crane, was killed yesterday when he fell from the arm of the crane to the steel deck, striking his head. The deceased was more than 40 years of age, and leaves a widow and six children.

IMMGRATION PLAN

QUEBEC, March 27.— Premier Taschereau yesterday gave his endorsation to a scheme of group immigration for the eastern townships that should be a means to the regions concerned of recruiting its English-speaking population, not only from the British Isles, but of the particular denomination that might prove most acceptable, under the "nomination im migration plan."

Landslide Killed Seventy at Amalfi

ROME, March 27.—(Canadian Press) Seventy persons were killed in a landslide in the seaport of Amalfi 23 miles southeast of Naples, according to a despatch from Amalfi to the Giornale D'Italia.

Amalfi, on the Gulf of Serano, is picturesquely located on the summits of lofty rocks crowned with embattled walls and ruined towers. It suffered from a landslide in January, 1900, when a portion of the promontory on which it is located fell into the sea.

INSULIN FATAL IN LONDON CASE

Diabetic Patient Died After Second Dose In Manchester Hospital — Coroner's Statement to Allay Public Anxiety.

LONDON, March 27.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—A remarkable case of a death in the Manchester hospital which was attributed to the effects of insulin treatment for diabetes was investigated yesterday by a Manchester coroner.

It was stated at the inquest that the patient, a man named Carter, had been admitted to the hospital suffering from diabetes. He had been given a small dose of 10 units of insulin before breakfast, and another dose in the evening. He died an hour after having received the second dose.

Dr. Dawson, pathologist, testified that he had never before heard of a case in which such a small dose of insulin had led to fatal results.

The coroner reassuringly expressed the opinion that the case need not cause anxiety to the public. Insulin, he said, was recognized as the best treatment known for diabetes, and practically its use was the only hope of effecting a cure in a diabetic case.

BETHANY TABERNACLE MEETING CROWDED OUT

Evening Meeting Was Held in the Salvation Army Temple.

Bethany Tabernacle having been crowded out on Tuesday evening and many unable to get in, the evening meeting of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, which is holding a convention here this week, was held last night in the Salvation Army Temple, which had been kindly placed at the disposal of the Alliance by Adjutant A. Smith. However, even the seating capacity of the Temple proved insufficient for all who came to hear.

The Missionary address by Miss Nellie Jones, the Gospel address by Rev. Wm. Hay, and the magnificent singing of the famous colored quintette, were all so intensely earnest and appealed so strongly to everyone that a deep impression was made and at the close, quite a number responded to the appeal of the Rev. A. W. Roffe and passed to the Enquiry Room for prayer and surrender of their lives to God.

All afternon meetings, which are especially interesting to Christians are held in Bethany Tabernacle at three o'clock, except on Saturday. The evening meetings are held in the Salvation Army Temple at 7.45, and it is necessary to be early to get a seat. On Sunday, the morning service will be held in Bethany Tabernacle, and the afternoon and evening services in the Capitol Theatre.

THE WEATHER.

The light snowfall of to-day has only served to show the remarkably fine month this March has been. On only two other days have we had rain or snow and then only to a very small amount. The only day below zero was the 1st. In March of last year, we had 38 inches of snow fall; there were 8 days below the zero mark, and excellent sleighing prevailed during the whole month. By way of contrast with the weather we are being favored with this year note this: On the 26th of March, 1923, we had it 5 below zero; on the 27th (a year ago to-day) it was 6 below; on the 28th, 9 below, and on the 29th, 10 below. At the end of the month 15 inches of snow lay on the ground. —W. P.

Unusual clearness of the atmosphere and unusual brightness or twinkling of the stars indicate rain.

THE CANADIAN ELECTRIC HAD GOOD REPORTS

Financial Statement Presented--Working Capital Increased--Mr. E. G. Patterson Re-elected

FUTURE EXPANSION

The annual report of the Canadian General Electric Company shows business booked during the past year in excess of any year previous, but it was explained by the president at the meeting, that this increase in business secured, has not as yet been entirely reflected by the profit and loss account. Owing to the length of time required to fabricate the heavy machinery and equipment for the large power developments it is frequently months, sometimes years, before the profits accruing, appear in the balance sheet. The shareholders have good reason to be pleased with it. It is said that 90 per cent. of the shareholders accepted the plan put forward by the directors recently in connection with the common stockholders, and it is anticipated that the full support now gained by the commercial forces of the General Electric Company will work to the material benefit of all concerned.

In submitting his annual report President A. E. Dyment said:

"In this connection it is proper for me at this time to say that having in mind the possible expansion of the electrical industry in Canada and the necessity of extending our manufacturing facilities, it is probable that for some time it will be prudent for us to conserve our cash resources and to use our surplus earnings after the payment of dividends on the preferred stock to provide for such extensions rather than for the payment of dividends on the common stock of the company."

Business For Year.

Profits for the year showed an increase of $949,443 and net is up $573,519. After payment of interest, depreciation and writing $45,740 off investments earnings were approximately $190,000 short of dividend requirements.

Profit and Loss.

Profits for the year before providing for depreciation and interest charges, amounted to $1,482,234, as compared with $832,791 in 1922 and $1,707,340 in 1921. Net, after allowing the sum of $400,000 for depreciation and deducting interest and exchange charges of $404,152, amounted to $678,083 compared with $104,564 in 1922, and $706,092 in 1921. In the statement for the year ending December 31, 1922, no provision had been made for depreciation. HOME BANK DAY HOUSE COMMONS

A Deputation on Hand to Present Their Side of the Case.

OTTAWA, March 27. Canadian Press. — This is "Home Bank" day on Parliament Hill. A deputation representing the depositors is here and this afternoon there is to be a debate on the whole issue in the House of Commons.

The House debate is arranged to take place over a motion by William Irvine, Labor member for East Calgary, who will ask for a committee to probe the failure. The Irvine resolution is designed to give the committee power to devise means of preventing similar disasters in the future, and to report "as to the possibility of saving the Home Bank depositors from loss."

The attitude of the government is generally expected to be that the problem is now in the hands of a Royal Commission, and that until the report of that body is received no decision on the subject can be taken. It is also thought that the government will advance the same consideration as an argument against setting up a committee of the House to conduct an inquiry.

TORONTO POLICE IN FOR SHAKEUP

Several Men Will Be Placed on the Shelf

TORONTO, March 27. — Toronto's police department, uniformed and detective branches, is due for a shake up at the hands of Chief Dickson, according to a substantial rumour to-day. The shake-up, it is said may come in the form of readjustments throughout the uniformed branch, in the form of some retirements among the older men in the department, and a number of transfers may be made.

Chef Dickson says he has something under consideration which will be presented to the Board of Police Commissioners this afternoon. The exact nature of the readjustments has not been made known, but rumour has it that three, may be four, divisional inspectors, may be retired, and promotions and transfers made to fill their places.

Some of these inspectors, by length of service, are entitled to pensions. They may be recommended by the chief to the commissioners for retirement.

It has been said for some time past that Chief Dickson has not been satisfied with the manner in which some of the divisions have handled criminal matters during the past few months, and that he is deeming it advisable to make a change in an effort toward greater efficiency.

NATURE AT HER BEST.

Those who appreciate nature at her best and revel in a wealth of variegated scenery, will find the route travelled by the Canadian National Railways between Toronto and Vancouver, one of never-to-be-forgotten beauty.

First through the inimitable lake region of Northern Ontario, skirting many placid, mirrorlike lakes pocketed between tree-clad hills, catching a fleeting glimpse of many portentous, rock-strewn little waterways dashing madly towards the quiet level of the lakes below. From Winnipeg the fertile Prairie Provinces treat the traveller to a type of gently undulating scenery not to be seen in any other part of Canada.

The ever-changing scenery of the Canadian Rockies never grows wearisome, no matter how often it is viewed. Jasper Park, with its protected wild game and beauteous Mt. Edith Cavell; colossal Mt. Robson, gigantic, slow-moving glaciers stretching from snowclad peaks, are only a few of nature's wonders the traveller by the Canadian National Route sees before descending to the balmy climate of Vancouver and the Pacific Coast.

There are two Canadian National trains leave Toronto daily for the West. The National carrying standard sleeping car and compartment observation car departs at 10.45 p.m. Steel equipped, the National is luxurious in every detail. A standard sleeping car connecting with the Continental Limited, the train de luxe of the Canadian National System, leaves Toronto every evening at 8.45.

Travellers to California or other points on the Pacific Coast usually take the famous scenic route through Canada because of its beauty. Excellent connections are made at Vancouver with both steamship and train.

Make reservation or get further particulars from any Canadian National Ticket Agent.

CAMPBELLFORD CHURCH FORMS ATHLETIC CLUB

A Tentative Constitution Drawn Up By the Men's Bible Class of Christ Church—Car of Heavy Cattle Brought From the West For Sale Among Farmers of District.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 27. — H. Cubitt, M. H. Sergeant, L. Armstrong and J. Cleverley, the committee appointed by the Bible class of Christ church to arrange for the organization of an athletic association, at a meeting in the parish hall drew up a tentative constitution which will be discussed at a general meeting this evening.

The preamble states that the members of the Bible class had decided to create some activities in the line of sport, the object being to develop congregational intercourse, and to stimulate the building up of the church and its organizations as well as to encourage a sportsmanlike spirit in the town.

The committee discussed the various kinds of sports, first place being given to football. The matter of playing baseball, tennis, hockey, cricket and lawn bowling will be left to the discretion of the officers when the association is organized.

The membership of the organization will be on the following basis. In order to be eligible to take part in the sports the member's name must appear on the Rector's roll, but if any member so enrolled joins the athletic association of another church for four consecutive Sundays to the knowledge of the executive, his name shall be struck off the list of membership and all fees which he has paid in shall be forfeited to the association to which he originally belonged.

The age limit of the members is to be decided by the association.

It is recommended that the officers selected for the organization be men experienced in the various forms of sport, who will be willing to devote time to their duties and to assist in the selection of the various teams. It is also suggested that a selection committee, consisting of the president, the secretary and two others, be appointed. Another suggestion is that the Parish Hall be used as headquarters, and that to meet this expense an assessment be placed on the association.

The colors of the association, if the recommendation of the committee is adopted will be royal blue and white, those being the colors of the Bible class, the members of which are the founders of the organization. The committee recommend further that the annual dues be $1 and that activities be started as soon as possible to raise funds for the organzation.

O. H. Gledhill will preside at the meeting to-night, which is called for 8:15 in the Parish Hall. Mr. Sergeant will make a report of his trip to Peterborough to attend a meeting of the football association in that city, a delegate from Peterborough is expected to speak in the interests of that organization and to advocate the affiliation of the Campbellford team.

Turn of the Tide.

It is not so long ago that heavy farm horses were shipped from Ontario to the west but it seems that the tide has set in the opposite direction. It is said that there is practically no demand for horses now in the Prairie provinces, and that good stock cannot be disposed of at $5 a head.

John Currie of Seymour is among the first of these new dealers, he having recently brought in a carload of heavy horses from Regina for sale among the farmers here.

Cost of Sewers.

The total length of the four sewers which the town council is arranging to put in on the west side of the river is 6349 feet, and as the estimated total cost is $33,238, the outlay per lineal foot is $5.24. Of this the amount charged against the property owners on each side, under the local Improvement Act, is $1.87 per foot frontage.

The town will pay for the construction of these sewers, including the intersections, $13,725,an and the share of the property owners directly benefited will be $19,513.

The total estimated cost of the water mains to be laid with the sewers is $8991, and of this amount, the property owners pay $5011, or 84c a foot on a frontage of 5966 feet, these mains being already laid on some of the streets where sewers are to be put in. The town's share of the cost of the water mains will be $3980.

The new sewers and water main will cost the general taxpayers a total of $17,705, or a little over one and a half mills on the assessed value of the debt, were cleared off in one payment.

The new water mains will be an additional source of revenue to the town when the various residences are connected.

Personals.

William Jordan leaves to-morrow for Wilton, near Napanee, to spend the week end. Mrs. Jordan, who has been there for several weeks, visiting her sister, who is ill, will return with him.

Manager Davidson took his lady hockey players to Ottawa on the noon train yesterday for their final game of the season.

George Geer of Cobourg, county representative of highways, was in town yesterday on a tour of inspection of the roads in this vicinity.

To Sell Cooperatively.

At the annual meeting of the Brae cheese factory, held Wednesday afternoon, H. B. Cowan of Peterborough delivered an address in the interests of the Dairymen's Co-operative., in which he explained the objects of that organization, and invited the Brae factory people to become members. After Mr. Cowan had left the hall the question was discussed with the result that it was decided to join the co-operative association.

It looks now as if there is to be no cheese board in Campbellford next summer.

Sale of Residence.

T. L. Diamond has sold the residence of Mrs. Ben Doolittle on Front street, Stirling, to Lyman Weaver of Thurlow.

Game Inspectors Busy.

The game inspectors are busy, and R. J. Allan, the new appointee in Campbellford, has already found several cases of illegal trapping of muskrats. Now that the ice has disappeared the utmost official vigilance will be required to prevent the spearing of fish contrary to the regulations.

Inspector Burns of Madoc was here yesterday on official business.

AT THE REGENT

The bill at the Regent Theatre for the last three nights of this week, with a matinee Saturday is "The Ninety and Nine," the pictorial version of the Bible Story that has also been so graphically told in song.

BANK OE COMMERCE IS POORER BY THE DEATH OF SIR EDMUND WALKER

Well Known President Died This Morning After Short Illness--Sir John Aird Paid Tribute to "A Great Britisher."

BLOW TO BANKING

TORONTO, March 27.—(Canadian Press).—At 2 o'clock this morning Sir Edmund Walker, aged 76 years, noted Canadian financier, patron of art and music, and president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, died at his home, 99 St. George Street, of pneumonia. He had been ill only a few days, and the end came with startling suddenness. Sir Edmund took to his bed last Saturday, a heavy cold having developed into pneumonia. No alarm was felt until near the end, but during last night his condition became serious. His end was peaceful. His four sons and three daughters were at his bedside. Lady Walker died last year.

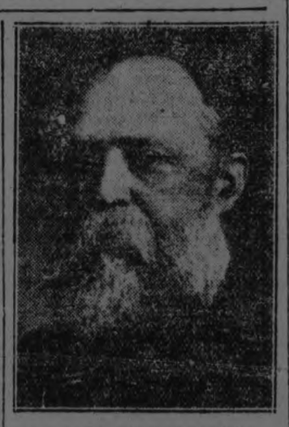
Sir Edmund's last illness was the only serious one of his life. While travelling with the Mendelssohn Choir he suffered an attack of indigestion, with cold, which continued when he returned to Toronto. Symptoms of pneumonia developed on Monday.

Sir John Aird, vice-president of the Bank of Commerce, when informed of the death of Sir Edmund, said that the news came as a great shock. "Above all, Sir Edmund was a great Britisher," he said. "He was a man of many parts, prominent not only in finance, but in education, art and music. His loss is a great blow to banking in Canada."

In 1874 Sir Edmund married Mary Alexander, daughter of the late Alexander Alexander, of Hamilton, Ont.

He leaves four sons: Dr. E. M. Walker, Ewart Walker, Alfred Walker and Harold Walker.

His daughters are: Mrs. Guest, wife of Principal Guest of Appleby College; Mrs. Carl Hunter, Toronto, and Miss Dorothy Walker at home.



SIR EDMUND WALKER,
Whose death occurred this morning after a brief illness from pneumonia.

TO THE ELECTORS PERCY TOWNSHIP

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Certain rumors are being circulated that I am causing the coming municipal election because I did not resign in favor of Mr. Baker, who was nominated on Saturday last.

Mr. Baker has not been a candidate in the municipal field for years, and was only brought into this by Mr. Allen's friends, in order to cast the reason for the election on my shoulders should I not resign in his favor.

My opponents were bound to unseat me and prevent my re-election if possible, no matter what the cost to the ratepayers of this township might be; and they forget that Mr. Allen was once in the same position of being a rural trustee and councillor, and on resigning was given an acclamation. But they refused me the same courtesy as was extended to him, and I feel in all fairness that I was entitled to it.

There are many members of the municipal councils and county councils all over Ontario who are in the same position as I was, in being members of rural school boards, and which, according to the best legal advice, was considered perfectly legitimate until the East York case came before the courts. After this judgment you are aware, I filed a disclaimer to the seat; but even after I had resigned in that way they served me with a notice of motion, and dragged the case into the Supreme Court, and were repaid for this by having to pay their own costs.

I have endeavored to serve all parts of the township, both here and at Cobourg, to the best of my ability; and, promising to do so again, I ask you all for your vote and influence on Saturday next, March 29th.

Thanking you in advance, I beg to remain your humble servant.

W. H. NELSON.

HON. PETER SMITH IS RETICENT--YET

Refuses to Say Anything About Foisting of Blame Upon Him by Premier Drury--"Yet."

TORONTO, March 27.—(Canadian Press). — Governmental action concerning the disclosures involving Charles A. Mathews, suspended Deputy Provincial Treasurer, is contemplated by the Attorney-General, it was stated at the Parliament Buildings yesterday. Mr. Mathews, according to a witness before the Public Accounts Committee, shared in the profit from the transaction in Province of Ontario bonds. He was suspended from office yesterday.

Hon. Peter Smith, former Provincial Treasurer, who is in the city, said last night that his visit had nothing to do with the investigations being made by the Public Accounts Committee into his conduct of the Treasury Department. When asked whether he had been summoned to appear before the committee, he replied, "Not that I know of."

Whether Deputy Treasurer C. A. Mathews or Hon. Peter himself fixed the prices of succession duty free bonds purchased by the Province, the former Treasurer would not say. He refused to make any statement whatever in connection with the matter.

"What about ex-Premier Drury's statement that you must shoulder the responsibility for the conduct of all affairs connected with the financing of the Province during the regime of the U.F.O. Government?" he was asked.

"I won't say a word about that, either—yet," he answered, after a moment's hesitation.

THE PROVINCIAL ESTIMATES.

Despite large appropriations for Hydro development, bonusing of rural power lines and the commencement of the St. Lawrence power development scheme, the main estimates for the fiscal year sending Otober 31, 1925, as tabled in the Legislature on Tuesday, show a decrease of $1,248,092.68 from the main estimates brought down last year.

If the supplementary estimates which will not be tabled until the next session are not unduly large the Government will have succeeded in stopping the upward trend of Provincial expenditures.

Premier Ferguson declared that the Government hopes to keep within the estimates will elicit a similar hope from the people of the Province who are clamouring for retrenchment.

It is of interest to note that the total decrease in the main estimates now introduced over the total estimates of a year ago is $19,850,776.77, but the difference may be considerably smaller when the supplementary appropriations make their appearance.

Hydro plays a big part in the estimates, for the total vote for the power scheme, exclusive of a million dollars for rural transmission lines, is $22,090,000. thirteen and a half millions being appropriated for the Niagara system, while there is an estimate of $1,720,000 for the St. Lawrence system.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

Peterborough's bill providing for extending the term of office of members of municipal Boards of Health to three years, has been thrown out by the Municipal Committee of the Legislature, members maintaining that three years would be too long a period to permit a continuation of a bad health policy if such should be in force.

There does not seem to be much potency in that objection.

Under the system proposed there would be one new member elected each year, which would mean at the worst that the policy of the board could be changed by the substitution of two new members in two years, while if it should happen that there were such strong objections to certain policies of the board as to become an issue, the changing of one member would surely be sufficient warning to cause a revision of policy.

The change was suggested with a view to having a health board composed of members more or less familiar with the duties of the position.

Less time would be wasted in acquainting members into their powers and responsibilities, and it was felt that a more permanent and satisfactory health policy would be the result.

The Municipal Committee has considered that the danger outlined is not balanced by the advantages of the plan, and the system will remain as at present.

MEDICATED ALCOHOL.

The amendment to the Ontario Temperance Act before the Legislature putting further restrictions upon the sale of medicated wines and other patent medicines containing alcohol should be carried.

Certain brands of these medicated wines have figured prominently in police court cases recently.

It has been shown that parties of young boys have secured possession of these mixtures and have proceeded to get "gloriously" drunk and afterwards wonderfully ill.

The amendment now before the House will help to check this evil, for it provides that the Provincial Board of Health on complaint that these medicated preparations are being used for beverage purposes may cause an analysis to be made, and if it is proved to the satisfaction of the board that such medicine contains more than 2½ per cent. of proof spirits and that the medication therein is not sufficient to prevent its use as an alcoholic beverage the board may certify accordingly.

Then the preparations cannot legally be sold except on the order of a doctor.

Such a plan would undoubtedly drive several far too popular brands off the market, and in view of the use to which they have been put and the demoralizing effect they are having upon boys not out of their 'teens that is the only fate they deserve to meet.

It has been far too easy for youngsters to obtain these dubious "medicines."

CAUGHT IN THE JAM.

The automobile retailers claim that the Government of Canada has in its pocket better than a million dollars which rightly belongs to them, says the Montreal Star. They say that the Meighen Government—which lifted the money—might as well have broken into their tills and taken it.

The scenario of "the crime" runs something like this: When the "luxury tax" was being imposed, the retail dealers were compelled to act as unofficial and unpaid tax-collectors. That is, they had to put up the tax before they could get cars shipped to their warerooms. The idea was, of course, that they would subsequently collect this tax from the ultimate consumer.

But when the tax was suddenly dropped, they found themselves with a lot of cars on their hands which had paid the tax. Obviously they could not compel the purchaser to recoup them for these taxes, because untaxed cars came at once into the market. The purchaser naturally preferred the cheaper car. So the retailer was caught in a slammed door.

They have now organized all over the country and have conducted a vigorous campaign for nearly three years. They want their money back. It will run over a million. The two Governments have done nothing and said little. They should at least reassure the country with a full and convincing statement of their side of the case. It is uncomfortable for the average man—who cannot possibly go into all phases of the matter—to be told that he or rather his country has somebody else's money in its pocket.

SHIFTING THE BLAME.

It did not take very long for ex-Premier Drury to throw his old colleague, the Hon. Peter Smith, overboard.

In a speech at Newmarket on Tuesday Mr. Drury is reported to have put all the blame for any "possible poor business methods" of the Treasury Department of his Government upon the shoulders of the former Provincial Treasurer.

Each Minister, he declared, had always been held responsible for the affairs of his own department, and if there had been any question about the conduct of the Treasury Department, that was wrong, the fault did not lie with the government.

Peter Smith, he said, was personally responsible for the conduct of all affairs connected with the financing of the Province during the regime of the U.F.O. Government at Queen's Park.

Mr. Drury will, however, find it not so easy as all that to "get from in under."

Attempting to throw all the responsibility upon his Provincial Treasurer will not relieve the former Premier of his share of the blame.

Peter Smith doubtless was responsible for the unbusinesslike methods that represented a loss of many thousands of dollars to the Province.

But Peter Smith was not responsible for his being in a position to make these mistakes.

He did not appoint himself Provincial Treasurer. He was selected as qualified for that position by the Hon. E. C. Drury, the man who now is trying to shift the whole load of responsibility upon somebody else.

The people of Ontario know the facts of the case and will hold the statesman of Crown Hill as equally culpable as his Provincial Treasurer inasmuch as he appointed the Hon. Peter Smith and kept him in office until the elections had a chance to get rid of both of them.

HOW POLITICS ENTERS INTO REPARATIONS.

It WAS hoped that politics could be adjourned long enough to make possible the drafting of an economic plan for the payment of German reparations. Such a plan was recognized as both desirable and possible. For expert bankers and financiers, facing only economic realities, it was almost mechanical.

It is fairly clear that the special reparations committees have a financially workable plan in hand. Weeks ago it was announced that there only remained the actual drafting. Then the machinery showed signs of halting and bucking. The gears began sand-grinding. Delays, unexplainable save on the assumption that somebody was holding out on grounds not of an economic nature, became the order of days and weeks. Politics.

The news that the British members of the experts' committees, together with Sir John Bradbury, British representative of the Reparation Commission itself, had left for London seems to confirm the already well-informed suspicion that it is the British Government, dominated, as usual, by the bigwigs of the Board of Trade, that is holding up the show.

When the French Government took the trouble virtually to accept in advance the conclusions of the experts on the economic phase of the matter there was large hope that the political factors would be allowed to rest. It was not to be.

It has been ever apparent, of course, that the reparations plan, when and as promulgated, would necessarily have to be cemented by a political agreement. It is neither desirable nor possible to evade this essential of the settlement. France has suffered through German defalcation; she must have protection against a repetition. If France is to let go her hold on Germany some other effective form of pressure must take its place. The ideal of a solid allied front must be sought that the security France has boldly taken may not be vainly sacrificed.

In addition, France is hoping to round out her war victory with an international arrangement to certify her against future German aggression. The idea behind the British-French-American defense compact, to which President Wilson consented at the Peace Conference, is again revived.

Upon this compact was predicated French acceptance of the Versailles Treaty, though both Wilson and Clemenceau must have realized the improbability of its passing the treaty-shy United States Senate. Neither of them, however, could have foreseen the general debacle that followed rejection of the principal treaty—the desertion of France by all her war allies.

Even now that France has shown a bold readiness to enforce the treaty single-handed, it is extremely doubtful if any reparations settlement can be put into execution unless allied unity is re-established in Europe.

Thus political considerations govern the economic solution of the problem. Poincare is once again pressing for a united front in the shape of a defense treaty. He has his lines out in London; he has sent General Foch to treat with Italy.

What will the pacifist-intellectual Prime Minister of Britain do about it? If he holds to the erstwhile prevailing idea that just such agreements brought on the World War, he may be expected to stand firm against it. If, on the other hand, he is convinced that peace depends upon giving France the modicum of security she asks, he may be expected to fall into line for the common good.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Even his best friends can hardly claim that Hon. Peter Smith was a success as the "watchdog of the treasury."

Some people used to say that the Drury Government was a good thing for Ontario. Apparently it was "a good thing" beyond a doubt—but not for Ontario.

Mr. Pinard's bill for 7 per cent. beer failed to secure the support of 7 per cent. of the members who voted on the measure.

Selling bonds to Hon. Peter Smith seems to have been an easy and profitable business.

When it comes to a tax rate Oshawa is not the baby city. The Motor Town residents will have to dig down at the rate of 43 mills this year.

Hydro enterprises call for $22,000,000 of the main estimates of $51,000,000 tabled in the Legislature Tuesday. The figures show the extent to which the people's power scheme is developing.

Most people will agree with the Globe that the only thing that saved Ontario from ruin was the fact that the total issue of succession-free bonds was not large.

FOR 15 YEARS WAS TROUBLED WITH ECZEMA

There is no other remedy like Burdock Blood Bitters that can possibly give such relief to all sufferers from eczema, salt rheum and all other diseases of the blood for the reason that this old and well tried remedy goes right to the seat of the trouble and completely and permanently drives these diseases out of the system by cleansing the blood and making it pure and rich.

Mr. F. W. H. Schultz, Pembroke, Ont., writes: "Having been troubled with eczema for fifteen years, during which time I tried everything I could think of, including doctors, but without getting anything to do me much good I finally decided to take Burdock Blood Bitters, and I was certainly surprised to find that two weeks after I had started to take it I was relieved of my trouble. That was nine months ago, and I have not had a sign of it since. I surely wish to thank you for this wonderful medicine and strongly recommend it to anyone suffering from the same trouble as I had."

OF course Dad's proud of his handiwork, and mother is proud of the finished appearance of the front hall, and paint and varnish were all that was necessary to keep the stairway fresh and new.

But that is not the big thing after all. The real reason for that added beauty and protection lies in its influence on the children's minds. Beauty and order in the home are as important to the full development of the growing, impressionable child as any school taught lesson.

A beautiful and well ordered home will subconsciously sing through all our after lives melodies of old-remembered joy.

And the home that is regularly painted and varnished seems never to grow old.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, March 26.—Rev. R. F. Stillman preached a strong temperance sermon in the Methodist Church on Sunday evening that was listened to with pleasure and profit.

At St. Andrews Presbyterian Church the preacher for the day was Rev. R. Davidson, Ph.D., D.D., Professor of New Testament History and Exegesis at Knox College, Toronto. His discourses were scholarly and of outstanding merit.

Successful Tea and Bridge

A card party and tea, held at the Cobourg Club on Saturday by the Child Welfare Auxiliary, was very successful, and about $40 is added to the sewing fund. There were nine tables for bridge, and prizes were donated by a number of people interested in the work. To date, this group of energetic ladies, who comprise the Child Welfare Auxiliary, have provided the community nurse, Miss Alford, with a dozen complete layettes, and, in addition, garments for older children. Funds for this have been provided by means of a small membership fee and a few kind donations, including one from the King's Daughters.

Whitby Council Drops 7 Mills

Whitby ratepayers have received, perhaps, the most pleasant surprise to come to any of the lake front towns. After a lengthy discussion of the financial budget, as presented to the Town Council, it was adopted, and the rate was fixed at 38 mills. This is seven mills less than last year, and means a consequent drop in revenue, but by economy, the Council hopes to finish the year in good financial standing. The meeting did not adjourn until 11.30, and most of the time was taken up with discussion of the budget in committee of the whole.

Car Was Burned

A roadster car, belonging to Mr. John Corbett, Bagot Street, caught fire, the cause being a short circuit of the electrical wiring, and was entirely consumed. There is said to be insurance of $900.

Interred Here

The funeral of the late Miss Maxwell, who died in Toronto, took place to St. Peter's mortuary chapel here. Rev. Mr. Elliott, of Port Hope, officiated. She had been in failing health for some time, and formerly resided in Hamilton.

House Sold

Mr. Reuben Jackson has sold one of the several houses which he erected recently on King Street, West, to Mr. John Kershaw, of the Cobourg Dyeing Company.

Mr. Fred Sidey's Accident

Mr. Fred Sidey, of Bewdley, while working in his mill, is stated to have had the thumb of his right hand badly injured when it came in contact with a saw.

Basket Social at Camborne

The young people of the Camborne Methodist Church held a successful basket social and entertainment recently, at which they realized $20. This will be devoted to the fund for the support of Dr. W. E. Smith, who represents the Cobourg district young people in West China.

Will Present Crucifixion

Rev. F. J. Horwood, a former Norham pastor, now at Camborne, is training a large choir, comprised of young people from Camborne, Coldsprings and Plainville, to sing Sir John Stainer's Crucifixion, the week before Easter.

Local and Personal

Mr. and Mrs. Fisher have come from Michigan to Frankford to reside, where Mr. Fisher is night superintendent of the paper mill.

Mr. Jack Shannon, of Frankford, is stated to have had a critical operation at Kingston Hospital, but is doing well.

Mr. Frank Zufelt, who resides on the north side of Consecon Lake, is going extensively into sheep raising and ranching silver foxes.

Mr. Walter Griffith, Mergenston, has hired to Mr. Hugh Gilbride, Codrington, for the summer, it is stated.

Codrington friends honored Miss Jea Austin, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mowat Austin, whose marriage is to take place shortly, with many pretty gifts.

John McNally, a brother of Ezra McNally, Orland, died at Imley, Mich., aged 70 years.

Miss Jessie Sharpe, Codrington, has gone to Wooler to clerk in Mr. Edward Nelson's store.

Miss Leah Pierson, Brighton, has gone to Toronto, where she has accepted a position in the millinery business.

Rev. Dr. Mercer, of Trinity College, Toronto, addressed the Canadian Club at Brighton last Friday evening.

SUNDAY GOLF STIRS ROW

Mayor Rules By-law Allowing Sunday Play out of order—Appeal to Attorney-General.

BRANDON, Man., March 26. — Sunday golf has become a civic issue in Brandon, and after a lengthy discussion last night, the city council adjourned without considering further business when Mayor H. W. Cater ruled that a by-law permitting the Brandon Golf Club to lease eurtain lands from the city was out of order The Ministerial Association had waged a campaign to have a clause inserted prohibiting golf on Sunday, but were unsuccessful in getting it inserted in the by-law last week.

Last night the request was renewed and the mayor ruled the by-law out of order on the ground, that, in effect, by permitting Sunday golf, it was against the practice followed in the city for forty years, and such policy could not be changed without a mandate from the people.

The aldermen who favored granting the lease have called a meeting for Thursday and will ask the attorney general's department at Winnipeg to consider the mayor's ruling.

NEW CARDINALS SERVE NO WINE AT RECEPTIONS

Two Americans Honored By Pope Do In Rome What Americans Are Supposed to Do At Home, Reversing the Adage — Colorful Ceremony Wednesday.

CONCLUSION TO-DAY.

ROME, March 27.—To the chagrin of the Romans, who are accustomed to feasting at the receptions following the bestowal of the Red Hat, the new American cardinals, Munderlein and Hayes have decided against serving of the time-honored Marsala at the reception to be given Thursday after the investiture at St. Peter's. Soft drinks and tea will be substituted.

The principal feature of Wednesday afternoon's ceremony was the delivery by Pope Pius of a twenty five minute eulogy of the United States during which he declared that the United States "miracle of charity saved millions from starvation, just as the entry of the United States into the world war decided the fate of Europe and the world."

Those who were privileged to witness the ceremony obtained an impression of its moving spiritual nature which many of them said would not soon be forgotten. Shortly before five o'clock, forty minutes before Pope Pius was to appear, the invited guests began assembling in the Consistorial Hall, which had been filled with backless benches in order to accommodate the greatest number of persons possible. The men were dressed in full evening clothes with ties and the women in black gowns and wearing black veils. The members of the clergy wore gowns colored according to their rank—some black, some scarlet, some violet and some of mixed colors.

The Pontiff was dressed in flowing white robes over which fell the olds of his scarlet silk mozzetta, bordered with ermine. A few moments after he had taken his seat the new cardinals approached the throne, coming up the middle aisle with bowed heads, accompanied by train-bearers Cardinal Mundelein was the first to approach the throne, bowing thrice at intervals of a few paces. Then, as the Pontiff bowed his head in an attitude of beneficient invitation to approach, Cardinal Mundelein mounted the throne, bowed his face towards the floor and then kissed the Pontiff's Fishermen's Ring.

The Archbishop of Chicago remained kneeling as the Pontiff enfolded his shoulders with the mozzetta. Immediately afterward, the sacred biretta was placed on the head of the American prelate. This Cardinal Mundelein removed at once, such being the customary act, indicating unworthiness to remain covered in the presence of the Holy Father. When Cardinal Mundelein arose the Pontiff placed his arms about his shoulders and kissed him on both cheeks. The cardinal then retired, after reverently genuflecting at the foot of the throne.

RUSSIA DENIES HAVING ANY WARLIKE INTENTION

MOSCOW, March 26 (By John Graudenz, Staff Correspondent of the United Press). — Regarding the reports of the Red Army mobilisation and the troop movements emanating from Japanese sources, the United Press was officially authorised to-day to state that Russia never threatened to mobilise her army, never moved a single soldier, nor undertook any steps which could be interpreted as having warlike intentions.

uch statements were merely invented to scare China and delude Chinese public opinion, the Russian Government declares.

Easter Dress For Men

By "THE STROLLER."

NEW YORK, March 27.—(United Press)—Easter Sunday, and Sundays generally, so far as "dressin' up" goes, ain't what it used to be. But there are still enough men who keep to custom to warrant a little exposition as to what should constitute he Easter outfit and an examination into what it will cost them to appear in spring garb.

The suit, this year, is a three-button sackcoat model. The coat is short-seated, with or without vent. The roll-collar is retained and lapels, both notched and pointed, are in style. Light suits, though not too light not to insure good wearing qualities are, as usual, the piece-de-resistance.

Naturally, the darker hues are by no means neglected and blues and browns, as well as dark greys, will be there for those who favor those particular shades. As has been pointed out in previous articles, the trousers are long and full. They hang well over the instep and are sufficiently wide that they may be pulled on over the shoes, a fact which may please those suffering from laziness or the need for great haste in making a change. Vests are about as usual, five-button models being preferred, and either cut straight across the bottom, as in the English models, or in the conventional triangular style. Your Easter suit can be secured for $50 in the ready-made stores, and a very good one, at that.

The hat, to contrast or harmonize with the suit, may be either flat-brim or rolled. Flat brims are being worn quite a bit this season, but they are adaptable more to the younger element. A good, serviceable hat shouldn't require the expenditure of more than a five-dollar bill.

The late Easter this year shouldn't require the wearing of topcoat, April 20 just about marks the time when topcoats are being laid away to the accompaniment of a patter of moth-balls.

Shirts and socks and shoes are more or less staples, so there is no need for particular reference to them at this time. Brown oxfords, particularly the coarse grained style, are exceedingly popular. With the coming of balmy weather, light shades—tan and even yellow—will be brought forth.

The Golf Costume.

With spring freshets busy at their work of clearing the landscape of every vestige of Jack Frost and Mother Nature doing her derndest to brighten the lives of the stately oak and the stalwart maple with garments of green, thousands of men straightway will forsake their radio headphones and furnaces and commence warming up with the old niblick and putter. Just how they should dress, in order to most effectively receive the plaudits of his clubmates upon the achievement of a "birdie" is a problem worth consideration. It will be straightened out shortly and broadcasted for the noble army of golfers.

VISITING CLERGY LAKEFIELD CHURCH

Banquet Provided and Addresses Given—Lakefield News.

LAKEFIELD, March 27.—On Tuesday Rev. F. H. Soper, a returned missionary from China; Rev. Denzil G. Ridout, Toronto; Rev. A. J. Langford, Trinity Church, Peterborough, and Rev. S. T. Tucker, Millbrook, visited Lakefield and met the members of the Quarterly Board of the Lakefield Methodist Church. A banquet was given for them at noon, which was attended by the members of the Quarterly Board and their wives; also Rev. P. H. Neville of Bridgenorth and Rev. Weir of Warsaw. Owing to the extremely bad state of the roads none of the members of either Bridgenorth or Warsaw Quarterly Boards could attend. The visiting clergy gave splendid missionary addresses, which were an inspiration to all who were privileged to hear them. Rev. F. H. Soper and Rev. D. G. Ridout were present at the World Missionary Conference held last week in Peterborough.

ERECT HUGE WATER TOWER.

Site for 500,000 Gallon Tank Chosen by Commission.

OSHAWA, March 26.—A resolution providing for the erection of a new 500,000 Imperial gallon water tower on the grounds of the Oshawa Bowling Club was passed at a meeting of the Water Commission Monday afternoon. Failing to secure a site from the Board of Education on the High school grounds the Commission have no alternative but to build on the site of the present water tower, which has become inadequate to meet the demand of the city. The resolution was as follows: "That owing to the refusal of the Board of Education to permit the erection of the new water tower on their grounds and because of the necessity of deciding at once: That the chairman and the mayor be a committee to endeavor to purchase a satisfactory site for the water tower at such a price as they may be able to obtain the same for; that if the committee are unable to purchase a satisfactory site the water tower be erected on the present water tower lot immediately south of the present water tower and adjacent to Simcoe street; that the Bowling Club be immediately notified that possession of the lands they occupy will be required, such notice to be given pursuant to the lease they hold."

The majority of the deputies appeared stunned at the overthrow of the Government, which many learned only through special editions of the newspapers, as they were not present at the morning session, when less than 100 deputies were in the House, but were voted by proxies for a grand total of 535.

The opinion is generally advanced in parliamentary circles that M. Poincare will return to power with a somewhat changed cabinet. It is thought that the Ministers of Finance, Agriculture and Hygiene will be overturned, and, so that the Premier's programme of economies may be begun in the right way, certain Under-Secretaries of State will be eliminated, and that possibly the Ministries of Agriculture and Commerce will be conjoined. But there was no one last evening, either politician or layman, who believes that M. Poincare will not succeed himself.

NO THREEE-YEAR TERMS FOR BOARDS OF HEALTH.

TORONTO, March 27. — The Municipal Committee of the Legislature yesterday reported a Bill to enable the Reeve or the Deputy-Reeve of a municipality to call out the residents to fight a fire, and remunerate them; also a measure whereby a township may issue debentures up to $20,000 to purchase fire equipment for an unincorporated village within the municipality, with the amendment that the electors of the village must first vote favourably.

The commitee threw out a measure to extend the term of office of Boards of Health to three years, the majority maintaining that three years would be too long a period to permit a continuation of a bad health policy if such should be in force.

Tips For The Easter Gownmaker

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, N. Y., March 26.—(United Press).—This article is written for the woman who intends to make her own Easter frock, and for those who depend upon the efforts of the home dressmaker, rather than the department store for their Easter "chic."

In the first place, let me say that dresses have never been so alluring and so inexpensive as they are this year in the ready-made departments of our shops. Unless one attempts to copy a very unusual and costly frock, it is foolish to try to compete with the ready-made garment of medium prices. I should therefore advise the home dressmaker to confine her attempts to copying costly imports or high-priced American models, which she could not otherwise afford.

I might also suggest that it is often disastrous to try to copy gowns of similar fabrics. Therefore, I shall confine my attempts at describing imports to those which have simple lines and materials which can be duplicated in American department stores.

Chance to Save Money.

In looking over the imports of several New York shops with the home dressmaker in view, I discovered numerous models which cost into the hundreds of dollars which could be reproduced at the cost of an inexpensive, ready-made frock. One particularly effective model, costing $250, was made of black triple crepe. It was designed on straight, beltless lines, above the knees three scalloped bands of the material were placed to form the flounce. These were cut on the straight of the material and acted as a trimming, rather than a flare. They were lined in deep blue georgette and picoted about the scalloped edges. The neckline of this frock was rounding and there were no sleeves.

Attached at the top of the armhole a circular panel of self-material began in a narrow point and broadened out until it was about three-quarters of a yard wide at the bottom. This panel was cut V-shaped with the point of the V attached at the shoulder and its straight selvedged edge attached from shoulder to hem in a straight line at the back of the frock. Three blue georgette bands with wide-scalloped edges were appliqued on, this winged panel. As the arms were lifted the winged panel spread outwards, giving a butterfly effect with its blue scalloped bands outlined on the black crepe.

This frock, though simple, is out of the ordinary run of spring models and would be lovely for the woman whose lines are a bit too mature to wear the beltless frock without a means of diverting from its plainness.

A Simple Frock.

Another simple frock would be suitable for the young miss is made of black crepe de chene. Its straight lines are broken at the knees by a flounce effect formed by five alternating rows of red and black chiffon ruffles. These ruffles are merely straight, double folds of the material, shirred very full. The first ruffle is black and this overlaps a ruffle of red, then black, etc., with a black ruffle terminating at the bottom. A narrow band of red chiffon attached at the shoulder hangs loose, forming a sleeve effect. A girdle of black crepe de chene lined in red chiffon ties in a huge bow at the side front. This girdle is placed low on the hips and is set on so loosely that it does not take away from the straight-line effect. This is a very youthful frock and can be easily made.

Another extremely beautiful gown, on a more dressy order, is made of heavy brown satin. The bodice is tight-fitting and long-waisted, and has tiny puffed sleeves which extend just over the shoulders. The skirt is cut very full and circular and has deep scallops about the hem which are edged with a narrow band of brown-dyed ermine.

This is one of the loveliest frocks I have seen among the imports and would made an adorable afternoon frock for spring. Dyed rabbit fur or some of the inexpensive substitutes for summer ermine could be used to outline the scallops instead of real ermine.

Beige colored lace posed over a black foundation has a crushed girdle of black satin lined in burnt orange satin, which terminates in a two-tone pompom at one side. Brown, tan and beige laces are prevalent among the dressy imports and these are all very simply made with long-waisted bodices and slender skirts which flare in ruffled fashion at the hem or used godets of pleated chiffon or lace to give fullness at the hem.

Where sleeves are used on lace frocks they are long and flaring. Black and brown foundations are somewhat smarter under light-toned laces than pastel or self-shades.

and take the cost out of the general fund.

Hon. Charles McCrea introduced a bill to elevate the status of the commissioner who settles mining disputes to that of a judge. The bill will establish a mining court, and the Federal government is being asked to clothe the new official with the proper power.

Deluge of Legislation.

Mr. Sinclair, Liberal leader, protested at the deluge of government legislation so late in the session. The Premier explained that it had become a habit of people to wait until the legislature opened before they made requests for amendments to law.

There would be two more important measures to come down he said, and he hoped to have them in this week.

An act was introduced by Sir Adam Beck that in matters of a street railway any legislation changing any features of the franchise rights shall not hold after the expiration of a franchise period. At the end of each franchise period the original franchise terms come into effect automatically and amendments made within the period are not further effective.

BRANCH LINES DEBATE.

OTTAWA, March 26. Canadian Press. — The Branch Lines Bills will be debated in the House on Tuesday next. Hon. George F. Graham to-day gave notice to this effect and resolutions preparatory to the introduction of 26 bills were read, involving 26 separate branch lines, to be built at a total cost of $48,312,300.

PARLIAMENT

000 second cubic feet for sanitary purposes. This permission had been given without the consent of the Canadian government. Gradually the quantity of water diverted was increased until Chicago was now using 10,000 second feet.

Not Retroactive.

Mr. Stewart said that the Chicago diversion had never been referred to the international waterways commission, and when Mr. Meighen asked for the reason for this, the Minister replied that he presumed it was because it was felt that the agreement regarding boundary waters did not go back before 1909. The first diversion of 4,617 cubic feet per second was allowed in 1902, and Canada had never admitted the propriety of this diversion. Mr. Stewart summarizes the protests made by Canada beginning with 1912 and coming down to 1916, in which Canada had refused to recognize the legitimacy of any diversion.

Sir Henry Drayton asked for a statement of the protests made recently and Mr. Stewart responded that there had been a protest made on December 19 last, again on January 13, and again about ten days ago.

Sir Henry Drayton again queried to know whether the American government had been asked to carry out the treaty, to which Mr. Stewart answered by again pointing out that it was doubtful whether the treaty covered the original diversion, the rightfulness of which Canada did not admit.

General A. E. Ross of Kingston inquired whether Canada proposed to ask for reparations in view of the damage done by Canada by the diversion.

The minister replied that to claim damages meant an acceptance of the diversions and these Canada had never admitted to be proper.

"Get Down to Business."

The loss of a very few inches in the level of the Great Lakes was a very serious matter to certain of the lake ports, said John Millar (Progressive, Qu'Appelle). He referred to the matter particularly from the point of view of the Western Grain Growers and stated that cheap transportation on the lakes was becoming an increasing factor in the competition of Canadian grain with that produced in Europe. If vessels cold not load to capacity because of shallow water, they could not carry grain cheaply. P. Michaud, (liberal Restigouche) cited a case in New Brunswick where, he said, United States interests controlled the waters of a river in defiance of a treaty between the two countries. If the United States was permitted to continue in the course which it was pursuing it would be a serious thing for Canada. He adivsed the minister of the interior to "get right down to business" and deal with the matter.

Protests Ignored.

Two facts had been brought out by the discussion, said E. Guss Porter, (Conservative, West Hastings). The first was that there had been a steady diversion at Chicago; secondly, the only thing that had been done to remedy this wrong was that the Canadian government had protested. Surely Canada had not got into a position whereby she uttered protests which either were ignored or were replied to and then forgotten. The time had come when the question of the jurisdiction over the waters of the Great Lakes should be decided. The relations between Canada and the United States were most amicable at present. Therefore, this would be a good time to decide a matter which later might develop into a very serious international difficulty.

Produce Correspondence.

Sir Henry Drayton said it was not often so many members of the house were in accord as on this resolution. Everyone agreed that Canada was suffering as a result of non-observance of a treaty. He moved that the debate be adjourned until all the papers concerning the negotiations between Canada and the United States could be laid on the table. The prime minister thought that the suggestion was a proper one. There had been communications with Washington a few days ago regarding the tabling of correspondence. It was expected that the United States would have no objec-

MANY LANGUAGES SPOKEN IN ENGLAND

LONDON, March 27.—(United Press).—Visitors who imagine that a thorough knowledge of English will carry them everywhere in Britain get a nasty shock sometimes, and wonder whether they are really in an English-speaking country.

Apart from the admittedly foreign districts of London—Saffron Hill and Soho, where Italian, French and Spanish is the rule; Whitechapel and Aldgate, where Yiddish, Russian and Polish prevail; Limehouse, where Chinese and Malay is normally heard—there are half a dozen "British" languages to puzzle the foreigner.

The least known perhaps is Cornish. England's most westerly county has a tongue of its own, reputedly going back to the days of King Arthur and his Knights of the Round Table. Non-Cornishmen do not pretend to understand it.

Welsh is very generally spoken all over that principality. Gaelic rules all over Central and Northern Scotland, while Erse is spoken in Ireland. In addition, there is a Manx language spoken on the Isle of Man, and Norman-French is the prevailing language in the Channel Islands.

Some of the "English" spoken in the western counties of Somerset and Devonshire, also the northern counties of Yorkshire and Lancashire, might almost be called separate languages, while broad Scots-English is a hopeless trial for the foreigner, although all are merely styled "dialects."

CANADIAN GOLD TO U.S.A.

OTTAWA, March 26 (Canadian Press). — Canada's total gold export during February, 1924, worth $1,102,787, went to the United States.

It is a little less than in January, 19224, but greater by one and one-quarter millions than in February, 1923. This includes gold-bearing quartz, dust, nuggets, and bullion obtained directly from mining operations.

Of silver (except bullion) Canada exported last month 279,925 ounces, worth $171,685.

Prudence Page—a charming country girl, has fallen in love with

Janet Mercer—Prudence's dearest friend, an older woman, plain but clever, is masseuse to the delicate child of

Mrs. Vansittart—a pleasure-loving woman-of-the-world, owner of Winston Towers, a beautiful summer home.

Virginia Dale—her ward, is a blase beauty, who counts Traymore among her many swains. She is genuinely interested in

Peter Armstrong—a brilliant young inventor, clever and ambitious. His marked attention to Prudence at a ball at Winston Towers leads Virginia to call on the girl the next day in order to ascertain just how far things have gone. Traymore, who has put off meeting Prudence's mother, until the young girl comes to doubt his professed love, choses this day to make his call. He is embarrassed at finding his two sweethearts together, and the situation is awkward, until Peter appears on the scene.

Virginia contrives so that Prudence shall see a love-letter to her (Virginia) from Bert.

Janet, the sensible, has long been madly in love with Will Ogilvie. Now he comes to tell her that he is going abroad. He must say good-bye.

From Ogilvie's outburst, Janet suddenly realises that Will is jealous of Peter Armstrong.

Janet tells Will that if he goes to the ends of the earth she is going with him.

CHAPTER XXIX.

A Startling Apparition.

When Miss Virginia Dale deliberately dropped the love-letter written to herself by Bertram Traymore, on the pathway of Green Gables, knowing full well that Prudence, in all likelihood, would find it, and that it would add a further wound to a tender, loving, girlish heart, she had felt a certain degree of satisfaction in the despicable act.

But that satisfaction was tempered by extreme annoyance over the fact of Peter Armstrong's attention to the 'chit.'

What the brilliant young inventor saw in Prudence Page beat Miss Virginia absolutely!

"Insipid child!"

"Sly little cat!"

"Little Miss Innocence, who wouldn't say 'bo' to a goose, and yet try and grab every man who came along!"

These were a few of the names Virginia called her unconscious rival.

What could he see in Prudence that she—lovely Virginia—lacked?

Youth?

But none of them knew Virginia's age, thanks to the services of her clever maid, to her own systematic dieting, massage, rest, cosmetics, and all the tiresome ritual she underwent, in the name of youth and beauty.

Dew was on the grass.

There was a dewiness about the Prudence chit. A large-eyed candor, as it were, that somehow 'got' the men. A freshness of appearance and of manner that made one think of apple-orchards in the early dawn dew-bespangled grass, and birds twitt ring in the branches.

These poetic images were not the children of Virginia's brain; but, subconsciously, the comparison of Prudence and spring-time did flit through her mind.

She was rather silent on the homeward run with Traymore.

"Whatever made you call on the Page family?" queried the latter, as Jinny's car flew over the country country roads towards Winston Towers.

"Curiosity, I s'pose," she said laconically.

"I suppose you thought when the cat was away the mice could play," she retorted, with attempted humor.

He laughed boisterously.

"That isn't up to your usual level of wit, You're becoming banal, Jinny!"

"A back-number, maybe!"

"Never!" He touched the hand that was free from the steering-wheel. "You knock spots off the lot of them, you do!"

"Poetically spoken, Bert." She gave a crooked smile; and then she added, suddenly:

"I don't imagine Peter Armstrong thinks so."

"Armstrong? Bah! The chap makes me tired!" At mention of that name, however, Traymore had looked embarrassed. Though Jinny knew nothing of the matter, he hadn't got over the summary ducking in the trout-pool . . . and he hated the man who, in every way, had proved superior to himself. It had been very awkward meeting him that afternoon, although a sort of truce had been upon the 'tapis.'

"If you were half the man Armstrong is——"began Miss Jinny below her breath, and then thought better of it. Traymore was her 'beau,' and was quite useful. No use to antagonize him. And, of course, criticism was the one sure way to lose an admirer, tempting though it was.

Luckily, Bert hadn't heard the broken sentence.

The car drew up at Winston Towers, and Jinny went into the library to write some letters, telling Traymore to run away and amuse himself.

He found a kindred spirit in the billiard-room, and proceeded to play 'a hundred up.' He was a past master at this sort of thing. Billiards, poker, bridge—he was an adept at them all.

Meanwhile Virginia, in the library, was busy with her letters. She had to keep in touch with various out-of-sight admirers for fear that they dropped off. 'Out of sight' usually meant 'out of mind' . . . at least, it was so with herself, and she usually credited others with her own feelings.

"'Lo, Miss Jnney! Tell me story." Little Lucia had limped into the room and stood beside the desk, her big eyes upturned pleadingly.

"No; run away. I'm busy," rapped out Virginia, who disliked a physical deformity. Lucia's little face, had it not been so peaked, through pain, would have been pretty. suffered from the unforgivable thing, But her spine wasn't straight.

So Lucia limped away, back to her nursery, disappointed. Lucia adored all beauty, and she wished that the lovely lady would have let her stay with her a little while, just for the sheer joy of looking at her.

Virginia finished her correspondence then went to her own room to take a 'facial pack,' so that she might look her best at dinner-time. The 'facial pack' was nothing but specially-treated mud, which Virginia smeared upon her face thickly, letting it stay on for half-an-hour.

It pricked a bit, 'drawing' the skin, and stimulating it, and—after it had caked on hard, as it was meant to do—it was rather a job getting it all off with hot water.

But the process, though awkward and a trifle painful, really did give fine results. Virginia's complexion, glowing like a rose, emerged triumphant from the mud pack.

She smeared it on with a heavy hand, squeezing large quantities out of the tube. Those lines that threatened to show around the mouth and eyes must be got rid of!

Then she lay upon the bed, relaxing every part of the body, as per instructions, while the thick mud on her face started to smart and harden.

Ten minutes later, a clock striking the hour, warned her that time was speeding.

Before removing the mud, she'd slip along the passage to her bath. At this hour no one was about . . .

Virginia cautiously opened the door, peered around, and then—armed with immense sponge and towel—proceeded down the corridor. She was almost at the bathroom door when she heard a sudden scream, in a child's frightened treble, and saw little Lucia staring at her from a corner.

Black-faced lady!" cried Lucia, backing away, and not in the least recognizing the former beauty.

"Don't be silly!" hissed Virginia, sharply. "And don't you dare tell anyone you've seen me like this——"

Before she could complete her injunction, Peter Armstrong, in his stockinged feet—for he was playing hide and seek with his little friend Lucia—swung around the corner and confronted the weird and mud-encrusted apparition!

Virginia Reassures Herself.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Clive Roberts Barton

HUNTING FHE TIN MOUSE

Up walked the pin-cushion lady.

"As I was saying," declared the wooden waddle duck, "I never was so scared in my life! No wonder I jumped and scared the tin soldier's horse."

"What scared you?" asked Nancy.

"Hold on! Hold on, there!" cried Mister Fuzz Wuzz, the pipe-cleaner man. "I'll do the asking. You are not allowed to talk. It's your job to listen."

"Excuse me," said Nancy.

"Certainly," answered Mister Fuzz Wuzz. "Now to get back to business so we can find out who is really to blame for breaking the peanut boy's nose—well, as I said before—to get back to business! I—I—I—What were we talking about? Now I'm all mixed up."

"You were asking the waddle duck what scared him," reminded the patent-leather cat, whose name was Toby.

"Of course! Of course!" said Mister Fuzz Wuzz hastily. "Well, what scared you, Mister Duck?"

"A most unusual thing," quacked the duck. "I was walking along Candy Street in Doofunny Land as nice as pie when suddenly somebody landed plump right on my back and threw her arms around my neck and yelled, 'Save me! Oh, save me!' It gave me such a turn that no wonder I skidded twenty inches out of my way right across traffic and scared the tin soldier's horse!"

"Who fell on your neck?" barked the rubber dog.

"The pin-cushion lady!" declared the wooden waddle duck.

"Please step this way, Mrs. Pin Cushion," ordered Mister Fuzz Wuzz, "and tell us why you fell on the wooden waddle duck and threw your arms around his neck and asked him to save you.

Up walked the pin-cushion lady, her satin skirts spreading so far on each side that all the Doofunny people had to pull their chairs away to let her pass.

"I hate court rooms!" she declared with a sniff. "They are such stuffy places. I'm accustomed to a lovely room all hung with velvet and laces, and I sit on the loveliest white bureau!"

"Oh, tush!" scolded Mister Fuzz Wuzz. "We know all about that. But you forget that that was before you got all dusty and were thrown out like the rest of us and came to Doofunny Land to live. Will you or will you not tell us why you fell on the wooden waddle duck and asked him to save you?"

"Why, I'll tell you," said the pin-cushion lady. "I haven't the least objection in the world. It was the tin mouse. I saw him coming right at me. I knew that I should faint if someone didn't rescue me, and that duck was the nearest."

"There!" declared the cat. "I told you the tin soldier was not to blame for stepping on the peanut boy. The mouse should be put into jail."

"Where's the tin mouse," called everybody.

But he wasn't to be found.

"We'll find him," offered the twins.

"Good!" cried Mister Fuzz Wuzz. Run right along!"

Your Health

By DR. CLIFFORD C. ROBINSON

Careless habits of dressing during the rapid changes of weather in February and March will often lead to temporary conditions of nasal or sinus troubles.

If not promptly attended to, it often leads to serious nose and head complications.

The bones of the nasal cavities contain four pairs of air spaces, which act as communicating tubes or canals with the nasal passages. Often through very slight causes or simple attacks of invading germs the mucous membranes of the passages become inflamed and infected.

If these nasal attacks are carefully attended to the infection of the sinuses is not apt to occur. Do not on any account neglect a slight cold, nasal discharge or any unusual condition.

Any nasal or throat infection affects the passages and mucous membranes to such an extent that it often becomes chronic and in many people almost defies curative treatmet. The pus-germs caused by nasal sinus infection, particularly in children, frequently lead to bad cases of bronchitis, heart disease and Bright's disease.

Neglecting to treat such slight attacks at once, may also lead to much greater disturbances in the accessory sinuses of the skull.

Not only does this neglect produce the diesase condition mentioned, but proper nasal growth in children is often retarded to such an extent that the nasal passages are never sufficiently developed. In such cases the nasal passages in adult life are sometimes no more developed than those of a small child.

Such a condition produces a great defect in afcial growth and expression. Sometimes the nose itself becomes twisted to one side by muscular efforts to breathe properly.

WHAT IS SLEEP?

He who is in full possession of his health should enjoy sound refreshing sleep.

The waste products of bodily activity, that is, the daily elimination of all cell and tissue changes thrown off by respiration and the processes of renewal and repair appear to be the real factors which cause sleep. On these waste products in a large measure depends the distribution of the blood.

The lessening of the blood supply to the brain is no longer regarded as a factor of great importance in producing sleep. While the blood pressure is not materially changed, the heart action may be said to enjoy a slight decrease during sleep.

How much is enough sleep? The modern theory is that you need all you can get. If you have a good bed, eight hours ought to be a fair average. It is a physiological fact, proven in thousands of cases by careful experiment, that we need all we can get and should take all we can use.

Women need an hour more of sleep than men as a usual rule. Most of them usually get less.

One's best sleep is with the stomach practically empty. It is true that food puts one to sleep at first by diverting blood from the head but it disturbs sleep later.

The character of sleep depends largely on the mental attitude upon going to bed. One should get into the habit of absolutely dropping work and cares at bed time.

When the oxygen balance in the tissues is restored, when the daily fatigue poisons are eliminated or burned up by the oxygen, and when the worn-out cells are replaced, you'll wake—rested and refreshed. You wouldn't want any more sleep, even if you could get it.

RADIO PROPAGANDA SENT THROUGH AIR

Broadcasters May Be Summoned Before Senate Committee.

WASHINGTON, March 27. — (United News.)—Radio broadcasters are expected to be called before the Senate committee investigating the Department of Justice, to answer charges that "propaganda" against the investigations now going on at the Capitol is being carried to thousands of homes through the air.

Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, who has received reports that such "propaganda" is in progress and is financed by large interests, announced Wednesday that information gathered by officials of various government departments, will be presented at an exectuive session Thursday. It will be decided at this time whether representatives of broadcasting concerns will be summoned.

The "propaganda," according to Brookhart, is aimed at discrediting the investigations, and in bringing pressure from the public to hush them up.

Fog banks, snowfields and drifting clouds have been noted on the moon.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How To Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples ,or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. A. J. FALLIS, M.P.P. IN LEGISLATURE

Spoke in House When Agricultural Questions Were Being Debated.

MILLBROOK, March 26.—A. J. Fallis, M.P.P. for East Durahm made his maiden speech on the floor of the Legislature during the session when agricultural questions were being debated upon. Premier King's action in cutting off the subsidy for this basic industry was being discussed and criticized when the member for East Durham was heard from, Mr. Fallis being the second speaker after the Minister of Agriculture, Hon. J. S. Martin.

The fact that Hon. J. S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, sent Mr. Fallis a personal letter congratulating him upon the clear and concise manner in which his speech was delivered, as well as upon the practical knowledge, the vision of present and future need, which its subjects matter contained, reflects credit not only upon him personally but also upon the constituency he represents.

The need of education along all lines connected with the farming industry was strong emphasized, as was also the absolute necessity of studying the problems affecting production, transportation, and marketing, that proper remedies might be applied.

Cheaper Hydro power is a live question in rural communities today and some solution of the problem of furnishing them with this important adjunct to comfort and convenience should be arrived at as speedily as possible—bonuses for trasmission construction being a suggestion thrown out as worthy of consideration.

Educational facilities for the boys and girls from the farm equal to those enjoyed by children in urban centres was another point given due stress, though whether consolidated schools is the wisest thing to recommend is a question for careful consideration and discussion.

The destructive influence of politics upon the United Farmers' Co-operative movement took up the concluding portion of Mr. Fallis' address, several other members representing rural constituencies agreeing with him in this conclusion.

Careless Shampooing Spoils the Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, which is pure and greaseless, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

There was also a demonstration on home-made candy by Miss McConnell. The meeting was brought to a close by singing the King. There were seventeen ladies present.

Had Good Meeting.

The young people of the Methodist Church had a splendid meeting on Monday night. About forty were present. In the absence of the president, Rev. W. Elliott presided, and had charge of the business. The secretary read a letter from Rev. R. McWilliams, thanking the League for their letter of sympathy during his illness, and also thanking them for their donation sent to help him purchase a gramaphone. A letter from the Belleville Theatrical Club was also read, giving more particulars about their play and the expenses pertaining to it. On motion of Miss Hoover and Miss Payne it was left for the executive to decide.

Miss M. Forde, the third vice-president, took charge of the programme, and the following was given: Instrumental solo—Miss Viola Frederick; reading—Iris Corey; instrumental duet—Ina Boyd (piano) and Jack Boyd (bones); vocal solo—Mr. Harry Young.

An excellent paper on the "Life of John Wesley," was given by Miss Payne. She told of his early life, his college life, his life while in America, about his conversion, of his visit to the Moravian Church in Germany; how he planned his work in classes, with a leader for each class. She told of the trouble he had with some of the people, when he preached, and showed how God took care of him in so many ways. He was doing God's work thus God cared for him. He felt he must redeem every fragment of time. When he was eighty-four he could still write sermons. He died on March 2nd, 1791, at the age of 87 hears. He never weighed more than 122 pounds. He was strictly temperate and fond of exercise. In dress, he had an air of neatness and simplicity.

This paper was enjoyed, and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Miss Payne by Miss Forde for the splendid topic, and also to the others who helped in the programme.

NEWS FROM WARSAW AND THE DISTRICT.

Wild Geese on the Way—Many Signs of Spring in the North.

WARSAW, March 27.—There was no service in the Baptist Church Sunday, nor will there be next Sunday. Pastor Chorley is away for two weeks.

There was no Anglican service. The clergyman could not get here.

In the Methodist Sunday School the regular quarterly temperance program was given. Hilliard Darling gave an excellent address. He had studied his subject thoroughly and put what he had to say very strongly and concisely. This is the last temperance lesson for this church year, and Mrs. Matthews. Convener of the Temperance Committee, thanked all the committee for the way they had helped.

On Friday evening, in the Methodist basement, there will be a meeting of the Dummer Sunday School Association. Every minister, Sunday School superintendent and every other officer of the Dummer association is urged to be present.

Flock Wild Geese.

A flock of wild geese was seen flying south on Saturday.

Meadows and fall wheat fields are showing green already. They are bare quite early.

Springs are filled and water from melting snow is soaking into the earth. The season has advanced rapidly since March 1st. Much sunshine, little wind, no storms, snow going rapidly, little frost in the ground.

Open Boundary.

On Saturday afternoon Allan Edwards and a couple other men started to open the boundary from Wallace Anderson's corner. The county is attending to that matter this year. The road is now opened as far down as Allan Payne's lane, and will shortly be opened to the Dummer road. That boundary contrives to catch and retain a tremendous pile of snow, and there is pretty steady shovelling on a good deal of it.

Some of the village people had their cars out last week, but no cars go out of nor come into the village yet.

Charles Storm took a wheeled vehicle to Peterborough on Saturday with the mail.

Quite a number of sugar bushes are already tapped, and the rest will likely be tapped this week. There seems likelihood of a good run.

One man in the village was digging in his garden today and found it all right to work in.

The annual meeting of Warsaw Cheese Factory patrons took place in Warsaw Cheese Factory on Friday afternoon. J. A. Crowe was in the chair. The usual business was transacted and things are in a prosperous condition. A number who have not been but are prospective patrons were present. It looks as though there will be more than ever doing in Warsaw factory. E. Hawthorne, who has been salesman for many years, resigned, as he expects to be out of the village for many years. Fred. Crowe was appointed salesman. He was also re-elected secretary-treasurer. No special dairymen faced the bad roads to be present.

MEN AGAIN CROWD HYGIENE EXHIBIT

W. R. Breyfogle Gave an Address Last Night on Effects of Venereal Disease on Industry.

W. R. Breyfogle, general manager of the De Laval Co., Ltd., addressed a largely attended gathering at the Social Hygiene exhibit in the Library Hall last night on the effects on industry of venereal diseases. His address was attentively listened to, and his declaration that the ravages of the diseeases not only affect the persons suffering from them but the whole community by throwing added burdens upon them made a deep impression. He illustrated his remarks with several stories from real life which came within his personal observation, and concluded with an effective appeal for the education of young girls and boys in ways that will safeguard them against the inroads of diseases which end so disastrously as the pictures and exhibits indicated the end of venereal diseases to be.

The picture, "The Gift of Life," was again shown, with an added reel showing the ravages of the disease against which the Social Hygiene Council is doing battle.

Dr. Sutton fittingly summed up the points made in Mr. Breyfogle's address and in the posters, leaning on an appeal that young men give their children the best possible start in life.

MR. H. BOWLES

ENJOYS HAPPIEST SUMMER IN YEARS

Toronto man thanks famous herbal remedy for relief it brought to him—General health much improved, and suffering relieved.

"A last, a summer spent without continual suffering," says Mr. H. Bowles, of 23 Pryer Ave., Toronto. "For the past two years I have been a constant sufferer from rheumatism, the pains shooting through my hips, ankles and shoulders so bad that I could hardy get around at times. Dizzy spells often came over me and everything would turn black before my eyes.

"Pains through my whole body would often double me up when walking about, and it seemed that I could never straighten up with comfort. Sick headaches also caused me hours of suffering. Life was a continual misery to me and nothing I took in the way of medicine or treatments gave me any noticeable benefit; that is, until I started taking Dreco, which proved to be just the remedy my system needed, and readily responded to its corrective influence.

"The rheumatic pains are rapidly disappearing and my entire system is far stronger. I am able to get out and enjoy the summer in comfort, free from suffering, and I gladly state that Dreco is the cause of my great improvement. I am continuing to take it as a tonic and system-builder and know that further improvement will be mine.

Dreco is specially prepared from Herbs, roots, bark and leaves and acts on the kidneys, liver, stomach and bowels and purifies the blood. It cleanses the whole system and affords wonderful relief from rheumatic pains, gastritis, dyspepsia and all other forms of indigestion, arouses a sluggish liver and relieves constipation. Let it make your life a comfort by putting your system in shape that Nature intended it to be in. Dreco contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterboro by Bond's Drug Store. It is also sold as follows:
Lakefield—E. H. Northey.
Campbellford—J. E. Birks.
And by a good druggist everywhere.

"DIET OF YOUNG CHILDREN"

At open meeting of the Well Babies' Clinic, held on Tuesday afternoon in the rooms at the G.W.V.A. hall, was featured by an interesting and instructive address on "Diet of Young Children," given by Dr. Ray Scott. This will be the last open meeting of the season, but the regular Tuesday Clinics will continue, as usual. There was an especially good attendance on Tuesday afternoon, the room being filled to capacity, with over thirty good-looking babies in attendance, as well as many mothers. Mrs. W. Galbraith, president of the Well Babies' Clinic, presided over the meeting, at the close of which the King's Daughters served tea.

Young Children's Diet

The address by Dr. Ray Scott dealt in detail with proper feeding methods to be employed with young children. The doctor said that the problem of the growth of the child depended upon proper feeding, which in turn, depended to some extent on the number of teeth. Three things were necessary in feeding (1) the proper method in preparation of food (2) the proper times observed in feeding, and (3) the quantity of food given. One thing was most important; to keep the child hungry enough so that when meal time came, it was ready to enjoy its food. An improper diet had a bad effect on the child's growth, and regular meals were very necessary.

For a baby of twelve to eighteen months of age, the first breakfast should be given between six and seven o'clock in the morning, and as a child of this age required a large amount of sleep, it should be put to bed about six or seven o'clock in the evening. For breakfast, the juice of half an orange, or the pulp of four to six stewed prunes, or two tablespoonfuls of pineapple juice might be given, also some form of gruel, without sugar, and toasted bread or zweibach, or a cup of milk. At eleven o'clock, give a glass of milk alone or with zweiback or toast. The cooking of cereals used should be from two to four hours in length with a preliminary quick boiling for five minutes, then a slow cooking in a double boiler. No uncooked cereals, should be used.

At two o'clock, dinner should be given, and the doctor drew the attention of his hearers to the necessity of feeding children after the parents had their meals, so as to be able to give full attention to the matter. For dinner, they might have broth of chicken or beef or mutton, with rice or beef juice; or a soft-cooked egg mixed with bread crumbs, also a potato baked until mealy, bread twenty four hours old or toast, and a glass of milk. For supper, at six o'clock bread twenty-four hours old or toast or zweibach, and milk or cereal and milk, a baked apple or apple sauce or prune pulp.

Eighteen Months to Two Years

For a child from eighteen months to two years of age, breakfast might be the same as mentioned above, only in a greater quantity. Lunch at eleven might consist of a glass of milk or a piece of bread and butter or zweibach and butter. Dinner at two might be of broth, thickened with peas, sago, rice or barley, or vegetable soup and milk or beef juice with bread crumbs, or a soft cooked or poached egg. Vegetables could be added now to the diet, such as mashed potato, squash, cooked celery, mashed turnips or carrots, with bread and butter and a tablespoonful of prune juice or apple sauce.

Supper at six might be of macaroni boiled rice, custard, two slices of toast with butter, milk, a baked apple, or apple sauce or stewed prunes.

The diet of a child from two to three years of age would be similar, only in greater quantity. A child from three to six years of age could have meat added to its dinner menu in beef, lamb, mutton, chicken or boiled fish, and all the vegetables, excepting corn, cabbage, cucumber or egg plant. They might also have simple puddings such as custards.

No Candy or Ice Cream

Children from six to ten years of age could have adult food, with the exception of candy, cake, pie, doughnuts, pickles, cucumbers, fried foods, spices, tea, coffee, soda water wine, beer, and ice cream. Children schould also be discouraged in eating candy, cake, biscuits, jam, jellies, ice cream and uncooked cereals.

A few rules with regard to children's diet were given such as regularity in time of meals, no eating between meals, teaching children to eat slowly and chew their food thoroughly, also to clean their teeth twice daily and have a dentist fill any small cavities, as decayed teeth are harmful, and also teach the children to wash their hands before eating. If the child observed these rules, and still did not eat properly, it should be taken to a doctor.

The regular weekly clinics held for examination and weighing of babies will be continued as usual, every Tuesday, in the G.W.V.A. rooms.

PREMIER POINCARE IS NOT WORRYING

Sends All His Callers Away With Smiles

PARIS, March 27. Canadian Press. —Premier Poincare's first morning's efforts to solve the Cabinet crisis growing out of yesterday surprise defeat in the Chamber, appeared from all outward signs not to have given him much trouble. All his callers came with smiles and left with equally pleased expressions. All voiced confidence that the Premier would succeed in reaching a solution of the difficulties, which involve not only the finding of Ministers, new or old, to make up the governmental family, but also a discovery of the way out of a blind alley into which parliament was led by the chamber's action on the pension bills.

The Premier's action has been facilitated by strong reaction in the chamber from the attitude taken yesterday morning, which caused the downfall of the cabinet.

Groups representing more than 400 deputies, nearly two-thirds of the lower house, have passed resolutions expressing their confidence in the government.

MARCH MEETING OF THE GRADED UNION

Rev. J. D. Richardson Gave Talk on Three Fundamentals.

The March meting of the Elementary Graded Union was held in Knox S.S. room on Tuesday evening at eight o'clock. The president, Mrs. Carver, opened the meeting with prayer, after which Rev. J. R. Richardson gave a talk on three fundamentals of good teaching, dealing with attention, self-expression and illustration. To secure attention it is necessary to overcome outside distraction, preferably by having separate rooms, to know one's lesson very well and hold the interest by every possible means.

Self-expression is an essential of good teaching of young children and takes many forms, play for the youngest, reproduction of stories and dramatization for older ones and much handwork for the juniors.

Illustration was the third point discussed. Jesus was the world's greatest teacher and this was partly due to his wonderful use of parables and word pictures.

Mr. Richardson himself used pointed illustrations in presenting his subject and made it very interesting and profitable to the Teachers present.

Mr. James Browne sang a much appreciated solo. Mrs. Carver showed sample of Easter gifts, Birthday cards and other helpful material and the Junior Teachers of Knox S.S. sang two junior songs and taught them to the others in the audience.

The meeting then divided into the different grades and problems of interest to each were discussed.

McKinstry and Mrs. J. Monks, and readings by the Misses Kelly and Walker. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the evening's entertainment, enlivened by instrumental playing by Mrs. Hill, and the Misses Hill, Welbourn and Fairbrother.

BACK ACHED TERRIBLY

Mrs. McMahon Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chatham, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a run-down condition after the birth of my baby boy. I had terrible pains and backache, and was tired and weak, not fit to do my work and care for my three little children. One day I received your little book and read it, and gave up taking the medicine I had and began taking the Vegetable Compound. I feel much better now and am not, ashamed to tell what it has done for me. I recommend it to any woman I think feels as I do."—Mrs. J. R. McMahon, 153 Harvey St., Chatham, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has for nearly fifty years been restoring sick, ailing women to health and strength. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful periods, irregularities, tired, worn-out feelings and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. McMahon writes, as well as by one woman telling another. These women know, and are willing to tell others, what it did for them; therefore, it is surely worth your trial.

Women who suffer should write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario, for a free copy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women." C

Pyschic Medium Says Small Calls Her And Shows Resting Place of Skeleton But Only Bones of Animal Were Found

MONTREAL, March 27.—(Canadian Press.)— Impelled by a sobbing "release me, release me," wafted to her by an ever-haunting voice, which she declared is that of Ambrose Small, the vanished millionaire Toronto theatrical magnate, Mrs. C. Bonsor, psychic medium of Toronto, came to Montreal yesterday and told detectives they would find Small's bones if they dug up the earth cellar of a St. Antoine street rooming house at a spot directly beneath the sink in the kitchen above. A trench was dug at that very spot. Bones were revealed and submitted to Dr. Derome, city autopsist, who announced, after examining them, that they were not those of a human being, but Mrs. Bensor insists that the voice from the Limbo is not stilled and that the cellar must be dug again and dug deeper.

This, the latest of many amazing developments since the millionaire disappeared, commenced to unfold about four months ago. Dr. Derome answered a knock on the door of his private office one day to find himself confronted by Mrs. Bensor.

"He calls me," she declared. "Night and day I hear the voice of Ambrose Small and it is always the same cry, 'Release me, release me'."

Mrs. Bensor said that the imprisoned spirit voice of the man she is sure is Small, had driven her to Montreal. In her communications with the world of the unknown she had learned that Small had been buried in the cellar of a St. Antoine street rooming house and that she had received mystic directions which would permit her to show the police the exact spot where to dig. Mrs. Bensor next communicated with the police and two officers were detailed to carry out the digging operations.

TORONTO WON FROM LOCALS

Broadview "Y" Team Will Come Here on Saturday With a Lead of 21 Points.

The Peterborough Intermediate basketball team will have to "hump up" to overcome the lead of 21 points which the Broadview "Y" quintette hung up in the game in Toronto last night. The Toronto team outscored the Petes 37 to 16. The local squad playing on the larger floor of the Broadview "Y" a little off colour, but plan to give the Toronto outfit the game of their sweet lives here on Saturday night.

On last night's play the Broadview team certainly deserve their reputation of a fast-going and dangerous adversary. With a little luck they look to be right in line for the championship. They are all fast, work the ball up with snappy combination and are accurate shots. Morris their fast centre was their best point-getter with Laugheen and Rankin both being in the limelight also. The Toronto team are fast to pick up all loose balls and differ, to the Peterborough team, in that they check with their hands and not with their bodies.

The Petes did not take kindly to the large floor and their shooting was not up to the usual form. However they all worked hard and often threatened to break away with a string of baskets. "Hip" Hardill had a couple of sensational shots from past centre. Russel Pogue played a steady game and accounted for many of his team's points.

Toronto got the jump, but after two minutes of fast play Hardill scored for Peterboro on a lucky shot from far out. Toronto pressed the play and ran in five points in a row. The Petes scored again. For the better part of the first period play was about even and it looked as though the Petes would be able to hold the Toronto team to a close score. With about four minutes left the Broadview gang struck their stride and hammered the board with shots. The score stood Peterboro 7, Broadview "Y" 17, when the first period closed.

The Toronto team continued to force the play with the Petes making occasional flashes. The Petes were being checked closely and most of their points were on long shots. The score gradually climbed with Toronto always having the best until with the final whistle the count was 3 7to 16 for Toronto.

The game was clean and handled well.

The following players made the trip: Hardill, Pogue, De Graw, Kim Fleming, McLeish, Young, Stuart and Elliott and Darling.

UNION BILL IS A SUBTERFUGE

Declares Rev. Dr. Eakin Before Private Bills Committee--Hall Was Packed.

TORONTO, March 27.—(Canadian Press).—So great was the crowd waiting to hear the arguments on the Church Union Bill before the Private Bills Committee of the Legislature this morning that the meeting was held in the Assembly Chamber. Chairman Nickle gave warning that no demonstration of any kind would be permitted. The gathering simply packed the Assembly Hall and corridors. The opponents of the bill had their inning when they presented their arguments against the United Church. They pointed out that the bill had not passed the Western Legislatures without strong opposition, claimed that it was presented by a body that had not power to present it, and declared that it violated spiritual liberty. Rev. Dr. Eakin referred to it as "efficient as the guillotine," and declared that former Unionists had revolted against the measure because of its terms.

"Men under this bill," he said, "are compelled to belong, either willingly or unwillingly, to the Union Church. This Provincial bill is a subterfuge to evade the common law which is on the side of those wishing to remain Presbyterians. By common law the property of the Church would remain with those who remain Presbyterians. This bill would take that property from them.

Rev. Dr. Banks Nelson, Hamilton had list of 75 Presbyterian churches in Ontario which he said had voted to oppose union.

He argued that the minority opposed to union was not nearbly as small as the unionist stated.

Rev. W. G. Brown, Presbyterian, Red Deer, Alberta, denied that the western provinces were soldly union. He said the vote in the synod of Alberta in the Presbyterian church had shown that 28 ministers were against union and 32 for it.

M. H. Tilley, K.C. then took up the reply for the unionists. He declared that no policy of fighting the matter out in the courts first was desirable. The proper place is parliament. He said that the present union act was based on the act secured in 1875 uniting two branches of the Presbyterian church.

STRANGE KILLING BY NEW YORK MAN

Held Tea Cup Filled With Blood of Murdered Man When Arrested.

NEW YORK, March 27.—(United Press).—A patch of light from a street lamp outside fell on a damp cellar floor as Patrolman William Gane tried the door on his nightly rounds. Half concealed in the gloom of the basement lay the body of a man, his throat slit, in a welter of blood.

Nearby slinking in the shadows, Gane captured the dead man's brother, Thomas Geveles.

In a brown paper parcel, the murderer held a butcher knife with which the crime had been committed.

In his other hand was a tea-cup, filled with blood. The only anxiety less this be spilled marked the prisoner's demeanor at the station house. He told a story of a debt owed him by his brother, James, which he had been unable to collect. In broken English, sometimes in his native Greek, the prisoner told of luring his brother to the dark cellar and offering him a drink of gin before striking him down with a monkey wrench and cutting his throat. Whether some ancient ritual of his native land inspired the catching of blood from the gaping wound in the tea-cup which Geveles had taken with him from home, he could not explain. "To prove to my wife I did it," was all he said.

The retiring of the preferred as at December 31, 1923, and the issuing of $2,000,000 in common to the General Electric Company brought about this change. Accounts and bills payable amounted to $3,790,264 and deferred and contingent liabilities to $374,332. Reserve for depreciation now stands at $5,453,124.

Mr. E. G. Patterson was re-elected a director.

President Dyment announced that the conversion privilege offered shareholders for the conversion of common into preferred would be reopened for a month or two.

Watch Canada's Smoke! She is Burning Up Her Forests Carelessly Throwing Away Two Billion Dollars a Year

When Will Public Wake Up to the Frightful Toll Which the Fire Fiend Exacts Continually in Our Northern Wilderness ? — Aeroplane Patrol to the Rescue.

By O. C. PEASE

"WATCH Canada's smoke!"

From the vaulted, blue dome of the sky which arches above the immensity of Canada, this is the warning, in purport, which Canadian airmen have been bringing down for several years past, and which only careless and unthinking people will fail to heed. From the rockbound Straits of Belle Isle to the salted mists that wreathe above our British Columbian coast, this ominous message is being repeated with ever increasing emphasis as the months go by. There is never a seaplane that returns from a reconnaissance flight over our wilderness areas, and foams to quiet anchorage on river or lake, but the Sidcote suited pilot and observer have a tale to tell of the hideous depletion of Canadian forests through the agency of forest fires.

No human eye can ever encompass Canada in a single glance. An aeroplane would have to rise to a height of five hundred miles above some central point such as the Lake of the Woods, for instance, before its occupants could catch even a glint of the mighty oceans that lie to the east and the west,—granting, of course, that it would be possible to remove the atmospheric conditions that limit mankind's vision to within a radius of fifty or sixty miles. This latter circumstance was somewhat indignantly explained to me by the gentleman in charge of the meteorological office to which I 'phoned for the information. I have therefore every reason to believe that my statement is correct!

On this account, one may only try to visualize, in imagination, the enormity of Canada, shrouded in the bluish haze of that great envelope which encompasses the earth, and endeavor to picture, as upon a gigantic bas-relief map such as we were accustomed to in school days, the inconceivable vastness of the three million, six hundred thousand square miles of land area which comprises its surface. With an imaginary pointer let us now block out the great areas of forest land that cover, or are popularly supposed to cover, approximately one third of the dominion.

Let us keep the picture before us a moment, —steady,—and then consider what Canada's foresters are now telling us,—that, of this total forest area, comprising roughly one million two hundred thousand square miles, at least seven hundred thousand square miles have already been destroyed by forest fires.

This picture and this statement, considered together, veritably screech a warning at us which is both peremptory and pleading. Even as two and two make four, we may accept as logical the answer which comes to us when we combine two other authoritative statements,—first, that the forest lands of Canada at the present time yield us products valued at $400,000,000 annually,—and secondly, that, for every tree which is cut by the axe of commerce in Canada, at least four are destroyed by fire.

A potential, national loss of two billion dollars a year is one that we, as Canadians, should make every possible effort to overcome!

The history?

For the last forty years, the foresters of Canada have been striving to bring Canadians to a realization of the frightful toll which the fire fiend exacts every year in our northern wilderness. Until the last few years, however, the foresters themselves had no facilities or methods by which they could even approximately estimate the actual extent of the damage which was being done. Meanwhile, in every province, each summer and autumn, whole battalions of men were equipped with canoes and picks and shovels, and were sent paddling up and down the waterways which traverse the accessible southern fringe of our gigantic forest area.

Countless Careless Camp Fires

THESE men worked valiantly. They brushed out their portages religiously. Spirit-like, they haunted the wilderness trails of fishermen, hunters and other woods travelers and woods dwellers, dousing with pails of water countless smudges of camp fires which had not been thoroughly extinguished by those who lighted them.

Mr. John R. Booth's statement to the effect that twenty trees have been destroyed by fire to every one cut, refers more to a period of years rather than any general annual devastation.

They placarded landing places and camping grounds with exhortations to watch all fire. By precept and example they taught thousands of lessons in forest safety to those whose business and pleasure brought them to the woods of Canada. On countless occasions they fought fires, large fires, days and night on end, until, seared and blistered by flame, half suffocated with smoke and completely worn out with fatigue, they were forced to stop.

The years went on, and still the menace grew. Few people in Canada gave serious thought to these fires except the foresters themselves who constantly faced the almost unsurmountable obstacles of national apathy and scanty appropriations from their various governments. The city man read in his morning paper of bad fires in various parts of Canada, and commented idly to the effect that something should be done to stop them. In his heart, probably, he longed for a whiff of the aromatic smoke that arose from them. The dwellers upon the threshold of our civilization, noting a red haze upon the sun, would mutter, "Bush fires somewhere," and promptly forget about them. Such has been our nation-wide indifference, inherited by us honestly, perhaps, from our pioneer forefathers who found the all-pervading forest of aboriginal times at once an obstacle to farming and a hindrance to travel.

Then the war came, and with it the development of the aeroplane. Eventually the war ended, and aircraft were released for such peace-time pursuits as might be found for them. The foresters seized the opportunity and began immediately upon a reconnaissance of the wilderness areas of Canada.

Nature's handwriting, scrawled across the Canadian wilderness, as seen by the air patrol in the above picture by the R. C. A. F.

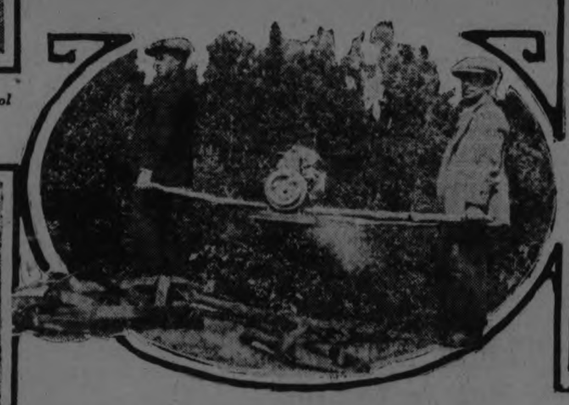
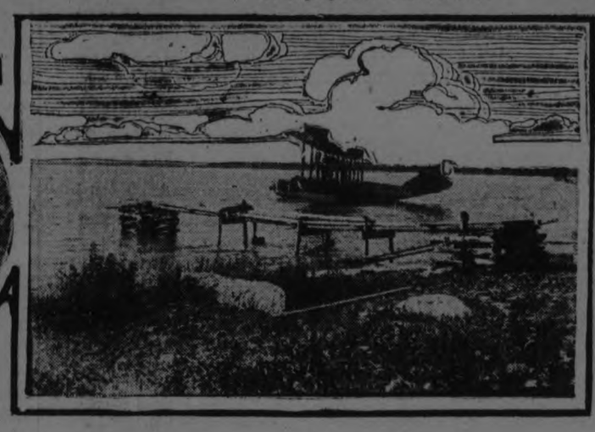
A light type of plane which will be most valuable in fire patrol work.



One of the new portable pumps which are proving most effective in dealing with forest fires in Canada.



Forestry plane at anchor off fueling station in northern Manitoba.

Within the last three or four years, the air patrols of Canadian foresters have been pushed forward almost unbelievable distances into our vast hinterland,—and yet, even to date, it may roughly be estimated that the drone of a seaplane motor has never been heard above two-thirds of our forest area. From the very beginning these explorations brought back report after report of giant fires that had swept the north country. Consequent upon the first glimmerings of this intelligence the foresters commenced to experiment upon the use of the seaplane, the vehicle of their reconnaissance, as a means, also, to check the evil itself.

That these experiments have been found successful is now the conviction of Canadian foresters. In addition to discovering and reporting fires, the 'planes have been able to follow the subsequent progress of those fires, and have transported fire-fighters, tents and supplies, and tools and pumps to a large number of conflagrations, landing oftentimes at the point of danger within two or three hours as compared with an equal number of days of travel had it been necessary to carry on this transportation by means of canoes and woods trails. Furthermore, fire-rangers have been frequently flown over the fires in order that they might determine the best possible means of fighting them. And finally, once the fires were out, the entire personnel and equipment have been returned by 'plane to the base of operations from whence they came, or were removed to the seat of another fire.

If one can forget, for a moment, the serious nature of this whole problem, the fascination of this method of dealing with it makes an instant appeal. While many thousands of feet in the air, the homely familiarity of a camera, of the cross-grained texture of grey painted canvas, of the woven wire of struts, or of the contours of a very ordinary knot-hole in the floor boards at one's feet, is a matter of great reassurance,—so much so that, during the first hours of flight, one is apt to consider such things gravely, from time to time, as a relief from the almost too heady wonder and beauty of the vast landscape which seems to slowly glide below. It is only while close to the earth that one receives any impression of speed. From the air, the world beneath appears to be absolutely level, as it is impossible to distinguish hills or valleys. The progress of rivers and streams is marked by curling ribbons of dark, steely blue,—the color of a service revolver. The motionless white flecks which occasionally appear against this blue are tumbling waterfalls or rapids. The lakes and ponds are of the same blue and seem to stand out in strong relief against the mottled greens of woodland areas or the squared, brownish patches of tilled land. Upon the blue lakes green islands float, their delicate shorelines etched in white in a manner which brings them into curious prominence. Outside of this white etching, again the under-water contours of the islands and shores are plainly discernible until they disappear, sometimes gradually, sometimes abruptly, into the steel blue depths. Canoes and rowboats are usually unnoticeable, but larger craft such as motor boats appear like tiny black or white beetles dragging inverted V's behind them.

Seen From the Air

RAILROAD tracks, again, are fine white lines, distinguishable by their straightness. On these, occasionally, a short black line is superimposed, blotting out the white and moving with incredible slowness, headed by a faint plume of vapor. Wagon roads are also white, but these curve and wander about so indeterminately, so aimlessly, and so utterly without apparent reason, that they seem to be nothing of more moment than larvae tracks upon the green scum of a meadow swamp. And constantly, with recurrent rushes, one realizes the enormity of this Canada of ours, and becomes imbued with the thought that it would be possible to give every family in the dominion an entire lake for their own personal property, and a whole island to each child for a plaything.

As for life in an air-camp, it is different,—different from all other forms of camping out because of the air-harbor so close by and the winged boats that lie therein. Camps in the forest, and those by the sea and even on the open prairie, are, shall I say, 'centralized' by the limitations of travel on foot, or by sailboat or packtrain. In such camps, the forest hems you in, or the cliffs, or, comparatively speaking, the distant prairie ridges. In an aviation camp, on the other hand, the rushing winds of heaven and the vast blue vistas of earth seem to be always with you, at your beck and call, and the great bowl of space seems to ever offer to your lips the wine-like air of high altitudes.

A description of the flying headquarters in one part of the dominion may serve to illustrate the manner in which forest fire patrol by air is now being carried on at several points in Canada, and may also indicate, to some small extent at least, the wisdom of broadening out and developing this form of national service for the protection of our forest wealth.

The camp in northern Ontario has latterly been situated upon a rocky, sparsely wooded point which thrusts outward into the blue waters of Ramsay Lake, near Sudbury. All this last summer and well on into the autumn, white tents gleamed among the birches, and there lived upon the point a little colony of sun-tanned men whose knowledge of the wilderness areas in that portion of the country had come to be little short of phenomenal when judged from the viewpoint of the ordinary woodsman. The woodsman, mark you, may know the forest, a small section of it, from "the ground up," and may possess all the skill, all the accomplishments and all the knowledge of woodcraft that is essential to life therein. On the other hand, the forest aviator quickly acquires a remarkable familiarity with a stretch of country which is infinitely extensive—and his knowledge is "from the sky down."

After the 'planes had come droning home at the end of a summer day, there would gather about the white, oil-cloth covered tables in the mess tent, a group of men, each one of whom had something to tell of his experiences that day. Individually, these stories were remarkable; collectively they were positively bewildering, and it is safe to say that never before in the history of Canada have men, foregathered in evening camp, been able to recount to each other daily such tales of extensive wilderness travel. The official typewritten report which each observer turns in at the end of a flight will cite large lakes or whole townships as indices of the route traveled. These points may be fifty or seventy miles apart and to duplicate, by canoe or woods travel, the whole distance covered in the day might take from two to three weeks; yet the report, brief and cold as such records usually are, would give no accounting of divergencies from the main route covered, nor reveal other unmentioned lakes and streams, mountains and valleys and countless other townships which had been thoroughly scrutinized or "air-combed" during the same flight.

The average detailed knowledge of enormous stretches of country which these observers possessed was positively astonishing, and so it happened that these evening conferences were stupendously illuminating from a forestry point of view. While Lee, the Chinese chef, was blandly preoccupied in clearing the tables and washing the dishes, maps would be spread out and pipe-stems or pencils would trace the flights of the day. The verbal explanations which accompanied these demonstrations usually formed the basis of the instructions regarding the routes to be covered the following day, and the liaison officer whose duty it was to direct the flights from the forestry viewpoint would lead the discussions with that idea in mind.

How Patrols Work

"THAT fire working north from Gogama has burned clear through to the Windigo," might be the comment of one observer. "If the wind doesn't freshen up, those two little rivers will hold it." Or, "Hindson has had his men into Gull lake and the fire there is black out." Or, "We spotted a bad smudge on this point which runs out into the centre of Three Mile lake, and dropped a note to the ranger." Ergo, if the wind next morning was strongly from the south, it would be a fair surmise that a 'plane would be presently flying north from Gogama; that as the Gull lake fire was out, no check would be called for in that direction; and that elf-like, helmeted and goggled heads would peer down upon Three Mile lake some time within the next twenty-four hours.

These talks might last well on into the hours of darkness in the tents, which would then gleam like glow-worms among the spectral birches. Sometimes they would be continued throughout a stroll which would cover the environs of the camp and be prolonged for a spell down at the floating dock from which the 'planes could be seen at anchor, half shrouded in the mists of evening. Usually, however, the liaison officer returned to the Sudbury office for an hour or two of nightwork, and the discussion would be punctuated by the "swish" of paddles as the canoes crossed Ramsay lake.

At the headquarters of the provincial forestry branch some of the foresters actually had their beds in the offices, so that they could virtually tumble into them from their office chairs. Incidentally, these foresters would be on hand in case of an urgent 'phone call. Here the walls were covered with maps of the forest areas, and on these every flight was duly plotted and all fires were marked by colored pins. Here, also, were kept the archives of the department, which included the progress reports of every flight, of every fire, the time-books of the fire-fighters, and a record of the location of all the canoes, picks and shovels and pumps and general equipment possessed by the department as essentials for the fighting of the tireless enemy of Canadian forests. Amid such surroundings the discussion and planning for the morrow would still be carried on—and, indeed, this seldom ceased until the party had paddled back to the air-camp and its members were individually tucked away in their cots and snugly entrenched beneath their mosquito-bar coverings.

A wild tattoo from the Chinaman's kitchen would awaken the camp the next morning at six-thirty. Immediately after breakfast, the liaison officer would return to the office in Sudbury, and from there, as soon as he had received the weather reports which were flashed to him from the various quarters under his jurisdiction, he would 'phone his final instructions to the several 'planes. Presently, there would be a spluttering of engines down by the bay, and then a furious roar from each as it sped madly up the lake, bound upon its assigned flight.

During the day, at perhaps a dozen widely separated and lonely lakes in the northern part of the province, there would appear above the serrated, wilderness skyline a tiny black speck which would grow rapidly in size. Almost within the time it takes to tell, a 'plane would glide swiftly down from the sky, and, with its propeller still rotating, foam gently up to a beach or a tiny dock. Several huge gas cylinders would then be rolled into position close to the nose of the 'plane, a hose would be strung out, and there would ensue ten or fifteen minutes of pumping. Finally, with a swirl and a rush, the 'plane would take to the air again, and disappear down the sky. For this is what science has done to reduce time to a minimum in forest travel.

Forestry Air Service Needed

TWO things are necessary if we are to preserve the remnants of Canada's forest wealth, the establishment of a forestry air service to protect at least our inlying areas, and the inauguration of a system of reforestation. When I think of reforestation, I think of Bishop's College School at Lennoxville, Que. Many years ago, some small boy tied a knot in the soft, tender green top of a small evergreen. A few years passed by, and the pine knot was discovered by some other urchin to have grown into a splendid little club that served admirably to hammer his friends' knuckles with—or heads. From that beginning, forthwith, there evolved the practice among the small boys of that school of tying knots in the tender tops of evergreens. Only—and please note this point—it was an absolute law among those boys, unwritten, it is true, but passed on by word of mouth to every "new kid" who donned the school cap, that for every knot cut, two must be tied. I believe that to-day it would be quite possible to arm a whole battalion with fair-sized shillelaghs, cut from the immediate vicinity of that school.

As far as forest fires are concerned, it is a tremendously difficult thing to appreciate the enormity of the task of mastering them—not that the fires cannot eventually be reduced to a positive minimum within the areas which are more or less adjacent to civilization, but that the thought of attempting to patrol our entire forest area is almost inconceivable at the present time. Even Lord Lovat, who acted as chairman at the recent British Empire forestry conference held in Canada, is reported by a cable despatch to have stated, after his return to England, that it is a pity that Canada could not institute some such forestry service as the one which is maintained in Switzerland. The area of Switzerland is 16,000 square miles—less than three-quarters that of Prince Edward Island!

In fairness to ourselves and to the present sparsely scattered population in Canada, we need not consider it necessary or even possible for us to take upon our already tax-laden shoulders the terrific expense which would be involved in an aerial fire patrol system for the whole of the forest area in Canada. While it is true that terrific holocausts do occur in the far-removed hinterlands, it is also true that areas which are not subjected to second and third burnings will reforest themselves naturally in a period of approximately fifty years. There is a measure of comfort in that fact.

The inlying areas of forestland, however—those, for instance, which lie within a hundred miles or so of railway lines or seaboard—unquestionably require a fully equipped forestry air service. Such an organization would not be frightfully expensive, but it is far beyond the scope of the appropriations which our governments of to-day in Canada are allowing to their forestry departments. Even if this question is not looked upon from the standpoint of national duty or with an eye to future generations, it is incumbent upon every Canadian who would protect his own pocket to use whatever influence he may have, even if it be only his prerogative as a voter, to see that the foresters of Canada are given the support they undoubtedly require. We have seen or have known of other nations in the world which, through carelessness and lack of foresight, have become deforested, and who have had to go begging, as it were, for a match. Other countries have become devitalized, in agriculture, in water power and in a hundred different ways through the destruction of their forests by fire. We know of the tremendous expense such countries have been put to in the effort to reforest their lands, and appreciate the fact that this artificial process is one of exceeding slowness. The handwriting which predicts our own destiny in this respect, if we persist in our present attitude, is now scrawled in large letters across the broad skies of Canada, warning us to "Watch Canada's Smoke."

A Little Hint

MR. BORE always outstayed his welcome when calling upon acquaintances. He could not take a hint, and he prolonged his visit with trifling and exceedingly tiring small talk.

"Is that clock right?" he asked his hostess on an occasion recently, when, as usual, the lady was dying to see the back of him.

"Oh, no," she said, yawning, "that's the clock we always call 'the visitor.'"

The obdurate one thought he had found a new topic of conversation.

"The visitor," he remarked. "What a curious name to give a clock."

His hostess ventured an explanation.

"You see," she said sweetly, "we call it 'the visitor' because we can never make it go."—Pearson's Weekly.

Precision in Parsimony

OLD LUCAS, a big farmer, is very mean. He never has any scales. A friend asked him: "But how can you tell the weight of your pigs?"

"Easily. I get a long plank and put it on a trestle. Then I put a pig on one end and stones on the other until they balance. Then I guess the weight of the stones, and there you are."—Sans Gene, Paris.

JUNIOR CURLERS HOLD FIRST ANNUAL MEETING

Infant Club Concludes Successful First Season—Thirty-Six Boys Took Advantage of the Senior Club's Offer — Have Learned Game Under the Guidance of Alex. Kay.

The most significant development in local curling since the late Robert Neill's vision and sportsmanship inspired the limited district bonspiel which bears his name was realized last night in the first annual meeting of the Junior Curling Club.

Casual suggestions in recent years had re-echoed the conviction of many of the members that the Peterboro Club should attempt to build up a junior section for the purpose primarily of interesting young men in the attractions of curling. It was believed that those who would take it up would find it just as fascinating to them as to their fathers, that learning the rules and shots and other subtleties of the game in the receptive years of youth they would become more skilful curlers than if they waited until manhood to break in. They would be more appreciative of the spirit of curling, of the sportsmanship it engendered and demanded, and that these qualities would be fostered and deep-rooted in their characters as part of the preparation for the decencies required by the majority of men, the gentlemen, in the every day game of life. And finally the older curlers who still remember and react their own novitiates and who feel a certain obligation to their perceptors, many of them dead, saw in the junior branch a training field from which the major club could always draw well seasoned recruits.

Membership, in brief, was one of the actuating motives, but to the club's credit this was a secondary consideration. And the first winter's experience has fulfilled those hopes which might be expected to materialize in one short season.

Thirty-six young men, "teenage" boys, for the most part, and Collegiate students, accepted the curlers' offer, which put into effect the resolution by George Boucher and seconded by Alex Kay at the club's annual meeting a year ago giving them the use of the rink from 4.30 to 6.30 p.m. every day, with stones and brooms and tuition all at merely a nominal fee.

Thirty-Six Members.

Eight rinks were formed with four of the juniors unattached. They ran off a schedule of games and wound up with a bonspiel, the prizes for which were bought out of the collection taken up at the senior club's meeting. On Monday, G. N. Gordon M.P., donated a fine silver trophy to the older club to be held by them for annual competition by the youngsters. Last night the prizes were presented, but the election of officers was deferred until December.

The Cup Winners.

Bill Cormack presided with nearly all the juniors present and a few of the adult club including R. Hicks, R. G. Sturgeon, L. G. Dobbin, Harry Foote, John Howden, W. R. Widdess, W. G. Menzies and George Boucher.

The Gordon trophy was won by Mac Donnelly's rink, skipped by himself, with Walter Rye vice-skip, S. Widdess second and B. Sturgeon (Jr.) lead. The winners received individual prizes of salad bowls and servers. In making the presentation Mr. Hicks congratulated the Donnelly rink and the Junior Club as a whole. Most of his remarks he devoted to the subject of "playing the game". He told the boys that curling would try the skill of its best exponents. They should therefore learn all the shots and the niceties of weight and ice. It cultivated mental concentration, loyalty and team play; and it tested character. Mr. Hicks emphasized the traditions of the game especially the fact that curlers who have ranked high among their fellows were invariably those who never sought to take any advantage of an opponent.

The second prizes were silver mounted cut glass salt and pepper shakers won by the following rink, Ward MacDonald, K. Baker, J. Amys and G. Dobbin, skip. Mr. H. F. Foote presented them and, as an encouragement to the junior clubs, read a newspaper report of a western bonspiel in which a rink of youngsters whose average age was fifteen had finished second among some forty competing rinks. It was an open bonspiel similar to Peterboro's.

The Junior bonspiel first prizes were won by Gordon Dobbin's rink with Jack Amys, Ward MacDonald and Bob Cormack. Mr. R. G. Sturgeon Sr. presented the cut glass trays and J. J. Howden presented the silver-buckled leather belts to the runners-up, J. Pennefather, W. Sutton, Ross Thompson and Doug Widdess, skip.

A consolation prize of four silver Eversharp pencils was presented by Alex Kay to the Killaly rink which lost their games in the competition. This rink was composed of R. Cormack, D. Robertson, J. Henry and L. Killaly, skip.

The Juniors made their acknowledgment to Angus McIntosh with a box of cigars, and suprised Alex Kay with a similar gift. Mr. McIntosh said the boys had behaved splendidly on the ice and in the club quarters, and he congratulated them upon the progress they had made.

Tribute to Kay

Alex Kay has been the principal tutor of the Juniors. Eleven of them played on the Curlers' baseball team which he managed last summer. He devoted his spare hours after work to teaching the boys the curling technic, practicing the turns and draws and runners until the fundamentals were thoroughly understood. He was warmly complimented upon the results by the older curlers present and thanked by the novices. It was predicted that the Juniors would have a waiting list next winter, as they should have no difficulty in securing their limit of forty members.

Resolutions of appreciation were registered to the Curling Club and to G. N. Gordon for their interest and assistance, and as an earnest of permanence the juniors decided to deposit their small cash balance in the bank as a nest egg for next winter.

Bowling

BELMONT CLUB HOLD BIG BOWLING TOURNAMENT

The Belmont Club Bowling Handicap Tournament opened last night at Solomon's Alleys and was a great success. Over 30 bowlers took part in this great sporting event held by the club. There are 54 bowlers who are taking part, so the other 24 will roll on Wednesday next.

The tournament is run on a consolation basis. Two men pair off together and roll the winner playing off with the winner of another pair, and the loser playing off with the loser of another pair. There were over a hundred spectators to witness this tournament and they were awarded great fun. Some of the boys have never bowled before, but they took to the game like a fish to water and most everyone of them seemed to like it. There will be more Belmont boys bowling from now on. The boys took right to the game and they found out that it was just the recreation they were looking for. To say that many of the boys will be real dyed-in-the-wool bowling enthusiasts from now on would not be exaggerating it one bit. In fact last night some of the boys intimated that a league would be formed by the club.

The tournament started at 6 o'clock and run right through to eleven o'clock and thirty of the bowlers competed in that time. It was a great evening for the bowlers and also for the spectators, who got a lot of fun out of kidding some of the boys.

The names of the bowlers and the standing will be published next Thursday when the rest of them roll off.

NEXT WEEK'S BOWING IN TEN PINS AT SOLOMON'S

Monday—High Rollers vs Crescents.
Tuesday—De Laval vs Examiner.
Thursday—Lawn Bowlers vs C. G.E.
Friday—C.P.C. vs Belmont Club.

LEADS THE LADIES FOR THE HIGH SINGLE PRIZE

Mrs. G. Johnson is leading the ladies for the prize for the highest single for this week. Mrs. Johnson has a beautiful score of 215 for a high single game.

EXAMINER LEAGUE.

In the Examiner League last night at Solomon's Alleys six teams were in action. The Proofers still maintained their lead in the league by taking two out of three from the Linos. They had to hustle for every game they got and the two teams fought three of the hardest battles witnessed so far in the new league. The Proofers lost the first game by 22 pins, won the second by 34 and won the last by 9. They rolled 786 in their last game.

The Jobbers took two out of three from the Inters in three fairly interesting games. Average rolling was witnessed in these three games.

Th Casters and the Directors had three games that were very good from the Directors' point of view. Good scores were set up in these games and the Directors won two out of three.

On the evening's play by all six teams some good scores were set up by the bowlers. There were four men over the 600 mark, they being: Cairns with a beautiful score of 671, McCauley with 624, Long with 603 and Glover with 600. McCauley had the high single of 285.

Following are the scores:

WRESTLER WEDS AFTER LOCKING UP HIS MANAGER

"Strangler" Lewis Broke Contract Not To Marry For Marriage Contract With An Attractive Brunette of Kansas City

THWARTED BEFORE.

CHICAGO, March 27 (Canadian Press). — "Strangler" Lewis, worlds heavyweight wrestling champion, was married here last yesterday to Miss Bessie McNear of Kansas City, Mo.

Billy Sandow, Lewis' manager, to whom the champion is under contract not to marry while champion, was kept locked in a hotel room by friends until after the ceremony.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. Fred Stone, at the First Methodist Temple in the heart in the Loop.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Lewis returned to their hotel, leaving a trail of shoes and rice and grinning broadly.

Sandow, who had been threatening to break dow the door of his room if he was not released, was then freed.

"It's the first time Ed ever double-crossed me," he shouted to break down the door of his room where his friends had held him.

Among the wedding gifts to Mrs. Lewis was the belt set with 21 diamonds, emblematic of the world's championship, which Sandow's brother gave the bride.

The bride and groom left last night for Wichita, Kansas, where Lewis has an engagement to-night.

Sandow is said to have prevented Lewis' marriage last year to a Russian princess, whom the champion met in Paris.

Miss McNear, an attractive brunette, met Lewis in Kansas City.

The champion, who is about 35 years old, once was married to a San Jose woman physician, from whom he is divorced.

PITCHERS HIS ONLY ROOKIES

Jack Hendricks Carrying Out Plans and Policies of Pat Moran—Set Back By Bad Weather — Veterans Appear Fit.

ORLANDO, Fla., March 27.—(Canadian Press).—Bad weather and the death of Pat Moran have set the Cincinnati Reds far back in their training grind but Jack Hendricks though less than two weeks at the helm, is rallying his forces rapidly for the 1924 campaign.

Hendricks was close to Moran, knew his plans and policies and will try to carry them through, camp observers are convinced.

As Hendricks himself sums up his situation and prospects, the Reds have a rookie-less camp, the only one in existence. The owners and Moran gambled on added pitching strength alone. They stood pat on all of the 1923 regulars and simply brought three pitching stars to add to the quartet they already possessed.

Of the three hurling newcomers, Hendricks banks heavily upon Tom Sheehan, St. Paul acquisition. Jake May, southpaw obtained from the Pacific Coast League has shown a lot of stuff, while Carl Mays, veteran underhand pitcher bought from the Yankees, has displayed old-time form in exhibition games. The veterans—Pete Donohue, Eppa Rixey, Adolfo Luque and Rube Benton—appear to be fit for a driving campaign.

OWEN SOUND TOOK A TWO GOAL LEAD

Calgary Canadians Played in Hard Luck With Loose Defensive Work--Score 5 to 3.

WINNIPEG, March 27.—(Canadian Press). — Owen Sound Greys, Eastern Junior hockey champions, took a two-goal lead here last night in the first of a two-game series for the Canadian championship against Calgary Canadians. The score was 5 to 3. The second game will be played here on Friday, and Owen Sound are strong favorites to take the O.H.A. memorial trophy back East.

The winners got every break to get the advantage, but they played a wonderful defensive contest and seldom passed up an opportunity to tally, three of their five scores coming from rebounds off the Calgary goalkeeper's pads. The first period ended 1 to 0 for Owen Sound, and they had a 3 to 2 lead at the end of the second. Calgary tied the score early in the final period, but the Greys fought back and were rewarded by two goals.

The Easterners won because they displayed more finish around the net, which, combined with loose defensive work on the part of Calgary, gave them a lead which will undoubtedly be hard to overcome. Yet the Calgary players were decidedly unfortunate, and although they enjoyed the bulk of the play in the first two periods, they failed to uncover the winning punch, and when they did work their way through the Owen Sound inner works, Smith, the Owen Sound goalkeeper, frustrated their efforts.

BOSTON RED SOX WILL NOT FINISH IN LAST PLACE ONLY PREDICTION MANAGER FOHL WILL MAKE

BY JOE WILLIAMS

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 27.—Manager Lee Fohl of the Boston Red Sox is not strong for winning conversational pennant, he much prefers delivering on the ball field. His only prediction that he will make on the 1924 American League race is this:

"The Boston Red Sox will not finish in last place."

The Boston Red Sox manager is getting every thrill that goes with the job of a major league leader, also more than his share of disappointments.

Fohl, after building the Cleveland club from an ordinary aggregation to a pennant contender, was deposed, only to have his club go out and win a pennant and a world series the following years under Tris Speaker.

Tough Breaks With Browns

Then came a chance with the St. Louis Browns. In a few years, under Fohl's direction ,they came within a game of winning the American League pennant.

Picked to beat out the Yankees in 1923, Fohl's first bit of woe was George Sisler's eye affliction, which deprived him of the services of the most valuable player in baseball.

That bit of hard luck broke down the morale of the club and killed the team's chance from the start.

Now Fohl, who has for several years been with pennant contenders, takes charge of a tail-end club. He is delighted with the opportunity, for he is working under his old boss, Bobby Quinn.

Likes Red Sox's Chances.

"The Red Sox will not finish in last place,' 'is about all an interview with Fohl discloses. He may feel that he has a chance to finish in the first division but doesn't say so.

Fohl's hopes for better days for the Boston Red Sox is based on the acquisition of Steve O'Neill and Bill Wambsgnass from Cleveland and Bobby Veach from Deroit.

For 10 days prior to the coming of the regulars Fohl had his rookies working out. He wanted to see them in action before the arrival of the veterans, feeling they would work easier knowing none of the stars were giving them the once over.

Dragoons with three Rangers as last minute reinforcements taken on by consent at the last moment defeated the agreeable Cadet Instructors by the score of 11-9 in the best game of the Garrison League's opening night. Delay in publishing the schedule was blamed for the absence of three of Dragoons' squad, and at that they trotted out a strong line of regulars behind their battery of Sheehy and Sloan. The Instructors had Deyell and Langford as their battery.

Gunners H trimmed Rangers C and D by 24 to 3. Batteries were Piercey and Ranger and their team included Abbie Rose, Ross and McElroy.

Trennum and Sam Calladine pitched for Rangers C and D with L. Calladine behind the plate.

Six runs off Dunkerley in the first innings gave Rangers A and B a safe margin on Rangers I. The final score was 12-4. The losers rallied several times but failed to drive their runners home. Jack Lebarr caught Dunkerley and R. Nicholls and Leo Ackford formed the A and B battery.

Kay and Lebarr umpired.

Billy Evans Says

Outfielder Manusch, of the Detroit Tygers, was hit by a pitched ball 17 times during the 1923 campaign.

There doesn't appear to be anything unusual about that statement. Yet from the viewpoint of the umpires in the American League it has considerable meaning.

Once upon a time, getting hit by a pitched ball was a favorite stunt with many big league players. That system is no longer popular. The athletes much prefer to hit the ball than be hit.

* * *

Getting out of the way of a badly pitched ball is quite an art. Some players do it gracefully, others awkwardly. The point is to convince the umpire that you are really trying to get out of the way.

* * *

In golf, footwork plays a big part in the success of the player. Getting distance and accuracy depends as much on the feet as the eyes and arms.

The flat-footed boxer is at a great disadvantage when pitted against the shifty athlete.

Footword plays an equally important part in the work of the batsman in baseball. It is essential in keeping from being hit as in hitting the ball.

Certain batters by a mere movement of head or body avoid the ball. Others drop to the ground in a heap. Some step forward or backward to get out of the way.

* * *

Such methods to avoid being hit are apparent, and make it an easy matter for the umpire to reach a decision. It is the stationary batsman who causes all the trouble for the judges of play.

* * *

Kid Elberfeld, famous big leaguer in his day, was such a batsman. The Kid feared no pitcher, hugged the plate closely with his body extending well over it.

Elberfeld took such a position on every pitcher and retained it regardless of the style ball pitched. If a ball was thrown directly at Elberfeld it was almost a certainty that he would be hit.

The Kid's feet were as if frozen to the ground, and he would move his body ever so slightly.

Manusch of the Detroit club is a somewhat similar batsman, except that he is a left hander. The promising Detroit recruit stands fairly close to the plate and assumes a crouch position.

* * *

The rules state that a bataman is entitled to first base if hit by a pitched ball unless, in the opinion of the umpire, he plainly makes no effort to get out of the way of the pitched ball.

* * *

The umpires were constantly in hot water with Elberfeld. Often I refused to give him his base, it being apparent to everybody in the park that he made no effort to avoid the pitch, yet Elberfeld, I am sure, was perfectly truthful in his argument that he did not purposely try to get hit.

Manusch, on a fast ball pitched inside, seems powerless to get out of the way. He is a great batsman, and naturally would much prefer taking a crack at the ball.

Often I cautioned him last year, when a pitch that was perhaps only an inch away from the plate would almost graze his shirt, only to have him assure me that he had no intention of being hit.

Possibly Tyrus Cobb, master batsman, will teach him the art of getting out of the way. On such balls Cobb shifts back a trifle and pulls them down the first base line.

The umpires hope Cobb so perfects Manusch's one fault at the plate as it will make things much easier for them.

Paddy Mullins, McTigue's manager, told Roberts his decision would depend on the outcome of the champion's fight next Monday at Newark with Young Stribling.

OTTAWA GIRLS TOO MUCH FOR CAMPBELLFORD

Local Ladies Were Superior in Combination Play But Alerts Were Too Speedy -- Round Ended 12 to 0,

REAL HOCKEY

OTTAWA, Ont., March 26.—(Special to The Examiner.)—Alerts, ladies hockey champions of Ottawa, proved their superiority over the ladies of Campbellford when they repeated their victory over the Campbellford team of a short time ago by defeating them here to-night by a score of five goals to none, making the final score on the round 12 to 0.

While the Alerts scored a shutout, the figures are not indicative of the game, which was close throughout, the visiting ladies striving hard for a goal at all times, but they were outskated by their opponents and beaten by the fine goal keeping of the Alerts' custodian. H. Potts, in the Campbellford nets, gave an excellent exhibition and saved many shots that looked like winners. For the victors, Shirley Moulds and M. Giles on the forward line and T. Turner and B. Hagan on the defence, turned in the best games, while M. Mackenzie, Grace Blue and V. Shore were the best for the losers. Shirley Moulds was easily the best player on the sheet and scored three of Ottawa's tallies. She appeared to have no difficulty in circling the visiting defence and the fine goalkeeping of Miss Potts robbed her of many scoring shots.

The play opened with both teams going well and apparently evenly matched. Grace Blue was working hard and gave the local net keeper a busy time. M. Mackenzie broke up many dangerous Alert rushes and herself headed many nice sallies towards the opponents' nets. Campbellford was playing better combination than the Ottawa team, but could not cope with their rivals' speed. Shirley Moulds tested Miss Potts many times, but did not score until after 18 minutes of play, when she tallied on a nice rush. Thirty seconds later Shirley again had only the goalie to beat, but Miss Potts was equal to the occasion, and made a splendid save.

The second period was much the same as the first, opening very close with Campbellford pressing hard. Sixteen minutes passed before E. Anderson scored for the Alerts and M. Giles made it three soon after.

The third period was productive of much good hockey, Campbellford opening out strong and swarming about the Alert net, but later the Alerts rallied and carried the play to the other end. Miss Moulds scored with six minutes to play, and although the Campbellford ladies tried hard, they were unable to get a counter. Miss Moulds repeated five minutes later for the final goal of the game.

The line-up:

Campbellford — Goal, H. Potts; defence, S. Wood, M. Mackenzie; forwards, G. Blue, V. Shore, E. Irvine. Subs, K. Dolman, K. Ferris, I. Davidson.

Alerts—Goal, F. Dawson; defence, T. Turner, B. Hagan; forwards, M. Carson, E. Seamann, L. Forward. Subs, E. Anderson, G. Grier, A. O'Connor, S. Moulds, M. Giles.

Summary:

First Period.
Alerts, Moulds, 18 mins.
Second Period.
Alerts, Anderson, 16.00 mins.
Alerts, Giles, 2.50 mins.
Third Period.
Moulds, 14.00 mins.
Alerts, Moulds, 5.00 mins.

Over 1,000 people were present at the game and showed great interest in the progress of the ladies.

Movie Million Plum Dempsey's Next Work.

CHICAGO, March 27 (Canadian Press). — Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, will confine his activities to the business of being a motion picture hero until at least the first week of July, Jack Kearns, his manager, announced here last night.

Kearns left for Los Angeles to close a contract for Dempsey's services in the pictures involving one million dollars.

Kearns said Dempsey would not box before Labour Day, and that his opponent would be either Luis Angel Firpo or Harry Wills.

In the event that Firpo still is unwilling to make another trip from South America, Dempsey will face Wills, provided a match and suitable inducements are offered.

SPRING WORKOUT KINGSTON TEAM

Limestone City Players Expect to Clean Up the League.

KINGSTON, March 27.—The old spring weather sure brings out the baseball bug, and the past few days have more than served to make enthusiasm in the local C. O. B. L. team soar.

So keen are the local players for action that Manager Daley has called the players to spring training at the Armouries which will start early next week. The kinks which have reposed in the ball-tossers' arms all winter will be ironed out and by the time the weather permits of outdoor work the players will be ready to hop on the diamond.

There is a very big possibility of the team getting added strength from Queen's University, where a likely looking battery are just now juggling with studies. If they decide to stay in Kingston the stock of the C.O.B.L. team will take a mighty jump. As it is the players are keen on making a great showing this year, and will be out there battling till the last man is out when the opening game is staged here against Oshawa on May 21st.

Up at Oshawa the baseball enthusiasts are more than elated at the return of the Motor Town to this end of the C.O.B.L. As might be expected they are banking heavily on Harold Dainty to do most of the hurling, but are taking no chances and will also try out in the box, Webster, the Brantford boy; Whinfield of Owen Sound, and Shannon, who went to Oshawa from Brighton last fall. Al Tyson will continue to do the receiving while there will be only one change from last year in the infield. 'Mickey' Murray will hold down the hot corner.

LADIES' LEAGUE AT Y.M.C.A.

The second series of the Ladies' League wound up last night when the Whites succeeded in taking two games straight from the Blues, and by their win took the position of second place honors for the whole League. This closes off the official League until the fall, and gives the Quakers first place, the Whites second place and the Blues third place. This closes off a very successful League, and it will be brought to a conclusion at a banquet to-night at the "Y" for the teams and also for the Belleville visitors. Averages for the whole League will be published in a day or two, and it will be interesting to note how the ladies, none of whom have ever bowled before, have maintained some high averages all the season. Another schedule of the Ladies' League starts again next week, which will be composed of six teams. The line-ups for the games last night were as follows:

FOUR MOUNDSMEN PLAY AT OSHAWA

Claim Services of Dainty, Webster, Whinfield and Shannon for Season.

The Oshawa Reformer says: Interest is already growing in the approaching baseball season. Much has been said by Kingston papers about their team and Belleville who were committee room champions in 1923, are constantly talking about what they expect to do this summer. Peterboro will undoubtedly be stronger than last year.

However, despite all these early predictions by rival teams the local ball tossers will have to be reckoned with and it is believed that the Motor City will be just a little bit stronger than a year ago.

There are several pitching prospects here while Harold Dainty will do the bulk of the hurling. Some of the new hurlers who will be tried out are Webster, the Brantford boy, Whinfield of Owen Sound who played O.H.A. hockey here this winter, and Shannon who came to Oshawa last fall from Brighton.

Al Tyson will continue to do the receiving, while there may be only one change in the infield. "Mickey" Murray will endeavor to hold down the danger corner while to work with him are all the old players of last year and any new blood that may have appeared on the scene. The outfielders will likely include all of last year's players although every candidate for positions will be given a chance to make good.

The opening of the C.O.B.L. season is but two months away and about the end of next month players around the circuit will be exercising their joints getting into shape for the big opening. Oshawa takes on Kingston in the Limestone City on May 21st, playing at home on May 24th.

Local fans will see plenty of good baseball this summer with teams of the calibre of Peterboro, Kingston and Belleville each playing here four times during the schedule.

LORNE COMBE TO MEET CHAMPION

Hard-Hitting Joe Jordan Will Fight Cutt Next Monday.

After giving the problem a good deal of thought, and with the approval of many boxing fans, the boxing committee have matched Willie Buff and Lorne Combe, Billy Cutt and Joe Jordan, and Tony Minnicola and Harvey Smith for the headline bouts at the G.W.V.A. hall next Monday night.

Combe, who is afraid of nobody in the ring, will carry the fight to Buff and make it a real bout. The local boxer will have an advantage in weight over the Rochester flyweight champion, and as he keeps in first-class trim, the dope seems to be that Buff will have to watch his step.

Joe Jordan's speedy win over Williams in the last show and his hitting ability, make him a formidable opponent for Billy Cutt. Jordan is confident that he can make Cutt go the limit. His work at the training quarters is certainly impressive.

Harvey Smith, who defeated O'Donnell of Toronto, in an extra round ,and Tony Minnicola are sure to provide a snappy bout. Both are good mixers and hard hitters. It is the first time the pair have been matched. "Exhibition" bouts have been eliminated from Monday's bill and the fans are promised a big night.

BASEBALL MEETING.

A meeting of the City League will be held to-night in the Holy Name rooms on Simcoe street. All those wishing to enter a team and also any players are requested to attend.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME" OPENS AT CAPITOL TO BIG CROWD, IS STUPENDOUS PICTURE

One of the largest matinee crowds seen in any Peterboro theatre this season greeted the opening performance of the "The Hunckback of Notre Dame" at the Capitol theatre this afternoon. The picture, in everyway, lived up to its advance notices and proved to be even more immense, magnificent and dramatically powerful than was expected. Lon Chaney, long known as one of the screen's greatest character actors, takes his place in the Movie Hall of Fame because of his inspired and at times, fearful, interpretation of the role of the hunchback Quasimodo. No greater piece of sceen acting has even been shown locally and until Chaney is given an even greater role than his present one, perhaps we shall not see a better piece of acting. "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" follows Victor Hugo's famous romance very closely. One of the most striking sets ever built for any picture is the immense replica of Notre Dame Cathedral about which, much of the action in the story centres. This set alone, involved the spending of many hundreds of thousand of dollars and is so realistically done to be almost unbelievable. To the uniniated it may appear to be a "faked set" but those who are familiar with pictures can readily see that the colossal set was actually built in its entirety. Along with Lon Chaney's superb work as the Hunchback, another sterling actor who is well known to Peterboro is Ernest Torrence whose work as the scout in "The Covered Waggon" earned high praise. Torrence plays the role of the King of the Beggars with that deep skill for which he is renown. Tully Marshall famous for his work in many pictures, has a big part, while Norman Kerry, remembered in "Merry Go Round" is the hero. Dainty Patsy Ruth Miller is Esmeralda, the delightful heroine of Hugo's story. While much of the play centers around the Cathedral of Notre Dame some striking scenes are laid in the Parisian Underworld. Probably the most effective bit of acting seen here in a long time, whether on stage or screen, is found in those scenes the torturing of The Hunchback.

The Hunchback of Notre Dame is a long picture, being in twelve reels but despite it's unusual length there is not a moment in it when the audience's attention wanders. The picture is truly immense in everyway its story is startlingly realtic because of the splendid acting of the cast particularly that of Chaney The sets are immense. The mob scenes really appear to have the ten thousand extras in them that the press agent said were there. It looks as if it cost the million dollars that it is said to have cost—and, what is more, the money was well spent for "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" is a great picture in every sense of the word. Sometime it is horrible, sometimes mildly funny, often pathetic and tragic and it is always highly dramatic. "Scaramouche" was a reat picture but this one possesses an uncanny power to grip the soul and heart strings of those who see it. It will take a long time to forget.

The Capitol theatre Orchestra render an exceptionally beautiful score with the picture while John McCormick the famous tenor is heard singing "Ave Maria" in the Cathedral scenes. A longer and more detailed review of "The Huncback of Notre Dame" will appear in Friday's Examiner. The management announce a special children's matinee Saturday morning at 10.30 a.m.

Today sees the initial performances at the Capitol Theatre of one of the most talked-of pictures of the time, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." Described as a picture of outstanding merit, it is the screen version of Victor Hugo's famous novel of the same name, that has for its hero, as so many of Hugo's novels, one of the lesser creatures of humanity. Quasimodo is the ugly hunchback, with enormous and shaggy head, snout-like nose and fang-like teeth, who acts as the go-between of the evil Jehan, and then melts at the touch of love for the beautiful Esmeralda.

Beginning with the "Festival of Fools," the great picture progresses to the last scene, where the fool is triumphant. It shows the misery and suffering of the populace under the tyrannical monarch, Louis XI., and gives glimpses of the gay court life of the time in a Paris seething with intrigue. Esmeralda is the gentle heroine, loved by four men, Clopin, the King of Beggars, Jehan, the villain, Pheobus, the dashing captain of the Guards, and finally, Quasimodo, the poor, ugly hunchback. The tortures of a savage age have a place in the story, the mirth of a mob sets the keynote for its opening, and the will of an uprising people sounds in the final scene.

The acting of Lon Chaney as the Hunchback, supported by Patsy Ruth Miller as Esmeralda, is said to be some of the finest of his career.

AT THE ROYAL

MANY SURPRISES: AMATEUR NIGHT AT ROYAL

Last night's "local talent" at the Royal was by far the best of the series, so far as real talent goes. Garden and McCarthy opened—one of these boys, a clever pianist, and the other put over songs and talk in a truly professional manner. G. Cullen sang a new song, "It ain't going to rain any more." Annie Logan, in Irish jig, accompanied on the pipes by Mr. Grant.; H. Hoolston, banjo artist; Misses Logan and Thompson, in Irish dancing; and Redge Thurston, songs, talk and banjo. The first mentioned act, also the last, with a little experience would soon develop into the professional class.

VAUDEVILLE CHANGES AT ROYAL TO-NIGHT

Two unique novelties have been secured by the Royal management for the last half of the week, commencing to-day. Hip Raymond, famous clown, and Mildred Maison present a comedy acrobatic novelty, and Dick Burton, in a pirate act entitled Captain Kidd, is entirely different from anything yet booked at the Royal.

GREAT RACING COMEDY, "THE HOTTENTOT," NOW AT ROYAL

Everyone thrills to deeds that dare, to cheery courage. And that's one reason why everyone will love the character of Sam Harrington in "The Hottentot," Thomas H. Ince's comedy drama at the Royal theatre. Sam is fearless on the seas and has braved trifles like typhoons and the wild men of the Cannibal Isles. But he's afraid of horses and admits it until suddenly he finds himself forced to rice in a horse race or lose the girl he loves and his own self-respect.

It doesn't take him long to make his choice. He may be afraid of horses, but he would rather be dead than brand himself a coward. So he says to Peggy Fairfax: "I'm either going to make you look up at me and say 'Good boy, Sam,' or look down and say 'Don't he look natural?'"

"The Hottentot" furnishes laughter and excitement from beginning to end. It starts with a race between a runaway horse and an auto and ends with a unique steeplechase. The action never flags. One comic situation develops into another even funnier as Sam flounders from deep water to bottomless depths.

Douglas MacLean plays the part of Sam Harrington, the role which was created for the stage by Willian Collier and played to packed houses, both in New York and throughout the country on tour. Raymond Hatton, as the butler, is at his best, and pretty Madge Bellamy endears herself as the winsome Peggy Fairfax, whose love for horses makes a man out of Sam.

MADGE BELLAMY COMES TO DEFENSE OF FLAPPER

Madge Bellamy takes exception to the present outburst of condemnation of the flappers. "They are healthy and wholesome at heart. They go in for outdoor sports, which give a sturdy body and sane mentality," defends Miss Bellamy. "I myself am quite a sport-advocate. I adore tennis, and, when I winter in the East, spend half my time ice-skating. Let them play at sports. Long may they flap, I say!" Miss Bellamy plays a very modern girl—not necessarily a flapper in the broad sense of the word, but an energetic young person who believes in getting happiness out of life—in "The Hottentot," a Thomas H. Ince picture which will be shown at the Royal theatre to-day, Friday and Saturday.

AT THE GRAND

THE MAID OF THE MOUNTAINS

"The Maid of the Mountains," the musical comedy offering at the Grand Opera to-morrow for matinee and evening performances, is to pay this city its farewell visit.

This company which will appear, is the same one that appeared here last autumn, and made such a deep impression with the music lovers of this city. The last and production throughout remains intact. This Stanley T. Vermilyes production has been recognized as the finest of all the companies that have appeared in this offering.

Miss Ethel Walker, the Australian prima donna, will repeat her former success in the title-role—the same role in which this artiste appeared for two years in Australia, under the management of Oscar Asche—and is surrounded by the same great cast and chorus which is sure to make this farewell engagement a tremendous one.

At a very tender age, Miss Walke, had a musical career shaped for her and it was while training at the Albert Street Conservatory in London, England, she came under the notice of that very well known producer, Oscar Asche, and he engaged her to play the title-role in the company he was organizing to send to Australia He was not disappointed in his choice, for Miss Walker made an instantaneous hit in this far-off Dominion, and came to America just in time to accept the leading role in this production.

Popular prices to suit everybody will prevail for both performances.

AT THE REGENT

THRILLING NEW FILM AT THE REGENT.

There is a strong belief that the theatres and pictures are returning to honest and virile melodrama, and leaving their "sob-stuff" and sex stories behind. There is justification for this theory in the success of such films as "Through Fire and Water" (adapted from Victor Bridges' "Greensea Island"), which is being shown at the Regent this week.

"Through Fire and Water" does not belie its title. There are staggering scenes in both elements, and the septator is compelled to hold his breath as the story goes from excitement to excitement. There are fights galore, chases on the high seas, the hero nearly burnt to death—in fact, all the ingredients of good, honest melodrama.

Many people will think this is an improvement on a great many of the pictures that are shown in the cinemas nowadays, and, produced by Thomas Bentley and played by such clever artists as Flora le Breton and Clive Brook, "Through Fire and Water" provides a wholesome, if thrilling, entertainment which picture-goers of all descriptions will heartily enjoy.

VICTORIA HEIGHTS.

Apparently there is going to be quite a change in the above property this spring. The council have decided to grade Gilmour street and Homewood avenue through this property and with the extension of the sidewalk, together with the sewer and water now laid to the front of the lots, it seems that this property will gradually round in to the very best residential building property in the city. H. J. McCannan & Co., who are handling this property for the Hamilton Realty Co., report that three more houses are to be commenced this spring, with prospects of more, as clients are negotiating about buying these lots to build. They also report too that lots can be purchased very cheaply and on easy terms, and anyone buying lots today will receive good profits before long.

PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY.

Parents should be held responsible for the conduct of their children. Often boys are arrested for wrong-doing without proper enquiry being made as to the contributory negligence of careless fathers. It is a rare case that childre brought up in a normal home under reasonable control develop into law-breakers. It is the neglected child that becomes the delinquent.

NEGLECTED CHILDREN

The Women's Institutes of the province have exceptional opportunities for extending practical help to neglected children, poor families and children who are denied educational advantages. If they back up the work of the Children's Aid Society, the whole attitude of the community toward the child will be improved. Even a few words of appreciation and encouragement spoken to a growing lad may have far-reaching results.

PRIVY COUNCIL CALLS MEETING

LONDON, March 27.—(Canadian Press).—So seriously does the Government regard the situation created by the continuance of the tram and 'bus strike and apparently inevitable entry of the subwaymen into the fight to-morrow night, according to several morning papers, that the Privy Council has been called for to-day to consider proclaiming the "conditon of a national emergency."

Some of the papers go so far as to say that the issuance of a proclamation has already been decided upon.

If a state of emergency is proclaimed it will be under the provisions of the Emergency Powers Act of 1920, which, when invoked, confers upon the Government virtually the same powers as the Wartime Defence of Realm Act. It enables the Government to make wide and compulsory provisions for the safety and life of the community, including taking over the control of public services, using army and navy lorries therefor and commandeering private vehicles and materials for the same purpose.

Such a step would bring the Government into conflict with a large section of their supporters, whose opposition to the Act is well-known.

This reported development is not announced from any official source, and may prove merely a deduction from Premier MacDonald's statement that an emergency committee would meet immediately to arrange measures to combat the situation, but in the opinion of a large section of the press and public the situation is quite acute enough to justify the step.

Canadian Stock Exchange and Mines | New York Stock Exchange and Curb Prices

TO-DAY'S QUOTATIONS AND OPINION AND REVIEWS OF THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, March 27.—(United Press.)—Stocks gave evidence of a greatly improved technical position in the early dealing, the leading industrial issues rallying from the start of trading.

American Can, in which heavy professional selling proceeded all through Wednesdays' session, came back sharply to 105 1-2 a recovery of nearly two points from the previous close.

Steel common rebounded to 99 1-4 against Wednesday's low of 98 1-2 and other speculative favorites rallied in proportion.

The overnight news a mixed character so that it was evident that the improvement in the general list was clearly due to internal conditions created by the overcrowded short interest.

Stocks continued to give better account of themselves throughout the first hour. Professional attempts to renew the decline through drives on industrial stocks like Baldwin and Chandler found the general list unresponsive.

Wall Street was convinced that the recent pessimism has been overdone especially in view of the more favorable character of the Washington news.

George F. Baker, chairman of the first national bank of New York, is on his way from Jekyl Island. This is interesting news to Wall Street. Mr. Baker has been an optimist and his friends declare he has not changed his views in the least. Traders are hoping for some expression of opinion from him on the outlook for business this year.

BOYS' DIVISION TO PUT ON SHOW

The Entertainment is Strictly for Boys on Friday Night.

The Boys' Division concert party of the Y.M.C.A. held their final rehearsal in the gymnasium last night in preparation for their presentation of "The Darktown Minstrels" to the rest of the membership and friends on Friday evening. This is the night to which the boys have been looking forward for some time. The presentation is strictly for boys—adults are absolutely barred from the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium for this one night.

A programme of movies will commence at7 p.m., and the curtains will part on the youthful mirth provokers at 7.30. Chuck Woodgate will bring down the house with his tale of the blue haired boy and his experience in purchasing eggs at a local grocery. George Weir has a story of stilted ambition in the monologue, "Somebody lied." Pat Larone, Buddy Sage, George and Harold Coleman complete the ends and each will contribute to the success of the evening. It is to be regretted that one of the premier end men, Les. Abraham, was removed to the Nicholls Hostipal on Tuesday evening for an operation. Emmot Hickey has stepped into the breach and will contribute "No, No, Norah," and "That Old Gang of Mine."

The boys are putting on this evening's entertainment for the benefit of their budget towards the carrying on of the Foreign Division of the Y.M.C.A., and especially to the work of the Association in India. Tickets are ten cents for members of the Boys' Division and 15c for others.

Miss Nellye Gill, soprano, M. Murray-Davey, baritone, and Gladstone Brown, tenor, will make their debut to a Peterborough audience, and it is hope the remaining tickets will be purchased, and thus encourage the choir in their endeavours to give to the public music of the highest class, rendered artistically under the leadership of Mr. M. R. Chenhall.

13 PLANES WILL PATROL FORESTS AT LOWER COST

Hon. James Lyons, Minister of Lands and Forests, Announced Programme of His Department In Maiden Speech—Expects to Save Quarter of Million In Forest Fire Prevention

North Ontario Roads.

TORONTO, March 28.—(Canadian Press).—If a bill in the Legislature Thursday afternoon by Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney-General, passes Ontario will have a declaration on statute that it has the right to name the chief of the High Court Divisions. The bill in its first clause reorganizes the Court of Appeal. A change by the Government will split the Court of Appeal into two sections.

Hon. Mr. Nickle's bill brings it back to one section of eight members entitled to sit as two sections with three constituting a qorum. In large cases involving matters of constitutional law the eight justices would sit as one body. As there is no discussion on first reading no comment was forthcoming from members of the House.

Lyons' First Speech.

In discussing the main estimates of the Department of Lands and Forests, Hon. Jas. Lyons, the Minister, took occasion to make a speech regarding Northern Ontario and its activities. It was his maiden speech to the House not only as a Cabinet Minister but as a member. He accused the late Government of increasing the debt burden by $48 per capita during its term of office, and said the Drury administration was the most inefficient and irresponsible in the history of the Province.

North Ontario Roads.

He announced that the Government intended to reorganize the road construction system in Northern Ontario by organizing the northern portion of the Province into three districts. He pointed oot that last year there were 2,349 officials on road construction in Northern Ontario and that only $1,200 was spent on actual road work for each official.

Therefore, it was proposed to cut down the number of officials. Authority, he said, would be localized, with a resident engineer in the three districts to be made. He also announced that the Government intended to proceed with trunk roads from the head of the Great Lakes at Port Arthur to the Manitoba boundary and with the road from Sudbury or Sault Ste. Marie to Port Arthur. It was the intention to complete these links of a cross-Canada highway in three years. The detailed route had not yet been decided upon. It was also proposed to complete the trunk road from North Bay into the Cobalt district.

Timber Survey.

The Minister announced that a survey of timber and pulp woods in the north was to be made to find the amount of reforestry needed. The matter of estabblishing a department of research to find uses for the by-products of the forests was under consideration by the Government. He thought there should be a limit on the cutting of young trees exported for decoration purposes. He advocated an embargo on the export of pulp wood, contending that many manufacturing plants would be located in Canada if the export were stopped.

Hon. Beniah Bowman: "But the export of all pulp wood in Ontario with the exception of that cut on crown lands, except that of poplar, is prohibited now."

"I am referring to that cut on private lands and from Crown lands in other provinces," said Mr. Lyons. "If we continue to send so much pulp to the United States we should be entitled to enter their markets without duty on our finished wood products. But I think we should compel the manufacture of our natural products into their finished state in this country."

Mr. Lyons said there should be generally cutting on limits instead of merely picking out the spruce and that slash burning should be made the rule. He thought that within the next five years a system of slash-ing burning would be worked out so that it would be universal in the north country.

Forest Patrols.

Regarding forest fire protection he stated that 13 airplanes had been purchased for $5500 each and that these with proper stations would be used this year. By making the patrol from the air the land force would be so reduced that the government expected to save a quarter of a million on fire prevention costs.

The House passed the Insurance bill through committee with a few amendments in technical matters. The premier referred before the House started business to the loss to the province in the death of Sir Edmund Walker, and stated that the House would not sit to-morrow until 3:30 so that members would have an opportunity to attend the funeral service.

A bill was introduced by which the government will subsidize rural primary and secondary hydro lines in rural municipalities up to 50 per cent of the cost.

BANDIT

Pittsburg (Pa.) detectives saw a suspicious looking "young man" loitering around the Union Depot. They walked over to question "him." A revolver flashed at them. In the scuffle that followed, the "young man's" cap came off, revealing a shock of blonde bobbed hair. It was a girl. At headquarters, she said her name was Helen Bateman But she has refused to answer any questions. She participated in several taxicab holdups, police say.

COOLIDGE LOST SOUTH DAKOTA

Choice of State Republicans For Hiram Johnston Regarded As An Encouragement to the Radical Group In Senate

WASHINGTON, March 28.—(Canadian Press).—The results of the South Dakota primary election in which complete returns show Senator Hiram Johnson has defeated President Coolidge as the choice of the voters for the Republican nomination are important. They will not prevent nomination of Coolidge, but will likely encourage the insurgent Republicans in Congress and are also expected to encourage the third party movement, the leaders of which say that had it been possible for La Follette or some other radical to have got on the South Dakota ticket he would have rolled up a heavy vote.

Democratic leaders look on the strong showing made by Johnson as meaning the Republicans are almost sure to lose a number of the north-western and middle western states next November if Coolidge heads the ticket. And the democratic nominate a man who appeals to the agricultural state. The Western Republicans are urging that a prominent middle western man who will appeal to the farmers be named for vice-president.

PROBE OF HOME BANK DEMANDED OF PARLIAMENT

Winnipeg Member Also Proposed That Depositors Be Reimbursed By Banks or By Government--Urges Enquiry By Parliamentary Committee Instead of Royal Commission.

REVISE BANK ACT.

OTTAWA, March 28.—(Canadian Press).—William Irvine (Labor, Calgary East) introduced his resolution in the House of Commons Thursday afternoon asking for investigation by a Parliamentary committee of the Home Bank failure with a view to discovering any weaknesses in the Bank Act, to prevent a similar occurrence, and to make recommendations on the possibility of saving Home Bank depositors from loss.

He was not seeking to destroy the present banking system, said Mr. Irvine, but sought the best possible administration of the present system. When the bank act was passed it was generally considered that it was the soundest possible system, but subsequent events had proved that wild cat schemes had flourished for years, public savings had been used in unsound investments and that apparently widows and orphans had no protection under the act.

Three Lines of Action.

After describing the existing situation, as menacing, Mr. Irvine went on to discuss three suggested lines of action. The first was that the depositors should be reimbursed. There were only two sources from which this reimbursement could come, the banks or the public treasury. He believed it was the bounden duty of the banks to make their losses good to the depositors and guarantee them against loss in the future.

If the government was not prepared to recoup the depositors in the event of negligence being discovered, what was the use of holding an investigation by a royal commission, Mr. Irvine asked. It seemed a foolish waste of money. He had not much faith in royal commissions in matters of this kind, and he believed that the public had very little faith in them.

"The way of the Royal Commission is the way of death for the hopes of the Home Bank depositors," Mr. Irvine declared.

Questions for Government.

He was asking for more than reimbursement of the Home Bank depositors, Mr. Irvine said. He wanted the bank act so amended as to make a repetition of the Home Bank failure impossible. He earnestly hoped that the government would support his resolution. If not, he had three questions which he would like to ask:

1—Would the government guarantee that the Royal Commission would report at the present session?

2—Would the government promise that the depositors be reimbursed from some source and if neglect of some official was proven would there be reimbursement?

3—Would the government promise a revision of the bank act along the lines which he had suggested, or in some more adequate manner?

Government Responsibility.

E. C. St. Pere (Liberal, Hochelaga) drew the attention of the House to the fact that the depositors who suffered from the Home Bank failure in his constituency were workers who were trying to save a little money. He thought that the depositors of the Home Bank should be reimbursed. The government owed them a responsibility because it accepted reports in regard to the condition of the bank and had not ascertained the truth of them. He quoted from a resolution passed by the depositors in his constituency, asking for reimbursement. He also stated that if the Quebec Government could come to the assistance of La Banque Nationals, the Federal government should be prepared to assist the depositors of the Home Bank. The rights were identical in each case.

Many Victims Poor.

R. J. Woods, (Progressive, Dufferin), said the chief sufferers by the Home Bank failure, were poor people, many of them old and dependent on their savings. Banks were audited by an officer of the Bankers' Association. This he thought did not sufficiently guarantee the rights of

Warning to Women Pointed By Port Richmond Murder

Her Car Stalled in Ditch, Woman Accepted Ride to Obtain Help—Was Assaulted and Killed Round Bend of Road Where She Left Her Children and Mother — Body Found Twenty Minutes Later In Clump of Bushes.

NEW YORK, March 28—A blood stained hat worn by Joseph Winowski, of Port Richmond, was the only physical clue discovered by detectives seeking the man who on Tuesday afternoon brutally murdered Mrs. Maude A. Bauer, of Port Richmond, in a Ford sedan car on an unfrequented road in a district of Staten Island known as Chelsea.

Mrs. Bauer was the wife of Walter Bauer, electrical engineer of the Cadillac Motor Car Company of Manhattan.

Winowski is Staten Island agent of the Metropolitan Insurance Company, and resides at No. 12 John street, Port Richmond.

He was questioned until late Tuesday night and then allowed to go home, with the request to return. He did so and the questioning continued at intervals all day. He confronted the body of the murdered woman without a sign of flinching as it lay in an undertaking establishment in West New Brighton and, according to the police, answered all their questions without hesitation.

Captain Van Wagener of the Detective Bureau discussing the crime said:—

"The logical theory is that the murderer's purpose was assault. Mrs. Bauer evidently fought him of and he, failing in his intentions, killed her."

District Attorney Fach said:

"This brutal crime should serve as a warning to all women not to enter the automobile of a stranger for any purpose whatever."

More than a score of detectives, aided by as many more policemen, were at work yesterday on the murder. A search was made of the bushes near where Mrs. Bauer's body was found. It revealed nothing Not even the shells from the murderer's revolver were found. This indicated that the woman was shot in the murderer's car and then dragged to the roadside.

Any idea that Mrs. Bauer might have been attacked merely for robbery was virtually abandoned by the police. They found her missing wedding and engagement rings on a dresser in her home at No. 115 Decker avenue, Port Richmond.

Money in Purse

They called attention also to the fact that her purse containing several dollars was found beside her body. Its clasp was caught in her hair as though she had raised it to ward off a blow.

Mr. Bauer, husband of the murdered woman, yesterday took his two children, Maud, aged seven, and Helen, aged five, to the home of his parents in Linden, N.J. The children were standing in the road with Mrs. Pero, their grandmother, while their mother was murdered just around a turn in the road.

Captain Carey ordered all policemen of Staten Island to investigate every garage on the island and to examine all Ford sedan cars. A proceess of eliminating the innocent owners of such cars was begun. Captain Carey said every male owner of such a car on the island would be checked up.

Mrs. Bauer's car had slipped off the road and settled into the sand in the ditch in Lambert's Lane, a short-cut back to Port Richmond.

Went to Seek Help

For some minutes Mrs. Bauer struggled to free the car, but it only settled more deeply in the groove dug by the churning wheels. Then she and her mother, Mrs. Pero, having waited vainly for a car to come along, decided the only thing to do was to summon help. Not knowing that the nearest telephone was a mile and a half away, Mrs. Bauer got out and walked perhaps ten feet to South Avenue and started south along that road, a deserted stretch, with no sidewalks, winding through lonely, wooded country.

She walked only a few feet when a Ford sedan, headed south overtook her. From where she sat in the lane, Mrs. Piero had a clear view of the road and of the sedan as it passed her. She paid no particular attention to it, not having thought to hail it, because her daughter already had set out on the errand of summoning an emergency car from a garage.

With only faint surprise Mrs. Piero saw the car halt as it came abreast of her daughter. The front door swung open, a man, probably a young man, leaned out, and engaged in brief conversation with Mrs. Bauer. The mother felt neither alarm nor uneasiness when she saw her daughter climb into the car. She was as positive as if she had heard the conversation that Mrs. Bauer had explained their predicament to the stranger, that he had offered to drive her either to a telephone or to a farm-house where she could borrow a rope, volunteering to drive back and haul her car out.

So Mrs. Piero went calmly back to her seat, noting idly that the sedan had disappeared around a bend in the road and then becoming absorbed in playful chatter with the two children. Twenty minutes later a policeman told her that a dead woman lay in the road 1,500 feet away.

Certain from the first that she was going to look at her own daughter, Mrs. Piero accompanied the policeman. The gruesome errand was soon done. She knelt over her daughter, but Mrs. Bauer was dead.

SELECTING CABINET POINCARE'S PROBLEM

Resumes Premiership But Finds Difficulty In Forming Ministry to Fit New Political Situation—Must Conform to Chamber's Attitude on Pension Bills

PARIS, March 28. — M. Poincare, despite the fact he is finding the work of setting up a new government harder than he expected, and has therefore been unable to complete it, informed President Millerand last evening that he accepted the task of resuming the premiership and constructing a ministry.

After a morning of fair sailing, M. Poincare grappled with the big difficulties of organizing his cabinet to fit the new political situation resulting from the Chamber's attitude on the pension bills and to accord with the policy of economics for which he had fought so hard for several weeks in the chamber and senate. His conclusion after the day's negotiations, as expressed to the newspapermen, was:

"It is going to be long."

This is as far as the premier has committed himself regarding his actual plans. From his negotiations with Members of Parliament, however, the impression has developed that he is going to inaugurate in the formation of his Cabinet the economies he has promised the country. He has in view, it is understood, a reduction of the ministries to seven or thereabouts and the suppression of most of the under-secretaries of state. The fact

Will Investigate Free State Army

DUBLIN, March 28.— President Cosgrave to-day announced the terms of the proposed inquiry into the Free State army organization, saying it would include, in addition to the actual investigation into the recent mutiny by some of the military elements, and investigtaion into the existence of factions, conspiracies, secret societies or group among the officers and men.

Demobilization, he added, had reduced the number of major generals in the army from 18 to 7. He denied any connection between the re-organization of the Free State Army and any arrangements made at the Imperial Conference.

MECHANICAL SOLDIERS WILL FIGHT NEXT WAR

COPENHAGEN, March 28. — (United Press.)— Mechanical soldiers, directed by wireless rays, will fight the next war, if the claims of Niels Asen, Norwegian scientist and inventor, prove true.

Asen claims to have invented a soldier automaton which can fire 2,000 rounds a minute, thus virtually doing away with human "cannon fodder."

EARLY OPENING OF NAVIGATION THROUGH SAULT

Probable Date April 15th For First Vessels Moving Out of Fort William, Although May 1st Is the Guess of Transportation Manager.

APRIL 1ST RECORD

FORT WILLIAM, March 28. — The warm weather of the past month has raised expectations of an early opening of navigation here, and some of those interested place the probable date as April 15, which is a little earlier than the average, though in 1912 the first boat came in on April 1, and in 1923, navigation opened on April 8.

A good deal depends on the anxiety of grain and vessel owners to commence shipping grain east since there is no reason why the opening should be delayed longer than the time at which it is possible to pass the Soo locks and get down through Mud Lake and the St. Mary's river. The ice breaker James Whalen has no difficulty in getting through to open water in the bay from Port Arthur and there is no doubt that, if it were necessary, she could break a channel up the Kaministiquia river. But the owners of the ice-breaker offer no prediction as to the date when navigation will open.

The local manager of the Great Lakes Transportation Company gives May 1st, as his guess. The engineers of the vessels which have been wintering here have been at the head of the lakes for some time and are refitting and repairing their boats, which would apparently signify that these will leave the harbor as soon as the route to the Georgian Bay ports is open.

Almost all the grain which has been held for witner storage at lower Lake points has now been discharged and gone forward for export, so that the next demand for export will come to the upper lake ports upon that demand will depend the necessity for getting navigation under way quickly.

KING EMMANUEL IS NOW VISITING RUINED ITALY

AMALFI, Italy, March 28. —United Press.)—King Victor Emmanuel who arrived here to-day to comfort the sufferers from the tremendous landslides which took more than 100 lives here Wednesday, found his way blocked by an avalanche which obstructed a large tract of the Rome-Naples railroad in the vicinity of Teano. The King finished the journey by motor. The Prefect of Salerno has received 250,000 lire from the government for relief work. It is estimated the damage was more than 25,000,000 lire.

Five Year Old Girl Took Infant Sister From Blazing House

CALABOGIE, March 28.—(Canadian Press). — At the headquarters of the Black Donald Graphite Company the question is asked if a five year old girl is eligibile to receive the Royal Humane Society's medal or the Carnegie Hero medal for an act of rare heroism.

Marjorie Sweeney, aged 5 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Sweeney of Black Donald Mines, when her home was in flames a few days ago went into the house, ascended the stairway and carried out an infant sister. Before leaving the house Marjorie put wraps on the infant she then placed it in a child's sleigh and walked off. A minute afterward neighbors began to arrive, and it was feared for a while that the infant had perished. The child's mother was in another part of the village at the time and the father was away at work. The fire, which broke out near the noon hour, consumed the house and contents.

CANADA PAYS IMPERIAL MEN

Total of 18,402 Imperial Pensioners in Canada and United States on D.S.C.R. List—Payment at British and Canadian Rates.

OTTAWA, March 28.—(Canadian Press).—Pensions are being paid to 18,408 imperial pensioners in Canada and the United States by the Canadian department of soldiers' civil re-establishment. Of these 12,727 are in Canada and 5,875 in the United States. Pensions are being paid at Canadian raters to 1666 of the Imperial pensioners and to the rest at British rates.

The total paid at British rates, which is distributed in sterling was £798,908; while the amount paid at Canadian rate was $788,517. This information was given in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon by Hon. H. S. Beland, minister of soldiers' civil re-establishment. Dr. Beland added that in addition to the payment of pensions mentioned, the Imperial pension office in Canada is responsible for the payment of allowances to imperial pensioners undergoing treatment and for the payment of decoration awards, etc., the total of which added to the total pension disbursements involved the expenditure during 1923 to approximately $5,447,897.

WOMAN FEARED GHOST OF MAN SHE MURDERED

Tempest of Emotions In New York Court As the Defence of Mrs. Essie Gross on Trial For Shooting Her Husband Began.

TALE OF TORTURE.

NEW YORK, March 28.—A yearning for motherhood that was twice denied her by kicks and brutal cuffs, great affection for her husband, kisses rebuffed by hisses and blows. This was the picture of a sacrificial love that withstood repulses and insult which was painted by former Judge Leonard Snitkin when he opened the defense in the trial of Mrs. Essie Gross.

A feature was the testimony of Detective Connoughton who said the accused woman feared her slain husband's ghost would haunt her.

Throughout Snitkin's outline of the defense the frail body of the young twenty-four-year-old defendant was wracked with sobs and suppressed emotion, which gave way in wild hysteria when he had finished and called his first witness. Mrs. Gross's body became rigid, her big greyish-blue eyes bulged and great tears flowed down her cheeks.

Judge Mancuso declared a recess and two strong court attendants carried her to an ante-room, where she was administered to for a half hour by Mrs. Hester Livingstone, the Criminal Courts matron. It was an almost ghost-like, limp body that returned to the courtroom.

Screams and Collapse

Mrs. Gross's screams rang through the entire building and to the ears of her anxious father and mother and brothers and sisters outside the courtroom. Mrs. Samuel Kauffman, her mother and a sister collapsed.

Snitkin's picture followed that painted by the prosecution of a jealous, threatening wife who determined to slay because she could no longer hold the love of her husband.

Essie's life has been a hard one, Snitkin said. Born in Warsaw, Poland, she was brought to America when four years old. She attended school but a few years and then had to go to work to help support the family. Snitkin continued:

"Then she met the young sister of the boy she was later to marry and for whose death she is now standing trial. They played together first as children, their heart strings were played upon and that divine emotion followed, love, a pure and holy love. Irving wanted to marry as early as 1913, just before he enlisted in the army. Her parents persuaded them to wait. He came home on furlough. Again they were dissuaded from marrying until he was settled.

Wed After War

"The war passed. Irving came home. They were married first by civil ceremony and then yielding to parental pleas were united according to the Jewish ritual."

Essie went back to work, Snitkin said, and turned all her money over to Irving. Then came a day when she knew that soon little arms would be clasped about her neck. In great joy, "she confided to Irving, whose answer was an oath and a kick." Snitkin went on:

"When she gave herself in happy marriage to the brutal giant of five feet nine inches, I will show that she was a rosy cheeked girl of 135 pounds in the best of health. Now she weighs 105 pounds is faded and broken by her five years' experience with this man who was shot in the struggle for possession of a pistol in that little

Our mining experts and diamond drilling outfits are constantly on the move, followed by geologists and engineers, where ore veins are uncovered.

The plan of operation is to prove the value of a claim by initial development to make it available for sale to capitalistic interests.

Subscribers to the fund out of which our operations are financed, share in all profits.

There is no personal liability.

Campbellford High School Nearing Completion -- $15,000 Block of Debentures Asked For, Making Total of $118,000—Public School Problems.

COUNCIL MAY OBJECT

Campbellford, March 28.—The Board of Education will ask the Town Council to raise $15,00 by the issue of debentures, that amount being required to complete the new High School which it is expected will be turned over to the Board next week, when Contractor Brown will look for the balance due him. On motion of Trustees Hall and O'Sullivan this course was unanimously decided upon at the regular meeting of the Board last night when every member was present with the exception of Trustess Douglas and Dr. Watson.

This will make a total of $118,000 raised by debentures for the new High School provided the Council consents to do as requested last night. The first issue was for $7,000 for the purchase of the site. Early in year an additional $68,000 was raised and later the sum of $28,800 to complete the building according to the original plans. The lot cost $5,000 so that the Board has a balance of $2,000 the amount raised for this purpose.

How Money was Expended

The outlay on the school to date was as follows:

Architect's fees ....$	5,000
Contract price.....	99,899
Wages of inspector	750
Drain from building	3,064
Tables	300
Miscellaneous	506
Science apparatus	1,140
Teachers' desks	265
Pupils' Desks	600
Blackboards	650
Blinds	278
Lighting	475

This makes a total of $112,927 but there are other expenses that are likely to arise. It is expected that the Board will realize almost if not quite enough to fix up the grounds by selling some lots which they own. The members will look over the ground to-day at 1.30 p.m. to plan for the sale of the lots and the making of necessary improvements.

Another Teacher Needed

The report of Inspector Boyes of his recent visit to the Public School started a discussion and raised a new problem. After the inspector had praised the discipline, the efficiency of the teachers and the progress being made in each department he stated that the equipment was satisfactory in all but the primary grade which is in charge of two teachers who are housed in a small rented building. There are 111 pupils in this grade and the inspector recommends that when the department is moved into the old High School when the new one is occupied that an extra teacher be secured.

Dr. Richardson, a former teacher himself said that the suggestion of the inspector was a good one. None but a person who had had experience in teaching could understand that the smaller the pupils the more attention they required. It was impossible for two teachers to take charge of 111 small pupils and do them justice. Twenty-five or 30 such pupils were enough for any teacher. If in the lower grades the pupils were kept back they were behind in their classes to the end. Such children never reached the High School but generally dropped out of school when they were no higher than the third grade. There are children 14 years old, who are still in the second book.

"What we want to do," said the Doctor, "is to give the backward children a chance even if we have to hire a special teacher for their benefit."

It is hoped that the Primary Department may be moved into more commodious quarters in the old High School at Easter, but this will do little toward relieving the present strain on the two teachers, especially as a large number of new pupils are likely to be enrolled in this grade at that time.

On the motion of Trustee Stephens and Trustee Hoover, it was decided to refer the whole question to the internal committee, and it is likely that a special meeting will be called to receive their report and to settle the question of engaging another teacher.

Furnishing New School.

The Property Committee reported that all but two of the rooms in the new High School can be fitted up with pupils' desks taken from the old building. This will leave two rooms to be supplied with new seats. The teachers' desks in the old school are painted what Chairman Hoover of the committee characterised as a "barn red," and would look out of place in a new setting.

The committee did not care to assume the responsibility of selecting the 70 new pupils' desks required, and had samples from two firms on hand last night, these being demonstrated for the benefit of the Board by the salesmen. The contract was finally given to W. G. Clarke representing the Globe Furniture Co., per desk paced in position. The woodwork consists of finely polished and varnished timber, and the metal used is steel warranted unbreakable and guaranteed indefinitely.

Architect's Fees.

Archibald Conn asked for payment of $2,000 on account and was voted $1.500, making a total of $3,000 paid him to date. His terms were 5 per cent. of the contract price of the building, or approximately $5,000 in all, and out of this there is to be deducted $480.00 paid on the wages of John Nancarrow, who watched the building, thus relieving the architect of a portion of his liability.

Mr. Nancarrow received $36.00 a week of which Mr. Coon paid $15.00.

Architect Coon claims $200 for revising the plans when it was decided to put up a building without an auditorium or gymnasium, the proposition that was abandoned later when the work had been advanced.

Trustee Arnold was disposed to dispute this claim, but further consideration of it was postponed until a final settlement is made with Mr. Coon.

Economical Measures

As a measure of economy no delegate will be sent to the O.E.A. annual convention this year. It was also decided to save the amount paid last year for subscription for the school journal for the members of the Board.

The Board will advertise for a caretaker for the new High school. This official must be a licensed engineer as required by law, as well as able to perform the duties of a janitor.

The County Objects.

One of the trustees said that if he understood the sentiments of the present Council the Board was not likely to get the additional $15,000 asked for. This opened the question of what the Board should do in that event.

Chairman Loucks said one alternative would be the sale of the old High school building for the $15,000, or more. Some time ago an offer of $10,000 was received for the old structure.

Some time ago the members of the Board were informed by the Department of Education that they had a perfect right to lease or sell the building so long as they used the proceeds for High school purposes. If any question arises as to their authority to use the building as a Public school they can lease it to the town for a nominal rental, say $1 a year ,and use the dollar for the maintenance of the new school.

HASTINGS ROADS GETTING BETTER

Motor Cars Beginning to Move Around--Shower at Home of Dr, and Mrs. J. H. Hess.

HASTINGS, March 28.—The condition of the roads are rapidly improving for the better. Various surrounding towns are being visited by motor owners. One auto has made its way through from Peterborough to-day, this being the first this year. About there miles south of here on the north side of Cuffe's hill, there are snow banks on the road sides as high as the auto tops, while on the south side of the line dust is flying.

Gave a Shower.

About a hundred friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Hess, Albert street, on Thursday and tendered a miscellaneous shower to their niece, Miss Ena Ellis, on the eve of her approaching marriage.

Music was given by piano, violin and saxaphone, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

Many and various were the gifts showered on the bride elect, she opening the parcels which were arranged on the dining room table. The gifts were passed for inspection by those present.

After the unwrapping of the gifts Miss Ellis thanked everyone present for their gifts. More music was given, followed by a sumptuous lunch, which was served by the young people. After lunch was served two rings were formed and all joined heartily in the singing of "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow" and "Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot," after which the friends repaired to their several homes.

Story of the Cheese Industry In the Peterborough District Is An Open Book to R. W. Ward

Winner of Largest Number of Prizes in Exhibit of Cheese in Connection With Dairymen's Association—Attended Organization of Association in 1878.

Mr. R. W. Ward, 467 Downie street, instructor for Peterborough cheesemaking syndicate, which, at an exhibit of cheese held in connection with the annual convention in January of this year at Kingston of the Dairymen's Associations of Eastern Ontario, succeeded in making a good showing in a competition with about 100 entries, and secured the largest number of prizes, including 2 firsts, 2 seconds, 2 fourths, 1 fifth, 2 sevenths, 2 eighths, also some thirteen special prizes and the silver trophy valued at $100, awarded to the maker having the hihgest scoring cheese, a trophy which went to Mr. A. R. Mallory, maker and owner of the Selwyn Cheese Factory, has some interesting reminiscence of old-time cheese-making.

Mr. Ward was born and raised on a farm in the township of Sydney, Hastings County, and has been identified with the dairying industry for over half a century, since May of 1871, with 27 years of that time spent as cheesemaker and 26 years as instructor. He was for one year instructor in Madoc, Stirling, Campbellford and Brighton sections, and has been instructor in Peterborough section for the past 25 years. Mr. Ward attended the organization meeting of the Dairymen's Associations of Eastern Ontario, in Belleville, on February 21st and 22nd, 1878. At this organization meeting there was a membership of 167, only eleven of whom are living today, only two of whom, W. S. Cook of Belleville and Mr. Ward, being still identified with the dairying industry.

R. W. WARD.

When Mr. Ward went into the business first most of the cheese factories east of Toronto, few in number, were operated by makers from New York State. The first cheese factory east of Toronto was established on the front line of Sydney Township, between Belleville and Trenton, in 1866, by farmers who worked on the co-operative plan. Factories of those days were constructed without any of the scientific equipment of the present day. The use of steam for heating purposes and for power had not been thought of, and the maker had no tests to guide him beyond the senses of sight, smell, taste and touch. All milk was hauled to the factories as soon as milked in the morning and evening, except in the cool weather of late spring and early fall.

The Halloway Cheese Factory had a capacity at that time for handling 22,000 pounds of milk per day, and was equipped with five cheese vats, two large curd sinks and one large screw for pressing each cheese. The largest make in 1871 was 33 or 34 cheese per day, of seventy pounds each, for four days of the week. On Mondays and Saturdays between 40 and 50 cheeses per day were turned out.

The Halloway factory is still operating and has a yearly make of over 100,000 pounds of cheese.

MONEY POTENT IN WASHINGTON AL. JENNINGS TELLS COMMITTEE

Hamon Told Him, He Says, That He Was Slated For the Post of Secretary of the Interior.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 28.—Al Jennings, once a famous train robber and now an evangelist and politician was called upon by the oil committee today to make good his promise of "a whale of a story" about an oil deal at the Republican national convention of 1920.

Jennings was questioned searchingly about what he had heard others say regarding the convention story—now one of the will o' the wisps of the oil enquiry. The committee previously had heard many rumors about an effort by oil interests to name the convention's nominee, but no first hand evidence to prove it.

Jennings told the committee Jake Hamon had told him at Chicago, in 1920, that Warren Harding was to be nominated as President, and that it had cost Hamon $1,000,000.

Where It Went

Of this sum, $250,000 went to the late Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, Jennings said he was told by Hamon, who then was Republican national committeeman for Oklahoma.

"Hamon said he gave $25,000 to Harry M. Daugherty," Jennings added.

Jennings said he had been intimate with Hamon and attended the Chicago convention with him.

"Anybody else?" asked Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington.

"Yes, $25,000 to Will Hayes."

Hamon was quoted as having said he was to be secretary of the interior and was to share in public lands.

Jennings quoted Hamon as saying: "I'm going to be the biggest man in the U. S. before I close my career."

Was For Fall

Daugherty at first was for Albert B. Fall for interior secretary, Jennings said Hamon told him, but Hamon won out finally and would have been appointed had he not been killed soon after the election.

Jennings also quoted Hamon as having said that with the money he would make he eventually would become president of the U. S.

Hamon carried Oklahoma for Harding, the witness said, added that the committeeman told him it had cost a half a million dollars.

"Wasn't Hamon for Wood at the start?" asked Senator Bursum, Republican, New Mexico.

"He never liked Wood," Jennings replied. "He said Wood was too much impregnated with the damned fool honesty of Theodore Roosevelt."

Jennings said he was passing on what had been told him by Jake Hamon, the Oklahoma Republican national committeeman, who was killed by Clara Smith Hamon late in 1920.

Favored Mr. Fall

"I understood that Mr. Hamon told you that in the make-up of the cabinet of Mr. Harding," said Senator Spencer, Republican, Missouri, "that Mr. Daugherty was in favor of Mr. Fall."

"Yes, but that it had been all arranged that he, Mr. Hamon, was to be secretary of the interior."

"Do you think all the information he gave you turned out with the same degree of correctness as has that?"

"That was the whole deal and that was what he expected to get in on."

Replying to inquiries from Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, Jennings said:

"He (Hamon) wanted me to head one of the companies. He said the Democrats had not left much of the public land, but that he would get the rest of it."

Public Lands

"Did he speak about the oil reserves?"

"He said public lands; nothing that I can remember about oil reserves. He said money had been very potent in Washington as in the outlying districts of the U. S. and that with his money he would be President of the U. S. I have talked with people in Oklahoma about Hamon's expectations, and I do not think he kept it from anybody."

back Audubon avenue apartment Elsie will tell you that the morning of the death struggle her giant husband threatened to kill her and made for his revolver, kept in a dresser."

Snitkin called Lena Jacobs, of No. 6118 Nineteenth avenue, Brooklyn, as his first witness. For six or seven months during 1920 and 1921 Essie and her husband had two rooms in the Jacobs home at $25 a week.

Mrs. Jacobs testified:

"All the time Essie and her husband lived in my house he tortured her. I once saw him early in the morning kick Essie in the abdomen. She was in a delicate condition at the time. She fainted. I helped her to the bedroom. I saw the black and blue mark the kick caused and other bruises about her poor body."

Mrs. Jacobs told of other attacks Gross made on his young wife, of how he frequently dragged her by the hair into their bedroom and she could hear Essie begging for mercy.

Feared Husband's Ghost

Earlier in the day three policemen testified to statements Essie made immediately after the slaying. Detective Sylvester Connaughton testified that in the ride in the patrol wagon from the West One Hundred and Fifty-second street station that Essie had said she "killed her daddy because he didn't love her any more." She also asked Cannaughton if he thought "Irving's ghost would haunt her."

SCANDINAVIA SENDING 17,000

Vanguard Has Already Arrived — 17,000 Finns Included In Estimated Immigration From Northern Europe.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Mar. 27.—Immigrants from Scandinavian countries numbering nearly 17,000 will arrive in Canada this year, stated Helge Petersen, secretary of the Scandinavian-American Line, who arrived here today from Copenhagen, Denmark. Mr. Petersen says about 10,000 Finns, 2,000 Danes, 2,000 Norwegians and 3,000 Swedes will arrive here shortly. Mr. Petersen Minister of Immigration at Ottawa, where he was assured of the co-operation of the Department, is en route to Washington and Western points.

He will gather all data on Canada which he will present to his company and the Danish Government on his return to Copenhagen. The vanguard of the Danish immigrants, 312 went west recently. Some 35 left the train here. They expect to take up land in this district.

NEW DELORME EVIDENCE

Crown's Position — Complexion of Events Surrounding Finding of Raoul's Cap May be Changed.

MONTREAL, Mar. 28.—Retrial of the Rev. J. Adelard Delorme on the charge of having murdered his half-brother, Raoul, will take place in Montreal at the September term of the Court of King's Bench, authoritative sources declared here.

The crown, it is stated, may have new evidence to offer in regard to the finding of Raoul's cap on the Cote St. Michel road, and it is possible an entirely new angle will be presented to the jury in connection with the individual who entered Dr. J. Pesant's drug store at St. Michel and tendered a five-dollar gold piece for aspirin.

The evidence relative to the Cote St. Michel road, which is some miles from Snowden Junction, where the body was found, has been a part of the defence's case that Raoul was not murdered in the Delorme house, but after leaving a dance hall in the suburbs of the city.

SELECTING CABINET

that M. Poincare was closeted for nearly three hours yesterday afternoon with the Ministers of War and Public Works, indicates clearly that the nucleus of the new combination will be himself, M. Maginot and M. Letrocquer.

Premier Raymond Poincare to-day offered a new portfolio in the new cabinet to Louis Loucheur, the richest industrialist of France, a critic of Poincare on frequent occasions, and author of the famous declaration that 'this country will never be able to pay her debt to the United States.'

Loucheur asked time to reflect upon the invitation, which caused great surprise in political circles.

The invitation to Loucheur indicates that Poincare is completely revising his cabinet, retaining perhaps two members of the one that fell with him on Wednesday.

General Maginot, the Minister of War, will be retained, it is believed.

Poincare is making an effort to have a cabinet ready to face interpelations in the Chamber next Sunday.

PROBE OF HOME

the depositors. A government official should audit the banks. Such a system had proved successful in the United States. He hoped the report of the McKeown commission investigating the bank's failure would come down before the end of this session and that something constructive could be done on its recommendations. If it were shown that the Minister of Finance failed to investigate the Home Bank in 1915, and 1916, and 1918, because of public expedience, and to retain public confidence in war time, and if it were shown that depositors had suffered because of public expedience, then they should be reimbursed by the people of Canada for their losses.

Petition Presented.

R. H. Halbert (Progressive, North Ontario) presented a petition signed by 617 persons in his constituency asking him to urge the House to take some steps to reimburse depositors in the Home Bank for their losses.

Many widows and elderly persons had moved into the towns, he said, since the war, and had been persuaded to take stock in the Home Bank, as well as place their savings there. These people were suffering under the burden of loss of savings and the double liability to which they were subject. He hoped that parliament would see that justice was done to those "unscrupulous manipulators" who had been misusing the deposits of the people in this country.

Dangerous Precedent.

A. M. Carmichael (Progressive, Kindersley), could not entirely agree with Mr. Irvine's argument. Because one bank had failed, the entire banking system should not be condemned. Persons who had deposited money in the Home bank did it of their own choice, continued Mr. Carmichael. They were free to deposit in other chartered banks, in the post office savings bank, and in Ontario in the Provincial Savings Bank. If the government reimbursed these depositors it would establish a dangerous precedent. It would virtually be guaranteeing the deposits in other banks, and this might have a tendency to make bank directors more reckless.

The government, Mr. Carmichael added, might consider going into the banking business in a similar way to that followed by the Australian government.

Lacked Experience.

Resuming the debate on the Home Bank resolution in the evening, Dr. E. K. Anderson (Conservative, Halton) supported the resolution of Mr. Irvine, except as regards the suggestion that the government was responsible for the losses of depositors. He quoted the opinion of Sir William R. Meredith who investigated the failure of the Farmers' Bank, that failures of banks were due rather to lack of banking experience on the part of the directors than to any other cause. The directors of neither the Home Bank, nor the Farmers' Bank, he said, had experience in banking. He added that it was not fair that the government should bear losses of the banks when it did not got any share of the gains.

T. L. Church (Conservative, North Toronto), asked whether Dr. Anderson would not favor a redemption fund to protect depositors in the same way that the circulation fund protected the bank notes.

Dr. Anderson replied that he was not opposed to an insurance scheme but he thought that it should be provided by the banks themselves.

Decision Reached.

Parliament has referred investigation of every aspect of affairs of defunct Home Bank to Standing Select Committee on Banking and Commerce. This decision was reached at 1 o'clock this morning when the House of Commons adopted by a vote of 133 to 27 the motion of Frank Cahill (Liberal, Pontiac), calling for full inquiry by committee named with express objects:

1—Of further amending the Bank Act with a view to preventing occurences similar to that of the Home Bank failure.

2—Of considering and reviewing findings of proposed Royal Commissioner as well as those of Provincial tribunals already in operation, and

3—Of considering the possibility of protecting from monetary loss Home Bank depositors.

Mr. Cahill's motion was in amendment of the resolution by William Irvine (Labor, Calgary), which called for immediate inquiry by special committee for Parliament with practically the same objects as set forth in amending resolution. For Cahill motion, Liberals, Progressives and Independents voted as a body. Conservatives, led by Mr. Meighen, were united in opposition. Irvine resolution was then withdrawn, its mover having supported the amendment. Prior to the deciding vote, which brought to an end nearly ten hours of discussion, the Prime Minister drew applause from his own supporters and Progressives by announcing his determination to extend scope of judicial inquiry beyond first operations of the bank as an organized institution. He was prepared he declared to have the inquiry cover not only the circumstances surrounding the granting of the charter, but these surrounding every step leading up to issuance of that document. He would see, he said, that instructions to that effect were given to the commissioner.

EXECUTOR FOR STATE

MONTREAL, Mar. 28.—Whether Superior Court has final jurisdiction in the nomination of an executor to an estate is a question before the court of appeal involving administration of a succession valued at nearly $10,000,000.

On January 31, last, Mr. Justice Coderre sanctioned the appointment of Jos. Bastien to act as executor in the estate of the late Hon. Jos. Masson in lieu of G. N. Moncelle, executor, who was also deceased.

Roderick Maeson appealed from the above decision and now F. De Sales Bastien, another heir, attacks Roderick's right to go to a higher tribunal and asks that the appeal be rejected.

CANADA'S LONDON PURCHASE.

Parliament has seldom seen more picayune politics than the uninformed and unintelligent criticism by sections of both Opposition parties—including both Opposition leaders—of the policy of the Government in purchasing at long last a central site in London for a "Canadian House" which will put the Canadian offices on "Main Street," says the Montreal Star.

For decades Canada has lost prestige, business and money by keeping her offices in an out-of-the-way section of London. No one ever made the journey down to Victoria street, where they were located, unless he absolutely had to go. No sooner had Mr. Larkin, an up-to-date business man, settled himself in the High Commissionership than he saw what a bad business policy it was for Canada to hide herself away in this fashion. He at once began to look about for a central site.

There have been disappointments and delays; but at last he got a chance to pick up a place on Trafalgar Square, which has been called "the heart of the Empire." It is where the Canadian Pacific, the Canadian National. The Montreal Star and all enterprising Canadian corporations choose to be. He would have been recreant to his duty if he had failed to seize it. Whether he has made a good "buy" is another question; but we rather fancy that Mr. Larkin knows as much about this phase of the question as does Mr. Forke.

SHOULD BE AMENDED.

Considerable objection is being raised, and the Examiner believes justly so, to the measure now before the Legislature in regard to medical and dental inspection of pupils in the public and separate schools of the Province.

The school medical authorities are apparently, owing to the vague wording of certain clauses in the bill, given wide powers, being able to perform operations upon school children without the prior knowledge or consent of their parents.

The measure should not be passed in its present form.

Provision must be made for consulting and securing the permission of the parents before dental, medical or surgical treatment is given.

To authorize health authorities to do what they like in the treatment of children would be to authorize a policy worthy of Soviet Russia.

The rights of the parents must be recognized and respected, and members of the Legislature are advised to study the wording of the Act and to realize just what it would mean were the measure in its present form to be put on the statute books.

There is much that can be done by school doctors and dentists to improve the health standard of the pupils, but granting that fact, the control of the parents cannot be swept aside by an edict of this nature.

SHOULD NOT STOP NOW.

The announcement that the Legislature may be prorogued next week is satisfactory as a proof of the fact that the proceedings have been carried on with reasonable despatch and that no time has been wasted in the transaction of public business.

In view of the revelations so far in the bond Inquiry, however, the end of the session will not be welcome if it means that the investigation being carried on by the Public Accounts Committee will be terminated.

It should not mean that.

Some arrangement should be made to have the committee continue its sittings during the recess.

The probe has just begun and the sensational disclosures so far made justify the belief that there is much more to be discovered about the transactions that proved so costly for the Province.

The inquiry cannot be stopped at this stage of the proceedings, nor is it to the interest of the people that it should be stopped until it is clear that every witness likely to throw any light upon the subject has been heard.

Nothing short of a complete investigation will satisfy the public, and the Premier, it is to be hoped, will see to it that whether the House sits after next week or not the Public Accounts Committee has a chance to finish its work.

A TORONTO HERO.

In Toronto the other day a young war veteran saved a woman and several children from injury by jumping in front of a runaway horse.

The gallant rescue was made at the cost of his own life, for he received injuries that proved fatal.

And a wife and family are left without a breadwinner.

Steps are being taken to initiate a fund for the relief of those who are left.

If contributions are called for there should be a ready response.

A few weeks ago a hockey player lost the sight of an eye as the result of an accident in a game at Toronto.

In a short time $15,000 was raised for his benefit.

While not objecting at all to the fact that sporting organizations saw fit to recompense a popular player for a painful injury, he Examiner cannot help but say that if $15.000 was considered desirable in the case of an injured hockey player, a fund to look after the family of a young man who gave up his life to save others should be even more readily and generously supported.

It may be that the family of the young hero may benefit from the Carnegie Hero Fund.

But a grateful community should not wait for that phase of the situation to develop.

Freeland was a hero in war and a hero in peace as well, and his bravery should be fittingly recognized by placing the family he leaves behind out of the reach of poverty's clutches.

ON THE UPWARD TREND.

It is not the intention of the Progressive to comment extensively on Premier Dunning's budget speech at this time, but he made one or two remarks which are certainly worth considering, says the Saskatoon Progressive. He produced figures showing that the farmers of Saskatchewan received in payment for their production in 1922 the sum of $232,524,000 and in 1923 the sum of $171,556,750, or a balance in favor of 1922 of over sixty million dollars. Said Mr. Dunning: "The figures are not encouraging; they do not appear on the face of it to follow out my general contention that we are, as a people, slowly but surely on the upward grade. If we are on the upward grade in spite of these figures, it must be because the farmers of the Province have produced the 1923 crop much more cheaply than the 1922 crop. They must have cut still closer to the bone in their expenditures in 1923, if, in spite of receiving sixty million dollars less for their products, they were in a better position than in 1922. It is, nevertheless, my belief, judging from information received from municipalities respecting payment of taxes and from general conversation with farmers, with financial and other people to whom farmers owe money, that there is a slight improvement in 1923 as compared to 1922 in spite of this reduction in aggregate income of sixty million dollars."

Mr. Dunning may be right, and it is to be hoped that he is, but it is difficult to comfort oneself by placing the optimistic conversations with creditors against the actual figures showing the great depreciation of value in the two crop years specified. It may be true that the Province is on the upward trend, but if the drop continued at the same rate for four years, it would be most difficult for Mr. Dunning or anyone else to show that conditions were still improved, although the farmers of the Province had received nothing at all from the sale of their products.

There is only one explanation for the apparent improvement which the Premier undoubtedly senses, and that is, that the good crops in 1923 were harvested in those districts where good crops were most badly needed.

It is possible that the large returns this last year came into the hands of farmers more heavily encumbered with debt than those residing in districts where small yields and bad grades were the rule, and if that possibility is the fact, it may be that creditors were more generoosly taken care of in 1923 than they were in 1922, although the gross receipts of the people of the Province were a much smaller volume.

In spite of Premier Dunning's assertions, even taking them at their most optimistic valuation, there is no doubt that the agricultural industry of Saskatchewan is not in a flourishing condition, and it will not again be in a flourishing condition until there is a much better adjustment than there now is between the prices of the things the farmer has to buy as compared with the articles he has to sell.

A BROAD QUESTION.

The Legislative Assembly of the Province of Saskatchewan has decided to take a plebiscite of the people on July 16th of this year on the prohibition question. For the past few years Saskatchewan, like most of the other Provinces of the Dominion, has had prohibition legislation, but, in response to a demand by a large section of the people, it is to be made the subject of a vote for the purpose of finding out what public opinion on the question is. In view of the result to the plebiscite in Alberta and Manitoba, it would be only reasonable to suppose that the people of Saskatchewan would vote in favour of some modification of the prohibitory laws. Public sentiment seems to have been leading in that direction within the past year or two, and with the other Western Provinces having declared in favour of modification in the prohibition laws, the natural conclusion which can be reached is that the same result would obtain in Saskatchewan.

Apparently the Government of Saskatchewan had something of that nature in its mind when the question to be submitted to the people was formulated. The first question which was proposed reads as follows:

"Are you in favour of the principle of the Saskatchewan Temperance Act?"

That question seemed a fair one. It tied the electors down to a definite policy. The S.T.A. had been in operation for some years. It had been tested, and the people knew how it was working. It gave them something definite on which to vote. A day or two ago, however, it was decided to change the question by broadening it out to read:

"Are you in favour of prohibition in Saskatchewan?"

The new question is a very broad one, so broad in fact that it is apt to be misleading. It leaves but two alternatives—prohibition or no prohibition. There is no attempt to find out what measure of temperance legislation might be desired by the people of the Province. There is no effort to distinguish between prohibitory legislation and temperance legislation. There may be in Saskatchewan, as there are in Ontario, hundreds of thousands of people who are in favour of temperance legislation but who are absolutely opposed to the principle of prohibition. They have no way of expressing their voice in the plebiscite upon the question which has been framed to be submitted to them. They may be opposed to prohibition and just as strongly opposed to the opposite extreme of open bars and open liquor selling, but there is no medium provided for an expression of the opinion of the moderates.

Attorney-General Cross, in announcing to the House the nature of the question, stated that in the event of an affirmative vote, the present Act would be continued or a better one devised by the Government. He made no statement, however, as to what would happen in the event of a negative vote. He did not say whether or not this would lead to a return of the open bar, which nobody wants, or whether another form of liquor legislation would be enacted. Nobody knows what the result would be, so that under the circumstances the vote to be taken in Saskatchewan will hardly be a fair expression of the real desire of the people. It is to be hoped that the Ontario Government when framing the question for the plebiscite which is coming in the near future, will be more specific in its questions, and will not submit anything to the people which cannot be clearly understood by even the most simple of the electors.—Kingston Whig.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It looks as if Hon. Peter Smith should take the floor.

Mr. Pinard seems to have drifted out of the position of Liberal Whip on a blow tide of 7 per cent. beer.

Now it is Peterborough, alive to the example set first by Stratford and then by Belleville, which is considering an exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto. There is talk of deferring it for another year, but the Examiner warns the city not to abandon the idea—it offers too many possibilities. —Belleville Ontario.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, March 27.—The stuff in the market this morning was mostly common to medium butchers and a load of the latter was held at 6 cents. Butchers' bulls are a slow trade, and 46 fair bulls picked up on Wednesday did not average over 4 cents a pound. A few choice butchers sold well. Medium weight choice steers brought $7.50 a cwt. and a fat cow, 1,700 lbs. went for the Jewish trade at the same money. Except for a few common milk cows and poor quality bulls, the market was cleaned up this morning.

Calves and lambs close up fairly strong for the week. Top calves are holding fro 11½ to 12½ cents, and good mediums are 10 cents. Choice lambs touched 15½ cents on Wednesday, and a few not classy sold this morning at 14½ cents for ewes. Handy weight sheep are wanted from 8 to 9 cents, and choice yearlings up to 10 cents a pound.

Hogs are selling at the bid price $7.25 a cwt. f.o.b., and this quotation holds for week end loadings.

SALERNO, Italy, March 27. — (Canadian Press).—The gravity of the landslide which occurred in the vicinity of Amalfi yesterday grows hourly. DIAMOND MARKET PICKING UP

LONDON, March 28.—(Associated Press).—The first few weeks of any year are always good for the precious stone merchants, as traders generally replace their stocks which have been depleted by the Christmas and New Year trade.

This year there is said to have been a greater demand than ever for diamonds and other valuable stones, and last week $1,250,000 worth of "rough" stones were sold, the bulk going into the hands of American cutters. The biggest demand is for cheap and medium-grade diamonds but much money is being put into pearl ropes and necklaces, one string alone being sold last week for $200,000.

Assistance is being carried to the landslide sufferers on the backs of relief workers. PIGEON LAKE'S TRAFFIC ENDS

Ice Breaking Up and Short Road to Peterboro Disappears For Season — Bridge Is Needed.

KING'S WHARF, Mar. 26.—The very fine weather of the last week has made the ice on Pigeon Lake here impassable, as it is open in several places and unsafe for travel. The people in this locality miss the short road to Peterborough and Ennismore when the ice is gone, but still the residents are looking forward to a bridge across the lake to replace the old floating bridge taken away a few years ago. It is badly needed and would be a great benefit to many.

ONE OLD MAID IN SEVEN CENTRAL EUROPE'S GIRLS

BERLIN, March 28.—(Associated Press).—Every seventh woman in Germany is doomed to be an old maid. There simply are not men enough to go around and, to make the situation worse, most of the emigrants who are seeking fortunes in foreign lands are men of marriageable age. Hence the appeals in newspaper advertisements for husbands, and the alluring offers of women with furnished houses and established businesses for spouses.

All in all there are 15,000,000 more women than men in Europe, but the shortage of males is greater in Germany than in any other country. In Austria and Hungary every fifth woman is doomed to single blessedness. Bulgaria and Rumania are the only European countries which have a surplus of men. There are only 985 women to every 1,000 men in Rumania, and in Bulgaria men outnumber women at the ratio of 1,000 to 997.

INDUSTRIES NOT THREATENED BY TARIFF POLICY

Hon. J. A. Robb Told Deputation From Hamilton and District There Was No Reason For the Country Becoming Alarmed—References In Speech From the Throne Quoted.

ANXIETY EXPRESSED.

OTTAWA, March 28.—(Canadian Press).—"There is no real reason why the country should become alarmed about the Government's fiscal policy. This Government has no intention of ruining any industries," Hon. J. A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, told a delegation from Hamilton and that vicinity representing the Board of Trade, the City Council and manufacturers and fruit growers which waited upon him last night to protest against any reduction in the tariff, which, they said, had been generally rumored as a result of certain passages in the Speech from the Throne.

A Hardy Annual

"There is nothing in the speech from the throne which threatens any industry," Mr. Robb went on. 'Such delegations as this are hardy annuals just before any budget speech." The representations made to him by the delegation were based on rumor. Far from being adversely affected by tariff revision in the past, the agricultural implement business in Canada was holding its own, and the influx of immigrants who were going on the land would create a bigger demand for implements.

Mayor Jutton was the spokesman for the civic delegation; W. H. Cooper for the Board of Trade. Percy Ford Smith read telegrams from the Guelph and St. Catharines Chambers of Commerce supporting the protest. T. J. Mahoney, M.L.A. represented the fruit growers of Niagara Peninsula.

Need Home Market

He said the prosperity of the industrial communities was necessary to that of the fruit growers who consequently asked that there be no reduction in the duty on implements. They were willing to pay extra for Canadian implements to ensure a more prosperous home market for produce.

The delegation comprised sixteen men from many different industries Mayor Jutton said that any interference with the tariff would impair many industries and close down some. Builders in Hamilton, he said were hesitating before going ahead on account of the uncertainty of the future of the industries. W. H. Cooper said that the deputation was strictly non-political. He urged adherence to the tariff policy as outlined by Mr. Fielding in the Budget speech last year. It was essential to industries that the country be assured of a stable tariff.

ARRANGE ADVANCE POLLS

Bills Before Legal Committee of Legislature —Port McNicol Boom —Amendment to Companies' Act.

TORONTO, March 27.—Advance polls for municipal elections will remain open until 9 p.m., by provisions of a bill sponsored by Hon. Finally MacDiarmid, and reported by the Legal Committee of the Legislature The measure is for the benefit chiefly of trainmen.

A bill to amend the Registry Act arises from a peculiar condition at Port McNichol, where hundreds of acres of farm land were divided into lots during a boom, but never built upon. Taxes fell into arrears, and the municipalities concerned are protecting themselves by buying in the land. So long as any lots are held privately streets laid out cannot be closed.

Work for County Judge

The Bill, as printed, provides that the Ontario Railway Board should have power to make orders cancelling registered plans, closing streets and providing that the lands should thereafter be known by original township numbers. The Board asked that the County Judge be substituted, and the Bill has been amended accordingly.

"Some County Judges are in the real estate business," suggested Hon. F. C. Biggs. Hon Charles McCrea expressed a wish to study the bill from the standpoint of the Mines Department, and it was referred to a sub-committee composed of Mr. McCrea, W.E.N. Sinclair and W. Finlayson.

Mark Vaughan's bill to amend the Companies' Act was reported. As summarized by Mr. McCrea, it provides that "where organization has been carried except taking of a certificate, that fact will not make illegal the taking of a mortgage or doing of an act."

Mr. Owens' bill to amend the Companies' Act was reported. As summarized by Mr. McCrea, it provides that "where organization has been carried except taking of a certificate, that fact will not make illegal the taking of a mortgage or doing of an act."

Mr. Owens' bill to amend the Warehousemen's Liens Act stands over because it does not conform to a model bill recently prepared by the Law Society, with co-operation of provincial law officers.

Counsel for the City of Ottawa and County of Carleton, respectively supported and opposed A. H. Acre's "remedial bill" to settle a long-standing dispute as to what the city shall pay by way of interest and depreciation on the County Court House, Brantford and London were mentioned as possibly affected. Consideration was postponed until next meeting, and Chairman Finlayson told the parties: "If you cannot come together, some body is going to get hit."

ARGENTINE TO HAVE MILK SHOW IN MAY

BUENOS AIRES, (By mail to United Press.—American mannufacturers of dairy equipment will be interested in the announcement made by the Minister of Agriculture of his intention to organizing an international dairy industry show to be held on the grounds of the Argentine Rural Society during May.

This explosion will take place at a time when, due to the great interest in the possibilities of the dairying industry, thousands of Argentine farmers will be eager to see the latest improvements developed in those countries that are noted for their modern and scientific methods of handling milk and manufacturing milk products.

While it is true that dairying methods in Argentina have undergone decided improvement in the course of the past four years, yet a great deal remains to be done before Argentine dairy farmers can be said to have attained the degree of perfection reached by their colleagues in other dairy countries.

Passengers on the evening local having been alarmed at the display of cutlery, while Eero Houtalla was picked up at the C.N.R. station. Ahhlatta just arrived in Sudbury last night, having come over from Finland a few days ago. His first lodging in the Nickle Town was the police station. Henannen arrived here last August but Houtalla arrived but a few weeks ago. The arrests will serve as a warning to other Finns in the district who have been in the habit of carrying knives. Following closely upon the affair on the Coppercliff Road some days ago when two men were badly injured by a Finn who went on the rampage with a knife. It is believed that police action in this connection will have a salutary effect.

FAMOUS "CUTTY" SARK AGAIN IN COMMISSION

LONDON, March 28.—(United Press).—The world's most famous and fastest sailing ship, "the Cutty Sark," is now being fitted out anew in a British port. Built fifty-six years ago, in 1868, this wonderful vessel for many years held the foremost place amongst the "cracker-jacks" of the clipper ship era.

From 1874 until 1890 nothing under sail could compete with her time on her runs between Liverpool and Sydney, Australia. She once covered 365 knots more than 400 miles, within twenty-four hours, a speed which few modern steamers, excepting the Atlantic passenger greyhounds, can rival.

Except in the Rhineland, the study of English has been taken up quite generally throughout Germany in preference to French, according to a recent announcement.

The desire to learn Spanish and English among the younger generation of Germans appears to have been brought about by the large number of men and women who have hopes of emigrating to England or North or South America.

COVERED WAGONS FLY IN THE AIR.

World War Flier Leaves Letter to Be Opened After His Death.

By ALBERT APPLE

On the outside of the envelope was written: "To be opened only after my death." This had been penned and sealed by Captain Hyde-Pearson, World War flier and air mail pilot. Death came to him when his plane crashed among the Pennsylvania hills while carrying mail from New York westward.

This was the message he left inside the envelope:

"To my beloved brother pilots and pals—I go west, but with a cheerful heart. I hope what small sacrifice I have made may be of use to the cause. When we fly, we are damned fools, they say. When we are dead, we weren't half bad fellows. But everyone in this wonderful aviation service is doing the world far more good than the public can appreciate. We risk our necks; we give our lives; we perfect a service for the benefit of the world at large. They, mind you, are the ones who call us fools. But stick to it, boys. I'm still very much with you all. See you all again."

This brave flying captain was as surely a pioneer and explorer as the courageous pioneers who, only a few generations ago, went into the unknown west on horseback or in covered wagons.

The men who fly are developing a great new transportation service. They have the prophetic vision to realize the future of aviation. Willingly they gamble their lives. A thoughtless public may imagine the fliers risk their necks for the sheer adventure and thrill of flight. Truth is, they are as serious about their work as the mounted scouts who invaded our western plains at the head of millions of settlers to follow.

Flying is a serious business, not a circus performance. This much we learn from the life and last message Captain Hyde-Pearson.

The captain quite evidently had a premonition of death. It is not the custom of men, unless they have such premonitions, to leave envelopes marked: "To be opened only after my death."

Many will wonder what he meant by his closing lines: "Stick to it, boys. I'm still very much with you all. See you all again."

In those lines is the firm belief that death is only a change—a farewell flight into unknown but better regions. Hail and farewell, brave Captain Hyde-Pearson, as you fly westward into the sunset.

"Polar Bear Limited" Late Once All Winter.

NORTH BAY, March 27.— Col. J. I. McLaren, of Hamilton, one of the Commissioners of the T. and N. O. railway is going home to-night and get even with Southern Ontario railroaders who have been kidding him for months about train service of new extension of T. and N. O. north of Cochrane.

He is armed with reports showing that Polar Bear Limited, as the train on that division is known, has been late only once all winter and he will dare southern railroaders to equal that record.

Traffic over the whole system of the T. and N. O. continues heavy, and March will see another new record. Early spring will make it possible to get started on track work April 15, one month earlier than last year.

Bear River, N.S.—"My back was so bad I could hardly work. I was always tired out and had no ambition; was nervous and dizzy, and everything seemed to worry me. I also had terrible pains in my right side. I felt badly for about eighteen months, and could not do my work as is should nave been done. I tried several doctors, and also bought about $25.00 worth of put up medicines, but I found no relief until I took Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Doctor Pierce's Anuric (anti-uric-acid) Tablets. WAR-LORD STOPS RUSSIAN SHIPS

HARBIN, March 28.—(Associated Press).—An order issued by Marshal Chang Tso-lin, the over-lord of Manchuria, prohibiting navigation of the Sungari River by Russian steamers has served to augment the ill-feeling already existing in commercial and railway circles in Harbin against the Chinese.

The prohibition, which is said to be contrary to the terms of a treaty signed at Aigun, Russia, in 1857, is regarded as further evidence of a Chinese policy of ignoring Russian treaty rights.

Blackheads Go Quick By This Simple Method

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body go quick by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this get about two ounces of peroxine powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them large and unsightly—while the simple application of peroxine powder and the water dissolve them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition.

.... .. DIABETES BAD. .. ....

NEW YORK, March 28.—Pennsylvania, New Jrsey, Massachusetts and New York lead the country with the highest death rates from diabetes, according to insurance statistics. This is said to be due to the fact that the disease is more often fatal to persons of foreign extraction than to those of native stock. The southern and western states have the lowest death rate from the disease.

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUILD A HOME.

A Government Expert Predicts That the Rents Will Keep Their High Price.

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, March 28.—If you can guess how long prices generally will stay high, you can judge pretty accurately how long your landlord will keep on soaking you, for rent, on your house or flat, about what you're paying now.

But you CAN'T guess, points out Dr. J. M. Gries, chief of the commerce department's division of building and housing, because nobody can tell how long money is going to continue being affected by the World War.

It may be for years and it may be forever, the doctor thinks. Prices have risen before and then slumped, he admits, but sometimes they've STAYED up; this may be one of those times.

So, from the standpoint of a family that wants a modest home of its own to live in, it's a good time to build.

Dr. Gries doesn't see much hope for the tenant for some time to come.

That is to say, not for the tenant of moderate means—on an income, say, up to $5000. Rentals on the type of houses and apartments the rich can afford have shown somewhat of a downward tendency lately, but not rentals on accommodations suited for the purses of the "middle class."

There's an undoubted shortage in "middle class" houses. Then why don't landlords build, to meet it?

"They say," explains Dr. Gries, "If we knew prices were up to STAY up, we Would build, but we daren't risk building if, just after we've finished, prices are coming down again."

As for building materials, wholesale prices, which stood at 188 in January, 1923, were 181 in January, 1924; whereas retail prices, which stood at 195 in January, 1923, were 204 in January, 1924. This doubtless means a slight decline in the long run, though retail prices have lagged behind.

Dr. Gries sees a little comfort for the "middle class" tenant in the fact that the rich, at least, are building, which suggests that they'll be moving soon into new and costlier homes leaving their old ones vacant, with a chance for the whole line below them to move on up a little.

If hard times should come, there almost certainly would be a doubling up of families, and this, too, would make more room; it might be followed by quite a sharp slump in rents. But that wouldn't be an improvement—with hard times.

Finally, improving building methods labor-saving machinery, standardizations, the broad general progress of the industry may have their effect, but Dr. Gries calculates this over a 10-year period, at least, so it doesn't signify much for the immediate future.

Any anyway, he asks, what good will lower rents do unless INCOMES stay up?

All in all, now's a good time to build a house—to live in yourself!

FRENCH CAPITAL SOON WILL LOSE ITS WOMEN STREET SWEEPERS

PARIS, March 28.—(Associated Press).—The old women who shiveringly sweep the narrow streets of Paris have lost their fight against modern machinery. The city has decided their usefulness is ended. Henceforth only one vacancy in three will be filled, and before long these jobs will be abolished as their holders die or leave.

These women once were among the picturesque sights of Parjs, swinging their long-handled, brush-wood brooms, beginning at dawn. But now with few remaining there is more of pity than of romance in the sight. It won't be long until some good old woman will be photographed leaning on her witch-like broom and written about for the newspapers as the last of the sweepers.

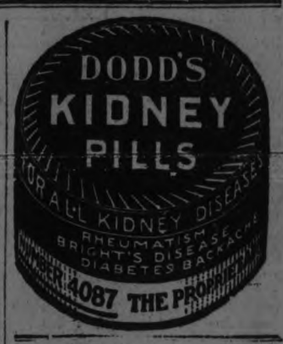
JUST A LITTLE JOKE BROUGHT FIVE YEARS

Men Who Stole Gobelin Tapestries Will Have Time to Laugh.

VERSAILLES, March 28.—(Associated Press).—There was a difference of opinion between court and prisoners as to the merits of a joke when Prosper Charles and Gaston Nouvain were arraigned on a charge of stealing two valuable Gobelin tapestries from the Chateau of the Kings. The court's opinion prevailed and the men were sentenced to jail for five years.

The prisoners' defense was that their theft was "just a little joke." They said they knew they could not sell the tapestries and that they merely wanted to show that art treasures worth 1,500,000 francs were poorly protected against theft.

"You certainly succeeded," said the court, "but you caused the tapies great damage, the bill for cleaning them alone amounting to 10,000 francs."



GOAT SLEUTH NEEDED.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., March 27.—Muskogee's police force will be recruited from the farms if Chief Fisher carries out his threat made after several cops failed to solve a mystery in which a goat was central figure. A policeman, hearing smothered groans in a barn, called for help. Nine cops came to the rescue, and then a billy goat marched out of the shadows. Fisher said "no goat would fool a country boy."

Daring Death to Deliver King's Private Zoo Royal Cargo of Beasts Perish in Tempest

Thrilling Experience of Famous Animal Handler in Taking Gift of Tigers, Leopards and Other Fine Specimens From King of Siam to King of Spain—Bedlam Breaks Loose When Terrible Storm Hits Decrepit Steamer.

Bagging sixteen elephants is no mean achievement even for so famous a wild animal trapper and trainer as Charles Mayer, yet he succeeded in doing it, and the facility with which he accomplished this feat was described last week. By using tame elephants to bump and pummel with their trunks and knock down and hold the fighting bull of the herd, Mr. Mayer's men managed to get ropes around his feet, whereby they caused the beast to move against his will by hauling ahead one huge foot after the other with rattan lines passed around the stakes. This is the third of a new series of articles by Mr. Mayer dealing with his many years' experiences in Malaya, Sumatra and Borneo. Barely had he broken the spirit of the big bull elephant in question, when he received a summons from the King of Siam to report at Bangkok for an important assignment.

By CHARLES MAYER

A COMMISSION from the King of Siam was a big stroke of luck for any man. If the king had confidence in him, he was given a free hand and the order to spare no expense. I was delighted, therefore, when I got a letter from Mr. John Anderson, then in Singapore, telling me that a royal gift of wild animals was to be sent from Siam to Alphonso of Spain, and that I was to be responsible for them. I decided to go to Bangkok, to see that the animals were started right and to stick to them every foot of the way.

The commission fell in well with my general plans. The monsoon season would soon be breaking, and this alway stopped my business of animal-shipping. I liked to spend the winters in Europe, and usually managed to do it.

When I got back to Singapore after my successful round-up of elephants, I found out that a small coast steamer was leaving for Bangkok the next day.

I had a fine trip to Bangkok, arriving there in four days. The king was away at the time. He had a habit of going on short trips to Singapore and Java. So I conducted my negotiations in regard to the wild animals with Prince Damrong, the brother of the king, who had the title of minister of the interior. It was arranged that I was to have $2,500 Mexican for my work, all expenses paid, and first-class passage to Spain and back to Singapore. He referred to a successful delivery of animals I had made for the king, years before, to the old Austrian emperor.

Caging the Animals

WHEN I inspected the present shipment, I found that it consisted of two tigers—fine big ones—six leopards, four of them spotted and two black fellows, one tapir, four civet-cats and four small tiger-cats, two gibbons and twenty other monkeys, some of them long-tailed and some pig-tailed. Enough there to start a small zoo. There is a great variety of animals to be found in Siam, and they have been sent as royal presents all over Europe. Queen Victoria got her share and Edward VII., and even the late Czar of Russia—cat animals can stand a great deal of cold.

The animals of which I was to take charge were housed in a shed in the courtyard of the prison. They were in cages ridiculous from a shipper's point of view—great iron things with half rotten wooden bottoms. A single leopard, for example, was enclosed in a space six feet by six feet, made of iron bars not much more than an inch apart! There was enough room for the animal to injure himself in a half dozen ways; the floor on which he stood was unfit for travel and the weight of the whole thing absurd.

I should be obliged to transship the animals at Singapore where local steamers lie out in the roads. I should have to have the cages loaded on lighters, unloaded on shore, put on bullock-carts and loaded again on to a big liner for their trip to Europe. Where this sort of handling is necessary, every added pound means added danger. It was no wonder that the King of Siam had had bad luck with his shipments.

I decided to have the best Chinese carpenters I could get hold of make an entire new set of cages and do it quickly.

Simple, Yet Hazardous

I MADE a diagram and let it be understood that the order was for the king. The cages were to be of heavy sernia wood, one and a half inches thick—top, sides and bottom—and the ends closed with one-inch iron bars. They were to be sufficiently high to allow the animal to stand, but not wide enough for him to turn around in. Each beast was to have a separate cage, except the monkeys, which were put into two large boxes, one for the long-tailed and one for the short-tailed variety. For monkeys there must be enough space to climb about in, but with the cat animals a narrow cage, while they are on the road, gives the best results. The beasts are stiff for a time when they arrive, but they soon limber up. I had wooden covers made to be used over the barred ends of the cages, while they were being handled. Air holes were bored in these.

To transfer a wild animal from one cage to another is a simple matter. Food is placed on the floor of the new cage, and this is backed up to the open end of the old one; the bars are lifted and the beast walks into his new quarters. Nothing could be easier, and yet at the time of which I am writing I still felt twinges from an almost fatal accident that happened to me when I was putting an orang-outang into a larger cage at my animal-house in Singapore.

He was just short of full-grown, a peaceable sort of fellow. His favorite food, a large onion, was in his new home, which was pushed up against his old cage. I was on top of this, pulling up the bars to let him move out. The iron sockets were rusty, and I had some trouble in shaking the bars loose. At last there was only one left, but that was stuck fast. While I was trying to shake it free with both hands, my left hand, fortunately, grasping and covering the end of it, suddenly the thing shot up and—my hand still covering the end—gave me a terrible blow, which knocked my nose flat against the side of my face and sent me rolling, unconscious, off the cage.

Always the Unexpected

WHAT had happened was this: The orang having watched me pull up the other bars, caught the idea of what I was trying to do. He was impatient to get at that tempting onion, so he grabbed the bar and shot it up. If my hand had not been over the top of it, he would have killed me. Certainly the beast had dreadful strength. My nose is still crooked as a mark of it. It is just this unexpected thing that is always happening with animals.

The finished cages arrived from the Chinese carpenter shop on bullock-carts. The carts were drawn by prisoners of another class—shackled and yoked together two and two. They were really lent by the street cleaning department. For one year they were condemned to draw a bullock-cart, after which they would be put to death. This was the punishment for two offenses—murder and gang robbery.

There was much shouting and joking as the first cages were delivered, and I found out through Hsi Chu I., who got it from a Chinese, that the men who drew the carts were to be executed the next day.

"They make jokes, sir," he said, "because to-morrow these men will have a fine feast. More than they can hold, sir."

The next day I heard so much talk of "execution" that I decided to stop work long enough to see it. The Siamese made a sort of holiday of it. This was to be a three days' festival. Thirty-six men in all were to be put to death, twelve a day. Squatting in an open pavilion, with all their relatives and friends squatting around them, they were given their last meal. All sorts of food and delicacies were brought, and every one concerned had a "grand feed." At the appointed hour, the procession formed to walk through the town from the pavilion to the execution grounds, which were about a mile away and near the palace.

Copra Meanest Smell

AFTER the execution, it was difficult for me to get my mind down to the recaging of the animals, but it was finished without mishaps. The wooden coverings were put over the ends of the cages, which were loaded into bullock-carts. There were plenty of condemned men left, it seemed, to do the street-cleaning work of Bangkok, and the department still had men to lend. Two in front of the bullock-carts and two behind, yoked together, they pushed and pulled the king's animals to the dock where the Poo Ann was waiting.

I had not got within sight of her before I knew she had copra on board. Copra is the meat of cocoanuts, taken out and sun-dried. To the occidental nose it has almost the meanest smell on earth. Blachan (rotten fish) the oriental, delicacy, has the worst, but copra is worse than the durian, which deserves its name "stinking durian," given to it by travelers from the west. All these things are perfumery to a native. There were sixty tons of copra in the rear hatch of the Poo Ann.

She was also carrying a consignment of beef bullocks, one hundred in all, to the Singapore market, and the last of these were just being loaded as we came up with our cages. A sling was put about the horns of the bullocks, and the animals were hoisted into the air and dropped down on the main deck. They were tied to the outside rail by a rope that went through their rattan noserings. My animal-cages were hoisted on board and lashed to the hatch that was amidships. I saw to it that they were firm and that they were placed so that the beasts could be easily fed, watered and cleaned. Since there were eighteen cages in all, this required some ingenuity.

When the animals had been settled, the human cargo came aboard. There must have been almost a hundred men and women and a few children, all Malays, going to Singapore. They carried their belongings and food, done up for the most part in bundles. A few small boxes tucked under their arms served for seats or for pillows. They were all crowded on to the upper deck at the stern. There was absolutely no accommodation for them, not even room enough to stretch out to sleep. They were to be given water and rice, nothing else. They were just to sit there under the canvas awning for five days.

The Prophetic Tiger

I HAD made much better provision than this for my animals. The monkeys were not only to have rice, but yams, either raw or half-cooked, and onions, which all monkeys love. For the tapir I had brought large quantities of jack-fruit, which often grows two and a half feet long and eighteen inches thick. The tapir is very timid, but he is an enormous eater.

There was no difficulty in providing for my cat animals with a hundred bullocks on board. We had hardly started before the Chinese butcher hit one over the head with a hammer. Since my meat-eaters were closely confined, I gave them sulphur with their beef; I had a tarpaulin spread over the cages and kept it wet for coolness.

Hsi Chu I, my Chinese "boy," understood what the animals needed almost as well as I did. It was safe enough to leave him in charge, with a man or two under him to do the work. This left me free to play cribbage with the English captain. I knew him well and liked him. Rusk, his name was: I shared his cabin with him. He wanted to play cribbage from morning till night. We were at it before we had finished steaming down the Menam River and when we got out into the Gulf of Siam we were still saying, "Fifteen, two, fifteen four."

It was the first week in November. The northeast monsoons had already broken, but it was too early in the season to look for any serious trouble. It was the second day out that I heard one of the tigers give a long sickly yowl.

"Mayer," the Captain said, "we are going to have some dirty weather, and that tiger knows it."

"He's seasick," I answered, "that's all that's the matter with him."

"Well, he's not as seasick now as he's going to be. He'll be a sailor-tiger before he gets out of this."

I thought I would take a look at the monkeys. Some of them were chattering, but most of them had their eyes shut, and their heads were nodding. I had an onion in my hand. Even the chatterers took very little notice of it. Some of them were holding their stomachs. In the other cages there were a lot of sick cats.

Howls of Beasts

I WENT to find Hsi Chu I. He was doubled up in the mate's bunk. I decided to lie down for a while. When I got up, the wind was rising. I went to the cabin and found the captain busy there. Most of his clothes were thrown around.

"Getting ready for a party?" I asked him.

"Yes, a —— of a party!"

I saw then what he was doing. He had taken out all his bottles of whiskey and gin and was wrapping them in his clothes and ramming them tight into his locker drawer. He shut it with a bang, turned the key and went out without another word.

I threw myself down on my berth. Every minute the wind grew worse. We were going before it. It was plain that Busk was afraid to turn and face the storm. Above the roar I heard the sound of screaming from the stern. The canvas covering had been torn away from the rear deck. The passengers were now exposed to the wind and rain.

My animals seemed to recover from their first stupor. One of the tigers began to howl out his wretchedness. Soon the other cats joined in. But the wind rose still higher and made it impossible at last to distinguish between the sounds of the storm, the yowling of the beasts and the cries of the deck passengers.

In the middle of the third night I turned over in my bunk and saw the captain on the floor with his chart, trying to find out where he was.

"Where are we?" I yelled at him.

"If it keeps on, man, we'll land in Borneo or Australia!"

He rolled up his chart and lurched over to a five-pound tin of biscuits. He took a handful of them and drew a little water from a stone filter. I undid the straps that held me in the bunk, crawled out and got down on the floor. I braced my back against the locker drawers.

New Perils

THE captain leaned against the side of the cabin. We planted our feet together to keep us from pitching on to each other and began a long slow "feed." We were still grinding biscuits when daylight came. The Malay mate put his head in at the door. The wind blew in with him, and he held on to the door-frame. But even in his struggle to stand up, he managed to salute the captain. It struck me as funny.

"Trouble, captain!" he shouted.

"What—more trouble?" the captain bawled at him

"Bullocks!" he screamed back. "Some are loose, sir. Legs broken. Sliding over deck. Knocking down everything. Breaking legs of others."

"Mayer," Busk yelled at me, "those —— oxen are going to smash this old iron scow!"

He acted, somehow, as if I were responsible. His feet pushed mine as if he wanted to ram me into the locker. "Get them overboard," he roared.

"How do it, sir?" yelled the mate.

"Throw every bullock into the sea."

The situation was so bad that it did one thing for me. It made me forget to be seasick. I pulled myself out on the bridge where I could see what was going on below. Bellowing cattle were rolling over the deck and pounding into each other and into the boat. It would have been death for any sailor to go in among them. But I saw one fellow crawling along the rail and I then observed that a long rope was tied to him under the armpits and that two other sailors, who were standing not far from me on the bridge, were holding the end of it. A hammer was tied to his wrist, and he was going to try to open the gangway. I don't believe any but a Malay sailor would have made the attempt.

While I was watching him, he slipped and fell into the sea. The men on the bridge hauled him back. This time he reached the gangway. When his side of the boat was high, he hammered on the iron pins that held the door fast. I could not see that he was making any progress until suddenly the door swung back, and out went the bullocks that were nearest to it.

A Desperate Situation

THERE were four gangways on the Poo Ann, two on each side of the lower deck. One by one they were opened. Some of the poor bullocks that had life left in them, seeing their companions going through the opening, struggled toward them and dropped overboard.

Now that the deck was partially cleared, four sailors ventured on to it and tried to work the dead and half-dead animals toward the nearest gangway. Sometimes when they had pushed a bullock almost to an opening, the roll of the boat would throw it back.

I heard some awful sounds from my cages. They had begun to move about. They bumped one another and then in a great slide, all together, slid along the deck. They began to beat and pound the old boat.

I was not surprised to have Rusk come up behind me and yawl in my ear, "Your zoo has got to go! Kings or no kings!"

Appalled and grieved as I was at this suggestion, there appeared to be no alternative. I was obliged to assent.

Bullocks with broken legs and cages full of howling beasts were in a sluing, sliding mass. All hands were called out to help the Poo Ann rid herself of her half-living cargo.

The men did what they could, but it was the roll of the boat and the open gangways that did most to clear the deck. One by one my serala cages bumped, slid or were pushed into the China Sea.

They floated, of course. I could see some of them bobbing about on the waves. I watched them for a while, and then went back to my bunk.
